Board OKs Changes In Math Curriculum

By TAMI EDGAR
Statesman Staff Writer

Changes in the math curriculum were approved after much deliberation at Monday night's School Board meeting.

The curriculum passed by a 4-3 vote, with Richard Theusch, Jean Goeden and Gerald Secor opposed. Some changes that were accepted are that an eighth grade algebra class will not count as one of the two high school math credits, and the two year algebra program will count as two credits for graduation. The 1979-80 freshman class will be required to take two years of math. Calculus will be made known to students wishing to take this class. It is either offered as a class or on a seminar basis, depending on how many students are interested. The last item was the homogenous grouping of Grades 1-6. This will be implemented for this second semester usage.

The math levels will be determined by evaluations of the students. Favorable placing of a student in math is that he should not be placed one year beyond or one year below his current grade level.

A question was raised on why start this program in the middle of a school year instead of waiting until the start of a new year. The answer was that an advantage would be to work out the problems that confront the system and to see if it's really going to work. After the semester ends the situation will be evaluated as to how effective the program really was.

The other item which caused concern was Kewaskum changing to a different conference. The main concern was that the girls sports might suffer because of the insufficient sports in the other schools. It was expressed that Kewaskum currently competes against schools of greater sizes and has done well, so if Kewaskum changes to a similar conference it is hoped that all sports, band and chorus programs will continue to excel.

The WIAA will decide on December 20 whether Kewaskum should join the South Packerland Conference.

Bring the Kiddies to SEE SANTA

Santa Claus will make his annual visit to Kewaskum on Saturday morning, December 16, at the Middle School. He hopes to meet all the area youngsters between 10:00 a.m. and 12 noon.

Area children eight and under are invited to say hello to Santa Claus and to receive a bag of Christmas goodies.

Kewaskum Kiwanians will be on hand to assist Santa during his visit.

Local stores are bulging with gift suggestions for Christmas giving which compares favorably to that found in the big cities, plus you save the time and transportation. Come to Kewaskum and shop, browse through the stores and bring the kiddies to greet Santa.

Board Still Unable to Set Tax Rate for Village

By TAMI EDGAR
Statesman Staff Writer

The Village Board could not set the tax rate for Kewaskum at Monday night's budget meeting.

The commissioner had all preliminary figures but they had not received confirmation from the state. There are only five local communities in the southeast corner of Wisconsin which have not yet received their figures, one of these being Kewaskum.

The board then reviewed the sheets for the proposed budget of 1979 for the Village of Kewaskum. They reviewed each item and the amounts to make sure all sheets correlated with each other.

The board planned a short emergency meeting Wednesday or Thursday if the confirmed figures come in.

The board then brought up the problem of shoveling sidewalks after a snowfall. The ordinance pertaining to this problem states that sidewalks should be shoveled each day after a snowfall. The board felt that 24 hours is a sufficient time to have the sidewalks clear of snow. They feel the ordinance should be enforced more than it has been.

A few other issues discussed were the Police Department voting for only forty work hours and no more, and the board also gave permission to Pete Albers to pick up the generator for the lift stations from Madison.

After this short meeting the board adjourned into a closed session.

Program on Poems Presented To Woman's Club

A varied program of his own poems was read to the Kewaskum Woman's Club and their guests, the members of the XYZ Club of Kewaskum, by James Abell Wright on Saturday, December 9.

Wrights' poems treated subjects ranging from Christmas, through objects of nature, to feelings of children. His connections with poetry over many years included a regular poetry program over WTMJ radio, publication of his poetry in magazines, and the publication of several books of poetry.

Two books containing his poems, "Beyond the Spark" and "Saltmines and Such," were given to the Woman's Club by Wright and will be donated to the Kewaskum Public Library. A long-time resident of the West Bend area, James Wright expresses in his poems scenes and sensations familiar to all who have a similar background, which makes his writing especially important to us.

During the business meeting, Mrs. Walter Bade, president, announced that the Campbell-sport Woman's Club has invited our club to attend its January 11 meeting when the speaker will be Mrs. Robert Confare, WFWC president. Several members will drive and those who wish to go should call Mrs. Bade (626-2637).

Mrs. Charles Miller announced that the 66th annual Founders Banquet will be held at Hon-E-Kor Country Club on Saturday, January 20, at 7:00 p.m. Mrs. Miller and Mrs. Donald Koerble are in charge of arrangements. Husbands of members are invited to the banquet and reservations should be made by January 12. The price will be $5.25 per person.

Campus Notes

University of Wisconsin-Platteville organized the telethon. Shirley is a criminal justice major.

The Badger Camp, near Prairie du Chien, provides a week at camp for persons regardless of disability, state, sex, religion or age.

Canisters have been placed in businesses throughout the community. This is the eleventh year that they have helped with the campaign. Last year the department raised $42.10 to help in the fight against neuromuscular diseases.

MDA provides free wheelchairs, braces, other orthopedic appliances, physical therapy, educational and recreational programs, summer and winter camps for Muscular Dystrophy patients. Disabled Children Benefits Available

Your disabled child may be eligible for monthly cash benefits and medical assistance from the Supplemental Security Income program. SSI, a federal program, is administered through the Social Security Administration. It is designed to aid financially needy families with disabled children.

Eligibility for SSI for disabled children is based on the disability and family income. To qualify, the disability must affect the child's physical growth, learning processes, basic skills, or emotional development.

Family income and resources are also considered. The value of a home is not considered, however, property other than a home would be counted. A family with three children, for example, could earn more than $13,300 and still qualify.

In addition to disabled children, financially needy physically and mentally disabled adults and low income persons 65 or older can qualify for SSI.

For the next several months, Marilyn Koehnlein, SSI Outreach Worker will be in Washington County to answer your questions about SSI and your disabled child. She can screen for income eligibility and help with the application process. For more information, contact Marilyn at Washington County Department of Social Services, 338-0081, Ext. 206. Applications can be made at your local Social Security Office. Check into SSI, it can help.

Holiday Poultry Checked for Weight

Robert W. Probst, weights and measures bureau director with the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection, reports that Wisconsin consumers are getting a "fair shake" when buying holiday poultry.

According to Probst, state weights and measures inspectors were busy during the period of November 13-17 check-weighing turkeys, chickens, ducks and geese. He said that inspectors found a very small margin of error in weights and price extensions.

Using random sample methods, inspectors checked 4,948 turkeys and found only 90 birds with short weight. Of these turkeys, 55 were found with price extension errors. Other poultry checked included 636 chickens, 130 ducks, 95 capons and 38 geese—all were found to be accurately weighed and priced.

Probst says that state weights and measures inspectors will continue to check poultry during the coming weeks to assure that consumers can buy their holiday birds with confidence that they are accurately weighed and priced.

Houseplant Requirements Change With the Seasons

By Dan A. Wilson
County Resource Agent
UW-Extension, West Bend

Houseplants need lots of sunlight, plenty of water and a warm temperature for normal growth in winter, but sunlight is the major crucial ingredient.

In summer, intense sunlight can burn a plant's foliage. But in December, the sun's angle changes and the intensity and number of hours of sunlight decrease, so plants that thrived in a north window in the summer may not get enough light there to keep growing in the winter. In December, they can be moved near a south window.

If you want to retard a plant's growth during winter, give it less sunlight. You can also slow down a plant's growth by keeping it in a cooler spot. Plants kept in a cool area need less light and water.

The amount of water a plant needs in winter depends on the light, temperature and indoor humidity. Plants kept in a bright, warm spot require more water.

Plants always need drainage. Plants should be watered until the water drains from the pot. In about an hour empty the saucer of any excess water to avoid root rot. Then let the soil dry out before watering again. Typically, houseplants need water once to twice a week.

Always protect plants from extreme temperatures. Don't let a plant's leaves touch a window and keep plants away from doors and radiators. Also, don't put plants on the television.

To maintain normal growth, plants need to be fertilized during the winter. For best results, apply the manufacturer's suggested amount of a commercial fertilizer at regular intervals.

Washing a plant occasionally will help keep off insects and dust. When you receive a plant as a gift or purchase one, be alert for hitchhiking insects.

It's difficult to increase the humidity around a plant by hand spraying. You can increase humidity by placing pots on gravel in a pan of water or covering the plant with a plastic bag.

GENERAL RULES FOR CHRISTMAS SAFETY

- Keep matches, lighters, candles out of the reach of children.
- Avoid smoking near flammable decorations.
- Make an emergency plan to use if a fire breaks out anywhere in your home. See that each family member knows at least two escape routes.
- Avoid wearing loose flowing clothes — especially long, open sleeves — near the open flames of a fireplace, stove, or candle-lit table.
- Never burn candles near evergreens on a mantelpiece or table. Burning evergreens in the fireplace can be hazardous. When dry, greens burn like tinder. Their flames can flare out of control, sending sparks flying about a room.
- Plan for safety. Remember there is no substitute for common sense. Look for and eliminate potential danger spots near candles, fireplaces, trees, electrical connections.

Mistletoe Isn't Just For Kissing

To most people, mistletoe means an excuse to steal a kiss at Christmas time. But that's just one of many traditions that have been associated with this curious, parasitic plant, according to the current issue of National Wildlife magazine.

"For centuries, people all over the world have considered mistletoe to be a charm against disease, witchcraft, and infertility," says the bi-monthly publication of the National Wildlife Federation. Mistletoe superstitions probably came about because of the unusual and rather eerie way in which the plant grows.

Mistletoe flourishes in clumps on the trunks and branches of various hardwood trees, where it robs its host tree of water and nutrients. Often, the host tree is so weakened that it dies. But since mistletoe can produce its own food when necessary, the parasite remains green and moist.

Because they were unable to explain how mistletoe grew, ancient civilizations believed the plant had supernatural powers, says National Wildlife. Peasants in both England and Japan believed that barren women would be able to conceive after eating mistletoe. The Walos of Africa attached mistletoe leaves to their bodies, confident that they would then be protected from injury. The Swedes carved sword handles from mistletoe branches to ward off witches, while other Europeans wore mistletoe corsages to guarantee a successful hunt.

Mistletoe is not a very tasty plant. In fact, although there are more than a thousand

In an earlier time, stealing a Christmas kiss under the mistletoe was quite a daring thing to do. Today, it's not so risqué, but the tradition is still going strong.

Like this mistletoe harvester of a century ago, collectors today must venture into the woods and gather the leafy shrub by hand. The parasite is not commercially cultivated.

varieties throughout the world, only one animal — the tiny Australian mistletoe bird — relies solely on mistletoe for food. But medical history reveals that despite its taste, mistletoe was often fed to ailing patients by physicians who thought it had curative powers.

French physicians used mistletoe as an antidote for poisons. And one 17th century British physician observed that the plant is "good for the grief of itch, sores, toothache, and the biting of mad dogs and ven-erous beasts." Even as late as the mid-1700's, National Wildlife reports, many European medical authorities thought mistletoe would cure epilepsy. Since mistletoe attaches itself so firmly to a tree that it cannot be blown down, they reasoned, an epileptic could not fall down if he consumed the plant regularly.

As it was thought that mistletoe possessed magical powers, it's not surprising that the plant was long forbidden in Christian churches. It was thought to be tainted with heathenism. But the Druids — the woodsy priests of the ancient Celts — considered mistletoe to be a warm refuge for the woodland spirits during the cold weather. They gathered and hung the plant throughout their dwellings. This primeval practice may be the origin of the western tradition of decorating homes with greenery at Christmas time.

Centuries ago, on the sixth day of a new moon, a whiterobed priest armed with a golden sickle could be seen harvesting mistletoe. The Druids believed the plant was too sacred to be collected by just anyone. Traditions change, of course, and today anyone willing to venture out into the woods can gather mistletoe with a pair of pruning shears.

But some traditions change very little. A kiss under the mistletoe dates all the way back to Norse mythology, which dedicated mistletoe to the Goddess of Love.

Financial Aid
Options for Students

"Get started early," is the advice of University of Wisconsin Financial Aid Officers to high school seniors who think they might not be able to afford college tuition. According to the Financial Aid Office of the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay, $2.4 million in financial aid money was given out to 1293 students at the Green Bay campus for the 1977-78 academic year.

"There are more financial aid options available than most people are aware of," State Senator Thomas E. Petri (R-2nd District) said today. "As higher education is the key to the future, it is important that all high school seniors know about the various ways their tuition payments may be funded."

Within the University of Wisconsin system, students can receive loans, grants, scholarships or participate in work study programs. A financial aid "package" is made up of one or more of these, depending on the financial need demonstrated by the student and his/her family.

The federal government sponsors National Direct Student Loans and the state offers Wisconsin Guaranteed Student Loans. College loans are a bargain compared with conventional loans. Interest rates are low, generally about 7%, and repayment does not have to start until nine months after graduation.

"Grants may come from several sources," Senator Petri explained. "The federal government sponsors the Basic Education Opportunity Grants and the Supplemental Education Opportunity Grant. There are also grants for people who are interested in specific majors, such as nursing or pharmacy."

"In the 1977-78 academic year, there were 13,905 students attending the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay and Oshkosh. Of this number, 1448 participated in the work study program and 4891 received some form of financial aid."

"I would urge all high school students who are contemplating college to contact their high school guidance counselors for information on the types of financial aid available," Petri commented.

Petri also pointed out that aid is available for those who wish to attend one of the 18 independent colleges in Wisconsin through the Wisconsin Tuition Grant Program. Information can be obtained from the guidance counselor, or the Wisconsin Higher Education Aids Board at 150 E. Gilman Street, Madison, Wisconsin 53702.

Injured Animals
May Be Slaughtered

Dr. E. D. Baker, administrator of the meat inspection division of the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection, announces that freshly injured (emergency) animals may be slaughtered on a custom basis without inspection.

A new department policy provides that a farmer may take a freshly injured animal to a custom slaughtering plant, within 24 hours following injury, for slaughter and processing. The farmer must sign a certificate certifying that the animal was accidentally injured and that the meat will be used exclusively by himself, his family and non-paying guests. The slaughter or processing establishment will examine the animal or carcass and certify that it is suitable for human food.

Wisconsin statutes state that "no meat from any diseased animal, or any animal that has died other than by slaughter, shall be sold or used for human consumption, or dismembered or stored at premises where other food is sold or prepared for sale." According to Dr. Baker, "it is believed that the intent of the law was not to restrict or prevent the handling of the true emergency case."

Farmers, however, are warned that meat establishments are prohibited by law from handling diseased or drugged animals, unless the animals so affected are slaughtered under inspection or in establishments where state or federal meat inspection is maintained. "Plants which handle unfit or diseased animals, even if for a farmer's own consumption, are placing their license in jeopardy," Dr. Baker says.

The new policy was developed with the help of the meat industry and the department's Meat Inspection Advisory Council.

Christmas Toy Safety
Tips Are Listed

Santa Claus is coming soon. And that means Dad and Mother are out doing the last-minute shopping for the toys that old St. Nick will leave under the tree.

Toys—all the way from a ten-cent rubber ball to a shiny new bicycle—are a part of growing up, and the child without a toy or two—or two dozen—at Christmas is a forlorn tot indeed.

The chances are that your youngsters will open their gifts Christmas morning and have a large time getting acquainted with their new toys. But in all too many households across the nation the toys themselves will dim the happy Christmas season, by causing accidents and injuries.

The American Medical Association offers some simple tips for selecting toys that will help insure a completely happy Christmas.

- * Beware of small toys that can be swallowed, flammable toys, and toys with rough or sharp edges.
- * All electric toys should be safe. Look for the UL (Underwriters Laboratory) label on the cord and on the toy itself.
- * Avoid toys made of lead or colored with lead-based paints. You're unlikely to encounter these today, as the dangers of lead poisoning are now well known. But it's wise to be sure.
- * Baby's toys should be too large to put in the mouth, washable, lightweight and non-brittle.

Eye injuries are a particular hazard from some Christmas toys. Sling shots, air rifles, archery sets and even the spring-action toy pistols that propel sticks capped with rubber cups have caused injuries.

The following factors should be considered before applying animal waste to land: Crop nutrient needs by soil test, soil type and drainage, distance to drainageways, lakes and streams. Research has shown that 25 to 30 tons of animal wastes per acre per year can be applied on loamy soils and not cause a decrease in crop yield or provide excessive nitrogen. Animal Waste a Pollutant or Resource

By John Wheeler
Soil Conservationist

A 1,200 pound cow will produce about 15 tons of waste per year. Multiply that by the number of cows you have. Now think about the number of cows your neighbor has and his neighbor...and you can get some idea of the immense amounts of animal waste that must somehow be disposed of by American farmers.

Much of this is recycled naturally on crops and pasture land. But the concentration of animal production into large feedlots increases both the problem of waste disposal and the pollution potential.

A general definition for pollution would be, "The addition of something to the water, air or soil that reduces its quality." The degree of pollution varies with the type and amount of pollutant added to the water, air or soil.

What to do about the animal waste problem is particularly important to farmers, particularly dairy farmers in Washington County. Dairy herds are getting larger. Fewer herds are being pastured and more are being raised in confinement. Farmers are concerned from the standpoint of waste produced, the disposal of waste, and the potential effect on the quality of the air and water.

The water pollution potential of animal waste relates primarily to the following four factors: Organic - oxygen consuming substances: These can deplete stream and lake dissolved oxygen resulting in injury and death of fish and aquatic life; bacteriological quality; suspended solids and nutrients. The fertilizing effect of such waste can enrich surface water to the point of creating nuisance growth of aquatic plant and weeds. Nitrate nitrogen levels over 10ppm can render a domestic water supply unsafe.

To cause pollution, the animal waste must enter surface water of ground water and odors must enter the air. Animal wastes, if used properly, are a valuable resource which supply plant nutrients when properly incorporated into the soil.

The following conditions greatly increase the potential of pollution by livestock waste in high concentrations of livestock. A livestock facility located very close to an open waterway or with a direct slope to a waterway; a livestock operation which does not have sufficient land disposal areas; spreading of wastes on frozen ground where runoff may be a problem. The results are better when solid manure is applied to the soil in spring or fall and then disk under. Liquid disposal works best when it is knifed into the soil.

Basic concepts of animal waste management are essentially the same throughout the United States:

- Divert clean water from the feedlot to prevent its pollution.
- Grade the feedlot to improve drainage and promote drying.
- Evaporate or recycle contaminated runoff to the fields for crop fertilization.
- Collect and store manure solids and liquid manure until they can be safely spread on the land.

Application of animal waste to the land has been an accepted and common practice of disposal for many years. Land spreading is probably the most convenient and economical method of land disposal available at the present time. This method solves the disposal problem for the huge amounts of unwanted waste and recycles the useful nutrients contained in the manure for crop fertilization.

There are many types of animal storage facilities. A waste storage pond with earth embankment and earth bottom. Tom Schellinger of Hartford and Paul Pamperin of Wayne have finished construction of a storage pond of this type. A manure storage pond can also be designed with a concrete bottom and ramp where solid or liquid manure can be stored. The system of storing liquid manure in open ponds is expected to have increasing use in the future. This type of storage structure has the lowest cost of any structure used to date. It would be relatively easy to re-grade the storage area and restore the original site conditions should the system become obsolete. A pump can be used to pump the manure out of pit. Another type is the waste storage structure with concrete side, bottom and ramp. This type of structure is under construction at the Harvey Schmidt

State Christmas trees uncounted

Many of America's Christmas trees are grown in Wisconsin, but forestry Professor Gordon Cunningham says nobody knows how many.

"There are no factual surveys," said Cunningham, who is Extension forester at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. He said few established tree growers have responded to surveys. "They may feel that surveys would encourage other landowners to enter the market they have worked so long and hard to develop," he said.

Some people say Wisconsin ranks third nationally in Christmas tree growing, Cunningham said. Some say 2 1/2 to five million trees are harvested in the state each year. "Those are unsubstantiated guesses," said Cunningham. "I've seen no evidence that the figures are based upon reliable surveys."

Nevertheless, a few things are known. The Wautoma division of the G.R. Kirk Co. is the biggest Christmas tree grower in the nation, said manager Paul Hedrick. A half million trees are harvested annually from 12,000 acres. Cunningham said two or three other state firms sell more than 100,000 trees.

"There's a large percentage that go out of state," Cunningham said. "They are shipped as far as California and Florida."

Cunningham said Scotch Pine is the most frequently purchased species, with Balsam Fir, White Spruce, Red Pine and Norway Spruce closest behind.

The pines, which take from six to 10 years to grow to proper size, grow best in sandy central Wisconsin. The fir and spruce are grown in the cooler northern countryside and require eight to 16 years before they are ready to grace the nation's living rooms.

Check Home Heat Needs Before Buying a Stove

The most important consideration when buying any wood burning stove isn't the stove. And it isn't just fuel costs. Before you buy any wood burner, first analyze your own heating needs and then shop around to find the type of stove that's right for you.

There are three classes of wood burners: fireplaces, non-air-tight wood burning stoves and air-tight wood burning stoves, says Bill Seybold, University of Wisconsin Extension wood heat specialist.

Fireplaces are the least efficient way of deriving heat from wood. Efficiency is a measure of how much of the wood's potential heat energy actually stays in your home to warm you. A traditional fireplace is only 10 percent efficient; 90 percent of the chimney heat escapes up the chimney.

You can improve a fireplace's efficiency to 15-20 percent by installing any of a number of circulator systems now on the market. You can also make a fireplace more practical by closing it off with glass doors. Otherwise, drafts can actually draw heat out of your house at night or when the fire is burning down.

The difference between air-tight stoves and other wood burning stoves is simple --air-tights are closed, allowing greater control of air flow and temperature than most other stoves. Franklin stoves, parlor stoves, and the like are air-tight. They also aren't as efficient. An air-tight stove can function at 45-60 percent efficiency compared with 15-30 percent for other stoves.

You can test to see if a stove is air-tight simply by closing the draft, Seybold says. If the fire keeps burning, air is getting in from somewhere and your stove isn't air-tight.

County Medical Society Meets

The November meeting of the Washington County Medical Society was held at the Linden Inn. The meeting was presided over by President, William J. Listwan, M.D. Michael Keelan, M.D. and Murray Bevan were the guest speakers.

Dr. Keelan is an Assistant Professor of Medicine at the Medical College of Wisconsin in Milwaukee. He holds his appointment in the Department of Cardiology. He spoke to the members of the Medical Society about irregular heart rhythms. He emphasized the proper evaluation and treatment of premature heart beats (skipped beats). A physician who decides that drugs should be prescribed to control these beats must be certain that the benefit to the patient is worth the slight risk involved in taking the medication on a long term basis.

Murray Bevan, the Field Representative from the Wisconsin Physicians' Alliance, also addressed the group. The Physicians' Alliance is the action arm of the Wisconsin State Medical Society. Bevan gave a legislative update from the past year to the physicians present. He also commented on legislation that he feels will be acted upon in the next legislature including some modifications of the medical malpractice act.

Weigh, Identify Beef Entries For 1979 Fairs

By Jack Trzebiatowski
County Agricultural Agent

Exhibitors of steers in the 1979 Washington County Fair and Wisconsin State Fair need to be concerned about getting their animals properly identified for those two events.

The Livestock Sales Committee for the Washington County Fair will again be providing opportunities for exhibitors to weigh their animals in and get them identified for this year's fair. The dates and locations for steers are as follows:

-Saturday, December 16, from 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. at Kewaskum Frozen Foods in Kewaskum, and from 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. at Baus Market in Allenton.

-Saturday, December 30, from 9:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon at Jackson Equipment in Jackson, and from 1:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. at the Fullpail Arena in Hartford.

Saturday, January 6, from 10:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon at Baus Market in Allenton.

All exhibitors that plan on having animals entered in the Livestock Show and Sale at the Washington County Fair next year will need to be concerned about those dates.

The Livestock Sales Committee has also planned to identify steers entered in the open class at the Wisconsin State Fair at the same time and locations. Wisconsin State Fair regulations require that all animals be freeze branded with a two inch W on the jaw and identified with ear tags.

Exhibitors that are taking animals to the Wisconsin State Fair this year should contact Ed Walker, Chairman of the Livestock Sales Committee at the Hartford High School at 673-5200; or Jack Trzebiatowski, Washington County Agricultural Agent at Court House Annex No. 2, P. O. Box 537, West Bend, phone 334-3491, 6445204 or 342-2929, Extension 263, to have their animals identified.

Christmas Trees Are Big Business

"Wisconsin Christmas tree growers expect to harvest an estimated 4.5 million trees, worth about $16 million, this holiday season," says John Polich, marketing specialist with the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection.

"This not only represents income for Christmas tree growers and landowners, but provides employment for several thousand workers," Polich says. He adds that slightly less than half of the trees are exported to other states.

Major Christmas tree species on the market today are Scotch pine, white pine, Norway pine, balsam fir, douglas fir and the white and Norway spruces. Retail lot prices are expected to range from $1.75 to 2.25 a foot.

When buyers choose and cut their own trees, prices should range from $6 to $8 per tree. Consumers may obtain a list of growers which offer "cut-your-own" trees from some county foresters and county agents, all state tourist centers and the ATCP in Madison. Retail and wholesale information may be obtained from the Wisconsin Christmas Tree Association, c/o Robert Mountford, Route 2, Poynette, 53955.

Polich reminds consumers to shop early for the best selection. He says you should check your selection to see if it is fresh--bend a few needles and stamp the tree butt into the ground. If the needles flex and don't fall off--you have a fresh tree. He adds that premium trees are fresh, healthy, well sheared to the desired shape and density, are free of any defects and all sides are good.

HOLIDAY SAFETY TIPS - FROM THE PEOPLE WHO CARE

From: Your Local Fire Department

When we think of the Holiday Season, all the joy of this time comes to mind: the sharing of gifts, excitement of children, and the beauty of a brightly ornamented tree.

Many families however, have somewhat grimmer Holiday memories — brought on by just one unsafe act which caused a needless, tragic accident.

To help you have a safe Holiday Season with good pleasant memories, Underwriters Laboratories Inc. (UL) — a not-for-profit organization testing for public safety and your local fire department offer the following tips:

•Purchase only UL Listed light strings. For outdoor use, only weather proof cords and lighting should be used. The UL Label will indicate light strings suitable for outdoor use.

•Check all lights carefully. Make certain bulbs are not loose in their sockets. Use rubber light socket gaskets and replace if needed.

•Selection of a tree, whether natural or artificial is a crucial matter. Artificial trees should be labeled flame resistant. Never put light strings on a metal tree — this is a shocking hazard — use only spot lighting. Natural trees should be fresh — deep green, strong scent, no falling needles and trunk butt sticky with sap. Keep trunk in water, and check it daily.

•Inspect all wiring. Watch for insulation deterioration, frayed and bare wires, lights with broken or cracked sockets, or loose connections. Unsafe equipment should be discarded immediately.

•Watch placement of electrical fixtures. Keep them out of children's reach, and never place them close to flammable material.

•Never overload circuits. By placing more current on a wire than it was intended to carry, overheating and fire can result. Look for the capacity of the wire and follow manufacturer's suggested use.

•Keep the tree and other flammable materials (Mantel decorations, wrapping materials, etc.) at a good distance from fireplaces, radiators, and other high heat sources. Also, never block exits with the tree or other decorations.

•Disconnect all lights when working with them. Never stretch the strings or extension cord wiring.

•Always turn off decorative lights when leaving home or retiring. A short circuit could cause a fire while you are away.

•Keep a fully-charged fire extinguisher handy, a UL Listed Multi-Purpose, A, B, C fire extinguisher is practical.

Have a safe and happy Holiday Season!

Some handy rules for your protection during the Yuletide

TREES

Artificial trees (plastic) should bear the UL Label. Some unlabeled plastic trees burn with extreme vigor.

Do not rely on chemical coatings or sprays to make your live evergreen flame-resistant. Follow the safety rules below when shopping for a natural tree.

A fresh tree will stay green longer and be less of a fire hazard than a dry tree. To check for freshness, remember:

- Check for color and scent. A fresh tree is deep green in color and has a strong scent of pine.
- Be sure that the needles do not readily fall from the tree.
- The trunk butt of a fresh tree should be sticky with sap.

Place your Christmas tree in a location away from fireplaces, radiators, or other heat sources. Be sure that it is out of the traffic pattern and does not block doorways.

Cut off about 2-inches of the trunk. Mount tree in a sturdy, water-holding stand with wide-spread legs. Be sure that the tree is stable.

Fill base holder with water. Keep it full of water while the tree is indoors (as you would fresh flowers). Remember, heated rooms dry trees out rapidly; and a dry tree is a fire hazard.

FIRES

Your fireplace is a source of warmth and heat. Before starting your fire, be sure to remove all paper decorations and boughs from the immediate area. BE SURE THE FLUE IS OPEN. NEVER set up your Christmas tree near the fireplace, this is a potential fire hazard.

Use a screen to enclose the front of your fireplace to confine live embers and sparks from the fire box.

Use care with "fire salts" which produce colored flames when thrown on a wood fire. They contain heavy metals, and can cause intense gastrointestinal irritation or vomiting if eaten. Keep away from children.

LIGHTS

Christmas tree lights and other decorations set the theme for the Christmas holidays. Here are some very important points to remember when using them.

- Use only lights that have been tested for safety. Identify these by the UL Label from Underwriters Laboratories.
- Check each set of lights for broken or cracked sockets, frayed or bare wires, loose connections. Discard any of this equipment that you deem unsafe.
- Check labels of lights to be used outdoors to see that they are suitable for outdoor use. Never use indoor lights outside. Fasten outdoor lights securely to trees, walls, or other firm support to protect them from wind damage.
- Use no more than three sets of lights per single extension. Read manufacturer's instructions carefully and do not use more than the recommended number of lights in one circuit.
- Always turn off lights on trees and other decorations when you retire or leave your home. A short circuit in any of this equipment could cause a fire.
- Never use electric lights on a metallic tree. Damaged insulation in lighting on a metallic tree could cause the entire tree to be charged with electricity. To avoid this danger, use colored spotlights above or beside a metal tree, never fastened onto it.
- Keep children away from light sets and electrical decorations. All lights present the problem of shock and casualty hazards for curious kids.

PAPER

The opening of Christmas presents is always a special time during the holidays. Take special precautions when disposing of the wrappings.

- Always dispose of wrappings immediately after opening.
- Place trash in a metal container. DON'T burn wrappings in the fireplace, they may ignite suddenly, and cause a flash fire.

CANDLES

Never use lighted candles on a tree or near other evergreens.

Always use non-flammable holders.

Keep away from other decorations, wrapping paper. Place candles where they cannot be knocked down or blown over.

TRIMMINGS

The trimming of your Christmas tree is a very important part of your holiday festivities. Keep the safety of your family in mind when selecting trimmings, and decorating your tree.

When choosing the finishing touches for the tree, purchase tinsel or artificial icicles of a non-leaded material. Leaded materials may be hazardous if eaten by children or pets.

If youngsters are a part of your family, take special care to:

- Avoid any decorations that tend to break easily, or have sharp edges.
- Keep tree trimmings that are small, or have removable parts, out of the reach of your child. These pieces may be swallowed.
- Don't purchase ornaments that resemble candy or foods. A small child may try to eat them.

PLAN AHEAD

An emergency could strike your home at any time. Here are a few simple rules to follow to help your family through a crisis.

- Keep fire department, police, ambulance, doctor, and other emergency service numbers posted on or near your telephone.
- Keep a UL Listed multi-purpose fire extinguisher in your kitchen when preparing holiday meals—and know how to use it.
- Many fire departments are now offering first aid classes for their communities. At least one member of the family should be familiar with simple first aid procedures.

CHRISTMAS CRAFTS BRIGHTEN HOLIDAYS

Let creativity light your holiday table this season with handcrafted salt sculpture candlestick holders.

All it takes is a bit of salt, flour and water—and imagination to garner rave reviews for your decor as well as your food.

To make the candle holders, begin with a ball of aluminum foil about the size of a baseball (larger or smaller depending on the size of candle to be used). Press candle firmly into the top of the foil ball until it stands by itself.

Then, roll out dough on a piece of wax paper until it is about 1/4 inch thick. Use a spade-shaped cookie cutter to make the leaves. About one dozen leaves should be enough.

Next, add a vein-like pattern to each leaf by making slight indentations with the edge of a butter knife, or any other kitchen utensil.

Apply leaves around the base of the candle and aluminum foil ball, overlapping as shown. Moisten each edge with water as leaves are overlapped to make sure they stick together.

Next, roll out two long pieces of dough for the top. Braid or twist them together, moisten the bottom edge with water and attach to top edges of leaves. Add smaller leaves, berries and stars (made with a mint cutter) for decoration.

Then, remove candle and bake. For a natural brown finish, brush the holder with egg or milk during baking. Or, paint it with bright Christmas colors after it has cooled. Remove foil before painting and finishing.

A coat of varnish, shellac, or lacquer will protect the sculpture from humidity and moisture.

For the brand new salt sculpture book, send four Morton labels and 50¢, or just $1.50, to "Morton's Dough-It-Yourself® Handbook Rises Again," Box 9140, Kankakee, Ill. 60901. Allow up to six weeks delivery. Void where taxed, restricted or prohibited by law.

SALT SCULPTURE DOUGH

2 cups flour (not self-rising)
1 cup Morton® Salt
1 cup water

Combine flour and salt in a large flat-bottomed bowl, and mix well with spoon. Next, add water (a little at a time) mixing as you pour to form the dough into a ball. Additional water may be needed, depending on the humidity. Take care not to add too much so dough becomes sticky. Knead 7 to 10 minutes until dough has a smooth, yet firm, consistency. Place dough that will not be used immediately in a plastic bag to keep it from drying.

Place finished pieces on foil-covered cookie sheet and place in 325-350 degree oven. Allow to bake one-half hour for each 1/4-inch of thickness, or until golden brown. If sculptures pull up, reduce oven temperature by 50 to 75 degrees and poke piece with pin or toothpick to release air.

Remember: These creations are art, not food. For that reason, we urge, please don't eat the art.

IMMIGRANT LORE

Every Wisconsin citizen knows there is something unique about the State though it would be hard to describe. Some say "cheese, peas, and Germans" best describe this indefinable quality. Certainly it has been the immigrant—Germans, Swedes, Norwegians, Poles, Finns, and others—who have given the state much of its uniqueness. Immigrant stories and sayings, folk beliefs and songs, these have become a part of Wisconsin life. Stories often downgrade the other nationality, but most of them are in good humor and express an appreciation of the diverse groups that settled the State. Besides they add flavor not found in all states. How well I remember hearing my Illinois mother express sorrow when my niece married a "foreigner" named Johnson!

Who has not heard the dialect ballad: "My name is Yon Yanson/ I live in Wisconsin/ I work in the liveryyard there/ When I walk down the street/ All the people I meet/ Ask how I come to be there." Who has not heard the question: "Why does Wisconsin have so many Norwegians and Missouri so many mules?" Missouri had first choice.

Stoughton police once told a Norwegians who had run down a Norwegian resident that he had to go over to the next county to collect his bounty — "we don't pay bounties here." Chippewa Chief George Brown of Lac du Flambeau argued when brought to trial for murder that he had only killed a Swede!

Folk Beliefs and Immigration

The folk beliefs about the New World, created by letters written home and by numerous ballads, pictured America as a place where land was free, the soil so rich that strawberries grew as big as hen eggs and every sow farrowed a litter of a dozen pigs. A popular ballad, "Oleana," told of one Norwegian who left his claims behind for America where "you walk around in velvet, with silver buttons bright, Sir." The Swedish version says that geese and ducks fly on to the table "with knife and fork between their legs."

The immigrants brought with them more than their dreams. They also brought their sayings and superstitions. They learned that land producing maple trees is sweet soil and that water witches claimed to find water for every settler. Scandinavians and others brought their beliefs in little people, trolls that lived under bridges, fairies that caused strange things to happen, even witches that might help one farm wife make better butter than another.

Scandinavian Lore

Since the Scandinavian immigrants had troubles with "y" and "s" sounds, the dialect story became a common one. There was the Swede "so dumb he spelled Jesus with a little 'y'" or the Norwegian who said that by the time he had learned what Americans put on their bread, they had changed it from "yelly" to "yam." There was the old woman who said she had not read the Bible in America since it was no longer available in the original Norwegian. One Lutheran pastor asked his congregation who could only understand English: "How would you like to stand before God's judgement seat and not be able to talk Norwegian?"

Though the immigrant soon accepted American foods, some Old World foods have continued down to the present, especially at Christmas time. Lutefisk and meatballs are the most common. Lutefisk is dried cod fish, which is cooked to the decomposition point and served with either cream sauce or drawn butter. In learning to cook it, it tastes "like warm cotton batting, only without flavor."

The origin of lutefisk has been the subject of stories for years. One yarn tells of a cod fish jumping into a lifeboat in the North Sea, and after it had decomposed it was eaten by the starving Norwegians, thus saving their lives. Another long-lived story has the origin in Ireland. When the Norwegians invaded Ireland they ate the fish and left only the potatoes for the Irish. Desperate, the Irish set fire to the ice house and even sprinkled formaldehyde on the decaying fish. This failed to drive out the sturdy invaders. In fact, they became so accustomed to eating spoiled fish soaked in lye that it became a part of their diet when they later came to Wisconsin.

German Lore

German lore of Pennsylvania—mistakenly called "Pennsylvania Dutch" (hex signs, superstitions, "fernooded English," and plays such as "I Remember Mama")—added a vast body of lore to Wisconsin. German foods such as kraut, bratwurst, and hamburger have been nationalized. The common name for all Germans in World War I and II was "krauts," and it is still used. German love of beer and good cooking and their habits of hard work and saving for a rainy day are still part of Wisconsin lore.

These old German sayings are still alive: "He is as much good as a fifth wheel," or "a big wife and a big barn will never do a man any harm." It is doubtful if farmers still believe that cows bred facing north or south produce heifer calves, but many still plant potatoes in the light of the moon and predict weather by observing the behavior of animals.

Irish Lore

Of all the immigrants, the Irish have clung more closely to their old traditions than most. They are very visible on St. Patrick's Day. An old Irish farmer in Pierce County still sings "Oh, Ireland was Ireland/ When Ireland will be Ireland/ And England's puckered up."

Some say that it was the Norwegians who drove the out of southern Wisconsin. There was no place to go, except into politics and to run taverns. "Not all Irish are tavern-keepers, but all tavern-keepers are Irish!"

Recently, an Irish teenager wrote a friend: "Everything's the same as usual here. Mother still gets furious every time Daddy or I do anything she doesn't like. Daddy says she can't help it on account of her blood-type — which is Irish negative."

The potato became a badge of poverty among the Irish everywhere, and was avoided by the prosperous, who set up "The Society for the Preservation of Unsatisfactory Diets." In time, the initials gave the potato its common name: SPUD.

The most popular stories about the Irish tell of the wake held in the home of the deceased before burial. Friends gathered, brought food and drink, and saw the corpse off with merriment. Stories tell of standing the corpse in the corner and pouring whiskey down his throat, dancing the Irish jig with the corpse, or having the last pipe with the corpse in a chair. The corpse was a guest of honor at a final party.

Italian Lore

There are few Italian communities in Wisconsin, but in one of them, Cumberland (Barron County), there has lingered among older immigrant beliefs common in the Mediterranean world. One farmer told of feeding his cows, cows and mares grain laced with raw eggs to increase their fertility. In a whisper he told how hard it was to keep his daughter from eating raw eggs. Another told of "strages" or witches riding his horses at night, leaving them covered with lather in their stalls in the morning.

Belief in the evil eye seemed common among many Italian-Americans. This belief holds that certain people have the power, with their eyes, to make another person ill, cause a crop to wilt in the field, or even affect the milk production of a herd. A student defined the illness as "Something you would take Alka-Selzer for." There were four "Evil Eye Doctors" in Cumberland a few years ago who had the power to cure the illness. One of them demonstrated the cure for me. She brought a basin of water before me, and as she said the proper words she dropped olive oil on the water in the form of a cross. If the oil diffused, I had no illness; if it remained in the form of a cross, I had Evil Eye.

Happily, I did not have it.

Lore of Other Nationalities

The Cornish miners brought with them their beliefs in pixies and water-witching, and enriched our foods with the Cornish Pie or Pastry. If a person got lost, they said he should wear his coat inside out to get rid of the pixies.

The Finns brought with them the folk art of laying up log cabins, and the belief that their saunas got rid of all bodily poisons enabling them to whip their weight in wildcat bank plunging in a lake or snowbank. They had a saying that "if saunas and brandy cannot help a man, death is near at hand." A few Finns claimed the power to stop the flow of blood by saying a few words over a wound. (A few years ago a person in Ontario, near Lac-Crosse, also served the community in this way). One of the Finnish songs, "The Finn from Ishpeming," tells of an immigrant boy who became a miner and when he died he had to shovel coal!

Lore in Retrospect

All Wisconsin groups — whether they be Poles, Methodists, or Forest County Kentuckians — have their own songs and sayings that help explain them. Folklore is more than superstitions about bringing rain by killing spiders or the saying that Scots are so stingy they won't read a newspaper because of the wear and tear on their glasses. The oral tradition flavor to life, sometimes expresses wisdom, sometimes accurate and even scientific.

Dettmann Attends 4-H Conference

John Dettmann, Kewaskum, was one of four Washington County 4-H members who participated in a State Awards Selection Conference recently. The purpose of the conference is to select delegates to several national 4-H trips in 1979. These trips include National 4-H Congress, in Chicago; National 4-H Conference in Washington D.C.; and Camp Minnawana in Michigan.

Each county may select and recommend four members to participate in the conference. Selections for the various trips will be made from the participants in the conference. Final selections of delegates to the various trips will be made early next year.

The other three Washington County representatives to the conference were Jerry Sobotik, Colgate; Anne Hupfer, West Bend; and Pam Mayer of Slinger.

Announce Winter Road Maintenance Priority Classifications

If you must travel during snowy weather this winter, consider the priority of snow removal on area roads, the state department of transportation suggests.

For the sixth consecutive year, the department is conducting a winter maintenance program on the state trunk highway system designed to provide priority service for highways based on traffic volume.

John A. White, chief maintenance engineer of district 2 in Waukesha, said that guidelines are based on traffic counts to reduce inflated costs and improve energy conservation.

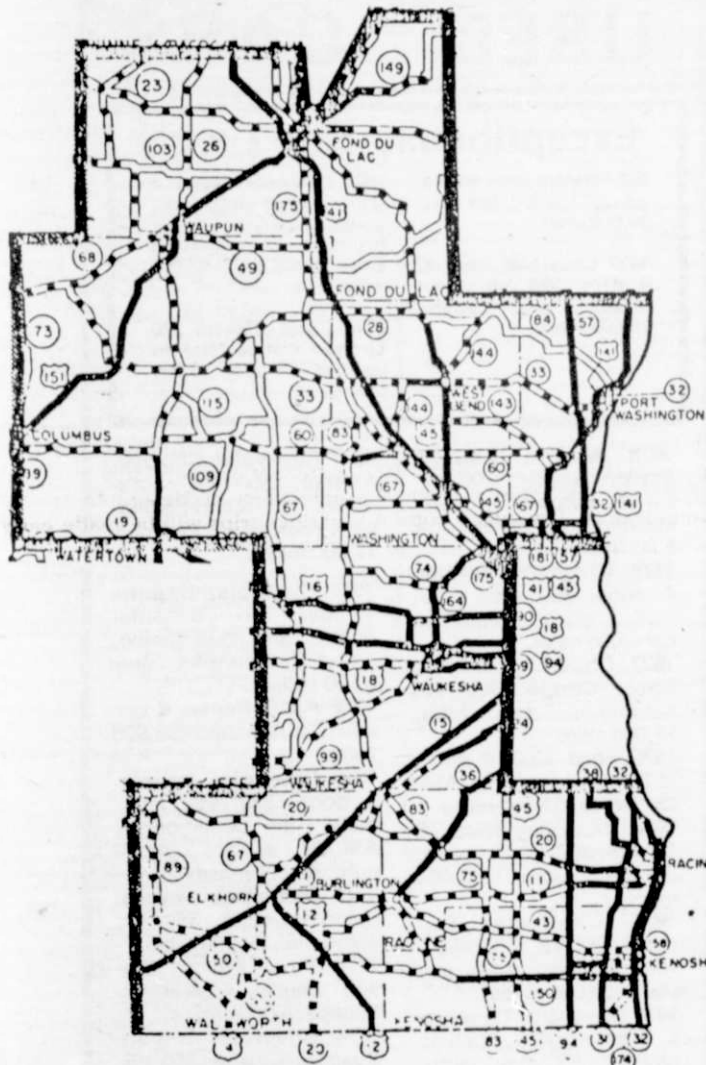

Guidelines are:
 Class 1 - 5,000 or more vehicles daily, 1,630 miles in state: around-the-clock service; bare pavement as soon as possible. All interstate routes are in this category.

Class 2 - 1,000 to 5,000 vehicles daily, 6,190 miles in state: reduced service between 8 p.m. and 4 a.m. on weekdays and all day Sunday; bare pavement as soon as possible after storm.

Class 3 - Fewer than 1,000 vehicles daily, 3,570 miles in state: no service between 8 p.m. and 4 a.m. on weekdays and all day Sunday, except to keep them passable in all types of storms; bare pavement near center of highway of sufficient width for traction in both directions as soon as possible after storms, with full width bare surface on hills, curves and at intersections. All the rest of the state roads not shown in Class 1 or 2 are in this category.

The winter maintenance policy is a cooperative effort between the state and counties, made necessary to help save maintenance dollars, the department said.

- CLASS 1 OVER 5,000 ADT
- CLASS 2 1,000 - 5,000 ADT
- CLASS 3 LESS THAN 1,000 ADT
- MAINTAINED BY OTHERS

SENATOR PETRI CAPITOL REPORTS

New DNR License Plan Under Review

Hunting and fishing licenses could be much simpler to obtain in the future, if the public agrees to some procedural changes.

The Department of Natural Resources (DNR) believes the present way of issuing licenses can be improved. A single license carrier costing 75-cents would replace the separate licenses for various activities which are presently purchased at a nearby sporting goods store or the county clerk's office.

The carrier would resemble present hunting and fishing licenses, indicating your name, address, social security number, along with a physical description. After purchasing the holder, you could buy a stamp for each hunting or fishing activity. Rather than filling out a lengthy form and requiring proof of residence each time you buy a separate permit, the issuer would merely note the license carrier number.

TIME SAVINGS

Many Wisconsin residents hold more than one license. A simplification of licensing processes will benefit everyone. It will save the consumer time previously spent in long lines. The carrier idea will reduce time required by local merchants to issue various licenses. At present, local merchants collect 10-cents for each resident license they sell for the DNR and 25-cents for each nonresident license. These commissions may increase with the proposed plan.

The DNR will be able to compile a computerized list of license holders for enforcement purposes. Computerized annual renewal of the license carrier might also be possible.

A preliminary study indicates that the DNR's license fraud program could be streamlined. Nonresidents who attempt to purchase resident licenses, at substantial savings, would be discovered more speedily.

Printing costs of the license program would be reduced. Additional revenues would be provided for county clerks and local licensing agents.

DNR spokesmen say the computerization would facilitate the process of sampling hunters and fishermen in various management surveys.

As I said, these proposals need both public and legislative support before they become reality. I would be interested in hearing your views. Please send your comments to Room 314—South, State Capitol, Madison, WI 53702.

Poor Shooting Indians Dominated by Owls, 77-46

Slinger, paced by 6-4 center Brian Jonas and guard Tom Zurn, who each hit 18 points, picked up an easy 77-46 victory over Kewaskum here Friday night. It was the second straight drubbing for the Indians in Scenic action and the second win for the Owls.

Slinger's offense devastated Kewaskum, opening up a 45-21 lead at the half. The Owl defense was just as overwhelming, keeping all Kewaskum scorers from hitting double figures.

The Owls dominated the boards by a 37-21 margin, many times allowing them some good second shots on their rebounds or drawing fouls. Their rebounding made a lot of difference and the Owls' press also puzzled the Indians for some periods.

Slinger led at the quarter, 18-6, and came up with an even better second period with 27 points, eight of them by Zurn. At one point they scored eight straight points to widen the difference to 37-14. Three times they led by 24 points and ended the game 31 points ahead. The closest Kewaskum came was 18 just after the half after running off six straight points.

Both teams used reserves during the last several minutes. Besides his 18 points, Jonas also grabbed 10 rebounds and Zurn added many assists to his 18 points.

It was the second straight game Kewaskum had no player in double figures. Henry Schilter came closest with nine points and substitute Ray Dominguez got eight.

Once again Kewaskum shot poorly, hitting on only 18 of 58 shots for 31 percent. On the other hand Slinger shot 53 percent from the floor. Poor shooting has troubled the Indians in every game they played this year, including the free throw shooting. They missed 13 in 23 attempts in this one.

The Indians, now 0-5 overall, travel to Grafton this Friday. The Blackhawks are also looking for their first victory in the conference.

Girls Beaten by West Bend East, Edged by Slinger

In a game that was not particularly well played and in which West Bend East did a lot of platooning last Tuesday night, the Suns bested the Kewaskum girls, 52-43. The East JVs also won, 27-16.

There were numerous turnovers in the contest with the Suns leading at the half, 27-18, and at the end of the third quarter, 39-23. The Indians cut the margin to 49-43 before East went back to its first stringers.

Kewaskum held Mary Hoffeltz to 12 points by double-teaming her after she had scored 35 the week before. Yvonne Schacht and Sue Russell scored 10 each for the losers.

Missed free throws hurt the Indians, who made good on only 13 of 30.

A free throw by Linda Krebs with 20 seconds left made the difference at Slinger Friday night where the Owls edged out the Kewaskum girls, 52-51.

Using a full court press, the Owls led during most of the game. They came up with 23 steals, while the best the Indians could do was 2.

Kewaskum closed the gap by outpointing Slinger 20-14 in the last quarter, in which Yvonne Schacht scored 12 of her 22 points, high for the game. She hit on 10 field goals, many over the Owls' zone.

After the game winning free throw, KHS got one more try but it was off the mark. Slinger outrebounded Kewaskum, 32-27. The Owls' Carolyn Wenninger grabbed 12 and also scored 12 points. Jossart had 14 and Ritger 16.

Lakes Team Wins On Zoch's 2 Scores In last 7 Seconds

With high scoring Ken Loest out with illness, the Kewaskum Lakes team still managed to eke out a 103-102 victory at Cedarburg Sunday night. It was their second straight win.

Tom Zoch's two baskets in the last 7 seconds pulled this one out for Kewaskum. Trailing 102-99, Kewaskum had the ball with 18 seconds left. Zoch's layup with 7 seconds remaining made it 102-101. With Kewaskum applying full court pressure, Cedarburg's inbound pass deflected off one of their player's hands and Kewaskum got the ball back. Zoch worked his way in for a short jump shot which he made with 1 second left on the clock.

Zoch and Bob Mertz each pounced in 34 points as Kewaskum beat Cedarburg with strong first and third quarters. Van Dyke paced Cedarburg with 33 points, while Ostermann added 18 and Hughes and Sutherland 16 apiece.
