Another Landmark Becomes History

Old Holy Trinity School and Convent Now Just a Memory

The original two-story school and convent which stood along Main Street for over 100 years, has been torn down. The only evidence of their existence are pallets of bricks which are for sale by Holy Trinity parish.

By GERRY MUELLER
Statesman Staff Writer

Approximately a month of demolition work has erased all traces of another Kewaskum landmark, the buildings which once housed the old school and convent of Holy Trinity Catholic Church.

Plans for the school were drafted 108 years ago in 1880, by Father R. P. Grome after he abandoned his earlier plans to convert the church into a school and build a new church.

Father Grome's design called for a two-story structure which would contain two classrooms on the first floor, a big room for grades five to eight, and a small room for grades one to four. A hall for church and social functions would occupy the second floor.

The school was completed before the end of that year and dedication was held on November 25, 1880. By the end of the year the school's entire construction cost of $3,000 was nearly paid for.

The School Sisters of St. Agnes in Fond du Lac, accepted responsibility for the school and staffed it from 1880 to 1978.

In 1926 the convent was enlarged and modernized adding more bedrooms and an inside bathroom at a cost of $6,000. In 1938, a new ceiling was put into the school hall.

With the close of St. Bridget's mission school in the early fifties, Holy Trinity was faced with increased enrollment and it saw the need to replace the old two-room school with a new, larger facility.

Groundbreaking for the new school building was held on May 21, 1950. On August 26, 1951, dedication of the new school was held and by that time enrollment had tripled to 180 students. The convent was again enlarged and remodeled at that time. The total cost for the two projects, $100,000.

In 1967, a second story was added to the new school, giving each grade its own classroom. The end of the 1977-78 school year saw the close of a 98-year era of staffing the school by the School Sisters of St. Agnes because of a shortage of nuns.

The school was staffed by lay teachers and two lay principals until Sister Phyllis Wirtz of the order of School Sisters of St. Francis joined the staff. She came to the school in 1984, accepting the duties as principal and continues to serve in that capacity.

In the 108 years of the school's existence, it is estimated over 1,500 youngsters have graduated from Holy Trinity's grade school.

Many of its former students came to watch the building's demolition, as they reminisced about their days at the "old school."

Kewaskum Firemen-Legion Picnic Here July 9 & 10

Kewaskum's annual Firemen - Legion picnic will take place in River Hill Park on Saturday evening and Sunday, July 9 and 10.

Waterfights will christen the Saturday evening opening at 6:30 p.m. with many neighboring fire departments competing for the championship trophy. Live entertainment by the "Billy Shears Band" will be featured in the beer garden from 8 p.m. until midnight. Rides, refreshments and games can be enjoyed by young and old.

A spectacular parade begins the Sunday festivities at 12 noon, led this year by the Kewaskum High School Band. This legendary event features the Civic Riders of Milwaukee, Elm's Band of Sheboygan, the Continental Youth Band of Milwaukee and the Hartford City Band, and various other area bands and marching units.

The mammoth parade will again feature many beautiful floats, dance bands, baton twirlers, novelty and military units, drill teams, children's specialties, comic and clown entries, clubs and organizations, visiting fire departments, Legionnaires, antique cars, horses and riders, and much much more.

This year's parade theme is: "Kewaskum - Gateway to the Kettle Moraine." The parade will originate from the High School campus area and adjacent streets, and proceed from there to River Hill Park. All participants should be ready to line up no later than 11:30 a.m. Many great prizes will be awarded for the best floats and children's specialties.

Musicians will perform at two locations in the park immediately following the parade, and the music will continue throughout the evening.

Sunday afternoon entertainment features the "Syl Groeschel Orchestra" from 1 to 5 p.m. in the beer garden; and "The Buchel's with the 'Joey Klass Orchestra'" highlights the north bandstand from 1 to 5 p.m.

Evening music in the beer garden will be "Revival," 7:30 to 11:30 p.m., and the "Kenny Hottenroth Orchestra" from 5:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the north bandstand.

Purchase tickets for numerous cash and merchandise prizes and be a winner. They will be on sale in the park, at some area businesses, and through any Fire Department or Legion member.

Anyone interested in sponsoring units or bands, or donating money towards sponsoring units, please contact Bob Stoltzmann at 626-4503.

Attend the Kewaskum picnic and enjoy a weekend of good food, games and rides, live entertainment, and lots of good family fun.

Parish Hosts Party for Retiring Pastor

The Rev. Walter Gehl celebrated his last Mass recently as pastor of St. Mary's Church in Eden.

The 1 p.m. Mass was followed by a retirement party and potluck dinner at 3 p.m. at the church. Any friends and past or present members of St. Mary's were invited to attend.

Father Gehl arrived in Eden on July 1, 1964, and spent the last 24 years as pastor of the church.

When Father Gehl came to Eden, the parish school, which was only a few years old, was becoming too small to meet student needs. In 1967, two classrooms and a gym were added to the existing building, which was expanded to eight classrooms. A kindergarten class was implemented at the same time.

When an extra altar was needed in the church, Father Gehl built a new altar. The sanctuary also was renovated while Gehl was pastor, and St. Mary's celebrated its centennial last April.

Drawings were held at the Amerahn for the Lions Club Raffle. One hundred dollar winners for June were: Mike Schaub, Gerry Mueller and R. & J Becker, all from Kewaskum.

July winners were: Joan Squier and Ted Miller, both from Kewaskum and Henry Haferman of Cascade.

Monies from the raffle are used to support the local "Quest Program," fighting drugs through education and other community functions.

Rizzardi Attends Leadership Conference

Dave Rizzardi, vocational agriculture teacher in the Kewaskum School at Kewaskum, WI, attended the National Vocational Agricultural Teachers' Association (NVATA) Regional Leadership Conference at Dubuque, Iowa on June 20, 1988. He joined 120 vocational educators in agriculture to discuss issues/concerns confronting the profession. Vocational agriculture teachers from 6 NVATA affiliated state associations participated in the three day conference.

The primary purpose of the conference was to develop professional leadership, acquaint state association leaders with responsibilities related to the national organization, discuss mutual problems facing agricultural education, give direction to the NVATA, and become more knowledgeable about programs of vocational education in agriculture. The conferences include guest speakers, round table discussions, workshops, committee work and business meetings. A highlight of the conference was a two hour "Partners in Professional Improvement" workshop on public relations.

Rizzardi was one of the 20 agricultural educators representing the Wisconsin VATA at the conference. He is currently serving as Vice President for the state association. In addition to representing the SVATA, he also served as a member of the FFA Contest Committee.

The Iowa Vocational Agriculture Teachers' Association served as local hosts and arranged for meeting facilities, special functions and educational tours. The meeting was conducted by Dennis Jackson, NVATA Region Vice President. He teaches vocational agriculture at Mankato Technical Institute.

Plaum Retires From Moraine Park Board After 20 Years

After serving as an employee member on Moraine Park Technical College's District Board for 20 years, Carl Plaum of Boltonville has retired.

When Carl Plaum was 54, he decided to return to school and take a General Educational Development (GED) Exam. Plaum had never gone to high school and receiving his GED was something he had wanted to do for a long time. "I felt that if I was ever going to do it, I had to do it then," says Plaum, now 62. "It was just something I needed to do. It helped in my job and with my self-confidence - knowing that 'By golly, I made it!'"

Plaum's commitment to his own educational growth seems only fitting, given his long-time dedication to vocational education in Wisconsin. He has held the positions of delegate, secretary, treasurer, vice-president and president by a number of local and state vocational education groups and after 20 years of service to the Moraine Park Vocational, Technical and Adult Education District Board, he has decided to retire. "I'm just going fishing for awhile if I can find the time," Plaum says.

Finding the time may be a problem. Plaum still works at Regal Ware in Kewaskum where he has been employed for 35 years as everything from a finisher and a presser to a carpenter and a pattern maker. He also plans to continue his involvement with his church.

Plaum says his retirement does not mean he will forget about Moraine Park. "I will watch the paper, call folks and drop in and visit. I can't just turn it off and walk away. That is a hard thing to do."

Plaum's presence on the Moraine Park Board always had a calming effect, the result of a laid-back manner that surfaces when he is asked why he chose this year to leave the board. "I don't really know," he says slowly, leaning back in a chair. "There just comes a time. I have a strong interest in vocational education - I'm easily excited about it."

"Carl will be missed very much," comments Dr. John Shanahan, Moraine Park's district director. "He has seen this institution grow and change and taken it through three different directors. His insight into the changes and our type of education has always had a leveling or calming effect on new ideas that come along. He has a perspective based on his tenure that enables him to look at the long-range view."

Plaum's involvement with the board goes back to 1967 when the district concept was formed in the state legislature. "At that time, there was not a lot of focus on vocational education," recalls Plaum. "I was the liaison for the West Bend Labor Council when the district boundaries were being set up. Shortly after we decided to come into the district, I joined the board as an employee representative."

Why would a man who hadn't received a high school diploma be concerned about post-secondary education? "It's the workingman's college," explains Plaum, in referring to Moraine Park. "Today's workers need more and more education. I wanted to help people get that education. As manufacturing jobs become more technical, workers need education beyond high school."

"High school students have to realize that they need many courses in a vocational education school," continues Plaum. "We have to bring students up to the point where they can communicate. So many of them need remedial work. We have to keep working in the high schools to encourage students to stay in and get what they need to succeed later on."

One of Plaum's major concerns about vocational education today is its ability to serve the employed or underemployed student. "We need to reach the part-time student and offer times and places that are convenient for them," he says. "That has become very difficult to do with a tight budget."

"We hear so much talk about economic development and bringing new business and industry into the area," Plaum continues, "but it is more important to work with the companies that we already have - keeping the workforce up to date. The smaller company is the best economic development prospect that we have."

In addition to his work on the Moraine Park Board, Plaum has served as the district delegate to, and president of, the East Central VTAE Consortium. He has also been the official district delegate to the American Community College Trustee convention and has been published by the ACCT Quarterly. He has served as vice-president, president and secretary/treasurer of the VTAE District Boards Association. At the state level, he has served on the Education Subcommittee of the Wisconsin VTAE State Board.

Part of his work with the Education Subcommittee included reviewing vocational education programs. "I noticed through this capacity that the pace of change in our programs has slowed," comments Plaum. He feels this slowdown has been brought about by a leveling off of the computer industry.

"Computer technology was a new thing that took off quickly," he says. "Every system became obsolete overnight because of new developments. When we installed one at Regal Ware, the company assured us that it would not change for several years. The thing is darn near obsolete already! Now computer technology has leveled off and the changes are not occurring as rapidly."

Another reason for the slowed rate of change, Plaum says, are budget restrictions and legislative mandates. "I have this feeling that I was never able to do enough," he says. "Moraine Park tries to be sensitive to the concerns of taxpayer's while perceiving the needs of the school. There needs to be that kind of balance. It's painful when you have to cut a program and hurt people. The state mandates these changes, but then doesn't provide the money to implement the changes."

"When I came to the board," continues Plaum, "my goal was to be the best board member I could be - to have concern for people. I don't want to leave saying this brick was mine. We all work together here as a group. I felt like a member of the district, not just as an employee member representing a specific area."

As an employee member, Plaum says he owes many thanks to Regal Ware for their support of his involvement with Moraine Park. "They have been supportive and generous," he comments, "always giving me the time for meetings and conferences."

"I'll continue working for a couple more years," Plaum says. "I want the time, though, to do the things I didn't get at in the last 25-30 years. Especially fishing. It will be nice to be able to go when I want to go. There are a million things I'd like to do."

BONE STRENGTH

Women who remain physically active, mainly after middle age, have bones that are denser and stronger than women of the same age who get little exercise. Research at U. of N. Carolina offers evidence that exercise helps maintain bones and may avoid the painful and disabling fractures of old age.

Shaw Elected a Vice President Of B. C. Ziegler and Company

Stanley Shaw

WEST BEND, WI, B.C. Ziegler and Company, an investment banking firm, has announced that Stanley Shaw, direct mail and customer service manager, was elected a vice president.

Shaw is a graduate of Portage High School, Portage, Wisconsin, and he attended the University of Wisconsin in Madison and Marquette University in Milwaukee. Shaw has also been active in the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation and is the current president of the Wisconsin chapter. He has been on the chapter's board of directors for more than six years.

Currently, Shaw is a member of the University of Wisconsin Medical School Advisory Counsel in the Development of the Children's Lung Institute. He is also a director and past president of the Wisconsin Angus Association. Shaw is also Wisconsin Director of the 4-H Foundation.

Shaw joined Ziegler's internal accounting department in 1962. In 1973, he was appointed office services supervisor, which included the company's direct mail operations. Shaw was appointed manager of customer service and direct mail operations in 1981. In 1985 he was elected assistant vice president. Shaw and his wife, Barbara, have three children and live in West Bend.

Ziegler, based in West Bend, Wisconsin, is an investment banking firm that specializes in the underwriting of taxable and tax-exempt debt securities for health care institutions, retirement facilities, corporations, financial institutions and churches. The company has 12 offices in Wisconsin and 33 offices nationwide.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

I would like to give my opinion to the citizens of the Kewaskum School District as to who I feel should be given strong consideration for the job of Superintendent of the Kewaskum School District. There is some misconception that when an important job like this becomes available the search must be conducted far and wide.

I agree that all the best possible applicants should be considered. I also feel we have an extremely well qualified individual right here under our noses that should be given a long, hard, fair look.

This man is Clark Pearson. He has had a distinguished career as a teacher and principal at the High School for over 15 years. It is a well documented fact that Mr. Pearson has the respect of his peers and students, past and present. I feel that Mr. Pearson would make an outstanding District Administrator.

He possesses a high degree of integrity, experience, honesty and competence. To a school board that has had more than its' share of controversy over the past few years, this would be a very sound choice.

Sincerely,
Thomas H. Timblin

Tax Information For Student Workers

Students who started a summer job and can still be claimed as a dependent on their parent's tax return should take extra care when they are filling out the Form W-4 for their employer.

In the past, these students often claimed exempt status on their Form W-4 which resulted in no tax being withheld during the year since students with minimal income generally didn't have to pay tax.

Under the new tax law, a student cannot claim an exemption from withholding if they can be claimed as a dependent on another persons' tax return, if they have any investment income (such as interest on savings) and if the investment income plus wages totals more than $500.

Generally, students whose wages for the year are $3,000 or less and who have no investment income can be exempt from withholding; however, they can claim exemption from tax withholding on their Form W-4 only if they had to pay no federal income tax (all federal tax withheld was refunded) last year and they expect to pay no federal income tax this year.

The IRS advises students to carefully review their situation before completing the Form W-4. If they have questions they can call the IRS toll-free at 1-800-424-1040.

25 Years Ago

July 5, 1963

A camping and vacation trip ended tragically for three Illinois families at Long Lake near Dundee Wednesday morning when two small children and their aunt burned to death after a defective heater showered them with flaming butane gas. Six other persons, including the mother of the dead children, suffered burns. The mother and two other children were in critical condition at St. Mary's Burn Center in Milwaukee. The three women, all mothers of small children are sisters. Dead are: Cheryl Williams, 2, Markham, Illinois; Sandra, her 10 month old sister, and Mrs. Raymond Bandeko, 31, Hazel Crest, Illinois, their aunt. Witnesses said they heard the children's cries about 7 a.m. and rushed to the tent but it was engulfed and consumed by fire "within a minute." Authorities said a butane feeder line to a tent heater apparently broke spewing the interior of the tent with fuel which ignited with explosive force. Sometime between the hours of 9 p.m. last Friday and 5:30 a.m. Saturday an unknown stray dog or dogs entered the chicken coop on the Nicholas Stoffel farm at 1731 Fond du Lac Ave. in Kewaskum and killed 146 Leghorn laying chickens.

An event which is always looked forward to, Kewaskum's annual firemen's picnic will be held in the village park on July 13 and 14. This year's picnic and parade will be among the best ever held and everyone is invited to come for a real good time.

Mrs. Joseph Ruplinger, 68, nee Alma Weiland of Kewaskum, passed away unexpectedly of a heart attack at her home on June 28.

Vincent N. Fellenz, 53, dairy farmer of Route 1, Kewaskum, near St. Michaels, died July 2, at St. Joseph's Community Hospital, West Bend, following an illness of five years.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. John Heisdorf, West Bend, on July 2. Heisdorf is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Heisdorf, Sr. of Route 2, Kewaskum. A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Norman Heberer, Kewaskum, on July 1. Mrs. Heberer is the former Maureen Borchert. A son was also born to Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Sarauer, Route 2, Campbellsport, June 24.

Hazelwood Chosen As Cast Member for UWWC Production of 'The Drunkard'

A 15-member cast has been selected for "The Drunkard," one of five productions in Summer Rep VI, the sixth summer repertory season of Theatre on the Hill, West Bend.

Brad Ford, artistic director of Theatre on the Hill, said the musical melodrama is being directed by Ben Tweel of Chicago. Five July performances are scheduled for the show, including 7:30 p.m. performances on Saturday, July 16; Thursday, July 21; Friday, July 29; and Sunday, July 31. A Sunday matinee will be presented on July 24.

The musical is an adaptation of W.H.S. Smith's world-famous attack on alcohol with script by Bro Herrod and score by Barry Manilow. All performances are in the Union theatre at the University of Wisconsin — Washington County Center.

Cast members, as announced by Tweel, are: Hilerre Kirsch of West Bend as Mary Wilson, the heroine; Lauren J. Polenske of Chicago as Mary's mother; Mark Kohler of West Bend as the villainous Lawyer Cribbs; Dylan S. Bolin of Milwaukee as Edward, the hero; Jaime Jastrab of West Bend as Mary's father; and Sheila Boyung of West Bend as the mad Agnes. Matthew Bykowski of West

You know, in Egypt they have a peculiar superstition. They're afraid of burying people alive, so when a man dies they bury him for sixty days and then dig him up, place him on a cold slab, and have twenty beautiful girls dance around him for two hours. What good does that do? Well, if he doesn't get up — he's sure to be dead.

Bend is the preacher; John Hazelwood, Jr., of Kewaskum plays the bartender; Dana Pamperin of Hartford portrays Carrie A. Nation; and Jennifer Braatz of West Bend is Julia.

Rounding out the cast are chorus members who also double in between acts orioles or entertainment, in the tradition of the old melodramas. Tim Dondlinger of West Bend is the MC. Amy Nordbeck of Cedarburg acts as the audience teleprompter for sing-a-longs. Jessica Welzien of West Bend, Maureen Dwyer of Milwaukee and Paul Vogelsang of West Bend are olio singers, Salvation Army soldiers, and wedding guests.

Working with Tweel on the production are Michelle Retzlaff of West Bend, assistant to the director; Peter Ayer of West Bend, vocal music director; Susannah Kist of West Bend, vocal coach; and Diane Baker of Germantown, pianist.

Tickets to individual summer shows cost $5 with student and senior citizen admission at $3.50. Season tickets are available at savings of 40 percent and up.

To reserve tickets or get more information on "The Drunkard" or other shows, call UWWC, 338-5208.

4-H Foods Revue

How about a "Lunch for Friends," an "Outdoor Meal" or a "Party for Mom?" These are just a few examples of what will be "COOKING" during the annual 4-H Foods Revue. This year the Foods Revue will be held on July 14, from 2:00 - 4:00 p.m. at the Paradise Mall.

Participants will prepare one dish from a menu they have planned. Their skills will be enhanced by designing a table arrangement which could be used with their menu. Luci Wagner, a Home Economics teacher at Hartford Union High School will judge the event. Participants will serve the food item from their menu as well as answer questions about the nutrients in the food and the methods of preparation.

The public is welcome to attend this event. Exhibits on topics such as convenience foods, hidden sources of sodium and eating light when you eat out will be displayed.

Learn more about your eating habits and support the 4-H youth at the same time. Come to the Foods Revue.

The musical "Quilters" returns to the stage at UWWC in July by popular demand with five of the seven original cast members from the 1987 production.

"Quilters" is one of five shows in Theatre on the Hill's Summer Rep VI, the sixth summer of repertory theatre at the University of Wisconsin — Washington County Center.

Brad Ford, director of the show and the artistic director of Theatre on the Hill, said this is the first time in his career he has ever repeated a production. His decision, he explained, resulted from the sell-out performances in 1987 and requests from people who want to see the show again or missed it the first time around.

Returning cast members, as announced by Ford, include four West Bend women: Sue Keyes as Sarah Bonham, the mother of six daughters, and three of her daughters — Mary Beth Sancomb as Jenny, Mary McNamara as Margaret and Michele Lukovich as Janie. Also back is Michelle Nigh of Kewaskum as daughter Jody.

New to the cast are Susannah Kist of West Bend, who teaches at Holland Mich., as Lisa Bonham; and Lori Vetrovec of Menomonee Falls as Dana Bonham.

"Quilters" is a musical about the strength of American pioneer women. Ford, an assistant professor of theatre and communications arts at UWWC, said he decided on the musical after he "picked up the script and just couldn't put it down." The show, he said, is "put together like a quilt from bits and pieces of women's lives."

One cast member says during the show, "I tremble sometimes when I remember what that quilt knows about me."

The production debuted as an experimental lab play in March 1982 at the Denver Center Theatres, where it became that company's highest-grossing play in history during a 38-performance run. It opened in New York in the fall of 1984.

Jan Ford, associate director of student services at UWWC, is the musical director and assistant director for the show. Albert Asch, associate professor of music at UWWC, is the conductor for the seven-member pit orchestra.

"Quilters" opens a five-performance run on Friday, July 15, at 7:30 p.m., with other shows set for Sunday, July 17 at 7:30 p.m.; Saturday, July 23, at 7:30 p.m.; Thursday, July 28, at 7:30 p.m.; and a closing Sunday matinee on July 31.

Ford has urged "Quilter" fans to reserve seats early by calling UWWC, 338-5208. Tickets for individual shows cost $5 or $3.50 for persons over age 62 or under age 18.

Season tickets are available at savings of about 40 percent over the cost of individual shows. A further savings is available through a family season ticket that admits two adults and any number of children to Thursday evening and Sunday afternoon performances for $30.

Rounding out the Summer Rep VI season are "The Drunkard," a musical based on the famed W.H.S. Smith melodrama; "Tom Sawyer's Treasure Hunt," with a high school cast; and a double-feature children's theatre Saturday matinee: "Gollywhoppers" and "Percival the Performing Pig."

For further information, or to make reservations, call UWWC, 338-5208.

SHERIFFS

Clarence A. Schwartz, Sheriff

Babysitters and Emergencies

Sheriff Clarence A. Schwartz has issued a plea to parents regarding the information they provide babysitters in case of an emergency. The Sheriff's concern was sparked by an incident in the Colgate area Saturday night, in which a babysitter did not know the address of the home in which she was working.

"Unfortunately, that only one-in-a-million type of emergency happened... a neighbor's home caught on fire. The neighbor ran to the home where the babysitter was working and banged on the door, calling for help. The babysitter didn't know the emergency phone number, so she went through the phone company operator", the Sheriff explained. In the meantime, the man went elsewhere for help.

When the operator relayed the call to the Sheriff's Department, the babysitter didn't know the address she was at. The phone number could have been used to locate the address, using a reverse directory. But the phone number was not located on the telephone. She knew the name of the residence's owners but it took extra time to locate the address, because that particular area is served by more than one exchange.

"Contrary to popular belief, the phone company cannot instantly trace a phone call. Precious time was lost in locating the problem," the Sheriff remarked.

Sheriff Schwartz asks parents to do the following the next time they use a sitter:

- Make a list of trusted neighbors and nearly relatives that can be called for assistance in a minor emergency.
- Write down where you will be and the phone number where you can be reached.
- Write down the name and phone number of your family physician (for use by emergency medical personnel, should he/she be needed).

Your family name and the address of your home should be clearly written down. Your phone number should be on every phone. "When we leased telephones from the telephone company, the phone company did this for us. Now we have to handle this ourselves," the Sheriff remarked.

Finally, the appropriate emergency phone numbers should also be posted at each telephone. "For most of Washington County, 338-4411, our emergency phone number, will be the one to use for any emergency. Residents should post the appropriate number for their location where the sitter can see it immediately," the Sheriff stated. "Our main number may be long-distance in some areas, so make sure the sitter sees that you have to dial '1' first. This may cost a few cents to use, but it is the fastest way to obtain help in an emergency."

Old Holy Trinity School

The second story portion of the school's west wall crashed to the ground as the steel wrecking arm continued to pick away at the building.

The front section of the convent wall fell exposing rooms which had been home to nuns which had staffed the school for 98 years.

Piles of brick and rubble were soon all that was left of the convent and school which had withstood wind and weather for over 100 years.

With the demolition of its predecessor complete, Holy Trinity's grade school is now visible from Main Street.

UWWC Faculty Members Receive Promotions

WEST BEND — Five faculty members at the University of Wisconsin - Washington County Center are among 32 faculty from eight UW freshman-sophomore centers who have received promotions, tenure or emeritus designations and title changes.

UW Centers Chancellor Stephen Portch of Madison made the announcements following June 10 action by the UW Board of Regents.

Three UWWC men are among the five faculty appointed as tenured professors, the highest UW academic ranking. Two of the three have been at UWWC since it opened in 1968: Thomas C. Gross, art, and Albert J. Asch, instrumental music. The third, Peter F. Ayer, vocal music, has taught at the center since 1968.

Bradford A. Ford of West Bend, communications arts, has been granted tenure as an assistant professor. He is one of 16 persons receiving tenure at the centers. F. Lincoln Grahls, who is retiring in August, was named assistant professor emeritus in anthropology - sociology. He is one of six persons awarded emeritus status by the regents.

In informing the five UWWC faculty of the board's actions, Chancellor Portch told them, "You should feel proud of your accomplishment; it reflects well on both you and on the UW Centers. Congratulations. Celebrate."

FULL PROFESSORS

Dean Robert O. Thompson of UWWC said, "Appointments to full professorships are rare and reflect real creative accomplishments by these men."

Gross, 50, is recognized in art circles for his work in sculpture and ceramics. A sculpture major at UW-Milwaukee, he received his B.S. degree in art there in 1963, his M.S. in art in 1964 and his Master of Fine Arts degree in 1971, majoring in sculpture for each degree.

Gross is a native of Milwaukee. Before coming to UWWC, he taught as a display artist at the Milwaukee Public Museum, a lecturer at Carroll College and an instructor at the UW Center - Marinette and the former UW-Racine campus.

Asch, 55, came to UWWC in 1968. During his first year at the campus he founded the Moraine Symphony Orchestra and has directed it ever since. Eleven years ago, he started the Lakeshore Symphonic Band and continues today as its conductor.

He holds a B.M. degree (1954) and M.A. degree (1955) from the University of Kentucky. He was named Teacher of the Year at UWWC by students for three consecutive academic years, beginning in 1970-71, and is one of the recipients of the Rolfs Teaching Award at UWWC.

Prior to coming to UWWC, Asch taught at Wichita State University, the University of Illinois and the University of Louisville. He performs on the oboe and other woodwind instruments and works with the campus theatre pit orchestras and a variety of student instrumental groups.

Asch advises photographers on the UWWC paper, teaches photography for UW Extension and conducts clinics for area music students.

Ayer, 60, began teaching at UWWC in 1969. He has a B.A. degree in music from Beloit College (1951) and an M.A. in music education from the University of Kentucky (1955).

In 1969, he founded the Moraine Chorus and still directs the group. He is conductor and a tenor in his 12-member Ayer Ensemble, which counts regular appearances on the UWWC Fine Arts Series among its frequent concerts.

During the 1969-70 school year, Ayer shared Teacher of the Year honors at UWWC and is one of the winners of the annual Rolfs Teaching Award. He has designed a number of the courses he teaches and is active as a vocal performer composer and writer.

Ayer began his teaching career in Kewaskum in 1967 and taught in public schools in Wisconsin and Ohio before coming to UWWC.

Ayer is an accomplished guitarist, an elected town official and teaches and competes in diving.

TENURE STATUS

In commenting on Ford's becoming a tenured assistant professor, Thompson noted that tenure marks the achieving of permanent faculty status in the UW System. He said tenure is granted to faculty having met the academic requirements of their discipline and having demonstrated teaching excellence, research ability and campus and community service.

Ford, 40, came to UWWC in 1982. In addition to his teaching duties, he is the artistic director of Theatre on the Hill, a year-round production program that includes a summer repertory season and Childrens Theatre program. Each year he leads a between-semester UWWC theatre trip to London.

Prior to coming to UWWC, Ford was resident director of the Playhouse on the Square in Memphis, Tenn. He has taught at the high school and college levels, worked in summer stock and studied abroad in Poland and Eastern Europe. His areas of expertise include stagecraft, dance, choreography, mime and puppetry, and he has won awards in acting, directing and public speaking.

EMERITUS STATUS

Thompson said that the designation of Grahls as assistant professor emeritus is a recognition of a distinguished career of teaching with the UW System.

Grahls, 65, joined the UW in 1975 at the UW Marathon County Center in Wausau and has been at UWWC since 1986. For the past four years, he has chaired the Sociology Department for the 13 freshman-sophomore centers.

Grahls was one of the 1985 founders and is an emeritus member of the executive council of the Wisconsin Institute for the Study of War, Peace and Global Cooperation. He is a veteran of World War II.

Motivating Kids to Return to School

Summer is a good time for parents to motivate their children for returning to school. With a little planning and encouragement, children can make good use of their summer vacations. Milwaukee Psychiatric Hospital offers these tips for parents in motivating their children to go back to school:

1) Plan family trips to provide intellectual stimulation — the library, museums and zoo offer hundreds of subjects to discuss and/or read about.

2) Encourage your child to teach you something. Children and adolescents can share information on a range of subjects — dinosaurs, sports, photography. By having your child teach you about something he or she is interested in, you will build self-esteem and stimulate the desire to learn more.

3) Have supplies available for younger children to play school. Suggest this as a rainy day activity.

4) There still may be time to enroll your children in summer classes. Courses in drama, computers or swimming can interest children in activities that they can continue during the school year.

5) Shop with your children for back to school supplies, including clothing. Don't wait until the last minute. These shopping trips can help children mentally prepare and get excited about going back to school.

Water Accidents Pose A Serious Threat To Children

Hot weather and water can be the perfect combination, but water poses a special danger to children, according to Children's Hospital of Wisconsin. Nationwide drownings claim the lives of more than 1,200 children each year. Drownings are the second most common cause of death among children in Wisconsin, the hospital reported.

Many more children suffer injuries while playing in or around water. Often these injuries result in the need for hospitalization and can result in permanent disabilities, warn emergency medical experts at Children's Hospital.

A special booklet on accident prevention, "How To Protect Your Child From Injury," can be ordered free of charge by writing to the Public Relations Department, Children's Hospital of Wisconsin, PO Box 1997, Milwaukee, WI 53201, or by calling 931-KIDS in the Milwaukee area or 1-800-234-KIDS outside the Milwaukee area.

"Water is fun, but it deserves your child's respect. Instill your child with confidence, not dread. Fear of water will only cause panic if your child should fall in," said Leigh E. Morris, director of Public Relations for Children's Hospital.

The hospital said the most important rule for parents to follow is to make certain children are supervised while in or near water. "Drownings and serious injuries can and do happen when a parent or other adult supervisor is away from the pool or lake for just a few minutes," Morris said.

Although children vary in age when they are ready to learn to swim, most children can take swimming lessons when they have reached the age of 3 or 4, according to the hospital. Children's Hospital does not recommend swimming lessons for infants.

Other safety tips recommended by Children's Hospital are as follows:

1. Children should stay in the part of a pool or lake that is safe for their swimming ability.
2. Only one person should be allowed on a diving board. A child should never dive into water head-first, except from a diving board. Never allow a child to dive into unknown waters.
3. Never allow running or pushing in pool areas.
4. Never allow children to play in or swim in rivers or other unknown waters. Currents, rocks and refuse can be dangerous.
5. Backyard swimming pools should be enclosed with a fence at least six feet in height with a self closing, self-locking gate. The fence should be of material a child cannot climb. The pool should not be accessible through a door or window.
6. A safety float line should be used to separate shallow water from deeper water. Pool depths should be clearly marked.
7. Wading pools should be emptied after every use. Children should not be allowed to run through or jump in wading pools.
8. Only officially designated swimming areas of lake should be used.
9. Safety vests should be worn by children and adults when in a boat.
10. Children should use the "buddy system" when swimming, regardless of the child's swimming ability. In the buddy system, an experienced swimmer stays at the side of the child while in the water.

Accidents claim the lives of nearly 8,000 children each year while leaving about 50,000 children with permanent disabilities, according to Children's Hospital. Motor vehicle accidents, drownings, fires and burns are the leading causes of accidental deaths.

Children's Hospital of Wisconsin is a private, independent, not-for-profit regional pediatric medical center. Based in Milwaukee, it serves all of Wisconsin and Michigan's Upper Peninsula.

IN MEMORY

In loving memory of Ferdinand Weiland who passed away two years ago, July 14, 1986:

Those we love go out of sight.
But never out of mind:
They are cherished in the hearts,
Of those they left behind.
The happy hours we once enjoyed,
How sweet the memory still:
But death has left a loneliness,
The world can never fill.

Sadly missed by wife Lucy and all the children and grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Questions Drivers ask

This monthly series is presented as a public service by the Wisconsin Department of Transportation, Division of Motor Vehicles. Drivers License Examiners serving your area, answer questions frequently asked by drivers. Questions this month are answered by Examiner Richard Steffek.

Q? I read recently about a motorcycle accident in which the cyclist was killed when he crashed into a car left in the road after a minor accident. This brought up a discussion as to the proper procedure when you've been involved in an accident. Should you leave the vehicles where they are, or move them off the road?

A: In almost every instance, your first and foremost concern ought to be for the safety of others.

If drivers are involved in an accident on a busy road, and the vehicles are operable, they ought to be moved out of the traffic lanes and onto the shoulder. If the vehicle or vehicles aren't operable, then precautions ought to be taken immediately to warn other oncoming traffic and prevent a second accident from occurring.

If the accident occurs on a lightly traveled road where visibility is good, then it isn't so urgent that the vehicles be moved. In that case, you may want to leave them where they are until a law enforcement officer arrives to investigate the accident.

Accidents involving injury or death, or property damage to an apparent extent of $500 or more to any one person's property, should be reported immediately to the law enforcement agency having jurisdiction over the road. Some municipalities do not send an officer to the scene of minor accidents where there are no injuries and only slight property damage. Others prefer to investigate all accidents.

If an officer investigates, he or she will file a report with the Division of Motor Vehicles (DMV). If there is no investigation, the drivers of the vehicles involved are required to submit a report of the accident within 10 days to the DMV.

Questions about driver licensing, registration, safe driving or other transportation topics may be addressed to Richard Steffek, Area Supervisor, 833 S. Rolling Meadows Dr., P.O. Box 2067, Fond du Lac, WI 54936-2067 (414) 929-3724.

Pamphlet Available From Heart Ass'n. About Aspirin Use

Cautions about using aspirin to prevent heart attack are listed in a new pamphlet available from the American Heart Association of Wisconsin.

The free pamphlet, "Aspirin and Your Heart," was prepared in response to a Harvard University study in which healthy men who took an aspirin tablet every other day cut their risk of heart attack nearly in half.

The American Heart Association called the study an "important milestone in the prevention of heart disease," and said that "taking small doses of aspirin now appears to be another useful way to reduce the risk of coronary heart disease."

However, the Heart Association also cited possible side effects of regular aspirin therapy and cautioned against its indiscriminate use. Because aspirin reduces the blood's tendency to clot, aspirin therapy can result in prolonged bleeding.

Therefore, people with medical problems such as liver or kidney disease, peptic ulcer or a history of bleeding problems may not be able to take aspirin regularly.

The Heart Association also noted that the good news about aspirin in the Harvard study is somewhat offset by data showing a 15 percent increase in strokes caused by bleeding into the brain among participants in the study who took aspirin regularly.

Overall, the Heart Association pamphlet makes several recommendations:

* Any decision to start taking aspirin regularly should be made only in consultation with a physician.

* People beginning regular aspirin therapy should be aware of the drug's possible side effects and report any symptoms to their physicians.

* Aspirin use should be carefully regulated before undergoing any surgical procedure, even dental extractions.

* People should continue efforts to control heart disease risk factors not affected by aspirin use — high blood cholesterol, high blood pressure and smoking.

For a copy of the pamphlet on aspirin, write to the American Heart Association of Wisconsin, 795 N. Van Buren, Milwaukee, WI 53202.

In the Service

Pvt. Mark R. Peaslee, son of Robert H. and Rosemary K. Peaslee of 1945 Elm Tree Drive, Kewaskum, Wis., has completed basic training at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo.

During the training, students received instruction in drill and ceremonies, weapons, map reading, tactics, military courtesy, military justice, first aid, and Army history and traditions.

He is a 1984 graduate of West Bend West High School, Wis.

ON SOLICITATIONS

Sheriff Clarence A. Schwartz cautions all county residents and business people to use care when asked to donate money for a law enforcement magazine or other group that claims to benefit law enforcement or children.

"There are many phony organizations that solicit periodically in the area. There are some legitimate organizations, also, which have unwisely decided to use outside business agents to solicit for them. These agents sometimes exaggerate the work done by the actual organization," the Sheriff observed.

"We ask that people contact the Sheriff's Department if they are approached by a solicitor who claims to benefit law enforcement. We can provide information if possible, and also gather evidence if the claims made are false."

The sheriff pointed out that the department never authorizes or endorses the solicitation of money by outside organizations. The department does support an honorary membership program of the Wisconsin Sheriffs and Deputy Sheriffs Association, and does use one uniformed officer to accept donations for the annual baseball card program. All other public information programs are paid for through the department's budget. Anyone claiming some type of department authorization or support is being untruthful.

WISCONSIN OUTDOORS AND CONSERVATION NEWS

Peregrine Releases Set for July

MADISON, WI — The roof of the University of Wisconsin - Madison's 19-story Van Hise Hall will be the release site for up to five peregrine falcon chicks in mid-July, according to Department of Natural Resources Endangered Resources officials.

"Their arrival depends on when they hatch," said Charlene (Charlie) Gieck, coordinator of the state's falcon recovery effort.

She said that the Minnesota Nature Conservancy acts as a "clearinghouse" for falcon chicks and the chicks could come from any number of states where captive breeding takes place.

"We get the chicks when they are 30 days old. That's when they're ready for placement in the hack (nesting) box. They will remain in the box until they're fully feathered and ready to fledge (fly) when they're about 6 weeks old," Gieck said.

Gieck said she was enthused about the decision to release the chicks on the UW-Madison campus on the shores of Lake Mendota.

"The falcons will have the height to soar over the lake and hunt for food. Falcons eat pigeons, starlings and other small birds," Gieck said. "There are few great horned owls in the area and less traffic on the campus than elsewhere in Madison. Both the owls and traffic are a threat to peregrine fledglings."

Site attendants will be posted in the nearby Van Vleck building to monitor the falcons' ability to fly, their interactions and search for food.

The Madison release follows the closing of the Muscoda release site because great horned owls threatened the offspring. The site was established last year through the cooperation of Wisconsin Power and Light Company (WP&L).

"There were plans to alter the Muscoda site habitat by removing some trees to discourage the owls, but that never happened because there were just too many owls," Gieck said. "Wisconsin Power and Light officials have been extremely understanding. Even though they are disappointed, they still want to support the recovery program and we're grateful."

An official of WPL, Don Piepenberg, agrees:

"We regret that the site can't be used for peregrine releases, but we understand that the safety of this rare bird is at stake. We hope we can remain an active partner in the program in other ways."

In closing Muscoda, the state's Peregrine Recovery Team looked for another release site and found Madison.

"We're grateful to the University for its cooperation," said Ron Nicotera, director of the Bureau of Endangered Resources. "I hope that the University community becomes as enthused as we are about peregrine reintroduction and enjoys watching them grow and become an interesting member of Madison's environment."

The planned Madison release continues the department's efforts to return the peregrine to the state; none existed as recently as three years ago. In the 1950s, 24 pairs of peregrines nested on the bluffs of the Wisconsin and Mississippi rivers.

"Peregrines seem to like Wisconsin," Gieck continued. "Two pairs are nesting and a third pair has been seen along the Mississippi River north of La Crosse. One pair has claimed a territory in Milwaukee."

Presently along the river, however, efforts to help the peregrines survive continue to meet with difficulty.

"Near Alma and Maiden Rock, great horned owls killed and ate at least five chicks — everything that was there — produced by the wild peregrines in the past two years," Gieck said.

To protect the chicks this year, the Department tried to trap and relocate the owls. But there was only "limited success," Gieck said.

"We think we have lost this year's chicks too," Gieck said.

At both Maiden Rock and Alma, specialists watching the behavior of adult peregrines have noticed a "drastic change" in their behavior, Gieck explained.

"Instead of searching for food and bringing it back to the nests to feed their young — something they were doing just two weeks ago — the adult falcons are merely perched in trees and not actively hunting," Gieck said.

It's possible that any eggs or young that may have been in the nest died, fell or were killed by the owls. The presence of eggs or young won't be known until specialists can repel down the side of the nest cliffs and actually view the nest sites.

Because there is no evidence of eggs or young in the nest, no further owl control efforts such as shooting will be employed, said Gieck. The department had considered shooting the owls that were endangering peregrine fledglings, but set aside that strategy in response to public criticism.

In Milwaukee, hopes remain high for a 1988 release. Right now, the Milwaukee pair is defending its territory around the release site at the First Wisconsin Center, but they haven't nested, said Gieck. If they lose territorial interest in the site, a 1988 falcon release there is possible.

Fourteen peregrine chicks were released in Milwaukee in 1987. Ten of them are now free-flying and may return in future years. It is unknown if the pair currently in Milwaukee is from last year's release or from releases in other cities.

AMPI Seeks Response To Drought Emergency

Minneapolis, Minnesota....The Board of Directors of Associated Milk Producers, Inc. have called on U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Richard Lyng to take necessary action to increase the dairy price support level at least 10 percent. This would assist dairy farm families in meeting drought-related cost increases and assure U.S. consumers of continued dependable supplies of milk and dairy products.

Meeting in Minneapolis, MN., the AMPI Board received reports that milk supplies in major producing areas have already begun to drop. Loss of feed crops and expected sharp increases in feed prices are resulting in increased livestock sales.

"It is imperative that we prevent the liquidation of dairy herds due to severe drought conditions," declared AMPI President Irvin Elkin, a dairy farmer from Amery, WI. "Milk production cannot be turned on and off like a spigot. It would be shortsighted and irresponsible to allow milk productive capacity to fall to dangerously low levels."

Elkin pointed out that even a small reduction in milk output will mean substantial consumer price increases. Reductions of the scale possible in the face of current drought conditions would threaten the adequacy of dairy supplies across the country and lead to runaway prices for years to come. "Once cattle have gone to slaughter, the replacement is a two to three year process," commented Elkin.

"This temporary action is necessary to protect the Wisconsin and upper Midwest dairy industry," stated Gregory Blaska, AMPI Morning Glory Farms Region President. "Without some price relief, we face long term and perhaps even permanent reduction in dairy productive capacity in our area of the country," said Blaska.

In making the request, the AMPI Board called on Ag Secretary Richard Lyng to use existing authority or seek needed authority to increase the price support level to offset rising costs. The Board also endorsed other regulatory or legislative actions aimed at providing needed drought relief for agricultural producers.

As part of the initiative, the Board directed that the broadest possible support be sought from other dairy organizations throughout the country.

AMPI, formed in 1969, ranks as the nation's largest dairy farmer cooperative with over 22,000 member farms in 21 states located throughout the midwest, south and southwest. AMPI member milk production provides 12 percent of the nation's milk supply.

The hardest job of all is trying to look busy when you're not.

Kojis Wins First; Bauer, Veldman Repeat

by Dick Jepsen

(Plymouth, WI) — Bill Kojis of Wales in the Outhouse Engineering modified scored his first Eastern Wis. Stock Car feature win of the season Saturday night at the Sheboygan County Fairgrounds in Plymouth, while both Dale Bauer of Sheboygan and Tim Veldmann of Plymouth notched their second wins of the season winning the sportsman and hobby stock features respectively.

Erv Waala led Brian Gilles and Bill Johnson III the first five laps of the modified feature before the red appeared for debris on the track. Waala kept his lead on the restart but moving up to runner-up spot was Bill Kojis when Gilles in second got out of shape in the backstretch dropping him to fourth behind Johnson III. Kojis wasted little time flexing his muscle as he used the outside groove in turn three to pass Waala for the lead. In the next three laps both Johnson III and Gilles were each able to move up a position as they got by Waala. As the top three pulled away from the field Dick Berth, Erv Waala and Frankie Heimerl battled for the fourth spot, with Berth finally getting control of the position on lap twenty-three. Kojis built up a huge lead lapping half the field before the checkers fell. Gilles recovering from a crash Wednesday night at the Manitowoc Expo pressured Bill Johnson III for second in the waning laps of the event but had to settle for a close third at the end of the 30 laps. Fourth went to Dick Berth with fifth to Erv Waala.

Dale Bauer starting outside the front row got out quickly into the lead ahead of the trio of Marv Kellar, Bob Heinemann and Mike Akright. The race was red flagged on the second circuit when Keith Borth looped and stalled in turn three. Bauer on the restart pulled away from the field as Dave Larson driving for Richard Hed moved to third behind Kellar on lap five after Akright running third spun. Battling for fifth was Gary Laack, Henry Dickmann and Expo feature winner Randy Walters when the red came out again this time for a spin by Russ Spatzin the backstretch. After the restart Laack moved to second along with Larson and fast qualifier Jim Pitzen as they battled behind the leader Bauer. Positions remained the same until lap twenty-three when Laack lost his driveshaft in the main straightaway halting the event with two laps remaining. Bauer was able to hold off Pitzen the final two circuits for the win. Larson finished third, followed by Randy Markwardt and Marv Kellar.

Jeff Leonhard of Sheboygan led the first five laps of the hobby stock feature before a tangle between Randy Mueller and Mark Gierke halted the event. The Gierke Bros. racing #67 took the lead on the restart as Tim Veldmann moved to second. On lap eleven Veldmann took over the top spot and two laps later was joined by Jim Kroening moving to second. Despite another red the two leaders battled till the checkers with Veldmann winning and Kroening finished a close second.

Butch Wondra and Dave Deicher won mod semis while John Born won the sportsman and Brad Mueller in the hobby stocks.

MPTC Wet Lab Prepares Students for Jobs

Ever tried teaching someone how to milk a cow? It's an udderly hands-on experience! So is teaching someone how to turn milk into cheese. That's why Moraine Park Technical College decided to develop a wet lab for its food science program in 1987.

The wet lab concept took physical form when the room for the facility was remodeled that year and the equipment setup completed in March 1988. Moraine Park's wet lab now contains nine pieces of new, used and donated equipment, all 100 percent operational.

"It is an addition whose time had come," says Chuck Oehmcke, division chairperson, service occupations. "In the past, the students went on field trips where we showed them the equipment. Now they have actual hands-on experience with what they will be using on the job."

"The lab is very useful because it is a scale model of the equipment that can be found in the Borden Plant in Fond du Lac and other similar facilities," says Donna Dixon, instructional manager for Moraine Park's service occupations division.

"We have made an investment in redoing the labs here and it is paying off with recognition," says John Shanahan, Moraine Park's district director, in reference to the 1987 Exemplary Educational Services Award that the program received from the Wisconsin Board of Vocational, Technical and Adult Education.

"We've known the strengths of this program for a long time - it is an excellent opportunity for all people," he continues. "Because it is a unique occupation, however, people don't readily understand what skills are needed. It is a very technical field and the recognition brought by the lab will help us to share the opportunities that exist here."

The wet lab contains: an HTST pasteurizer, a high temperature short-time machine that raises milk temperature to kill bacteria quickly so as not to ruin the milk; a vat pasteurizer, an older way of pasteurizing milk which takes longer, using hot or cold processes; a homogenizer, used to break up fat and distribute it evenly among the milk; a cheese vat, which curdles cheese and will be used to make cheese for demonstration purposes and an ice cream freezer, used to make ice cream.

The lab also features: a tenderometer, which measures the tenderness of peas - a motor squishes the peas and registers the necessary force on a meter; a retort, a pressure cooker which prepares cans of vegetables, seals and sterilizes them - it uses a thermocoupler which checks the inside temperature of the can to make sure the vegetables are properly processed; a cream separator which separates cream, low fat cheeses and 1 percent and 2 percent milk; an ice builder, backup equipment to quickly lower the temperature in the pasteurizer and an electric steam generator, used in conjunction with the retort and pasteurizer processes.

Next year, the State Department of Agriculture will use the facility to upgrade sanitarians on sanitation procedures. "Most of the important processes are represented," Oehmcke says, in describing the use of the wet lab. "The students learn how to manipulate the controls throughout several courses. It makes them more enjoyable and increases their familiarity with the equipment."

Along with the students' success in finding jobs, salaries of graduates from the program have also risen. Recent graduates are earning between $1400-1500 per month. Unlike many other occupations, relocation is not a significant factor in this field. "Fond du Lac and Wisconsin are in the heart of the food producing area," says Dixon. "There are a lot of jobs available here. This year, many of the graduating students had jobs before they finished school - and at the salaries they were expecting."

An economic development strategic plan compiled for the Fond du Lac Area Economic Authority targets the food manufacturing and food processing industry for foreign investment. "Wisconsin is very interested in economic development in this area," Shanahan says. "Not only would this help the economy of our city, but it would provide better income opportunities for area residents."

The food science program draws students from all walks of life. There are those that enter right out of high school as well as people whom Dixon calls "displaced farmers" - farmers who no longer farm, but want to remain close to the industry. "The displaced farmers have found this career satisfying because they are still in contact with farm people," Dixon comments.

Each year, the program admits 20 students and openings still exist for the fall 1988 class. "Moraine Park's food science program is the only program of its type in Wisconsin and one of approximately 18 schools, nationwide, to offer this training. The program prepares students for industrial - type food processing, packaging, quality assurance and distribution of food from producer to consumer. Students can choose from such specialized areas as milk and dairy products, vegetables, fruits, meats, brewing, cereals, seafoods and beverages.

Financial Aid Available for Students From Drought-Stricken Farm Families

EAU CLAIRE - Students from farm families whose income has been drastically affected by this year's drought may be eligible for additional financial aid awards to attend college in the fall.

Robert Sather, director of financial aids at the University of Wisconsin - Eau Claire, says Title IV aids, including Pell grants, state grants, loan assistance and work study, can be recalculated and adjustments made on a case by case basis when there is a change in a family's financial circumstances.

"We're getting calls from parents who are worried about financing their son's or daughter's education this fall because they expect the drought to wipe out the family income this year," Sather said. "They're relieved to hear that financial aids regulations contain the flexibility to provide funding adjustments when financial circumstances justify such changes."

For families who expect appreciably less income for 1988 than in 1987 (the income year used to calculate financial aid for the upcoming academic year), the expected family contribution for educational expenses can be recalculated based on the projected 1988 income, Sather said.

"Financial aids guidelines provide for recalculating awards when sudden and drastic reversals in family income occur. These reversals might be caused by a parent's death, divorce or, in this case, a drought," he said. "Often-times, for such cases, students who normally would be ineligible for any financial aid may be eligible for total grants through the appeal process."

1988 income to be considerably reduced from last year should contact the financial aids office at their student's university and request an appeal form for financial aid based upon the changed financial situation.

The form, which must be completed and returned to the financial aids office, requires information about estimated 1988 income and statements describing the financial circumstances.

Sather said it will take from six to eight weeks from the time the appeal is received until the award can be made.

Supt. Grover Announces Vocational Education Grant Recipients

MADISON - One hundred and eighty-nine public schools, including the Kewaskum School District, and 19 other educational institutions will share approximately $6 million in vocational education funds, according to an announcement by State Superintendent Herbert J. Grover.

The money comes to Wisconsin through the Carl D. Perkins Vocational Education Act of 1984 and is based on grant awards described in a two-year state plan submitted to the U.S. Department of Education. Wisconsin's vocational education act allocation for the 1988-89 school year is $7,725,821, of which local education agencies will receive approximately 80 percent or $6,016,609.

Funds are distributed on a formula basis among the following major funding categories:

- services to special target groups
- program improvement activities
- special program areas

School districts apply to the Department of Public Instruction for grants which can be used to expand current programs, develop new projects, or forge comprehensive curriculums with area technical college programs.

The DPI retains about 20 percent or $1,709,212 of the total grant award. The state plan calls for the department to use these funds to provide technical assistance to school districts. The agency also uses the funds for administration and evaluation of vocational education programs.

"The federal vocational education act is a significant force in Wisconsin because it promotes local and state ownership of program improvement activities as well as supporting creative and innovative approaches to better preparing Wisconsin youth for their working future," Grover concluded.

ASCS Crop Reporting Deadline Is July 15

Lyle Fechtelkoter, Chairperson of the Wisconsin State ASC Committee reminds all participating producers who wish to be eligible for price support and other government program benefits, that they must report their crop acreages by July 15. Producers growing program crops but not participating in current programs should report acreages to remain eligible to participate in future programs.

Fechtelkoter also reminds all Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) participants and producers growing tobacco to report their acres by July 15.

If a producer does not report his acres, all program benefits will be lost, his crop acreage base will be reduced for future years, price support payments will not be granted for quota crops and he may be subject to liquidated damages.

The release of set-aside, CU designated acres for the 0-92 program harvesting and grazing and CRP acres for harvest is permitted only with ASCS County Office approval. The producers must register at their local ASCS Office before they harvest or graze their setaside, CU designated acres, or harvest CRP acres.

To certify your crops, contact your local ASCS Office to set up an appointment. Producers should be sure to report acres accurately since an incorrect report could make them ineligible for program benefits.

PRAYER TO ST. JUDE

To be said when problems arise or when one seems to be deprived of all visible help, or for cases almost despaired of.

Most holy apostle, St. Jude, faithful servant and friend of Jesus, the Church honors and invokes you universally, as the patron of hopeless cases, of things almost despaired of. Pray for me, I am so helpless and alone. Make sure I implore you, of that particular privilege given to you, to bring visible and speedy help where help is almost despaired of. Come to my assistance in this great need that I may receive the consolation and help of heaven in all my necessities, tribulations, and sufferings, particularly — (Here make your request) and that I may praise God with you and all the elect forever. I promise, O blessed St. Jude, to be ever mindful of this great favor, to always honor you as my special and powerful patron, and to gratefully encourage devotion to you. Amen.

Thank You St. Jude.

Good Communication Key to Happy Marriage

By Joyce Albrecht
Extension Home Economist

Because we're living longer, having fewer children and having them later in life, married couples are spending more child-free years together.

Consider this, a woman born in 1786 spent about seven married years with no children in the household. A woman born in 1890 spent about 18 child-free years of marriage. A typical woman today can expect more than 30 years of marriage with no children at home.

Marriage clearly means something different today. It involves much more time spent in a close relationship with only one other person.

Good communication is even more important these days. In fact, researchers find that the way couples communicate with each other is key to how happy their marriages are.

Couples who can discuss their problems and reach mutually agreeable conclusions without becoming hurt or blaming each other are likely to have the happiest marriages.

Particularly important is the ability to prevent conflict from engulfing their discussions. Partners in happier couples didn't respond negatively to their spouse's negative tones. They didn't whine or fume when their spouses statements sounded cold or tense. This helped keep their conflicts from heating up. This is based on the tape-recorded problem-solving discussions of 120 couples living in central Illinois.

The following are suggestions based on the above research:

Avoid Miscommunication. People often miscommunicate because they let other strains get in the way of what they say and hear. If you're angry about something at work that has nothing to do with your spouse, you may sound irritated when you speak even though you're not. Keep this in mind when you talk to your spouse. Researchers found that the happier couples were able to filter out this irritability and avoided taking each other's negative-sounding tones personally.

Become a Constructive Listener. Researchers found that partners in happier couples also accepted their spouse's view of the situation more often. They sought to understand what their spouses felt, even if they didn't agree with their perspective. They made sure they understood spouse's position clearly, often summarizing it aloud.

Remember to ask questions and give others the chance to speak. Sometimes we try to fill an uneasy silence with conversation and advice. But silence can be useful. It can give the speaker an opportunity to gather his or her thoughts and ponders a response.

Look for Unspoken Communication. Research suggests that we communicate more than half of our messages through facial expression, tone of voice, gestures and the way we sit or stand. Use those cues to understand the speaker's feelings behind the words. Make sure you understand what you've heard by asking questions such as, "How do you feel about that?" Or you can paraphrase a speaker's words to include the unspoken feelings and repeat it to see if you understand the speaker: "It sounds like you're concerned about...."

Use "I" Messages. Take responsibility for your thoughts and feelings. Instead of saying, "You're so rude to read the paper over dinner instead of talking to me," it is more honest and effective to say, "I feel hurt when you read the paper over dinner - I would really like it if we took the time to talk together." "I" messages let you express your feelings without labeling other's behavior, criticizing someone unfairly or making wrong assumptions. A listener is less likely to get defensive about a message presented this way.

Be Specific Sometimes, we use general statements to tell others their actions upset us. We say, "You never help around the house," or "You're always late for dinner." "Never" and "always" are seldom true. Instead, try to focus on a specific issue and direct your comments at an action, not a person. For instance, say, "I'm upset because you were late for dinner three times last week, and all of us had to wait for you."

Be constructive. Try to suggest actions that you or others could take to improve the situation or solve the problem. If you criticize another's actions without helping that person come up with an alternative, the other person may feel frustrated and helpless. Researchers found that the happier couples proposed solutions to each other's problems more often.

Panzer Second In Triathlon

Nancy Panzer, Kewaskum, was one of the participants in the Hayes Paperweight Triathlon held this past weekend on July 2nd in Neenah. She finished second in her age division with a time of 1 hour, 29 minutes, 31 seconds. The Triathlon included a ¼ mile swim, 1 1/5 mile bike ride and 3.1 mile run.

Boaters Required To Properly Secure Storage Batteries

Wisconsin Conservation Wardens are becoming increasingly concerned over the number of boaters who don't have properly secured storage batteries in their boats.

State law requires that batteries be secured and that battery terminals be covered to prevent the shifting and the shorting out of the batteries.

"We've had at least two boat fires this year in southeast Wisconsin when improperly covered terminals caused sparks which ignited gasoline vapor," said Bruce R. Buening, Milwaukee County Conservation Warden. "We've been lucky in that there have been no fatalities. However, there have been deaths in previous years."

Buening noted that wardens have had a tendency to issue warnings instead of citations for these violations. Since violations are still occurring and there continues to be a threat to life and property, wardens will be stepping up their enforcement actions.

"You will be seeing a lot more citations being issued for these violations than in the past," he said.

Buening added that a fire extinguisher and other safety equipment may be required on boats. "I would encourage all boaters to pick up a copy of the boating regulations to be sure that they are meeting all the requirements. Wisconsin Wardens want to ensure that your next boating experience will be a safe one."

Athletics Lose Two Over Weekend

The Kewaskum Athletics dropped a pair of games over the holiday weekend. On Saturday the A's lost a see-saw battle to the Hustisford Astros 13-9 in a Tri-County contest. The loss dropped Kewaskum's record to 3-2. Andy Hoenecke led Kewaskum with three hits, including a long home run good for three rbi's.

The Thiensville Mequon Twins handed Kewaskum its fifth loss against four wins with a 9-5 decision in Lakes play on Sunday. The lead changed hands three times before the Twins went ahead to stay. Kewaskum was led offensively by Terry Koth who had three hits and Bob Yahr and Dave Donath with two apiece.

The Athletics play Saturday at Dousman in Tri-County action. Kewaskum travels to Saukville on Sunday to take on the Land-O-Lakes Northern Division leaders who currently sport a glossy 10-1 record.

Kewaskum's Jeff Geidel will be the starting pitcher for the Northern Division in the Land-O-Lakes all-star game to be played at Kewaskum on July 17th, at 1:30 p.m. Also representing the Athletics will be Manager Dave Donath at second base and Terry Koth a designated hitter.

In 1906, the Chicago White Sox won the World Series with a team batting average of only .230.
