Menu at Sandpiper Inn Offers New and Traditional Specials

The Sandpiper is located on Lake Bernice in Campbellsport

Kay and Willie Langenecker, owners of the Sandpiper Inn

By Sharon Callaway Roznik

The Sandpiper Inn overlooking Lake Bernice is well-known in this area for its famous Friday night fish fry. Now owners Willie and Kay Langenecker have added another great feature to their menu one they hope will become a tradition for the restaurant.

A family style Sunday dinner is being served up in big steaming bowls with all the old-fashioned trimmings. Hearty appetites can help themselves to homemade chicken, dressing, mashed potatoes and gravy, vegetables, coleslaw, cranberry sauce and bread. So far the new Sunday special has been popular with their customers.

Originally from Slinger, the couple teamed up as independent owner/operators of their own trucking business. "We liked working together and enjoyed being self-employed," says Willie. "But we wanted to get off the road." They were both ready for a change.

Kay brings with her a degree in retail management, marketing, and fashion merchandising - so she naturally works well with people. Willie grew up in the restaurant business since his father owned a place similar to the Sandpiper when he was a child.

They purchased the bar/restaurant in July 1992, so Willie and Kay recently celebrated their first year in business. The Sandpiper was originally built sometime in the 1920's. The Langeneckers remodeled and expanded the kitchen to accommodate a full menu. Previous to their ownership, the Sandpiper was basically more of a bar business with weekend fish fries. "Our intent is to be a family oriented business, a place to bring the kids along," adds Willie.

Last week the Sandpiper threw an end of summer picnic for the neighborhood. Over 200 people attended the old-fashioned pot-luck picnic.

Their famous all you can eat fish fry hasn't changed, and it still offers fresh lake perch and haddock, served on Fridays from 4:30 to 10. Wednesday nights they offer another all you can eat special - your choice of beer battered deboned smelt, popcorn shrimp and broasted chicken.

The restaurant is closed Mondays and Tuesdays. Regular hours are Wednesday through Saturday, open at 2 p.m., serving dinners beginning at 4:30. Sunday lunches are served from 11 to 2, and dinner from 4 to 8. Carryouts are available.

Daily drink specials are featured, including Wednesday nights 25c tap beer until 6 p.m. and Sunday Bloody Mary specials at $1 between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

New Restricted Parking Signs Installed

New signs were installed last week designating restricted parking areas along Fond du Lac Avenue on the East Side from Neuville Chevrolet north to the corner and from the opposite corner (former Corner Drug Store) north to the first stall at Regal Outlet Store. There is also restricted parking on the west side of Fond du Lac Avenue from Forest Avenue south to the stop lights. It is hoped the restricted parking will help alleviate the traffic problems that seem to bottleneck the intersection at peak traffic times. The restricted parking was also initiated in an attempt to save the parking stalls when the Department of Transportation makes improvements to Highway 45 in 1995. The Kewaskum Police Department asks for your cooperation in obeying the new the signs in the new restricted parking areas.

Excerpts From Menagerie

Through the summer we will be running student's writings from the All Conference Literary Magazine, Menagerie.

Dogs Have a Rough Life

Humans think that we dogs lead an easy life. Well, they don't know anything. Let me tell you about a typical day for me, and you'll see what I mean.

My day starts at about 6:00 a.m. or whenever the sun rises. Dogs don't have blinds to pull down so the sun can't get in. So we have to get up with the sun. I start my morning with some stale dog food (that's usually how it tastes by morning) and some water; of course, the water has bugs floating in it. Then I sit in my pen all morning. I usually use this time to get the house work done. My pen gets quite messy sometimes. Of course, I'm only a dog, so I need help with some of the stuff, although you humans seem to have time only once a month.

In the afternoon, if I'm lucky, someone will let me out of the pen. Then I go sniffing. I know humans seem to think this is play, but it's hard work. If I'm lucky I'll get on the trail of something so I can hunt it down. If I do find something, I'll get in trouble for running away. Dogs just can't win.

In the evening I get put back in my pen. Then I eat my supper; at least now it's fresh. Soon it's time for bed. I have to go to bed as early as possible because I have to get up with the sun. Well, I hope this made you realize that dogs don't have it that great.

Allergy Season Can Also Pose Problems for Children

For millions of children, the end of summer signals not a new school year, but another allergy season.

Since airborne pollen, molds and other allergens are the most common triggers for allergy symptoms, avoiding them as much as possible is the best treatment, according to Martin L. Lobel, MD, a pediatric allergist on staff at Children's Hospital of Wisconsin.

Simple avoidance measures include: keeping children indoors on dry, windy days; leaving windows shut and not using fans. Also, children should stay out of fields and avoid yard work that sends allergens into the air.

Hay fever is an allergy to ragweed which begins in mid-August. Hay fever symptoms include itchy eyes and throat, and a runny nose. Ragweed pollen is prevalent until the first frost.

Lobel said most summertime allergy symptoms can be minimized by over-the-counter medications. In some cases, however, children may require a prescription or more extensive treatment.

Gowen Retires from St. Joseph's Community Hospital

WEST BEND - Richard B. Gowen, director of human resources, retired Friday, August 27, 1993, from St. Joseph's Community Hospital after 34 years of service.

A native of Wausau, Gowen began his hospital management career at St. Joseph's in 1959 as a member of the business office staff.

Prior to joining the hospital, he was a management trainee with the West Bend J.C. Penney Company.

In 1961, Gowen was appointed director of purchasing, a position he held until 1991, when the hospital's material management department was created.

Added responsibility was assumed by Gowen in 1967, when he was appointed director of personnel. Under his guidance, many employee benefit programs were implemented, and he was instrumental in building a professional work force that now totals approximately 550 employees.

Reflecting on his long-term affiliation with the hospital, Gowen conveyed that he has been extremely lucky. "I can honestly say that it has been very rewarding for me to have participated in the growth of the hospital through several major expansion projects. These projects have enabled St. Joseph's Community Hospital to keep pace with the health care needs of our growing community," Gowen stated.

Gowen's retirement plans include traveling and spending time in Phoenix, Arizona.

Cedar Haven's Summer Program Receives Special Commendation

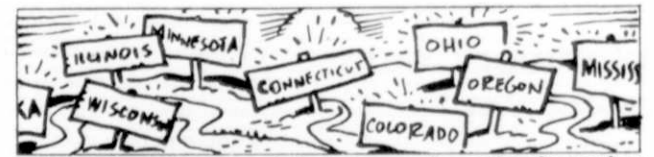

The Exceptional Parent Magazine has awarded Cedar Haven Rehabilitation Agency's Summer Program special commendation for exceptional therapy and recreational services provided to area children 0-13 years of age. The magazine chose six summer programs for top national awards and only six for special commendation across the United States. Cedar Haven was the only program cited located in the Midwest providing much needed services for children with disabilities.

The Cedar Haven Summer Program is designed for children with special physical, emotional and educational needs in the West Bend Area. More than sixty infants and children with cerebral palsy, developmental delays, learning disabilities and mental retardation attend the nine week program.

Each child is evaluated prior to admission, insurance or alternative funding is verified, and appropriate therapy and a county grant-funded recreational component is designed to fit their needs. Physical, occupational, and speech therapy sessions are available.

Games, crafts, music therapy, weekly swimming and a week at Cedar Valley make up the recreational component of the program.

Nine of our states got their names from the rivers that flow through them—Minnesota, Colorado, Connecticut, Illinois, Mississippi, Nebraska, Ohio, Oregon and Wisconsin.

UW Scientist Prepares to Release New Winterhardy Alfalfa Variety

The last two winters left Wisconsin alfalfa fields shot full of holes. Some farmers lost more than 80 percent of their alfalfa plants each year. Statewide, 40 counties lost more than half their alfalfa in 1993, even before the rains came. The whole state lost a third of the crop.

For plant geneticist Edwin Bingham, those losses showed it was time to introduce a new alfalfa variety that could withstand the worst Wisconsin winter. Bingham's variety, Columbia, will be ready to plant in 1996. If history is a guide, that will probably be soon enough to help farmers through the next disastrous winter.

"Wisconsin has experienced severe alfalfa winterkill about once every ten years since the 1920s," says Bingham of the University of Wisconsin-Madison's Department of Agronomy. For example, 1922, 1937, and 1949 were very hard winters for alfalfa, he says.

UW researchers released their first and only alfalfa variety in 1953. Call Vernal, it was selected after the 1949 winter because it did better under the ice sheeting that year than any other alfalfa. R.A. Brink, Bingham's predecessor and one of Vernal's developers, described it as "winter proof."

Vernal is still on the market, and is grown on about 15 percent of Wisconsin alfalfa fields. The past two winters go a long way toward explaining Vernal's appeal.

"In 1992, we had a cold snap in November that some say did in the alfalfa," Bingham says. But he believes the warm weather of January, February and March was harder on alfalfa that winter. Many of the plants were not really dormant at that time. They used up their energy reserves and died before Spring. Vernal, however, remained dormant and survived the winter in good shape.

"During 1993 most of the alfalfa in southern Wisconsin was clobbered again, this time by ice sheeting. Ice sheeting occurs when cold rains coat plants with ice or standing water freezes over plants, smothering them. The ability to withstand ice sheeting involves more than dormancy," Bingham says. "Other varieties we know to be extremely dormant did poorly in 1993. Survival under ice sheeting requires special characteristics." Once again, Vernal did quite well in Bingham's nurseries.

"The early commercial varieties developed for the Upper Midwest were selections mostly or entirely from Vernal," Bingham says. Therefore, Vernal's winterhardiness traits were carried virtually intact into the 1970s. But as commercial breeders continued producing new cultivars in the 1970s and 80s, they shifted their emphasis to varieties better able to resist disease and insects.

One of Bingham's graduate students has now shown that many of the varieties with enhanced pest resistance are less able to withstand Wisconsin winters. Even though they have multiple disease resistance, many of these varieties fade by the third year, Bingham says. By comparison, Vernal does not fade, producing more feed in the third, fourth and fifth years than many newer varieties.

"There is a message here," says Bingham, who is returning to the winter-proof standard with his new variety.

"The genetic material in our new variety includes about one-half Vernal -derived parents and one-half parents from commercial sources that have survived at least six Wisconsin winters, including the last two," he says. Because even the commercial sources got about half their genes from Vernal sources, Bingham estimates that his new variety may be as much as 75 percent Vernal.

Since the commercial parents have the same high level of bacterial wilt resistance as Vernal and have higher levels of resistance to several other disease and insects, the result is an alfalfa variety that yields about as well as commercial seed and resists many diseases and insects. Except for bacterial wilt, the resistance is not at a high level, according to Bingham, but the new variety will survive winters in Wisconsin fields.

Like much of the alfalfa seed sold in Wisconsin, including Vernal, seed for Columbia will be produced first in Washington state during 1994. Growers will produce certified seed in 1995. That seed will be on the market for planting in 1996.

EDITOR'S NOTE:

Due to the holiday weekend and shortage of time, the 25-50-75 Years Ago columns could not be completed. We will run double 25 and 50 columns next week, so our readers can be assured they won't miss a week.

75 Years Ago

September 7, 1918

Never in our history have we been brought face-to-face with such great problems as confront each patriotic citizen today. The need of an education to meet the situation is very imminent. Federal and State officials are co-operating in a nationwide campaign for maintaining the schools at their full efficiency. Federal officials from the President down, are striving as never before to see that boys and girls of every age go to school this fall and schools be carried on at the maximum efficiency to meet the war's demands. The governors of various states have issued proclamations urging school attendance this year. Show your patriotic duty by sending your boys and girls to the Kewaskum High School which opens on Monday, September 9.

The Primary Election passed off quietly in the village last Tuesday. There were 104 votes cast, out of which Governor Philipp received 50, Ray Wilcox 5, and Jas. Tittmore 39.

The President of the United States has pursuant to law, designated September 12, 1918, as Registration Day for all male persons who shall have attained their eighteenth birthday and shall not have attained their forty-sixth birthday on or before September 12, 1918, unless they are in naval or military service of the United States, or unless they are now registered under the Selective Service Law. The place of registration will ordinarily be the voting place of the voting precinct in which the registrant resides.

Sheriff Reminds Motorists That Schools Are Open

Washington County Sheriff Robert H. Schulteis reminds motorists that school is open and great care is needed when driving near children or school buses. Among the safety rules and laws that should be obeyed are:

- Drivers must stop at least 20 feet from a school bus which is stopped and has its red flashing lights activated. Vehicles drivers may not proceed again until the bus resumes motion or has extinguished the red lights.

- It is illegal to pass ANY vehicle on the unpaved shoulder of the road. Doing so creates the risk of striking a pedestrian who may not be visible until its too late.

"Each year, we cite several drivers who actually manage to violate both laws. They ignore the flashing red lights and then pass the bus on the right, almost running over the children in the process. To save a few seconds, these people are willing to risk an innocent life," the sheriff stated.

- Drivers must stop 10-30 feet from a school crossing when directed by a guard.

- Both the school bus driver and crossing guard are legally authorized to file complaints against people who violate laws on required stops. If we cannot prove who the driver was, statutes place the liability on the vehicle owner, and that person will be ticketed," the sheriff said.

Drivers should also be careful when passing children on bicycles or who may attempt to cross at an uncontrolled intersection. Finally, state law requires that vehicles proceed at only 15 mph when passing a school zone when children are in the area and when passing through a marked school crossing.

KEWASKUM... What is Happening?

Kewaskum... the little town whose arms are always open to new friends!

But why is Kewaskum a friendly, low... almost no crime area? You can take a stroll down the street anytime without worrying about danger to yourself.

PEOPLE! People working together and getting to know each other. How?

Number 1 - EVERYONE IS BUSY... But you could still volunteer a couple hours a week to a local organization. We have a few... Jaycees, Kiwanis, Lions, Women's Clubs, Church Groups, School Groups, Athletic Clubs, Sportsmens Clubs, Snowmobile Clubs, 4-H Clubs, Scouts, Auxiliary Police, Firemen... just to name a few, who work with the community.

Whether it be a paper drive, sandbox fill, spaghetti dinner, pancake supper, chili supper, turkey shoot, youth softball, Little League, T-ball, rubber ball, just to name a few.

But people... we need help to continue the Kewaskum tradition.

When you are asked to help or join a local organization, please think about it before you answer. Sure, we have plenty of people who volunteer their time in our community, but very few. We have even gotten a few newcomers who have become involved. But we need more to continue the peaceful tradition of Kewaskum. We need more than 1 or 2% of the population.

My feeling is if everyone would get involved, they would know what is going on... how much work it takes... the great feelings you get from doing a community project.

You say... I'm too busy. I'm not going to give my whole life to the community... No! You don't have to. Try just three years.

Why three years? The first year you join you meet new people, they may even become a new friend. Work on a couple of projects. Whether it is a dance, youth softball, football fundamentals, T-ball or a historical day.

The second year you are better acquainted with the organization... the people, who if you didn't know you... they do now. So you run a project or two.

The third year you invite a new person into the organization. Introduce him or her to the other members. Work with that person on a few projects, so he or she will become familiar with the community.

After your three years is up, you can at least feel you have done your share... you've given your time... you have met some new friends. But maybe you will say, I'm proud of what I did and I'm going to stick around to help a little yet.

Sure... it's not all fun and games all the time. But life is not always that way either. Especially if you came to our little town because of some of our qualities I've mentioned in this article.

You have got to give a little time. Kewaskum is a town based on community (people) involvement. So please... call a local organization. Especially if you have little children involved in Kewaskum activities.

If you don't... you might just see the little town atmosphere that brought you here... DISAPPEAR!

Don't put the burden on a few shoulders. Meet new people... Find out what makes our town the town we love. We need your help!

Look in the yellow pages... call me at Richard's Kut and Style or the Kewaskum Statesman to find the organization that suits you.

Dear Editor:

I was highly insulted when I read the letter to residents of the Kewaskum school district from John Breese, president Kewaskum Education Association.

If, as he stated they are professional staff of the Kewaskum School District then don't try to BLACKMAIL the Board of Education with "WE WILL ONLY ATTEND IF".

My personal feeling is, it is now time to see who wants to educate the children and who wants to go on strike. I then say replace all who won't cooperate and fulfill their obligation as a teacher.

Either change professions or act professionally. A full year's salary for about 9 months work with the opportunity for a second job for three months isn't bad.

Hunters Choice/Bonus Permit Application Deadline Sept. 20

MADISON...The deadline to apply for hunter's choice and bonus antlerless permits for the Wisconsin's 1993 Gun Deer Season is September 20, 1993.

A hunter's choice permit allows a hunter to harvest a deer of either sex and any age in a specific deer management unit. Bonus permits allow hunter's choice applicants to harvest an additional antlerless deer in the units in which the permits are available.

Hunters must apply for either permit with a "1993 Hunter's Choice and Bonus Antlerless Gun Deer Hunting Permit Application." Those hunters interested in bonus permits should indicate that on the application form. If bonus permits are available, hunters will be notified about ordering information.

There is a non-refundable $3 fee to purchase a "1993 Hunter's Choice and Bonus Antlerless Gun Deer Hunting Permit Application." Bonus permits, if available, cost $12 for residents and $20 for non-residents.

"Hunters should only apply for hunter's choice permits in the units where they are available," according to Bill Mytton, Department of Natural Resources big game specialist. The department will not process applications for units for which the permits are not available, and hunters will not receive refunds for application fees if they apply for those units, he said.

For more information see the 1993 Hunters Choice and Bonus Permit Application information sheet and the 1993 Wisconsin Hunting Regulations, available at many Department of Natural Resources offices.

Despite the Advent of Gambling Operations In The 1980s, Indians Lost Ground Economically

Sociologist Says Federal Government Has Abdicated Its Responsibilities

By George Gallepp, UW-Madison Ag Press Service

The go-go '80s, which gave the green light to greed and saw fortunes made overnight on Wall Street, also saw the first Americans slide further into poverty.

"American Indians remain one of the poorest groups in American society," says Matthew Snipp, a demographer and rural sociologist at the University of Wisconsin-Madison.

"The economic position of Indians slipped during the 1980s," Snipp says. "In most respects, they are now more disadvantaged than the African American population. An especially alarming statistic is the large percentage of American Indian families with single mothers that are living in poverty."

Although American Indians are one of the smaller minorities in the United States, they represent a sizable number of rural Americans living in poverty. Some of the most persistent and severe instances of economic hardship are found on the 278 federally entrusted reservations, where about half the Indians live.

"Unlike blacks and whites whose incomes increased by 8 and 12 percent respectively, the household income of American Indians was virtually unchanged between 1979 and 1989," says Snipp, who bases his analysis on census data. "Therefore, the income gap between white households and Indian households grew substantially during the decade, rising from $9,829 to $14,102... a 46 percent increase."

"The economic hardship reflected in these numbers is even more stark when you consider that American Indian households are typically larger than African American or white households. Dividing average household income by the number of individuals per household yields per capita income estimates of $16,123 for whites, $8,921 for African Americans and $8,453 for American Indians."

Indian unemployment percentages for both men and women are consistently higher than those of African Americans and White Americans, says Snipp, a professor in the College of Agricultural and Life Sciences, who has studied American Indians for almost 20 years.

The lack of growth in real income for American Indians caused them to slip further into poverty during the 1980s, he says, while the percentages of African Americans and whites in poverty stayed at the same levels in 1989 as they were a decade earlier. In 1989, about 31 percent of American Indians were living below the poverty line, compared with 30 percent for African Americans and 10 percent for whites.

The picture of poverty in families with children is even more alarming, Snipp says.

About 30 percent of the American Indian couples with children were living in poverty compared with 17.4 percent for African American couples and 9.1 percent for white couples. Seventy percent of the families headed by a single American Indian mother were living in poverty compared with 68 percent for African Americans and 57 percent for whites.

Snipp attributes the shift in the Indians' fortunes to policy changes initiated during the Reagan administration.

"Under a policy characterized as 'self determination,' the federal government virtually abandoned all efforts to help American Indians improve their standard of living during the 1980s," he says.

"Although poverty was still very serious for Indians as they entered the 1980s, they had experienced a noticeable improvement in their standard of living during the 1970s," Snipp says. "In the 1970s, tribes received some assistance and were given more independence in how to use it."

"But the 1980s brought sharp cutbacks in federal aid, increasing unemployment on some reservations. The federal government disengaged. The position of the Reagan administration was that lower levels of federal involvement was desirable as a way to encourage private initiative."

Part of the plan seems to have worked.

"There are now more privately owned businesses and more non-Indian firms on reservations than at any time in the past," Snipp says. "But with unemployment figures hovering near 30 percent for most of the 1980s and poverty rising, we do know that these businesses have not made significant inroads towards improving economic conditions on reservations."

The most significant economic changes on reservations in the 1980s were brought about as tribes became involved in gambling and duty-free tobacco sales, according to Snipp.

"Legal decisions upholding tribal sovereignty and exempting tribal governments from state jurisdiction have enabled tribes to establish these activities within reservation borders. Gaming has proliferated on Indian lands but no one knows with certainty how much revenue these operations have generated. Anecdotal evidence suggests that some have been spectacularly successful while others have failed to become profitable," he says.

Although gambling enterprises have been successful for some tribes, gambling is not a panacea for the economic problems facing many American Indians and they are no substitute for more broadly based economic development efforts, the sociologist says.

"According to industry sources, American Indians operate 125 gambling establishments in 24 states," Snipp says. "This means that only about one-third of all American Indian tribes receive income from gambling. Furthermore, many of these establishments are small marginal operations that produce very modest revenues."

"The federal government has a large role to play in nurturing economic development projects that will provide jobs and income to reservation residents. Reservation and urban American Indians need job opportunities as well as experience, education and skills necessary to compete in the labor market," Snipp says.

He argues that until the federal government acknowledges its trust responsibilities and obligations to American Indians and takes positive steps to improve economic conditions, past experience suggests that the economic circumstances of American Indians are unlikely to improve in the foreseeable future.

Soybean Seeding Results at Field Day

Seeding soybeans earlier than most Wisconsin farmers do might produce better yields because of a longer season, give improved weed control, and allow earlier harvests.

But there are disadvantages, too, according to agronomists John Gaska and Ed Oplinger of the University of Wisconsin College of Agricultural and Life Sciences. You'll need more seed to make up for poorer growing conditions in early spring, there may be more disease problems, and there's always a chance of frost damage in late April or early May.

Farmers can see for themselves how soybeans planted at different dates are doing when Gaska and Oplinger show their research plots at the agronomy field day Sept. 14 on the college's Arlington Agricultural Research Station.

The researchers will be available at the plots to discuss their research with farmers thinking about earlier seeding or wondering, as many did this year, how late soybeans can be planted.

A group of nightingales is known as a watch.

Kettle Moraine Pheasant Habitat Restoration Project

Kettle Moraine Wings Over Wisconsin (WOW) and Wisconsin DNR Wildlife Management are working together to increase the wild pheasant population and habitat in the pheasant restoration project area north of Kewaskum. This 9,000 acre project area has been set aside as a wild pheasant release site. Our goal is to improve the habitat in the area in order to increase existing wildlife populations.

The Kettle Moraine Chapter would like to provide and enhance as much wildlife habitat as possible and will be asking local land owners to help them out. The Chapter is looking for landowners that could plant food plots near winter cover, establish grasses for secure nest cover on fields difficult to farm and delay mowing of roadside and odd areas. The Kettle Moraine Chapter will provide free seed and financial assistance for these food plots and nesting cover.

Through this project, the Chapter is hoping to improve the countryside for all wildlife populations while still sustaining profitable agriculture.

If any local landowners that are interested in being a part of this project in the up and coming future or would like more information please contact Bob Manthei at (414) 626-2029 or write to Box 110 Kewaskum, WI 53040 or contact our Private Lands Coordinator, Chad Zembroski at (414) 485-3019. By working together with local landowners, the Kettle Moraine Chapter can make the pheasant habitat restoration project a success.

Indians Win EW Opener

By Noel Stollenwerk

TWO RIVERS... It was a good start on all ends of the spectrum for the Kewaskum girls volleyball program here, last Tuesday night.

In the Eastern Wisconsin Conference opener for both teams, it was the Indians who looked in mid-season form as they trounced Two Rivers 15-7, 15-8 and 14-16. In addition to the varsity's triumph, both the junior varsity and freshman spikers got off on the right foot, posting victories in their respective matches.

"Our defense looked real good," KHS coach Dave Rizzardi said of his team's performance. "We had some nice block kills from Missy (Radtke), and on offense we were making passes, and working well together."

Rizzardi noted that the Raiders "are not as strong this year," as they have a new coach and are struggling early. "It was nice that way, in that we had an easy match to start out (in conference)."

The Indian boss praised Radtke's effort, as she led the team in points. The 6-1 senior, in her first year on varsity, "is looking real good so far," Rizzardi said.

Both teams started slowly, according to Rizzardi, who added that it was only a matter of time before the Indians took control. "You could just see that we were working together better."

While the first string dominated in winning the first two games, Rizzardi was still a bit concerned about his team's serving.

"It was a little better (than in the Indian Invitational the previous weekend)," Rizzardi noted, but "we still have some work to do in order to get it up to par."

The KHS JV's also won their first two games before dropping the third. The JV's won the first two by identical 15-11 scores, but lost the third, 14-16.

The Indian freshmen, meanwhile, won all three of its games easily. The young Indians prevailed, 15-6, 15-5, 15-7.

Where all men think alike,
no one thinks very much.

KHS Spikers Play Well In Downing Panthers

By Noel Stollenwerk

KEWASKUM... After downing a weaker Two Rivers squad in its season-opener, the Kewaskum volleyball team knew that it had to play better in order to match up with a stronger Plymouth team in the Indians' first home dual meet.

Knowing it and doing it are usually two different things, but the Lady Indians did both here, last Thursday night. Playing their best match of the young season, the Indians dominated the Panthers, winning 15-6, 15-8 and 10-15.

"We definitely played our best match so far," Indians coach Dave Rizzardi said of the victory. "We basically just dominated the match. Our first group is really starting to gel together."

Sara Tykac and Shelly Williams agains did their jobs setting up teammates. "They both did a nice job," said Rizzardi, who also praised seniors Missy Radtke, Mary Yahr and Shannon Breit.

"We played great defense against them," Rizzardi went on to say. "I think we just thoroughly frustrated them. Our back-row people did a fantastic job. We really passed the ball well, too."

Knowing that he doesn't have a great spiker on the team, Rizzardi said that the Indians will have to play smart this season, rather than trying to overpower opponents.

"Our kill points weren't very high, and they aren't going to be very high this year," he said. "We need placement, and off-speed hits in order to frustrate the other team. We had that on Thursday."

The Indians looked to be headed for a sweep of the Panthers, who fell behind big in the third game. "I think we were up something like 10-2," Rizzardi said, adding that a Plymouth server ran off several points in a row to put the visitors ahead. "We had a couple of bad passes in that third game, and that hurt us," he said.

"But, all in all, I was very pleased with the girls," the Indian mentor concluded. "We had been serving poorly, but I think we missed maybe two serves in the first two games (against the Panthers). So that was really nice to see."

The improved serving and passing will have to continue this week if the Indians want to remain atop the EW standings. On Tuesday, the Indians hosted Chilton, while on Thursday, Kewaskum travels to Kiel to take on the Raiders, who went 8-0 in winning the season-opening Indian Invitational.

"I'm looking forward to that match," Rizzardi said of the tangle with Kiel, who should challenge for the EW title this year. "They are going to be tough, but we've been playing well."

Offense Struggles As Indians Lose

By Noel Stollenwerk

HORICON... One week after dominating Campbellsport on both sides of the ball, the Kewaskum football team had the trick turned on it here, last Friday night.

The victims of poor field position the entire game, the Indians never got on track offensively against Horicon, who held the visitors to just 80 yards of total offense in a 12-6 Marshmen victory.

It was a troubling defeat for KHS coach Clark Pearson, whose team was outgained by a 3-to-1 margin by the Marshmen, who piled up 254 yards of offense.

"I was very disappointed in our offense," Pearson said. "Our blocking was very poor. We didn't block at all... our line-man, our backs, nobody."

Despite the lack of offense, the Indians found themselves leading 6-0 at halftime.

After a scoreless opening quarter, the Indians got a boost from junior Cory Rammer, who returned a punt all the way to the Horicon eight-yard line.

On the very next play, senior Beau Coulter took a handoff from QB Dan Survis and followed his blockers around the left side and into the end zone for an Indian score. The extra point was wide left, but nevertheless, Kewaskum led by a touchdown heading into the second half.

But Horicon's run-and-shoot offense started clicking in the third quarter. After taking over in Indian territory, the Marshmen capped off a drive with Jesse Slade going off tackle for a one-yard touchdown burst. The extra point try was also missed, so things were tied at 6-all.

With the KHS offense unable to get untracked, the Indian defense found itself on the field for most of the second half. That extra work proved to be the difference late in the game.

"We just got tired in the second half on defense," Pearson pointed out. "They just wore us down, and we weren't as sharp as we needed to be."

The Marshmen took over once again with good field position midway through the final period. Wade Samplowski capped off the game-winning drive with just under 5:00 to play, as he scored on a three-yard reverse. The point after again failed, giving the Indians hope.

But Kewaskum was unable to get the ball into Horicon territory on their final drive. Coulter, who gained 50 yards in 10 carries and also added an interception on defense, injured his leg in the fourth quarter, and was unable to help his teammates on the final try. Pearson said the injury was to a muscle in Coulter's leg, and the coach wasn't sure just how serious it was.

In addition to Coulter's pick, Mark Stephani also came up with an interception, while senior Shawn Larson recovered a fumble.

"It was two equal teams, I thought," Pearson said of the contest. "They just won the game at the line of scrimmage. You have to give them credit. They were just quicker off the ball than we were."

"They had a real nice quarterback," Pearson said of Pat Miller, who was 8-19 for 119 yards. "We just had poor field position all night. Plus we had some penalties at critical times that hurt us."

The Indians, now 1-1 on the year, have an opportunity to start the Eastern Wisconsin Conference slate with a victory at home this Friday against Chilton. The Tigers are the lone EW team without a win in its two non-conference games, after falling to Elkhart Lake last week, 13-7.

In other games involving EW teams last week, Kiel's Mike Schuler gained 295 yards in 31 carries as the Raiders outlasted Howards Grove, 20-14. Sheboygan Falls, meanwhile, trounced Milwaukee Juneau, 49-0. In other contests, it was Plymouth beating Cedarburg, 39-19; New Holstein beat Valdres, 22-19; and it was Two Rivers blasting Luxemburg-Casco, 32-13.

KHS Netters Off to Fast Start

By Noel Stollenwerk

CHILTON - In the Eastern Wisconsin Conference's tennis scoring system, piling up as many points as possible during the regular season, can prove very beneficial when the season-ending conference tournament rolls around.

That's why the Kewaskum girls 6-1 victory here against Chilton may loom large in the Indians' quest to repeat as the EW champions.

The Indians seem to play their best tennis at home on their new courts, where they haven't lost a dual meet since the courts were opened last season. Therefore, the decisive road win was a great way to start the 1993 campaign in the EW.

KHS coach Glenn Eichstedt called the win "A strong opening performance." The Indian boss noted that his team wanted "to initiate its defense of last year's title with a strong showing," and it did just that.

Kewaskum won all three doubles matches against the Tigers, who admittedly are not one of the better teams in the conference. The Indians' only loss of the meet came at No. 3 singles, where Tiger veteran Sarah VandeVoort was too much for Jamie Lynn.

Freshman sensation Margaret Feind remained unbeaten at No 4 singles, where she overwhelmed Tiger senior Kelly Lisowe, 6-1, 6-0. Junior Missy Rohrer, beginning her quest for a third straight EW singles title, downed Jamie Kuba at No. 1, 6-4, 6-3.

"We (the coaching staff) are thrilled with such a great start to our conference season," Eichstedt noted, adding that the easy win "eclipsed our own expectations."

Still, the Indians have a long, tough road ahead of them. The journey starts at home this Tuesday with a match against EW favorite Two Rivers.

After hosting the Raiders in that pivotal match, the Indians host Kohler in a non-conference match on Thursday. Next week, the Indians are home against Plymouth on Tuesday, and then travel to Sheboygan Falls for a match Thursday.

KEWASKUM 6, CHILTON 1
SINGLES - Missy Rohrer beat Jamie Kuba 6-4, 6-3; No. 2 - Meredith Frac beat Molly Hofeberger 6-0, 7-5; No. 3 - Jamie Lynn lost to Sarah VandeVoort 2-6, 0-6; No. 4 - Margaret Feind beat Kelly Lisowe 6-1, 6-0.

DOUBLES - No. 1 - Lisa Berres-Sabrina Maul beat Roxanne Hemauer-Shannon Owens 6-4, 6-1; No. 2 - Tristin Olsen-Anne Mertz beat Jessica Grube-Dawn Smith 7-5, 6-2; No. 3 - Terry Roe-Jenni Weston beat Joelle Gelser-Becky Doerr.

Reid Considering Assembly

(WEST BEND) Bill Reid, 1078 Poplar Street, West Bend said today he is considering running for the 59th Assembly District seat now held by Republican State Senate nominee Mary Panzer. "After Mary's strong showing in Tuesday's primary, I am encouraged about the upcoming general election and will take this opportunity to travel through the district in an effort to get feedback on the issues that are important to the district."

Reid, a former aide to Governor Tommy Thompson, and a lifelong resident of the city of West Bend, said that his experience in state government and a desire to serve his community are strong reasons for exploring a possible run for the Assembly, should Panzer win on Sept. 21st. "Working with Governor Thompson has been an invaluable experience. I know how state government works and I know the importance of keeping in touch with your constituency."

EWSCA NEWS

(Plymouth, WI) - Goeden of Kewaskum and Gary Laack of Glenbeulah each picked up their second consecutive victories in Eastern Wisconsin Stock Car racing action Monday night at the Sheboygan County Fair Park in Plymouth.

Goeden took the lead from the pole in the 30 lap Modified feature and pulled away from the field lapping all but three cars on his way to the win. Goeden took the checkered flag with nearly a half lap lead over second place Fred Clatt of Sheboygan Falls. Clatt started on the outside of the first row but fell back behind Ken Fielder of Sheboygan Falls and Ken Schulz of Plymouth. The three battled for second, third and fourth for the rest of the race with Clatt regaining the second position on the 28th lap and holding off Fielder for the rest of the race to take second. Fiedler took third and Schulz held on for fourth despite losing his brakes with ten laps to go in the race. Jim DePagter of Sheboygan Falls took fifth one lap down.

Rodney Michaels of Sheboygan took the lead from the pole in the 25 lap Sportsmen feature and opened up a wide lead while Gary Laack of Glenbeulah worked his way through the field and into second. But Michaels' lead was erased by a red flag on lap 14. On the restart, Laack ducked inside of Michaels in turn one and pulled away coming out of turn two. After another restart one lap later, Laack pulled away from the field and took the checkered by nearly half a lap over number two running Keith Borth of Sheboygan. Borth passed Michaels on lap 17 then held off Randy Markwardt of Sheboygan over the final two laps to claim second. Markwardt finished third followed by Michaels and Mark Dingel of Sheboygan.
