School Construction So Far on Schedule

Masons work to complete the concrete work on the Kewaskum High School addition.

By Sharon Callaway Roznik

Last week's heat and a mason's strike temporarily slowed down construction on the high school, but for the most part everything seems to be on schedule as far as finishing dates are concerned.

Interior demolition is complete in the science and administration areas, and all steel stud work is up in this section of classrooms. The plumbing has been roughed in under the floor for all the science lab cabinets, and everything is cleaned up in this area and ready to go.

Work is slightly behind on the cafeteria steel structuring and perimeter block, but construction schedules should balance out, seeing they are ahead in other areas. According to Dave Dell'Agnes, the architect working with Hunzinger construction, "To get us back on schedule, we're putting everybody on six day work weeks, nine hours a day to try to pick up production. The schedule is compressing and things are getting tighter and tighter," he told the school board at last Monday night's meeting.

The encouraging news is that all the demolition inside the building has been basically completed, and a lot of the steel stud work is farther ahead of schedule, so they're hoping things will balance out in the long run, since that portion of the job is done." The locker rooms have got to be completed by Aug. 15th, so we'll pull some people off the music and cafeteria area, because there's no way we can operate without the girls'

Wheels to Start Turning On New Tanker Purchase

By Lana Harbeck Kuehl

Following reports by department heads at Monday evening's Village Board meeting, Assistant Fire Chief Mark Herriges again approached the Board requesting information on what direction they wanted to take regarding the purchase of the new tanker needed by the fire department.

Discussion was held at previous board meetings about replacing the leaking older-model tanker currently being used by the fire department. Herriges stated at a recent conference, manufacturers have announced buyers are looking at a 12 to 14 month delivery date of new equipment ordered.

Trustee Robert Stoltzmann interjected, "We can't hold off any longer." Herriges added, "And the price, you're going to be looking at $80,000 to $85,000." Trustee Stoltzmann also mentioned that according to specs it would also be six to eight months delivery on the chassis.

Village Administrator Daniel Schmidt asked, "Would we have to pay anything prior to delivery of the chassis? Because we don't have anything budgeted for it this year. We've been planning on the $80,000 to $85,000. We've been talking about that, but we would probably have to do financing on the chassis because the chassis is $30,000 to $35,000."

Herriges said the chassis probably would come in $1,000 cheaper if the whole unit was purchased together.

President Wagner asked, "So you're looking at early '97 on delivery?"

Herriges thought possibly October or November of 1996 would be the earliest delivery, realistically.

Trustee Gary Gavin asked what would be the next piece of equipment that would need replacing.

Herriges stated, "According to the replacement schedule, one of the pumpers is 30 years old right now."

Trustee Stoltzmann added, "If everything keeps going the way it's going right now,

Wilson Hired As New KHS Assistant Principal

By Sharon Callaway Roznik

July's Kewaskum school board meeting was short and to the point, with most of the meeting taken up by construction updates of both the middle school and the high school as completion dates draw nearer and time schedules grow tighter.

Board member Ron Beimbom addressed the board as a private citizen, asking the board to consider not reopening the driveway between the field house and the football field. "I think it would give us much smoother operating and also give us a better parking area for our grounds," he stated. "It's closed now and there is access in from the north."

He also asked the board to examine the parking spaces, as they are only eight feet wide. "I examined several parking spaces in the area, and found them all to be nine to ten feet wide." This would eliminate the prospect of damage to cars. The board decided they would look at these points when they tour the construction areas, which was scheduled for July 17th.

A list of standard janitorial cleaning equipment was approved by the board, with the money coming from the equipment contingency fund from both construction projects. Fred Boehlke submitted these lists, which totaled $4,260 for the middle school (including a butane burnisher) and $1,721.10 for the high school.

Other items approved by the board this evening included a painting contract with Bill Braatz to paint the fascia and underhang at Farmington Elementary at a cost of $1,635, and the addition of insulation to the Tech. Ed. walls at the middle school, adding a construction cost of $4,327. The staff will be utilized to complete this work. They also decided to provide a kitchenette in the KHS faculty work room, in the amount of $4,031, and OK'd additional replacement of water and sewer line as part of the construction project. Cost for the addition totaled $3,800

Dr. Heather presented the board with the annual meeting agenda, which is a standard agenda that has been used for the past several years. The Annual School District Meeting and Budget Hearing will take place at 8 p.m. on July 24th in the community room of the village hall, and the public is invited to attend.

The board approved an amended 1995-96 budget, to meet the state legal requirements, since during the year money was shifted out of the contingency fund within the budget, and these changes need to be noted.

Larry Wilson was hired as the new assistant principal at Kewaskum High School, with a two year contract. His salary will be $50,000 for the 1995-96 school year. Wilson is the former ninth grade principal of West Bend High School, the first principal of this kind in the district. He served in this position for the past seven years, but it was recently eliminated due to reorganization, and he would have served as one of two assistant principals. Wilson replaces David Dillman, who resigned as assistant principal this past spring.

Bettins Visit Wales

Pastor James and Betty Bettin on 3560 ft. summit of Mt. Snowdon.

Rev. James and Betty Bettin, Peace United Church of Christ in Kewaskum, returned July 13 from a two-week visit in Wales, United Kingdom, with Betty's Welsh cousins. The highlight of their trip was attendance at the annual International Musical Eisteddfod, held in Llangollen, North Wales, July 4-9.

This area in northeastern Wales is the genealogical source for Betty (Williams) Bettin. Her great-great-grandparents emigrated to Wisconsin in 1848-49 with later family members arriving until 1868. Two of her Williams cousins, Dennis and Leonard, sing in the Fron Cysyllte Male Voice Choir at present. This premier choir of over 60 voices is now in its 49th year, presently being directed by Val Jones. It has been undefeated in all musical competitions for the past 12 months, the latest trophy being won July 1 at the Cardigan, Wales, Eisteddfod, while Bettins were visiting.

The Fron Choir won the International July competition at Llangollen in 1994, so by courtesy did not compete in 1995; however, the Bettins heard them in practice and in concert on July 8 at the newly constructed Llangollen tent amphitheater, holding an overflow audience of 6000. The Fron Choir has won three International first place awards since its formation. The University of Santo Tomas Singers of Manila Philippines won the Choir of the World Award this year.

Llangollen, near Fron Cysyllte, a small and ancient woolen mill and mining town, has its winding streets and banks of the River Dee alive with singers, dancers, and other musicians from all over the world each July at festival time. Bettins delighted in seeing ethnic costumes, dancers, singers, and musicians from many parts of Europe and Africa in impromptu concerts all around them. The Fron Choir will soon appear at the Malta International Festival and in concerts with Bands of the Welsh and Grenadier guards in Britain. Plans are in progress to bring the Fron Choir to Wisconsin in 1997 to help celebrate the 150th anniversary of the Welsh in Winnebago County.

Luciano Pavarotti appeared in concert to close the 1995 event on July 9. Betty's cousin Dennis and his wife Dorothy hosted Pavarotti's accompanying choir director, assistant director, pianist, and choir soloist at their Fron Cysyllte home. Other members of Italian Modena Choir stayed at local choir member homes also. Pavarotti was housed in a nearby guest hotel. The Pavarotti and directed by his father, had placed first at Llangollen 40 years ago.

In 1996, Bryn Terfel of Wales, with the chorus and orchestra of the Welsh National Opera, will close the Llangollen July Festival in concert; James Galway will open the week of music. Terfel won acclaim at the Metropolitan opera in New York.

While on holiday, Bettins also visited many castles, cathedrals and market towns in both North and South Wales, making their home base with Williams cousins near Wrexham, North Wales, near Llangollen. They were fortunate to view most of North Wales from Mt. Snowdon, the highest peak in Britain, which is usually shrouded in clouds. A steam train took them to its 3560 ft. top. The Isle of Anglesey, St. David's and Cardiff were also new adventures on their third trip to Britain in ten years.

locker room. So we're doing a little bit of manpower juggling," he stated.

Currently the contingency money is holding at about $250,000, and another $50,000 could be released at this time. All asbestos removal has also been completed as far as what has been discovered to date.

Back at the Kewaskum Middle School the demolition of the existing building is completed as well as all interior demolition. The windows are in and the reinforcing steel above the windows. The toilets and urinals have been set up, and all interior partitions are in place.

The metal frames are also completed in the office area, and all the concrete slabs have been poured. The ceilings are up in the new building, and the roughing in of the electrical work. On the exterior of the middle school the brick has been cleaned up, with painting started on the exterior walls, the door frames are set and most of them have been painted. "It's a big push to the end here," Mr. Dell'Agnes added, "to get all the finish work completed. Everything should be finished on the scheduled date." Completion of construction is also slated for August 15th.

The contingency fund for the middle school is holding out around $90,000 and another $40,000 could be taken out for use at this time.

Lutherans 'Share the Promise'

During the week of July 24-29, WELS - Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran Synod-Christians will share that encouragement in the church body's 53rd biennial convention at Saginaw, Michigan. Five short essays and Bible studies will highlight the theme:

- We share the promise from God
- We share the promise with our families
- We share the promise with our friends and neighbors
- We share the promise with our offerings
- We share the promise into the third millennium

Convention business will underscore the theme:

Delegates will be asked to explore five new world mission fields opened between conventions: Dominican Republic - Russia - Bulgaria - Thailand - Gunter, India.

Delegates will discuss a proposed restructuring of synodical administration to improve sharing the promises as a synod. The plan calls for combining the present board of Trustees and the Coordinating Council into a single Synodical Council and for the first vice president to be full-time to allow the president to serve both the Conference of Presidents (doctrine and practice and funding the budget) and the Synodical Council (mission and ministry).

The convention will be asked to consider improved ways of funding the synodical work.

WELS congregations will be asked to keep the theme, "Share the Promise," alive and work to fulfill it throughout the biennium and beyond.

In addition, the delegates will hear a summary report of the amalgamation of the synod's ministerial education colleges and two prep schools, consider using its mission statement as a preamble to the constitution, examine the desirability of lay delegates to achieve a 50% lay and 50% pastors and teachers ratio, create a task force for the WELS sesquicentennial in five years, elect the synodical officers, approve a biennial budget of $34* and $36.5* million per year.

St. Lucas Evangelical Lutheran Church, Kewaskum, is a WELS congregation in our area. St. Lucas Lutheran will be represented by Erv Uhlman, Lay Delegate and Principal Roy Bollinger, Teacher Delegate.

*Includes tuition and fees of $7.5 million at synodical schools.

we should have the bills paid for by then."

Gavin asked, "So you're saying the other two pieces of equipment can be paid for before you order more?"

Herriges added, "Everybody has to realize what's going on. You know you can't just spend $400,000 in a couple of year's time."

Gavin reiterated, "So when are you looking at... three years for that then?"

Herriges stated, "I guess we didn't look real far ahead for that."

Gavin continued, "Other than your air packs, you don't have any other major thing that is needed, is there?"

Herriges added, "No, we're making alot of the purchases on our own. We're hoping to take the picnic money this year to purchase some air packs because we still don't have the new equipment truck filled yet and they're almost $2,000 apiece."

Further discussion was held on which route to take in order to start the preliminary paperwork on the new purchase, but still delay spending any money on it until it is budgeted.

Administrator Schmidt stated, "At least we'd be able to go then by January 1."

It was decided to place the authorization to advertise for bids on the next agenda.

STARS

The stars dance across the night to some midnight music weaving intricate patterns swaying and bowing to the lords of the sky.

The wind rushing toward me carries the enchanted song nearer, nearer to me, and I become one with the stars, gently twirling, rocking, softly dancing then lulling me to sleep.

Congratulations to the "Readers of the Week" for week #4 of SPORTACULAR SUMMER at the library! They are Ryan Gibson and Katie Waranius.

The library has a few SPORTACULAR tee-shirts left to sell. We NEED to sell them all, so please think about buying one!

ANYONE who earned an invitation to our SPORTACULAR picnic may now sign up. The picnic is a FAMILY event - siblings, parents, grandparents, etc. are all invited. This will be a pot-luck, so each family attending will be expected to bring a main course dish to share. Also, this year we are asking that you bring your own plates and utensils, please. Cups of lemonade will be provided, and there will be cake for dessert.

Kids, don't forget--you MUST turn in your completed reading folder NO LATER than next Friday, July 28 in order to receive your prizes. Also, we will be making certificates and completion awards (and goodies) for ONLY those who turn in their folders. Your bag of surprises will be ready for you to pick up at the picnic, or at the library AFTER the picnic if you do not attend.

All those who qualify will have their names put in for the larger prize drawings. A list of these prizes is now posted at the library, along with the names of the donors. If your family wishes to contribute a prize, we will be happy to accept it any time through August 4. The prize will be awarded at the picnic, but you do not need to be present to win...they will be available at the library afterwards.

Warm Weather Fuels Swimmer's Itch

SPOONER... This summer's hot, humid weather contributed to an early and intense wave of "swimmer's itch" on many Wisconsin waters, but Department of Natural Resources water quality officials hope the worst is over.

Technically known as schistosome dermatitis, swimmer's itch is caused by an organism that penetrates the skin and causes red, itching, bite-like welts within several hours after the swimmer leaves the water. The skin irritation may last from two days to several weeks.

Swimmer's itch starts occurring as water temperatures reach the level at which the organism -- a juvenile stage of a parasite flatworm -- releases from its snail host, and may contact humans as it seeks a second host, preferably a bird or mammal, says Frank Koshere, a DNR water quality specialist.

Usually, swimmer's itch occurs in stages across the state as water temperatures of variously-sized lakes warm up.

"The big lakes warm more slowly and normally start reporting problems around the 4th of July. This year, with the warm weather, it seemed like everybody was getting it by the middle of June," Koshere says.

Jeff Bode, chief of the DNR's Lake Management Section, says swimmer's itch has been reported in northwestern, southern and southeastern Wisconsin. Devil's Lake, the Waupaca Chain of Lakes and Rock Lake are among the lakes reporting the irritant.

Koshere suspects that the early arrival of swimmer's itch may mean its early departure. "We think it may have blown itself out," he says. "The warm weather was so consistent that most of the cercariae (juvenile stage of the flatworm) may have been released and swimmer's itch may now be diminishing."

The adult stage of the troublesome organism lives in ducks and other suitable mammals and sheds its eggs in the host's feces. The eggs hatch in the water and become free-swimming organisms that seek out a second host, a particular type of snail. The organism develops further in the snail, and then releases into the water to seek a bird or mammal host when water temperatures first reach their near-maximum level. Sometimes, the organism comes into contact with humans.

Once the organism penetrates human skin, it is quickly killed by the body's natural defense mechanism, but releases enzymes that continue to irritate the skin for up to several weeks, depending on the individual's susceptibility, Bode says.

The chance of that contact appeared to be greater this summer because the calm weather meant the cercariae weren't carried far away from their snail hosts by the wind and remained close to shore, where most people swim, Bode says.

To reduce the chance of contracting swimmer's itch:

- * Swim rather than play or wade in shallow water to reduce exposure.

- * Avoid swimming when winds are likely to carry cercariae into the beach.

- * Vigorously towel off immediately after leaving the water. Doing so crushes the organism before it can penetrate the skin.

- * Some sunscreens and lotions reduce the infections; however, nothing has been found to be completely effective.

Once the irritation has developed, various soothing lotions or ointments may be applied to relieve the itching. For severe cases, prescription antihistamines and topical steroid creams may be prescribed by a physician.

There is no effective way for people to eliminate the problems on their beach. Attempts at treatment to kill either the cercariae or their snail hosts are ineffective because the cercariae can drift long distances from non-treated areas.

"It's best to regard swimmer's itch in the same manner as mosquitos, wood ticks and deer flies -- there really is nothing that can be done about them, but they shouldn't discourage us from enjoying the outdoors," says Koshere.

Of Silos and Subdivisions

As the path of progress moves out from the city, old barns and sheds are the first to go. Then old houses, and finally the silos. Standing as sentinels over subdivided farmstead, do these concrete monuments always signify an agricultural retreat? Not by a long shot.

Wisconsin's largest outdoor agricultural show is being held this year in the midst of an urbanizing countryside, in the shadow of the state's largest metropolitan area. The appropriate theme for the 1995 Farm Progress Days is 'AGRIBUSINESS ON THE URBAN EDGE.' It will be first and foremost an agricultural trade show. A place for Wisconsin's largest industry to display the newest in hardware, software, and management ideas. Yet this setting of silos threatened by subdivisions offers a special opportunity for the agricultural community to inform our non-farm neighbors of agriculture's role in the American economy; our success in stewardship of natural resources; and the dependence of our current American living standard on agricultural productivity.

The differences between farm and non-farm folk all too often seem to be accentuated by real or perceived "walls." Economic, social, cultural and political walls. Walls constructed with "stones" of jealousy, ignorance, apathy and misinformation. Perhaps we who stack stones into walls should ask of ourselves (as in 'Mending Wall' by Robert Frost):

"Before I built a wall I'd ask to know

What I was walling in or walling out
And to whom I was like to give offense."

Those familiar with this poem often quote the phrase, "Good fences make good neighbors." Certainly there are places where agricultural and non-agricultural interests will meet and "keep the wall between us as we go."

What may be more important as we "walk the fence line," is to not build our walls too high or too wide. So that we may still see one another; to smile, to wave, to practice tolerance, to understand our differences; to reach across the walls of life and grasp our hands in friendship.

Frost's poem refers to spring as 'mending-time' for the wall. The 1995 Show is also a chance for some mending. Those of us working in 'AGRIBUSINESS ON THE URBAN EDGE' and producing the show comprise an eclectic mixture of peoples; farm and non-farm, rural and urban, city and country. We have breached some walls, but built many friendships. We have taken some risks (ask the Neuburg's) but are willing to wager on the value of the rewards. To quote Frost:

"Something there is that doesn't like a wall,
That sends the frozen
ground swell under it,
And spills the upper boulders
in the sun,
And makes gaps even two can pass abreast."

The effort and cooperation of more than a thousand

Resident of Beechwood Rest Home Writes Autobiography

By Sharon Callaway Roznik

So many of us proclaim that someday we will write the story of our lives for our children, but somehow we never find the time or the energy to do so.

James Martin of Beechwood Rest Home, has not only written his autobiography, but has published it in a soft bound version, and recently held a book signing at the Random Lake Library.

A sensitive and profoundly spiritual man, Jim is sure that he was called by God to serve a purpose, and that's why he's still here, after six surgeries, including open heart surgery with three bypasses, and five near death experiences, in which doctors were convinced he wouldn't make it. "These kinds of miracles don't just happen for no reason," Jim writes in his book. "I'm positive God has some things for me to do."

His most memorable brush with death occurred when he caught Scarlet Fever at boot camp. "There was a day when my sons and pastor were in the hall and a group of doctors were in one corner. All were standing and shaking their heads, indicating that I didn't have long to live. As I viewed this scene, a strange feeling came over me, and I had no pain. Arms came to my bed and picked me up. I could see myself laying in the bed. The arms started to take me out of the room, right through the wall and down the corridor. It was so beautiful. A dazzling white light in a beautiful, wonderful feeling. Eventually we saw a neon sign that said, 'The people of Zion Church are praying for you.' At once, the arms turned around and took me back to bed. The next day the doctors pulled all the tubes out of me and told me I was well."

A few years ago Jim suffered a stroke, and is now confined to a wheelchair. He shares a room at Beechwood Rest Home with his wife Lorene, who is his inspiration. She also suffered a massive stroke over fifteen years ago, leaving her paralyzed on her right side, and unable to walk, speak or read. Yet none of their physical disabilities ever got in the way of their love for each other, which continues to grow, even at this age.

"She has loved me so much, that it's hard to believe," Jim describes his relationship with Lorene. "The best thing I ever did was to marry Lorene. The good Lord saw that I needed someone such as her. I really don't deserve her. I love her so much, I would give my life for her. We have never had a fight in fifty-six years." His book is dedicated to Lorene.

"Now and Then" is the title of Martin's autobiography, and covers his life as a lay leader in the United Methodist Church, his service in the Navy as a veteran of World War II, and in the Code Section in Washington D.C., and as an industry manager at Briggs and Stratton in Milwaukee.

He was born in West Allis in 1917, to Worthy Festus and Anna Jean (Dranth) Martin, and his earliest recollection is moving to a log cabin near Ono, when he was six-years-old. "The log cabin was poorly made, and it was a most rugged existence. We were constantly invaded by bats coming in through the chinks between the logs. Early memories were of my father chasing bats with a bat, to kill them. Floyd and I hid under the covers. We heard that they would get into your hair."

James' mother spent her younger years as an evangelist deaconess in the Methodist Church, ministering to more than thirty churches around the state, and single-handedly raising over $1,700 by going door to door in Cornell, a lumberjack town primarily populated by men living in tar paper shacks. It was enough money to build a church. Her career as a "preacher" ended when she married Worthy, but she continued to be an active and dedicated member of the Methodist Church.

The book describes Jim's life growing up in West Allis (his family moved back to the city) during the 1920's and 30's, including the depression years, when their existence was comprised of mostly bare necessities. "We had a very strict family life. We went to church at least three times a week," he recalls. "This was my whole life, even before birth."

He married Lorene in 1939. At the time, her folks didn't want them to marry, seeing Jim was 6'6" tall, and she was about 5'3". "What will your children look like?" they said. The couple have two "good-looking" sons, Larry and Richard, plus eight grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

As a lay leader in the church, Jim authored a 150 page book on Commitment, was elected as a delegate to the General Conference several times and served as President of the North Central Jurisdictional conference of Lay Leaders, to name just a few of his numerous activities as a witness for his faith. "I don't keep score," Jim modestly asserts, "but every once in awhile, I wonder how many lives I have touched, how many lives have been changed," while he traveled throughout the country, conducting stewardship programs in over one hundred churches.

During World War II, Martin served as third class Petty Officer in the Navy, aboard the USS Warhawk.

His primary job was to type the ship's log for the engineer, but while he was in China he received a notice to report to the Navy Code Room in Washington D.C., where he helped produce secret codes for the Navy. "One day there was a hot rumor that we were to have an important person visit us," Jim recalls. "In the afternoon, who came aboard, but President Harry Truman. He shook hands with us and told us what a great job we were doing. When I looked out the door I saw lines of Marines on both sides of the road all the way to the White House."

Although he is a military buff and long-time student of the Civil War, Jim considers himself "anti-war." "It is a shame that wars determine the history of the world. Even the Christian Church can't solve the problem, it supports war and doesn't have the guts to outlaw war. The Christian Church calls on God to be on their side and asks God for his blessing. What a pile of garbage! War is much worse than you can ever imagine. It is worse than hell!"

Now, at age 78, Jim is planning on starting a second autobiography, because the first one, "doesn't have half the stuff in it I wanted to put in." He originally began writing about his life when his son Larry, told him he never knew what his Dad did as a kid, or while he was in the service. Another of his recent works has been a booklet on life in a nursing home entitled, "I'll Be Right Back," which is a statement often used by nurses.

"I've had a lot of wonderful experiences, despite the fact my wife and I have physical problems," Jim adds in closing. "I'm not sure I can reach a conclusion or a possible proper ending. I suppose there really is no end, though we expect the end of life in the not too distant future. I really look forward to it, I know what it's going to be like. I've already had the experience of going to heaven... and I'm ready."

"Now and Then" is available by writing James Martin, % Beechwood Rest Home, N1495 W. Cty. Trk. A, Route 1, Kewaskum, WI 53040.

IN MEMORY

In memory of LORRAINE HERRIGES, who died July 21, 1991:

In restful sleep our mother lies
But we need shed no tear;
For now she rests with him above,
Free from her labors here.
The Master above has called her,
To come to Him above;
Where he bestows His blessings,
On those who gave Him love.
And we shall meet her there one day,
Our joy shall be sublime;
For we shall be with mother again,
Be with her for all time.

EWSCA NEWS

(PLYMOUTH, WI) K.J. Skelton of Cascade padded his Modified point lead by capturing his fifth feature victory of the season in the Eastern Wisconsin Stock Car Association 30 lap Pat Rand Memorial Race of Champions at Sheboygan County Fair Park on July 8th.

Polesitter Jim DePagter of Sheboygan Falls outduelled front row mate Danny Cain of Kewaskum to take command exiting turn two on lap 1. While DePagter pulled out to a comfortable advantage in the early stages of the race, the twelfth starting Skelton used the high groove to work his way into second by lap 9.

Four laps later, Skelton drove around DePagter in turn three to take the lead for good. The ninth year racer cruised over the final twenty laps of the non-stop event to score a full straight away victory over nine-time Sportsman track champion Gary Laack of Glenbeulah. DePagter finished third, veteran Sheboygan Falls pilot Fred Clatt placed fourth to record his best finish of the season, and Plymouth's Randy Tracy rounded out the top five.

Dave Haag of Plymouth collected his first triumph of the 1995 campaign in the 25 lap Sportsman feature.

In the Hobby Stock division, Rick Hed of Cleveland notched his first 20 lap feature victory since the 1992 season.

In other races Saturday evening, Randy Butler of Juneau captured the 15 lap Modified B semi-feature while K.J. Skelton won the Modified dash for cash. Veteran Henry Dickmann of Sheboygan took the victory in the 15 lap Sportsman semi-feature. New Holstein's Gary Bonnett won the 15 lap Hobby Stock semi-feature and Roger Lange of Campbellsport was victorious in the 10 lap Hobby Stock consolation race.

Fall Turkey Hunt Applications Now Available

The Fall 1995 Turkey Hunting applications are now available at license outlets and DNR offices.

Unit 30 will have 300 permits available this year compared to 250 permits issued last year for the 1994 fall hunt. The increase is due to good reproduction in the spring of 1994 and again this year in the spring of 1995.

Last year a total of 1606 hunters applied for fall turkey hunting permits in Unit 30, so even with the increase in available permits, your chances of getting a permit in Unit 30 is not very good. Unit 24 will not have a fall season this year, but a fall in the fall of 1996.

The fall applications are due on or before August 10, 1995 and successful applicants will receive their permit sometime in September. Patrons license holders are reminded that their fall turkey hunting application will be mailed to them and should be arriving shortly.

Permit travel is set to allow the maximum recreational opportunities without impacting the turkey population while minimizing hunter interference problems. Permit levels reflect the amount of turkey habitat and turkey population densities and distribution in each zone. Fall permit levels are structured to result in a harvest rate of less than 10% of the hens to maintain a stable or increasing population.

Wolf Shot in Oneida County

PARK FALLS... A wolf whose movements have been tracked via radio by the Department of Natural Resources has been shot and killed in what is the first known shooting in Wisconsin since 1991 of a wolf fitted with a DNR radio collar.

The wolf, which the department has been monitoring from 1991 until the radio quit in March 1995, was found May 6 on a lightly-travelled deadend road southeast of Hazelhurst in Oneida County. An autopsy performed by the National Wildlife Health Center in Madison determined that the wolf had been shot, according to Adrian Wydeven, DNR coordinator of wolf recovery efforts.

No suspects have been found yet, and the Timber Wolf Alliance of Northland College in Ashland is offering a $1,250 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who killed the wolf, nicknamed, "Lobo."

"This shooting indicates there are still people out there that don't happen to like them," Wydeven says.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service listed the eastern timber wolf as an endangered species in 1974, and Wisconsin did so the following year. That status prohibits people from taking any action which results in killing these animals.

A Wisconsin wolf with a radio collar was last known to be killed by a bullet in May, 1991, in Douglas County. Since then, other radio-collared wolves have disappeared and may have been shot, but DNR endangered resources officials don't know for sure. Some Wisconsin wolves fitted with DNR collars have been shot in Minnesota, Wydeven says.

Lobo's death is disappointing news concerning the state's effort to establish a sustainable population of 80 wolves by the year 2000, Wydeven says. Wolves, which lived throughout Wisconsin before European settlement, were killed off by humans in such great numbers that the animals were not found in breeding populations in its recovery program. The state began its recovery program in 1989, and a winter 1995 survey counted 83 to 86 wolves in northern Wisconsin. Twenty-four wolves now wear radio collars.

"Any time you lose an animal from a population of only 83 animals, it is somewhat detrimental," Wydeven says. "That loss was magnified by the fact that Lobo may have finally found himself another mate and started breeding."

Just after Lobo's collar just transmitting in March, 1995, track surveys indicated another wolf was accompanying him. Mating normally occurs in February, and it was not clear whether the two wolves had an opportunity to breed.

DNR conservation warden Larry Willems of Rhinelander and federal warden Gary Jagodzinski of La Crosse are investigating the shooting. The reward is being offered through private pledges from timber wolf alliance members and friends. Additional pledges are welcomed. Anyone with information about the case is asked to call Adrian Wydeven at (715) 762-3204 or Larry Willems at (715) 365-2636.

Indians Advance in BB Playoffs

By Tom Menger

The KHS varsity baseball team may have been down, but they were certainly never out of Friday's first round playoff game against West Bend West. The Indians used a seven-run fifth inning to overcome a six-run Spartan lead.

Kewaskum was hindered by errors and bad luck early on, as the ball took some funny hops and the Indians found themselves down 6-0 after just three innings.

The ball started to bounce in Kewaskum's favor in the fifth inning though, when Dane Dorn and Joe Rettler singled, and Tom Menger was hit by a pitch to load the bases.

Andy Rix then hit a long fly ball that was misplayed by the left fielder, allowing two runs to score. Kevin Klahn then drew a walk, which was followed up by a single by Tim Strigenz and a double by Dan Survis. Singles by Tim Gundrum and Cory Rammer scored the final runs in the inning, as Kewaskum batted around and pulled ahead, 7-6.

The Indians pounded West for four more runs in the seventh inning to pull ahead 11-6, and Kevin Klahn shut the Spartans down in the bottom of the inning to give the Indians the victory and advance them to the second round of playoffs.

Indians Defeat Random Lake

By Tom Menger

After finishing up the conference season by hammering Campbellsport, 9-1, the KHS varsity baseball team tuned up for the WIAA playoffs by beating non-conference foe, Random Lake, 9-7.

The Indians held a 6-1 lead after two innings behind the timely hitting of Kevin Klahn and Dan Survis, both of whom had hits and scored in each inning. Joe Rettler also crunched a solo homer to right to boost the Indians, who pulled ahead 9-3 after four innings.

Again, it was Klahn and Survis notching hits and scoring for Kewaskum in the fourth, along with Tim Gundrum who was hit by a pitch and later scored.

Random Lake scored three times in the sixth inning to pull within two runs, but sophomore Erik Kopecky shut the visitors down in the 7th to earn a save and give Kewaskum the victory. Dan Jesserig picked up the win for the Indians, whose record now stands at 17-9 entering the playoffs.

Indians Second in EW

By Tom Menger

The KHS varsity baseball team wrapped up their conference season with a 9-1 victory over rival Campbellsport last Friday and in doing so, captured second place in the Eastern Wisconsin Conference with a 12-4 record.

The Indians scored first in the game, tagging Cougar pitcher Gary Goebel for four runs in the fourth inning. Tim Strigenz started things off for Kewaskum by reaching on an error, and later scored on yet another Campbellsport miscue.

Dane Dorn then reached on a fielder's choice, and Erik Kopecky followed with a single. Kopecky and Matt "Beavis" Wiedmeyer, who was pinch running for Dorn, both scored when Joe Rettler singled to centerfield. Rettler also scored on the play when the ball rolled between the centerfielder's legs and went all the way to the fence.

Kewaskum scored five more times in the sixth inning, behind a solo homer by Tim Gundrum, singles by Kevin Klahn, Rettler, and Andy Rix, and four more Campbellsport errors.

Dane Dorn was solid on the mound once again, going the distance and allowing only one run, which was unearned.

The Indians finished with a .306 team batting average in conference, led by Klahn (.426), Dan Survis (.353), Tom Menger (.333), Andy Rix (.320), Gundrum (.311) and Cory Rammer (.300).
