Holy Trinity Parish held a dedication ceremony for their newly remodeled P.E.C. (parish education center) this past Sunday, in the commons of their addition.

Randy Schickert and Bob Tuszynski were very active in raising funds, planning and the construction of the P.E.C. The two also served as Master of Ceremonies for the dedication.

"We started a journey of faith just over 16 months ago. We talked about that faith being able to move mountains. Our parishioners answered the call and a center for our entire parish was built, allowing us to deepen our knowledge and faith in our Saviour Lord Jesus Christ. A building, not just for our day school students, but classroom and gathering spaces to foster and encourage the spiritual building of a vibrant parish. We heard today that the Holy Spirit gives each of us individual talents. By combining many talents together, the following committees worked hard to achieve success for all of us to enjoy," said Schickert.

The fundraising committee consisted of, John and Ann Amerling, Roy and Beth Aycock, Les and Virginia Benzschawal, Doreen Kowalczyk, Larry and Louise Martin, Tom and Angela Schickert, Randy and Diane Schickert, Bob and Tanya Tuszynski, June Gauvin and Fr. Mark Jones. The committee was responsible for raising over $935,000 in pledges.

The P.E.C. building committee was responsible for plan development, selection of vendors and ensured the actual construction. Those members were, Albert Fleischman, Wayne Remmel, Zack Stoffel, Jim Schaub, John Amerling, Elis Kahn, Randy Schickert, June Gauvin and Fr. Mark Jones.

Tuszynski and Schickert listed the number of items addressed during the construction. On the upper floor a new music and art room and a new classroom were added. The main floor brought a new computer center, conference room, parish and school offices, sick room and handicap accessible bathrooms. The lower level provided a physical education room. Also added was an elevator to aid handicap students.

Remodeling to the existing school has also taken place. Those updates include plumbing, asbestos removal, the installation of a new energy efficient heating and cooling system, new roofing, new phone system and a new fire alarm system.

The current cost of the project is $850,694.27. The total amount of cash donations received from parish members was $610,972.60. The remainder of the project will be paid for with pledged monies.

MEMORIES...

Appropriately, the above memories postcard is dated August 22, 1914, and shows an excellent view of what Holy Trinity Church and the adjacent building that housed the Sisters of St. Agnes nuns who taught at Holy Trinity School. Holy Trinity's new Parish Education Center, which was dedicated this past Sunday, was built on the land where the nun's home once stood. The building also housed two additional classrooms for the school which were later used for storage when the south portion of the school was enlarged. As fewer girls entered the convent, a shortage of nuns available to teach at the school occurred and the house was eventually torn down, making room for the current addition.

EDUCATION... IT'S EVERYONE'S BUSINESS

By Wayne P. Graczyk,
Kewaskum Superintendent of Schools
www.ksd.k12.wi.us

Before beginning, I would like to advertise a Teacher/Parent Conference date change for the middle school only. The February 28 Conferences will be held on March 8, same times. This change was necessitated because February 28 is Ash Wednesday. All parents of middle school students will be notified by a separate school communication.

As mentioned in a previous article, Wisconsin has developed distinct categories for the measurement of test scores used in the WKCE (Wisconsin Knowledge & Concepts Exam) and the Third Grade Reading Tests.

These are Advanced Proficient, Proficient, Basic, and Minimal Performance. The definition of each is as follows:

Advanced Proficient: Distinguished achievement. Academic achievement is beyond mastery. Scores provide evidence of in-depth understanding in the academic content area tested.

Proficient: Competent in the important academic knowledge and skills tested. Mastery of the important knowledge and skills necessary for progress in the academic area.

Basic: Somewhat competent in the academic knowledge and skills tested. Mastery of most of the important knowledge and skills but shows evidence of at least one major flaw in understanding the academic content area.

Minimal Performance: Limited achievement in the content area. Test score shows evidences of major misconceptions or gaps in knowledge and skills tested.

While one obvious purpose of the tests is offer more accountability in our public schools, another factor is that student growth, or lack of growth, can be monitored. The goal of every school, including Kewaskum, is to continue to raise the bar, raise the expectations of students, teachers, administrators, and parents alike.

The DPI will monitor scores annually and encourage districts to show improvement in the number of students moving upward in the categories, from Basic to Proficient, or Minimal Performance to Basic, etc. The ultimate goal of every district is to have all students in either the Advance Proficient or Proficient category.

There are four sub-tests in the WKCE: Reading/Language Arts, Math, Science, and Social Studies. These are administered to students in Grades 4, 8, and 10 every year. A high school graduation test will be in place for the graduating class of 2004, this year's freshman class.

However, since the graduation test is not mandated, each district must have a policy in place identifying what criteria they will use to pass or fail potential high school graduates. Students will have four opportunities to pass the high school graduation test, beginning in their junior year.

If you have access to a computer at home, work, or at the library, you might find it very interesting to view and compare test scores for not only Kewaskum Schools but compare our scores with any school in the state. To do this you need to go to the Department of Public Instruction web site at www.dpi.state.wi.us and click on WINSS. It's a fascinating web site, and informative as well.

The Knights of Columbus, Council #11301, Campbellsport, are pleased to announce that 91 pints of blood were collected at their blood drive held on January 2, 2001.

The need for blood is critical, the weather was favorable, and the community responded generously. One hundred one persons registered in this drive.

First of all, a sincere thank you to everyone who helped in any way to make the drive possible. Secondly, thank you to all the donors who took time out of their busy schedules to give the "Gift of Life."

Perhaps the most gratifying part of the day was the long list of first time donors. This was the largest group in recent years. A very special thank you to these persons:

It is hoped that the minor discomfort you might have experienced was greatly overshadowed by a greater feeling when it was completed. Special thanks to all of you. It is hoped to see you at future drives.

Those reaching gallon levels were:

Mick A. Oestreich, nine gallons; Myron W. Matthies, seven gallons; William A. Schill, five gallons; Donald W. Lackas, five gallons; Phyllis K. Kaehne, three gallons; Merl E. Pagel, two gallons, and Barbara A. Berres, two gallons.

Special thanks and congratulations to this fine group. Keep up the good work.

It is a pleasure to see several new volunteers lending a hand. Several more can be used. For more details on how you may help, please contact Barb Jaeger at 533-4725 or Janet Lew at 533-8751.

Should People Feed Wild Turkeys?

By Keith Warnke,
DNR Upland Bird Ecologist

MADISON - A frequently asked question during Wisconsin winters is whether it is advisable to begin artificially feeding wild turkeys, especially during periods of sub-zero weather and deep snow. This question is not new, as artificial winter feeding of wildlife has been argued, debated and practiced for years. And, people spend thousands of dollars per year in Wisconsin to keep their bird feeders filled.

Here are some of the facts we know about artificial winter feeding of turkeys.

Wild turkeys, like other species of wildlife, need food, shelter, and cover in order to survive. They existed in Wisconsin long before there were people to ponder such issues as winter feeding.

All Wisconsin winters are not the same. For example, the winter of 1995-96 was recorded as one of the most severe on the record. The impacts of this fairly severe winter on the turkey flock were negligible - the harvest in spring 1996 was the highest recorded at the time. Still, most people intuitively feel that deep snow and prolonged sub-zero temperatures can have a negative impact on the turkey population.

What extremes of snow and temperatures can turkeys withstand? Wild turkeys in Wisconsin are tough birds. From historical records, A.W. Schorger traced the expansion and contraction of the northern limits of turkey range in Wisconsin during the 1800s in response to winter weather. This environmental tug-of-war can be seen today where turkeys have been reestablished at, and past the northern limits of the ancestral range.

Research on wild turkeys in Pennsylvania and New York (where winter severity is somewhat close to Wisconsin's) has shown that some turkeys will in fact starve during winters when powdery, deep snow cover the ground for a period of several weeks. But they found that wild turkey populations can recover in one breeding season and the overall population health and trend is more dependent on the previous summer's reproductive success than winter survival. The average survival of wild turkeys over mild or average winters ranges from 70 to nearly 100 percent, but severe winters can reduce this survival rate to 55-60 percent, which is still more than enough to provide breeding stock for next year.

How do turkeys survive? Turkey's can remain in roosting areas for up to two weeks during especially severe weather and can lose up to forty percent of their body weight before dying of starvation. Deep, powdery snow is more of a problem than extremely cold weather as it limits the ability of turkeys to forage on the ground. Many areas of Wisconsin's turkey range have south-facing slopes or wind-swept fields that lose snow quickly, allowing turkeys to forage more easily. And, a Minnesota study has shown that substantial amounts of the waste corn remained in the fields throughout the winter.

Winter habitat needs appeared to exert the greatest influence on turkey movements in the Midwest oak-hickory region, but there was no conclusive evidence to show that winter foods act in a limiting capacity. Turkeys are one of nature's opportunists, eating everything available including bits of vegetation, weed seeds, waste grain, and even the seeds hidden in the center of burdocks.

What is the impact of artificial winter feeding of turkeys? Winter feeding of wildlife does more for the person doing the feeding than it does for the intended species. We all like to see nuthatches, finches, and chickadees taking advantage of our backyard bird feeders.

In reality, these actions have an impact on only a tiny percentage of the overall population of these species. Yet, we all enjoy seeing crowds at our bird feeders.

Is it any different with turkeys? I'm sure the person carrying a pail of corn out to the far fence line and seeing turkeys using it enjoy the same feeling of self-satisfaction as the person putting out the suet balls and sunflower seeds.

But consider this: Wisconsin's turkey population is estimated to be 300,000 birds (plus or minus a few thousand). A 15 pound turkey will eat 5 pounds of food per week. So, to impact even one third of the state's turkey flock would require 500,000 pounds of feed per week, and all this feed would have to be delivered to locations where the turkeys could use it. The winter home range of wild turkeys is only 160 to 320 acres. It is next to impossible to get the food to a sufficient number of areas where it would affect the survival of significant numbers. Artificial winter feeding would have no long term positive effect on the wild turkey population.

What about the risks to turkeys of artificial winter feeding? One risk is that turkeys tend to become tame and dependent on the food. Probably more serious is the fact that many landowners begin to become more protective in their attitudes towards turkeys, which can foster the opposite effect most hunters want.

Second, the potential of disease transmission around feeding sites poses another problem. This in fact has happened in parts of Colorado where disease problems caused the removal of the remaining flock so restocking of uninfected birds could take place. Mold, which grows on wet or damp grain (including birdseed at the backyard feeder), can cause respiratory diseases in birds.

Third, artificially concentrating turkeys at feeding sites attracts predators and makes them far more vulnerable to predation. Finally, consider the possibility that poaching may increase as a result of artificially concentrating the turkeys at feeding stations.

So, what's the bottom line? Should we feed turkeys, or let nature take its course? Biologically, artificial feeding is not the best approach to helping wild turkeys. Long-term management aimed at increasing the suitability of habitat to turkeys year-around as well as during extremes of winter is the best investment. The department advocated proper habitat management (which does not include artificial winter feeding) to promote a naturally sustaining wild turkey population in all suitable range. Short-term fluctuations in turkey numbers are normal, particularly on the northern edge of the turkey range.

Without a doubt, winter feeding will always be with us as long as people want to help wildlife in any way they think is best. The real benefit in winter feeding of turkeys is that it fills a need for people. It does little, if anything, positive for the turkey population. Any significant local decreases in turkey numbers will be detected during the harvest seasons, and appropriate steps can then be taken to ensure plenty of turkeys remain to allow these local populations to recover. Because turkeys, like pheasants, are polygamous (one male serves the breeding needs of a number of females), our spring bearded-bird-only hunting season does not have a negative impact on population trends. Adjustments can be made, if necessary, to permit levels available in the fall seasons when both sexes are legal game.

LIBRARY LEDGER

By Steev Baker
Kewaskum Library Director

As I sit and write this, there is a memorial service for Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. on the steps of the capital building, Madison, Wisconsin, USA.

Governor Thompson will be there, smiling and pale in the Wisconsin winter sun; the news media in bunches like grapes with their heavy coats smelling of sharp cologne or perfume; politicians grinning their plastic grins, teetering on their heels, dry-eyed and righteous. Of course, the service is not just for the memory of Dr. King, but also for the month-long commemoration of Black History Month.

In 1976, it was officially decided that February would be Black History Month because this period includes the birthdays of Dr. King, Frederick Douglass, and Abraham Lincoln.

Since then, and since Martin Luther King Day was implemented in 1986, there has been a quiet murmuring in the Midwest, a secret questioning in the small towns of America: Is this necessary? And in answer, grim silence that speaks knowingly of such phrases as "liberal agenda," "affirmative action," "multiculturalism," the ubiquitous

"They" of the small-minded.

I visited a web site the other day dedicated to Black History Month and it posed this question: "Why do we commemorate Black History Month?" The four choices it offered portrayed four different but not incompatible ideas about the way most Americans view the subject: "1) So kids can learn about African history and the Diaspora; 2) It's a celebration of being black; 3) To acknowledge that we live in a multicultural America; and 4) It's a redress of historical wrongs."

While there was no fifth choice of "All of the above," the more I thought about it, the more I realized that there is no easy answer to the question. Obviously, there is the national feeling on some level that Black History Month is a "redress of historical wrongs," but to say that is the only reason is blatant oversimplification.

Educationally speaking, one could hardly argue against teaching children about "African history and the diaspora," both of which (like European history) have profoundly influenced the cultural and social evolutions of this country.

Closely linked to this is the idea that we live in a multicultural country and to celebrate this diversity is a needed practice. Finally, the observance of such ethnically-specific times is not only important to the nation but to those ethnicities.

It is hard to remember that most Europeans came to America purposefully seeking to get involved with this experiment in democracy. Because of this, they left many of their cultural trappings-including language, customs, and folklore-behind them or allowed these aspects of their traditions to be sucked into the nascent melting-pot of American culture.

Most Africans, however, were forced to come to America, forced to discard one way of life for another.

For those who use Black History Month and its related holidays as a "celebration of being black," this is a time of reflection and observance of a heritage that has long been denied recognition in our culture.

So if you don't know much about American history or you're curious about the influences of the African people on American society or if you just want to find something written from a new point of view, come down to the library.

We have a display of books by prominent African-American authors from jazz-poet Langston Hughes to modern best-selling author and Nobel-prize winner Toni Morrison.

Sometimes it's worth the inconvenience of a closed bank or pre-empted TV show to jostle you into learning something new.

Tax forms for 2000 are now available at the library and can be picked up during normal library hours.

Campbellsport FFA To Host Series On Land Trusts

On February 6, at 8 p.m., Ed Minnihan and Denny Caneff of the American Farmland Trust will discuss the workings of the Town of Dunn Land Trust in Dane County, Wisconsin. They will also discuss conservation easements and other questions landowners and government officials may have on land trusts.

Both of these programs are free and will be held in Room 20 of Campbellsport High School. Additional information is available by contact Bob Panzer at Campbellsport High School at 920-533-4811.

News From The Capitol

By Rep. Glenn Grothman

A Quiet Story

Every year the Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction collects data on the total numbers of children educated in Kindergarten through 12th grade in this state. In the last school year, a quiet milestone was reached. For the first time over 2% of Wisconsin children are being homeschooled. This amounts to 21,100 students. It would be as if all of the children in either Sheboygan or Washington Counties were being homeschooled. The total has more than doubled in the last seven years and is ten times what it was fourteen years ago. Estimates indicate that if anything, the national average is higher than that in Wisconsin.

This raises the question as to whether homeschooled children are being properly educated. Recent studies have come back overwhelmingly in the affirmative. University of Maryland Professor Lawrence Rudner, who began as an opponent of homeschooling, examined 20,000 children in fifty states and found that the average homeschooled 8th grader was four years ahead of his grade level. By grade twelve, the average student was in the 92nd percentile in reading. Homeschooling parents tend to be more educated than the population at large. However, other studies show significant benefits even after adjusting for education or income level.

This raises the question as to why homeschooled children do better. Individual attention is obviously a reason. Children can learn as quickly as possible without being slowed down while teachers help other children. Homeschoolers are much less likely to use ineffective modern education techniques such as whole language or new math. Virtually every parent is a highly motivated teacher.

However, an improvement in education performance is only one reason for homeschooling. Parents also cite the ability to choose their own curriculum. Current textbooks used both in public and private schools have a tendency to have a very liberal bias in history and the social sciences.

There was a time when there may have been some concern over social skills developed by homeschoolers. Studies now show that homeschoolers are more involved in extra curricular activities than public school children. Meanwhile, as the number of homeschooled children skyrocket, local homeschool groups spring up providing for group activities. As for children who would like to go to college, high-test scores are making it easy for these children to gain acceptance. Last year, Stanford University accepted proportionally twice as many homeschool applicants as other applicants.

Most advocates of homeschooling expect the current trend to continue as local associations become stronger and the word regarding homeschooling continues to spread. The savings to the taxpayer is obviously huge. However, if these test scores are any indication to the boon to our society in general, as these children enter the workforce that benefit will be even greater.

Presentation of County Health Survey Results

In 1996 the Healthy Washington County (HWC) Committee published its first community assessment document. A community report card outlining progress on objectives identified was distributed two years later.

Now, another step has been taken in the ongoing process of profiling Washington County health and human service issues. This year the partners of HWC contracted with JKV Research to gather information on the health practices and health-related behavioral risk of adult residents in Washington County.

Between September 8 and 23, 2000, four hundred and three telephone interviews were completed resulting in a scientifically sound survey representative of all county adults 18 years and older.

This valuable base-line data on behavioral and lifestyle habits of the adult population can be compared with similar state and national data.

The Implementation and Data committees are inviting you and any other interested community partners to hear the first presentation of the survey results on January 26 at the Washington County Public Agency Center. The survey is one of the strategy of many to achieve the mission of enhancing the health of the community through public and private collaborative partnerships.

It is the vision of HWC partners that a healthy Washington County is a place where people reach their highest potential; have support for their physical, emotional, intellectual, spiritual, and cultural needs and work together to improve the physical and social environment for their benefit and future generations.

Dr. Gill Retains Membership In Family Physicians Association

Lawrence A. Gill, M.D., has completed continuing medical examination requirements to retain active membership in the American Academy of Family Physicians (AAFP), the national association of family doctors. Gill is a family practitioner at Advanced Healthcare's West Bend Clinic - West Bend Center.

AAFP members are required to complete a minimum of 150 hours of accredited continuing medical study every three years. The AAFP, with 89,400 members, is one of the largest medical specialty organizations in the country. It was the first national medical group to require continuing medical education for members, thus ensuring their continuing medical expertise.

Advanced Healthcare, S.C., was formed in 1998 through a merger of Falls Medical Group, Milwaukee Medical Clinic and West Bend Clinic.

Crop Production Update Program Set for Jan. 31

A Crop Production Update program will be held on Wednesday, January 31, 2001 from 1 to 3 p.m. at the Washington County Public Agency Center, 33 E. Washington St., in West Bend.

Crop production practices and technologies continue to change. Producers need to continue to evaluate the practices and make decisions about what will work for them on their farms.

This workshop is an opportunity to review the practices used by Wisconsin's top profit corn growers, review the profitability and effectiveness of weed control programs, and learn how to best maximize the investment of fertilizer dollars. The increase in price of natural gas will have a significant impact on the price of nitrogen fertilizer this year and may mean taking a different approach to fertility programs.

The program will include the topics of * "Practices Used by Wisconsin's Top Profit Corn Growers, Low Cost Practices That Yield" by Joe Lauer, Corn Specialist, UW-Madison.

* "Maximizing Your Fertilizer Dollars in a Low Crop Price Environment" by Mike Ballweg, UW-Extension Crops and Soil Agent, Sheboygan County.

* "Effectiveness and Profitability of Different Corn and Soybean Weed Control Practices" by Chris Boerboom, Weed Specialist, UW-Madison.

Registration for the program is $5 per farm unit. Registration by January 29th is appreciated. Contact the Washington County UW-Extension Office at (262) 335-4477 for more information. Registration can be made by calling the office and payment either sent in advance or paid at the day of the program.

On the evening of December 21, Holy Trinity School presented its annual Christmas program under the direction of Mrs. Teri Christie. The title of this year's program was "Sing the Songs of Christmas."

The program opened with a number of selections by the Holy Trinity School Band under the direction of John Ahlstrom. They in turn were followed by the select Choir who sang a variety of Christmas melodies.

The program continued with the seventh and eighth grade drama students presenting the historical background of our favorite Christmas songs while the lower grades sang.

The final portion of the program was the living nativity scene presented by the first graders. It was another beautiful program presented by a talented group of children.

DNR Outdoor Report

January 9, 2001

Conservation wardens and recreational safety specialists are continuing to warn people about thin ice conditions across Wisconsin, despite the cold temperatures the state experienced last month.

Forecasts for warmer temperatures could make ice conditions even more dangerous. In general, even in northern Wisconsin, people are being advised not to drive full-sized vehicles onto frozen lakes, and to use caution even with snowmobiles and all-terrain vehicles.

In addition to insulating thin ice, the deep snow that fell last month is now melting on many lakes, and forming a layer of slush between the snow and ice. All types of vehicles can become bogged down in this slush, making them very difficult to remove from lakes.

Conditions for snowmobiling and cross-country skiing continued to be good to very good this past week, but with a significant warm-up in the forecast, many parks and forests are urging snowmobilers and skiers to call ahead to their destinations for conditions.

Without any significant snowfall, snowmobile trails are beginning to wear down in some areas. Cross-country ski trails, though still being reported as good to excellent, could become very soft and soggy as temperatures warm.

The January thaw may provide an excellent opportunity for skiers to enjoy any one of the candlelight skis scheduled at parks and forests. Check the DNR or Department of Tourism web sites or check with a DNR

Service Center for the locations of upcoming candlelight skis.

Ice anglers who are venturing out onto frozen lakes and waters continue to report generally good to excellent success for most species, though action has started to slow for some species in some locations.

In general, northern pike fishing remains good to very good at many locations across the state. Walleye fishing was reported as picking up on some lakes in the Cable, Hayward and Woodruff areas, but was slowing down on other waters, with the best action still at dawn and dusk. Perch fishing was reportedly picking up on some Vilas and Oneida county waters. Crappie and bluegill fishing remained fair to good on many northern waters.

In the south, panfish anglers were catching bluegills and crappies on the backwaters of the Mississippi River. Bluegill fishing was still good on Monona Bay in Madison, although activity has slowed some from previous weeks. Perch fishing on Lake Mendota has been sporadic.

The dangerous ice and slush conditions have limited success on Lake Koshkonong. Fishing slowed this week on Waukesha and Washington County waters, although a few nice catches were still reported, with from the Racine harbor.

Rabbit and coyote hunters are reporting some improved success now that the snow is starting to settle down. Several hunters reported taking bag limits anglers catching northern pike on Beaver, North and Moose Lakes and panfish on Pewaukee, Golden and Beaver lakes and some walleyes have been biting on Okauchee. Big Cedar and Little Cedar Lakes were producing a few walleyes and panfish.

A few steelhead continue to be seen in the fast water near the dam on the Sheboygan River, but they have been difficult to catch. The inner Milwaukee harbor area of the Menomonee River was giving up good numbers of browns and a few steelhead. And a few browns were being taken of rabbits this week.

Deer and turkeys are easily getting through the snow to the acorns and other food in most areas and wildlife managers are not expecting the cold and snow to have significant effect on populations of either species.

Sightings of great gray owls continue to come in from the southern shore of Lake Superior and snowy owls have been seen so far south as central Wisconsin. Great horned owls, Wisconsin's earliest nesting bird, should begin nesting soon so it is a good time to listen for their hoots as they claim nesting territories.

In some parts of the midwest the horse chestnut was carried in a person's pocket to prevent rheumatism.

Indians Unable to Handle Cougar Attack

Kewaskum's Charlie Sparks (13) attempts to block a Campbell'sport player from scoring.

The Kewaskum boys team traveled to Campbell'sport on Thursday, January 11 to take on the Cougars in an Eastern Wisconsin Conference match. The Indians couldn't stop the Cougar's from scoring and lost 72-47.

Coach Nordeng stated, "We needed to take care of the ball better. Charlie Sparks had a real nice game."

Sparks lead the game in scoring with 24 points.

J.P. Repovsch lead the team in assists with three.

Brian Cotter lead the team in rebounds with seven.

Nordeng stated after the game, "Campbell'sport's press caused Kewaskum problems most of the game - especially the first quarter. Campbell'sport jumped to a 19-7 lead and never looked back."

The team is 1-5 in the conference and 3-7 overall.

The teams next game is against Two Rivers on Saturday, January 20 at 1 p.m. at home.

Southeast Wisconsin Lakes Conference Set for Jan. 27

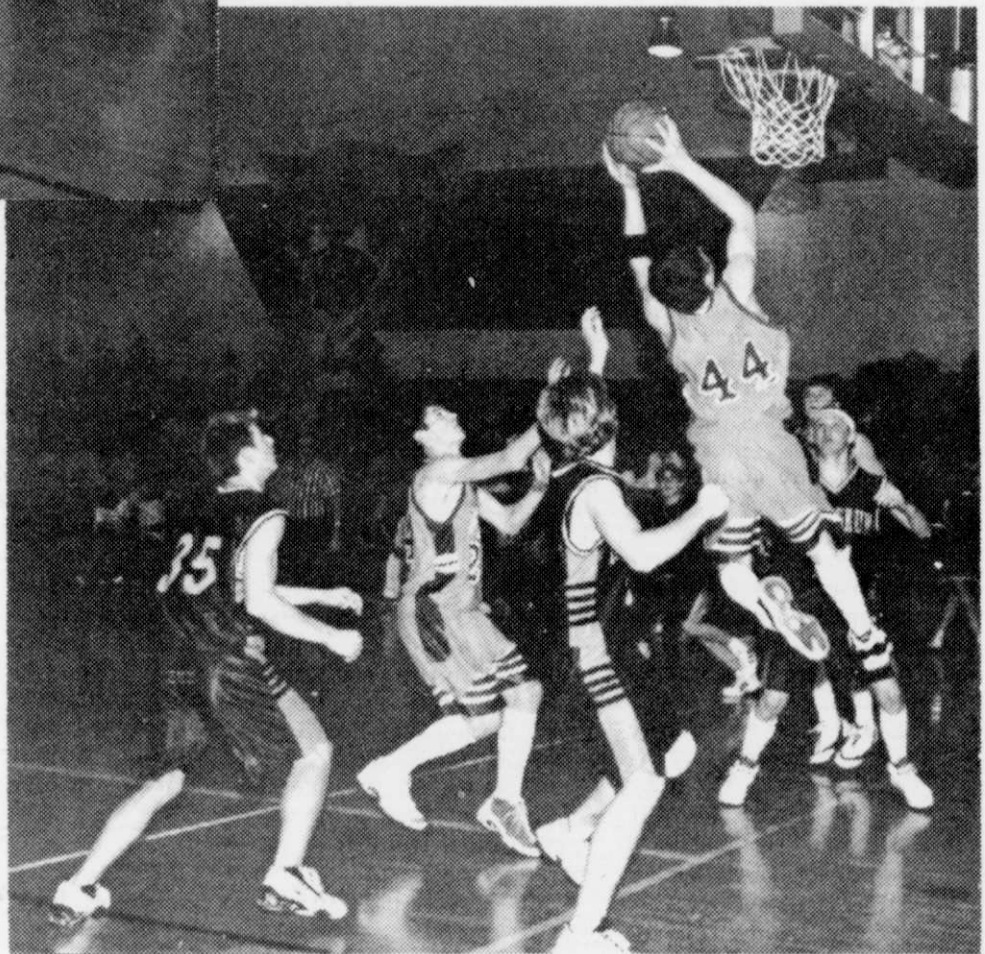

A Southeast Wisconsin Lakes Conference will be held on Saturday, Jan. 27 at the State Fair Park Youth Building in West Allis. A variety of issues facing our lakes today will be discussed at the program. The Conference runs from 8:00 A.M. to 1:00 P.M. at a cost of $15.

Scott Craven, UWEX Wildlife Specialist, will present information and management suggestions on nuisance problems in and around lakes including urban geese, Eurasian water milfoil, purple loosestrife, and zebra mussels. Shoreline landscaping and how it affects water quality, aesthetics, and wildlife will be covered by Hope Oostdik of Dutch Designs. Finally, a panel comprised of representatives from various agencies will delve into boating dilemmas, control options, and local boating laws that have been adopted.

A wide variety of educational exhibits and written materials will be on display at the Conference, and there will be time during and after the conference to view them. WDNR, SE Area Lake Leaders, SEWRPC, UW-Extension, and WI Association of Lakes are the sponsors of the Southeast Wisconsin Lakes Conference.

Pre-registration for the Conference is required by January 22, 2001. Contact Pamela Buchholz at the Washington County UW-Extension Office at 262-335-4480 to obtain information on the Conference or request registration information.

Campbell'sport's Matt Millonig, #44, goes airborne in an attempt to score while Kewaskum defenders keep their eyes on the ball.

KHS Girls Fail to Tame Cougars

KEWASKUM - The Kewaskum High School girls' basketball team found themselves in a tight game against conference rival Campbellsport Tuesday, January 9th. Kewaskum was only down by four points at the end of the third quarter 29-25, but just couldn't overtake the Cougars.

Unfortunately for Kewaskum, Campbellsport made the most of their free throw opportunities in the fourth quarter making eight of 14 tacking on three baskets for an additional six points, for a total of 14 points.

Campbellsport improved their Eastern Wisconsin Conference record to 3-4 and 4-7 overall, while Kewaskum's conference record dropped 1-6 and 3-8 overall. Kewaskum's main problem was poor shooting, as they hit on only 15 of 59 shots.

Kewaskum's Heather Rieder scored five points (two baskets and a free throw) and Colleen Gosa added four points on two baskets as the Indians fell behind Campbellsport at the end of the first quarter, 10-9.

Dani Nass put Kewaskum in the lead briefly as she hit a two-pointer to give Kewaskum a 11-10 lead early in the second quarter. Campbellsport came right back and scored a bucket and two free throws to take a 15-11 lead, a lead they never relinquished. While Kewaskum scored seven points in the quarter, Campbellsport scored 13 points to take a 23-16 lead into the locker room at the half.

Kewaskum scored the first six points of the third quarter on baskets by Rieder, Emily Rinzel and Nass to narrow Campbellsport's lead to just one point, 23-22. Kewaskum had chances to go ahead, but missed a couple of shots one time down the floor and then had a turnover the next time down the floor.

These missed opportunities proved costly as Campbellsport scored six points to one for Kewaskum and all of a sudden the Indians were down by a score of 29-23. A basket by Colleen Gosa narrowed the lead to 29-25 at the end of the third quarter.

Campbellsport made a quick basket to start the fourth quarter and then Katie Benike scored her only points of the game with a big three point play to put the Cougars ahead by nine points, 34-25. Kewaskum managed to cut the lead to five when Rieder hit a three pointer and Jenny Koth made one free throw making the score 38-33, but Kewaskum saw their opportunity for a win slowly slipping from their grasp. With time running out, Kewaskum was forced to foul in an attempt to get the ball back, but Campbellsport made 5-9 free throws to maintain their lead.

Rieder lead Kewaskum with 13 points, four assists, and two steals. Teammate Colleen Gosa had a very good game as she scored nine points and hauled down a team high nine rebounds. Gosa also had two steals and an assist. Cassie Patterson had three blocks. Melissa Rettler of Campbellsport lead all scorers with 16 points.

Scoring for Kewaskum: Rieder 13, Gosa 9, Jenni Logan 4, Rinzel 4, Nass 4, Polzean 1, Klug 1, Koth. Total 37.

Scoring for Campbellsport: Rettler 16, Twohig 6, Flood 5, Wiesner 4, Thurk 4, Ketter 3, Benike 3, Saraur 2. Total 43.

Rebounds for Kewaskum: Gosa 9, Klug 7, Nass 6, Logan 6, Koth 6, Rinzel 4, Rieder 3, Polzean 2. Total 43, Campbellsport 33.

New Holstein Clobbers KHS Girls Team, 63-28

NEW HOLSTEIN - The Kewaskum Indians varsity girls' basketball team committed 35 turnovers and made only 10 of 41 shots from the floor for their lowest offensive output of the season against the powerful New Holstein Huskies.

Add those two Kewaskum statistics together in a game against a conference power like New Holstein and the results were no surprise to anyone who watched the game. New Holstein improved its conference record 6-2, while Kewaskum's conference record dropped to 1-7.

In the first meeting with New Holstein at Kewaskum, the Indians played a slow tempo game and kept the score close until the end of the third quarter. Eventually New Holstein posted a 41-26 win. In the third quarter Kewaskum managed to score just six points, while New Holstein added on another 16 points. At the end of the third quarter New Holstein added on another 16 points. At the end of the third quarter New Holstein lead 46-21, and for all practical purposes had the game won.

New Holstein substituted freely throughout the game. In the fourth quarter, Kewaskum's coach Anne Sonnabend cleared her bench and let Nass and the reserves play most of the fourth quarter.

New Holstein didn't let up as they scored 17 points in the fourth quarter compared to seven for Kewaskum. Nass, who had been in a scoring slump the last two or three games, found her touch and scored a team high of 13 points and 11 rebounds in the loss. Heather Rieder, Kewaskum's usual high scorer, had an off night as she converted on only two of 14 shots and made one free throw for five points.

New Holstein's Amy Schmitz lead all scorers with 15 points. Bobbi Jo Merten scored 10 points, and both Nicole Brenner and Nicole Ditter each scored eight points.
