Architects Present Plans for Possible School Renovations

By Nicole Rawley
Statesman Staff

Architects Stephen Kuhnen and Richard Lundeen of Bray and Associates presented a tentative plan for possible additions to Kewaskum High School and Middle School last Wednesday.

The proposed plan calls for additions to both schools. Additions to the high school include an auditorium and a gym to replace Rose Hall with Rose Hall to be transformed into the new library. Proposed additions to the middle school include gym space and possibly some classroom space.

Before any structures can be added to the schools, the plumbing, heating and electrical systems must be updated. This project will be much worse in the high school since each addition to the original building used different types of these systems.

School district manager

Paul Reichert, announced at a later meeting that the updates will cost approximately 95 thousand for the middle school and 2.8 million for the high school.

This is just to update the schools to today's codes and does not include the cost of the additions, flooring, ceiling tiles or paint. This does include things like fire alarms, emergency gas shut offs in the science rooms, making bathrooms handicapped accessible, and other basic updates.

Also included in the high school cost is remodeling to some of the rooms. The prices mentioned are just approximate and are subject to be changed until firmer costs are received from Bray Associates.

The proposed plan calls for the auditorium to be built to the back of the high school where the library currently is located. The second addition would be to build a gym to the front of the high school on the south side of the fieldhouse. The locker rooms are there now and would stay. The third proposed idea was to make Rose Hall the new library with a large group instruction area. The instruction area would be a part of the library with six to seven inch steps similar to the large group instruction area at the new elementary school.

Another idea was to improve the courtyard area between the auditorium and the art classrooms to provide natural light. Another possible idea for Rose Hall was to put the library in Rose Hall with a second story for art classrooms.

Along the way, there were various concerns brought up regarding the existing buildings that could possibly pose long term problems with the high school. A very important concern was the possibility that both schools are landlocked or will be with these additions.

This will pose problems in the future if the school district continues to grow and the schools have nowhere to expand. The other major problem is the systems not be uniform in the high school.

The question of building a second story was posed and Kuhnen didn't think that would be a very cost effective idea. He stated that it would be cheaper to build a new high school then to have to take the roof off, and rebuild the foundation and the frame to make it stronger to support the weight of the second story.

Proposed additions to the middle school included a bigger gym to the west and possibly some classrooms to the east. Middle school principal Ken Soerens addressed the fact that if the village grows as it's expected to, the middle school would need another addition within a few years if the classrooms are not added now.

The majority of the classrooms are partitioned off to make two smaller classrooms out of one big room. He further stated that the gym is very crowded now and sports teams have a hard time holding practices.

The problem with the additions to the middle school lies in the fact it is situated on a floodplain due to the Milwaukee River. There is a possibility that the middle school may be landlocked. If so, other options will need to be explored. As with the high

Four Positions Created For School District

By Nicole Rawley
Statesman Staff

Monday night's school board meeting resulted in the approval of four new positions to the school district.

One position is for an ESL (English as a Second Language) teacher at Kewaskum Middle School for a student who speaks no English.

The second is for one teacher's aide to float between first and second grade classes. Patricia Adams was approved for the position with the first and second grade classes.

Also positions were created for one full-time and one part-time aide in the high school computer lab.

All of these positions will be paid for with various grant monies and are only until the end of the school year.

Also approved for extracurricular activities were Robert Wene for middle school girls volleyball, Judy Nordeng for high school

Forensics, and Janet Heberer for middle school girls volleyball.

The resignations of high school English teacher Sasha Strack and Building and Grounds director Dale Wedde were announced. Both resignations were accepted by the board.

The board was also presented the tentative plans from the Ad Hoc Referendum Planning meeting held last Wednesday. School District Business Manager Paul Reichert presented the plan noting that solid plans cannot be drawn up until the architects know where the floodplains are. The board voted to pay approximately $600 to have the floodplain lines drawn out.

Reichert also explained to the board all of the updates that would need to be made to the buildings before anything could be built. He further stated that these things did need to be done to the schools to bring them up to code.

apy assistant specializing in health care safety and wellness. Participants must be able to maneuver independently in the water and dressing areas.

New Carillon At Peace Church

If you have heard the lovely new bells chiming through our fair town the past couple months, you probably wonder whence they come.

The beautiful sacred music comes from the installation in mid-December of a Schulmerich True Cast electronic carillon built in Sellersville, Pa. The model chosen is the Campanile version capable of reproducing as many as twenty-four (24) tones at the same time for unmatched realism.

It has sixteen (16) megabytes of ROM and has no moving internal parts. The carillon plays daily at 12:15 mid-day and 6:00 p.m. The music will follow the liturgical year, ringing well-known hymns and carols throughout the year.

The fund for a new carillon started in 1997 when the family of a deceased member wished to honor their parent, who was active in the church's music program throughout her life. The old unit, a 1968 model, was mechanical in operation and becoming difficult to maintain. It used tapes to play its music, and they were difficult to find.

Over the four years of fundraising, several additional large donations were given, as well as, gifts from members and memorials.

A committee made up of Pastor Kirkegaard, Larry Ammel, Rollie Glass, Mugs McFadden and Dan Rundquist looked at several options before deciding on this model. They hope the community approves and enjoys.

Renovations

school, the addition of a second story to the middle school would not be cost effective.

The final issue addressed was the parking. The additions of the gym and the auditorium will take away some of the existing parking. To make up for this, parking between the back of the high school and the front of the middle school would be extended to the east of the existing parking lot. This, however, can only be done if this area is not on a floodplain. If the area is a floodplain, not even a parking lot can be built.

All of these ideas were a blanket proposal to see if there was any interest before it was pursued in more detail. The next step is to analyze the internal needs of both schools.

Kuhnen and Lundeen will be back on March 6 at 7 p.m. to present a more detailed plan. The location of the meeting is to be announced. The public is encouraged to attend.

Little Folks Learn About Good Dental Hygiene

Jessica Laubenstein and Pat Knuth, both Dental Hygienists from Dr. Van Ess's office in Kewaskum care about children and their development of good dental habits. That is why they recently visited the Little Folks School House. They worked with the children, teaching them the importance of effective brushing and flossing. Pat and Jessica showed the children some of the instruments which they would see at a dental visit and demonstrated how each piece is used. They also had a discussion with the little folks about different foods and which ones would be considered more healthy and which ones should be avoided. The children watched a video entitled "Dudley Visits the Dentist" and took part in a learning activity called the "Flossing Game." The visit came to an end as the hygienist left a new toothbrush for each child and teacher.

The Little Folks practice good dental hygiene all year round. The teachers assist them with the brushing of their teeth both after breakfast and lunch. The children are also provided with new toothbrushes periodically by one of the parent's, Craig Rosenthal, who also happens to be a Dentist.

KMS Students Participate In Future City Competition

Students from Kewaskum Middle School participated in the tenth annual National Engineers Week Future City Competition. The competition introduces students to engineering through practical application of math and science and hands-on work with engineers. The 2002 National Engineers Week Future City program is sponsored across the United States in 30 cities and regions.

Teams consist of students in seventh or eighth grades, assisted by a teacher and a volunteer engineer mentor. The students designed future cities on a computer using Sim City 3000 software and then build a model of a city section. The students must also write an essay entitled "Powering Up for a Brighter Future" and, finally, defend their city design before a group of judges at the competition held at the University of Wisconsin -

Milwaukee campus.

The Kewaskum team consisted of students Ryan Uttech, Samantha Kuphal, Ashley Corey and Emily Sedgwick, Mr. Robert Motl, engineer/mentor and Mr. David Drexler, teacher/advisor.

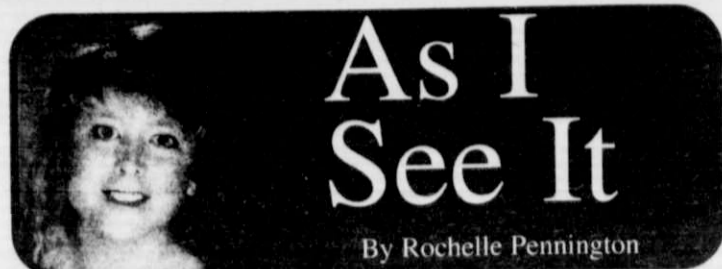

The team's work began last fall with the designing of the city on the computer. After the computer design was completed the team focused on the writing of the essay and the gathering of recyclable materials for the construction of the city. The city model needed to include residential, commercial and industrial areas taking into consideration the need for recreational and green areas along with demonstrating uses of renewable energy sources.

For the renewable energy sources, the Kewaskum team designed and demonstrated the use of solar power, wind generator, hydroelectric power and methane gas generated by the use of the biomass process.

At the competition and judging, the team received an award for the Most Exemplary Model design, given by the Engineers and Scientists of Milwaukee and the American Society of Civil Engineers, and received a $250 grant for the best use of waterway conservation, given by the River Revitalization Foundation of Milwaukee.

Love is in the Air

Love is in the air. And so is Cupid, the winged, naked, chubby cherub wearing a loin cloth and carrying a weapon. One arrow from Cupid's quiver, shot through the heart, and love is guaranteed. Lickety split. So the legend goes.

Now, for those who can't seem to catch up with Cupid, don't despair. There are plenty of other options available to you for wooing the target of your affection closer. And on this, St. Valentine's Day, the myriad of choices on how to best express your love are everywhere.

I love you not only for what you are, but for what I am when I am with you.

- Roy Croft

There's flowers. Merchants in the blossom business tell me this is their busiest day of the calendar year. Hands down. Roses, their best seller. (I'd like my pink, please.)

And there's chocolates, of course. Hmm, hmm, hmm. Packaged in pretty boxes with ribbons and lace and other lovely trimmings. Hershey even puts out a giant-sized candy "kiss", wrapped in red foil, instead of the familiar silver. One such kiss, one full pound of chocolate.

Venture out this day, and you will be able to find heart-shaped everything: cookies and cakes, pizzas and pancakes.

And it wouldn't be Valentine's Day without the multi-colored, heart-shaped confectionary candies stamped with messages of adoration: "U R mine" "Iuv U" "Forever yours."

Hallmark is also ready and waiting with rows and rows of cards filled with romantic ramblings to help you put your fondest affections into words for less than five bucks. Or for free, you can write one of those old-fashioned, hand-written love letters of your own and become a hero for the day. Women love this. Just ask Oprah.

How do I love thee? Let me count the ways. I love thee with the breath, smiles, tears, of all my life.

- Elizabeth Barrett Browning

For a musical option, fifty bucks will hire you a barbershop quartet to serenade your sweetheart. Or, again, the no cost, more romantic option is to do it yourself. Just a few notes sung from beneath your lover's bedroom window, or from beside her bedside, should do.

Whatever it is you decide upon for celebrating with your Valentine - a fine dinner at a fine restaurant at a table with a view, or simply by preparing a quiet candlelight dinner at home - relish in this day set aside to honor that which makes the world go round. It is love.

POLICE REPORTS

Hitching Post Employee's Car Dented

A Washington County Sheriff's deputy was dispatched to a County Highway H residence on Monday, February 4 for a possible hit and run accident that involved an employee from the Hitching Post in Kohlsville.

The deputy met with the complainant who stated that while working the night prior someone had dented her vehicle on the passenger side. She stated that she noticed after leaving work that the vehicle was slightly shifted but made nothing of it. She then took the vehicle to a mechanic and they informed her of the dent. The case remains unsolved.

Van Dented at Allenton Elementary School

A Washington County Sheriff's deputy was dispatched on Friday, February 8 to a hit and run accident involving a parked van parked in the Allenton Elementary School parking lot. The van's wheel well and fiberglass running board was damaged.

Broken pieces of a turn signal and head light were scattered on the asphalt from the vehicle that hit the van. There are no suspects at this time.

LP Tank Vandalized at Import Auto Tech

A Washington County Sheriff's deputy responded to Import Auto Tech on Friday, February 8 to investigate a vandalism complaint. The owner of the business stated that a customer whose car stalled on Highway 41 wanted to purchase a battery. According to the complainant the customer complained about the price and then wanted the owner of the business to give him a ride to his car. The owner refused.

Soon after the customer left the owner smelled gas and checked his LP container and noticed gas escaping. He checked and found 100 lbs. had escaped within minutes. He was unsure if the damage was done by the unhappy customer or a tenant of the building as this had happened on January 1.

A detective responded and dusted for fingerprints that were left on the tank.

If anyone has information on any of the complaints, contact the Washington County Chief's Tip Line at 1-800-232-0594. All calls are confidential.

Simple Blueberry Treats Are a Hit

(NAPS)—Now's the time to eat our fill of juicy fresh blueberries. Fortunately—for those of us who'd rather hit the lounge chair than slave in the kitchen—some of the most delectable ways to prepare North America's famous native berries are also the easiest.

Versatile enough to serve at a backyard barbecue or casual weekend brunch, Blueberry Torta calls for a pint of fresh blueberries, spread over a "one bowl" batter and drizzled with a simple white icing. Blueberry Crumble is equally easy to toss together, and it's one of those rare low-fat desserts that doesn't sacrifice taste.

Be sure to save these recipes! Once blueberry season is over, they can easily be made with frozen blueberries.

Serve this easy Blueberry Torta.

Confectioners sugar with milk; drizzle over blueberries.

YIELD: 8 servings

BLUEBERRY CRUMBLE

4 cups fresh or frozen, thawed blueberries
 1 to 2 tablespoons sugar
 3 tablespoons butter, softened
 3 packages (1.5 ounces each) instant oatmeal with maple and brown sugar

Preheat oven to 375°F. In a 9-inch pie plate, toss blueberries with sugar. In a small bowl, combine butter and instant oatmeal until mixture forms coarse crumbs; sprinkle over blueberries. Bake until mixture bubbles around the edge and topping is light brown, 30 to 35 minutes.

YIELD: 6 servings

With every sweet mouthful of fresh blueberries, you're doing something positive for your health. ### BLUEBERRY TORTA

 1/2 cup sugar
 1/2 cup butter, softened
 1 cup flour
 1 teaspoon baking powder
 2 eggs
 1/4 cup confectioners sugar
 1 teaspoon milk

Preheat oven to 350°F. Butter a 9-inch springform or cake pan. In a mixing bowl, with an electric beater, beat sugar and butter until well blended. Add flour, baking powder and eggs; beat until combined. Spread batter in the prepared pan. Sprinkle blueberries evenly over batter. Bake until cake pulls away from the sides of the pan and is golden, about 1 hour. If using a springform pan, remove sides and place cake on a platter. Cool on a rack for 10 minutes. ## LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Letters to The Editor

Dear Editor,

I cannot say I have ever written to respond to any type of editorial before, but felt compelled to answer some questions raised in the January 31, 2002 "Library Ledger."

What did we do with our refund check?

Answer: Whatever we wanted. Simple, appropriate. It was our money collected in excess, by a non-profit group -- our government. To think that an excess, left with our government would still be there to "get us out of this mess" is naive.

Was it the people's money?

Answer: Yes, not necessarily the citizens, as would be the case in "of the people, by the people, and for the people," but the actual people that were over-taxed. Should there be no difference between the people's money, and the government's money, the government would essentially be re-distributing wealth, when it should be more concerned about protecting us, and our rights, opportunities, and rewards of earning wealth.

What does this have to do with you?

Answer: Now is the time we have to say -- enough! Those of us paying taxes do not want to pay more without seeing it managed more as we would manage it. There are countless cases of ridiculous expenditures of money we entrust to our government.

What does this have to do with the library?

Answer: Very good question. It should be undisputed that the libraries have enough support to provide an extremely valuable service to our community. I believe the "people" would agree. I also believe the people agree there is enough fraud, mis-use, and inappropriate spending in government to get us out of this mess, if it would be responsible enough to at least reduce it.

Do I remember what I got with the refund?

Answer: Yes, some satisfaction that something "right" has happened.

To use this forum to try to scare people into believing they are under-taxed is as ridiculous as saying it is too late to give back our tax refund. I am sure they would still accept them.

This is not an attack on local government, and I do agree this is an excellent time to let your elected official know how you feel. Let them know we do not need to pay more taxes, we need more people paying them.

James A. Christianson

Dear Editor:

Lawmakers have before them a comprehensive set of measures aimed at reducing polluted runoff from farms, cities, construction sites and roads. Such pollution is the biggest remaining threat to Wisconsin waters. These measures ask everyone who contributes to the problem to help solve it. Getting these measures in place is critical to cleaning up and protecting Wisconsin's waters.

Wisconsin's very name -- derived from Algonquin words meaning "gathering of the waters" -- shows how important our lakes, rivers and groundwater are to our state's past and its future. These precious water resources are central to our culture, recreation, economy and image.

In the last 30 years we've made tremendous progress cleaning up and protecting our waters, largely by controlling pollution from public sewage treatment plants and factories. But we haven't finished the job.

Polluted runoff flows into our lakes and rivers, reducing the dissolved oxygen fish and other aquatic life need to survive, and in some cases, killing scores of fish at once. Sediment in runoff can cover important fish spawning habitat and cause smelly, excessive algae growth that hampers boating, swimming and fishing. Polluted runoff also can enter groundwater or surface water and contaminate our drinking water.

Wisconsin's largely voluntary programs to curb polluted runoff have made some progress, but not enough. Forty-four percent of the river miles and 61 percent of the lake acreage Department of Natural Resources staff have assessed don't support the fish and other aquatic life they could if controllable pollution was actually controlled. Polluted runoff is the leading culprit.

Controlling such pollution is critical for the health of Wisconsin's citizens, its economy, and its environment. We all need clean drinking water to survive. Beyond meeting those basic needs, we turn to our waters for recreation and spiritual renewal. We've built our cities on the banks of lakes and rivers. We market the beauty and relaxation they offer -- and they drive our $10 billion tourism industry. That industry puts 280,000 people to work and brings in $900 million for the state and $650 million for local governments. Our water resources also attract residents and businesses, boost our property values and provide the water our dairies, breweries and factories need to function.

We have much at stake, and we need to act now.

Thirty years ago factories and public sewage treatment plants dumped raw sewage, toxic chemicals and other industrial wastes into Wisconsin lakes and rivers with few controls. Since then, state, local, tribal and federal governments have invested $4 billion to upgrade their wastewater collection and treatment systems to meet Clean Water Act standards. Factories have likewise invested in upgrading their systems.

As a result, more than 95 percent of industrial and municipal facilities annually meet Clean Water Act standards. Two of the 550 Wisconsin waterbodies failing to meet water quality standards are impaired solely by wastewater from municipal or industrial treatment plants. That's less than one percent; 30 percent are impaired solely by polluted runoff.

Our agency is committed to further reducing pollution from factories and public sewage treatment plants. But controlling pollution from these sources alone will not get the job done. We must focus more attention on reducing polluted runoff if we want to make all waters safe to swim and fish in.

We all can help reduce runoff. Those of us who live in urban areas can properly dispose of pet waste, leaves and apply fertilizer appropriately to help our cities meet their obligations. Farmers will receive financial help to take steps to reduce the manure, soil and fertilizers running off their land. Developers must control runoff during construction, and manage storm water after their project's done.

DNR staff worked with these and other groups to help develop the rules. Thousands of citizens submitted comments or attended 18 listening sessions and 22 public hearings, and DNR staff made hundreds of changes to respond to what they heard. The Natural Resources Board, the citizen board that sets policy for DNR, unanimously adopted the measures in January.

Fully implementing these runoff measures won't be cheap. Our estimates put the cost at $65 million a year for 10 years. That price tag won't require the state to devote more money to the cause, but continue to provide the $25 million annually that lawmakers have directed to voluntary runoff controls in recent years. In addition to this state money -- the bulk of which is raised through the sale of bonds -- federal programs are expected to help pay much of the remaining costs. Private funds will be another source, and municipalities may turn to financing mechanisms that assess property owners a small fee based on the runoff flowing from their property.

In these tight budgetary times, $65 million a year for 10 years may seem like a lot. But that's a total of $650 million to protect the $4 billion public investment we've already made in cleaning up municipal treatment plants, our $166 billion state economy, and the health of our citizens and the environment.

The time is now. Together, we can give ourselves and future generations a great gift: memories of an early morning fishing trip, an afternoon swim, or a gorgeous sunset -- all enjoyed on one of Wisconsin's clean, sparkling waters.

Sincerely,
Darrell Bazzett
DNR Secretary

Washington County Farm Fair Feb. 19

With winter on the wane, and the first day of spring ever closer...it's time again to recognize farmers in the community for their help in providing us with our plentiful food supply. To coincide with the start of the growing season, the 2002 Farm Fair and Agriculture Appreciation Day has been set for Tuesday, February 19.

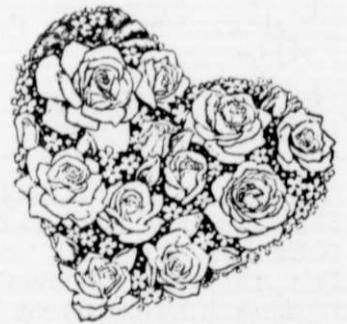

The 20th annual WTKM Farm Fair returns to Washington County Fair Park Pavilion, and will feature over 40 agri-business firms, service industries and suppliers from throughout the area as exhibitors. The spacious Fair Park Pavilion facilities have allowed the show to expand the amount of equipment that can be displayed indoors. Guests will also enjoy free milk courtesy of Kemps/Marigold Foods and Golden Gurnsey Dairies, to be served by the Washington County Dairy Promotion Committee. Product samples are offered by many of the exhibitors. Food is provided by the Washington County Farm Bureau. Refreshments will be available all day as well.

The Farm Fair also gives farmers a chance to discuss concerns with UW-Extension representatives. Special attention should be given to the farm safety information booth staffed by local FFA Chapters. Washington County Fair Park conference rooms allow for ongoing informative seminars throughout the day.

Admission to the WTKM Farm Fair and Agricultural Appreciation Day is FREE, and all area farm families are invited to come visit with their neighbors, while discovering ways to better manage their farming operations.

Farm Fair 2002 is on Tuesday, February 19, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. The Washington County Fair Park is located between West Bend and Jackson on Hwy. 45 at County PV.

POLICE REPORTS

String of Mail Boxes Vandalized

A Washington County Sheriff's deputy was alerted by newspaper carrier on Sunday, February 3 that a mail box on Kettle View Drive was damaged. Upon investigation it was noted that three others on the stretch of road were also damaged possibly by a baseball bat.

Another call was received for a damaged mailbox on Shalom Drive less than three miles from the ones on Kettle View Drive.

IN MEMORY

In loving memory of HAROLD SCHLOSSER, who passed away 14 years ago, Feb. 4, 1988:

We think of you in silence,
And often say your name,
But all that's left to answer us,
Is your picture in a frame,
We often look at your picture
And your smile seems to say,
"Don't grieve for me, I'm only resting,
And you'll see me someday."

Deeply missed by his children and grandchildren.

There would also be limitations placed on the village raising the levy to make up for the loss in state shared revenue. ### SCHOOL BUS DRIVERS OUR UNSUNG HEROES!

I suppose I could identify many careers that would fall under the category of Unsung Heroes, but I want to draw attention to one specific group of people, school bus drivers!

When is the last time you personally thanked a bus driver? When was the last time, or have you ever, gone out of your way to say something nice, something positive, to a bus driver? Probably never, or at best seldom. They are taken for granted, and as a result deserve to be called our Unsung Heroes, every one of them.

We have all experienced driving someplace, like "up north", with a car full of children, which in some cases is a whopping 2 or 3, and found ourselves saying things like, "Knock it off back there!" or some other choice words of encouragement to gain peace and quiet in the vehicle. You may even remember actually stopping the car, or threatening to, to get your point across that the noise and commotion is affecting your driving, their safety, not to mention your own sanity.

Yup, Unsung Heroes! Can you imagine driving around with 20-60 children, while also being held to rather strict time-lines for picking up or dropping students off by parents, students and school officials alike, regardless of the weather? Tensions are high enough for the driver to simply cope with the awesome responsibility for all those lives in such a small bus. Then think about the added tension of such distractions as yelling, shouting, fighting, objects flying through the air (and by all accounts, no student has ever thrown them either, they just become airborne by themselves), kids thinking they are funny or cute by darting in front of a bus as busses leave school (or faking like they will), kids sticking their heads out the window, etc. Boy, this sounds like the ideal job. Wanna try it? Thanks, but no thanks!

If this isn't enough, throw in the "other drivers" on the road. I imagine that getting stuck behind a bus is almost as pleasant as getting stuck behind an 18-wheeler. When that happens, strange things happen in the mind of those "usually gentle" car drivers. I am sure bus drivers, our Unsung Heroes, can recall countless times when a car will dart out in front of their moving bus so they "don't get caught behind a bus", or can visualize the frightening thought of someone speeding up to pass the bus from behind, or speeds up as an oncoming vehicle approaches to get past the bus, just so they "beat those flashing red lights and stop sign?" Like I said, Unsung Heroes!

I write this to not only recognize and thank our "Unsung Heroes," but also as a very blunt reminder to all parents (and students) that the safety of your children rest in the hands of our bus drivers. So the next time you want to speed up to beat the "flashing red lights," or dart out on the highway just so you can be "in front of the bus," or students when you jump in front of a bus, or stick your hands out the window, or "play chicken with a moving bus," remember the awesome responsibility the driver has in their hands!

Parents, take time to thank your driver with words of encouragement, with a note, or better yet, have your son or daughter do it in the best way possible, by being courteous, by being quiet, by being respectful while on the bus, or around the bus. Remind your son/daughter to not only show their appreciation verbally, but to do so in a much more meaningful way "by not doing things that distract a driver from what they have to do" and that is to be sure that all children arrive safely to their home or to school.

FIRST & FETID Skunk Cabbage

by Ami

The subtle signs of spring's approach alert me to slip out to the lowlands to herald what old-timers call "the eye of spring."

Indeed, this wild cabbage is the first of the season's wildflowers. Crush a piece of the plant and a skunky odor wafts to your nose; thus the species name "foetidus," evil smelling. There are no poetic terms to describe this armored tank of the plant world. Thoreau called these unusual pre-historic plants "hermits of the bog" and marveled at the buds visible in late February and March.

Winter and death are ignored. The circle of life is complete. As winter wanes, those buds enlarge and grow. Sharply pointed brownish-purple spathes mottled with green, smelling like rotten meat, dot the marshy woodland floor. The outer coat is really a leathery false leaf that curls around like a snail to protect the plant's flowers.

Skunk cabbage pushes up thru snow in late February, creating enough heat to melt the ice and snow around it; in fact, enough heat to maintain a temperature of 70 degrees inside the purple hood where the knob-like greenish white flower hides. From inside that little hothouse the flowers endure raw March winds and blustery spring snows!

(This article cont'd next month).

Royal Options

Pheasant hunting clubs are increasing in popularity across the Midwest.

Hello friends,

It's February. The fishing has slowed down, you won't hear about the Packers until July, and my dog needs some exercise.

A good friend of mine told me about a new pheasant hunting club that is about to open to the public, and the wheels began turning. Royal Flush Pheasant Hunts is located in northern Dane County, just south of Keyeser. Royal Flush is owned and operated by Keith Gilbertson and covers 324 acres of lowland prairie which has been planted into sorghum, switchgrass, rye and canary grass.

Today, my brother Mike, brother-in-law Dick Schuster and my pal Harold

"The Wildman" Moll would shoot pheasants, work our dogs, make a new friend and learn a thing or two about how a pheasant hunting club is run.

Monday, February 4 High 26- Low -1-

I think all four of us had a lot going through our minds in the days leading up to this hunt. I know for myself, the big questions in my mind were how challenging would it be to harvest the nine pheasants we had ordered, and how would my 10-year-old golden retriever, Star, hold up?

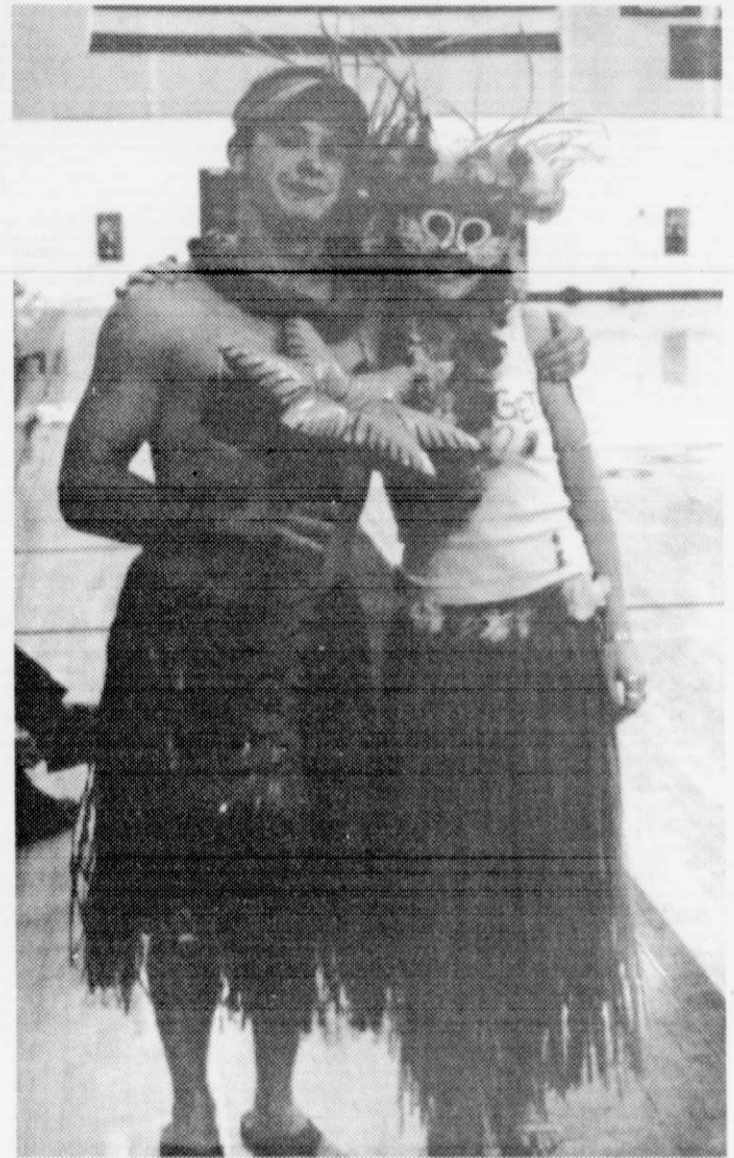

Dick Schuster would be using Star's granddaughter, Babe, on what would be her first pheasant hunt. Before the hunt, we talked with Keith Gilbertson in the very comfortable Club House that sits on the top of a hill overlooking the hunting lands. An unpaid guest, in the form of a marsh hawk, was conducting a hunt of its own. It is a predator that costs Gilbertson a lot of birds in a year's time.

Here is how a hunt like this works. Our group ordered nine birds to be released. Each costs $20, whether you harvest one or all nine. Guide service can be reserved for $25, which includes a guide and a dog. We passed on the guide and hit the field, hoping nobody was watching, as none of us were overly confident about our shooting skills. Different fields are designated for each group, and we were allotted about 80 acres.

Star flushed the first rooster that skyrocketed into the air. He was about out of range real quick when the Wildman dropped it with a single shot from his 20 gauge. We had a bet on who would use the least amount of rounds fired per bird. The Wildman was suddenly shooting 100 percent.

Dick Schuster and Babe came to life in the next half hour, teaming up on three roosters with five shots. Meanwhile the Walters boys, who have a long family tradition of pheasant hunting, were feeling a bit insecure. Star was on fire and helped get Mikey his first bird, leaving only yours truly without a pheasant for dinner. This was a development that my comrades were very happy to let me know.

The cover we were working was dense and a challenge for both man and dog. I took my first shot of the day and missed. The Wildman finished what I couldn't and found himself shooting 66 percent.

At this point, I should have unloaded my gun. I was beginning to permanently tarnish my name as a pheasant hunter with the game. After 10 shots fired, I dropped only one bird (10 percent).

Our hunt lasted three hours. We flushed 13 pheasants and seven made it to the frying pan. When all was said and done, both man and beast were tired and had a good time.

Keith Gilbertson made it clear that without the help of his grandparents, CB and Esther Gilbertson, on whose family farm we hunted, Royal Flush would be just a good hand in a card game. Gilbertson can be reached at (608) 846-2784.

Indians Loose to Kiel, 71-59

Brian Cotter tries to score for the Indians in last Friday's game. The Indians ended up losing the game to Kiel, 71-59.

Josh Timblin shoots a free throw in Friday night's game.

The crowd for Friday night's boys basketball team showed up in their Hawaiian finest. The Indians hosted Kiel in an Eastern Wisconsin Conference game. The Indians, however, could not overtake the team to take the victory. The final score was 71-59.

"J.P. Repovsch single handedly kept us in the game with his shooting," stated Coach Dave Nordeng. Repovsch was the MVP of the game with 24 points. Kyle Rabuck led the team in assists with three. Travis Kempf had a 10 rebounds and three steals.

"Kewaskum started strong defensively and rebounding wise. We just didn't capitalize offensively. Then, as the game wore on, Matt Zorn torched our defense for 33 points.

The Indians are now 5-7 in the conference and 7-9 overall.

J.V. Girls Win For Parents Night Crowd

On February 1, also Parent's Night, Kewaskum hosted Sheboygan Falls. The Indians came out ready to play, quickly taking the lead.

The Indians defense kept the Falcons from scoring while their offense continued to strengthen their lead. The Indians took the win 32-22.

Leading for the Indians were: Debbie Ramthun with six points, seven rebounds and two blocks; Jessica Logan with six points and five rebounds; Nicole Behring with four points and five steals; Jamie Wilson with nine rebounds and Kendra Strobel with four points and three assists.

The Indians win improved their record to 9-8 and 5-7 in the conference. They have three games left, the next on Feb. 8th.

With This Ring I Thee Wed

To have and to hold from this day forward, for better and for worse, for richer and for poorer, in sickness and in health, to love and to cherish, till death do us part.

Whether spoken in a sanctuary, a garden, or before a Justice of the Peace, marriage vows take only a handful of moments to exchange - eloquent words transcending circumstance in a commitment to love, in summary, "no matter what" and "for always". With the promise, two become one, "I" becomes "us", "me" becomes "we".

If there is one word in the vow which significantly stands out above the others, surely it must be "and". Such a simple little word, or is it?

To be held in loving esteem is better than silver and gold.

-Proverbs 22:1

The "and's" of the vow connect the certain ebbs and flows of life - better and worse, richer and poorer, sickness and health - each discussed in turn, for surely they will come. Such are the seasons of our existence. In only one sentence, the deepest truths of life are laid bare, waiting agreement by bride and groom. Perhaps it is clear at the moment of "I do", or perhaps it will become evident in the days and years ahead as the couple seeks to fulfill the promise they offered one another, that love, ultimately, is more than a romantic feeling; it is a decision, a choice, a conscious act of the will - entailing compromise, understanding, and forgiveness. It means standing firm and holding fast through the difficult and trying times when "better" and "richer" and "health" seem to be hiding under the sofa. It means to both love and cherish, treating tenderly, holding dear.

Yes, most assuredly, marriage is about "and's" - a connecting of hearts, flesh, lives.

No man can tell whether he is rich or poor by looking at his ledger.

-Henry Ward Beecher

Not only do the vows symbolize connection, so, too, does the wedding ring with its two ends molten together in union to form an unending circle - a beautiful, tangible representation of the marriage commitment.

And once upon a time, a hundred years ago or so, not too far from here at all, there was such a ring as this given by a simple man to the love of his life. Her name was Sarah.

Now this wedding ring was quite unlike most others, wrought from neither silver nor gold, but crafted, rather, from a nail. Just a nail. You see, the young man who loved the young woman had nothing more to offer but his love and his nail. Only those. He was that poor.

So he offered to her only that which his poverty allowed of him. Then something happened. Sarah said yes, and joined her hands and her heart and her life to those belonging to the one who promised he would cherish her until the end of time, a very long time indeed. They loved one another, these two, and knew only that.

There were those, I am told, who watched and wondered about it all. They wondered if Sarah wished for something more. How could she not? Surely, she must. And so, when she did this wishing of hers, what was that wishing for? Was it that one day she and her love would come to know riches like others?

No, it was not. Sarah wished only that others would one day come to know riches like those she and her love already held in the vaults of their souls. The value of the nail, and the value of her life, were determined by something other than money. Something greater.

Seventy-five years later, the old nail was still wrapped around Sarah's finger. Little would one know that she and her husband had become millionaires after a lifetime of farming. But despite the material riches that came in later years, Sarah never took off her treasured little ring, even though she could have. It remained on her finger to remind her that she was rich before she had money. The gold missing from her finger in those early years of marriage was spilled out all around her - gold in the corn husks growing outside her farmhouse window, gold in the sun-bleached hair on her husband's arms that held her close, gold in the amber of her baby's eyes.

When love, and a little nail, were all her future husband could offer her, love and a little nail were enough. All these anniversaries later, the little nail spoke of commitment. There it was on her hand - still there, always there - as she held onto the hand of him who had gifted it.

"Until the end of time, I will cherish you," he had promised her. And so he did.

Technology Makes Great Bridal Gifts

(ARA) - The age of technology has moved beyond the classroom and business world into the life of newlyweds. Today's young people have grown up with technology at their fingertips and they expect nothing less as they head into married life. Brides and grooms are now listing many technology-oriented gifts on their bridal registry, right next to more traditional appliances and tableware.

"New technology is a great option when choosing a wedding gift," said Laurie Bauer, spokesperson for Best Buy, North America's number one specialty retailer of consumer electronics. "Today's newlyweds have grown up surrounded by high-tech gadgets, so it's nice for them to be able to head into married life with the same conveniences. The wide range of technology products available save time and make life more fun."

When shopping for a friend's wedding present, consider some of these high-tech gifts:

-- Help the new couple stay connected with a two-way e-mail pager/cellular phone from Voicestream. The newlyweds will be able to reach each other 24 hours a day, without the hassle of searching for a pay phone.

-- Pictures are worth a thousand words and weddings are a very special event. Consider helping friends document the special day with a digital camera. With no film to develop, digital cameras are easy and convenient to use, making it possible to share photos with friends and family around the world in seconds via e-mail. There are more than 35 models of digital cameras, ranging in price from $199 to $1,499.

-- Today's world is a busy place, but a DVD/TV combo is a gift that allows new couples to spend time together while watching a movie or their favorite TV shows. DVDs provide digital picture and sound, thus making the home viewing experience more like that of a theater. Help the newlyweds relax together with this great gift starting as low as $279.

-- Consider further enhancing the couple's television watching with a flat-panel television. A gift that frees up space yet retains all the qualities of a regular television, the flat-panel television is a great choice to end the ongoing complaint of not having enough space. Models are priced from $279 to $6,999.

-- Assuming that other guests are also thinking along the technology lines, a universal touch screen remote is a great way to cut down the clutter of remotes throughout the house. With preprogrammed codes for audiovisual gear, it allows the user to replace several remotes with one compact unit. The remote contains programmable macros that allow it to grow with the home entertainment system. The RCA touch screen universal remote retails for $99.

-- Finally, for the kid in everyone, give the gift of gaming with the new Microsoft Xbox or Nintendo GameCube. The ultimate in gaming, these new systems have state-of-the-art graphics and sound. Xbox and GameCube sell for $299 and $199 respectively.

Decorating with Wallpaper

(ARA) - Approximately 2.4 million weddings take place in the United States every year, and, on average, four parties, including a bridal shower and the rehearsal dinner, surround each one. These parties should be as unique as the bride herself and also reflect the wedding couple's personal style.

Wallpaper and borders offer unlimited variety and are a party-giver's greatest ally in creating wedding celebrations that impart unique personal style.

For the growing number of couples who have delayed marriage into their thirties, however (and for second marriages, which are also on the rise) a more sophisticated, contemporary theme may be more suitable. Here, with the help of wallpaper, we offer ideas for a sleek, up-to-the-minute chic wedding gathering that imparts an air of uncommon elegance with no sacrifice to romance.

Platinum lends luster to this contemporary theme, and animal prints give it a touch of exotica. Animal prints and metallic luster are among the top home design trends for 2002, as well as layering.

To achieve a layered look use a white or ivory-colored tablecloth as the base layer on the table. Run a length of either the Wild Animal or the Platinum Scroll border from Ivory Coast along the center of the table. Both borders coordinate with the wallpaper in color and in theme. Finish the table with a top layer of square-cut sheer organza fabric in gold or silver.

For the centerpiece, spray a 14 or 16 inch round twig wreath with silver paint. You can use the same paint to add gloss to the tops of three white, non-drip pillar candles: four, eight and 12 inches tall, respectively. Wrap each candle with the Platinum scroll border and cut to overlap by approxi-

Planning a Stress Free Wedding

Congratulations! You're getting married! You are about to plan the most important day of your life. To organize the biggest party you will ever give. How exciting! How scary! You want everything to be perfect, down to the last detail. How do you go about this? Where do you begin to plan while keeping your sanity, job and fiancé?

Roxanne Schatz, owner of Amelishan Bridal - The Wedding Center in the Richfield Plaza, Hubertus, has been in the wedding business for over 30 years. She has been helping and observing wedding couples for a long time and offers some stress-free common sense advice.

Take a deep breath and relax. People have been taking this big step for thousands of years. I always tell my brides - you've chosen your husband - that is definitely the most important and most difficult decision to make. This is the person you are going to spend the rest of your life with. You have put a lot of thought and energy into choosing him. After making such an important decision at this, everything else is fairly easy.

It is important to realize that this whole planning period is part of "the wedding." Brides who wait and wait until that one special day approaches miss out on some very special times. From the moment your fiancé places that diamond on your finger, to the day you walk down the aisle, you'll realize that this is all part of the wedding. Planning for this special day can become a stressful job, unless you realize that every step of the way can be exciting. Take plenty of pictures during this planning time. you should end up with two wedding albums. One that your professional photographer will create on your wedding day, and one that you put together during your pre-wedding planning period.

Follow these steps to create a beautiful, stress-free wedding:

▼ Purchase a bridal magazine off the newsstand. These are fun to look through and give out lots of wedding tips and the latest in bridal fashions.

▼ Purchase a good workable wedding planner. We have one at Amelishan bridal that we highly recommend. These planners offer ideas on budgets, timetables, and "to do" lists. Use them as an aide to planning your great day.

▼ Attend reputable bridal shows. They're fun, exciting, and highly motivating. Even if you only come away with one idea, it was worth the trip.

▼ Talk to family and friends for specific ideas and recommendations. It always feels good to hire someone who comes highly recommended by a trusted friend. Remember, every family has someone who loves to take charge and tell you what to do. Listen, smile and then ever so tactfully thank them for the advice, but let them know you and your fiancé have your own ideas of how you want this day to be.

▼ Include your fiancé in the planning stages. Some men love getting involved, while others may show no interest. This doesn't mean they're not excited about the wedding. Show him the list of things that need to be done, and coordinate which ones he would like to help out with. You may be surprised at his interest.

▼ Set up an appointment at a reputable bridal salon. Many brides make the mistake of taking the entire wedding party with them in the beginning. This can become very confusing and stressful for everyone. You may want to go by yourself or with your mom or sister the first time. Try on a few different styles to decide what looks best on your body. You may already have strong ideas about style and fabrics. Do try to have an open mind, you may be surprised that the dress you chose was not at all like the one you always dreamed of.

▼ Limit your shopping to a few stores. Every so often we see a bride with "Bridal White Out." She has been to every store in a five state radius every few weeks to make sure she sees every dress out there. We can spot these brides as soon as they walk in our shop. They look worn out, they are not smiling or excited. Selecting a bridal gown has turned into a negative "job." Don't let this happen. Every store has beautiful gowns. Chose one that is reputable, clean and spacious with a nice selection. One that makes you feel "special" when you walk in the door. This is a once in a lifetime experience and you should be treated like a queen by knowledgeable, friendly, professional consultants. You should trust these people and feel that they will take care of you every time you come in. You should not feel stressed in their shop.

▼ Some girls make the mistake of going to someone's basement or kitchen to purchase their gown. I believe this is one of the worst things you can do. Why put all this time and energy into planning the most important day of your life, and then try to save a few dollars on the most important dress of your life? Some brides don't realize this at the time, but in the end buying your wedding gown from someone's kitchen does not save you money. First of all, the dress arrives in a box at your doorstep. It has not been checked for size, color, wrong style, or flaws and spots, and you have no reputable bridal shop to go to with your problems. You will need to find a reputable seamstress, and pay to have your gown steamed and pressed. You will also need to find a climate safe place to store your gown.

Most bridal shops, such as ours at Amelishan Bridal, offer many benefits when you purchase your dress from them:

- ♦ free steaming and pressing
- ♦ free storage in a climate controlled environment
- ♦ discounts off professional in-house alterations
- ♦ discounts off bridesmaids gown of five or more girls
- ♦ in store specials and gift certificates

In many cases, this can be a savings of $200 or more - fees that you would have to tack on to the price of ordering from someone besides a reputable bridal shop.

Be careful and cautious. We have dealt with many brides in tears because of the problems they encounter trying to save a few dollars.

I always say, "this is your once in a lifetime day. It's a shame when you have to purchase your once in a lifetime gown in this manner."

You don't need this kind of stress. Let a reputable bridal shop completely pamper and take care of you.

Granted, there will be little problems and glitches that come up. Take them in stride and enjoy yourself. If you planned your wedding in a timely manner, it's only normal to have a few wedding day jitters before your big day. But know that you have done all you humanly can. Now it's in God's hands. Don't let any little problem, or something someone says that day bother you. Let it

Weddings Take the Cake

By Judy Steffes

Weddings are wonderful. They are also filled with worry. Strike that; worry for some, memories of decision making for others. When you are talking carat/carrot and cut, the topic is going to be either diamond or dessert and for this piece de resistance, let us choose cake. Tiered or traditional, frosting or flowers, chocolate or cheesecake the choices and new trends are endless. For the latest in wedding cakes we bypassed Duncan Hines and quit consulting Betty Crocker, and instead got the best advice from local experts Bonnie Demos and Alice Ketter.

If you are a Washington County native, chances are you have heard of Alice Ketter Cakes. Cakes by Alice, is the official title of the business located on County Highway DD between Campbellsport and New Prospect. "I do wedding cakes, anniversary cakes, birthday cakes, round cakes and sheet cakes," said Ketter who started her business 35 years ago on a fluke of an emergency.

"My mother and father-in-law had an anniversary and they ordered a cake from the baker. When they opened the box, the cake was all cracked and split," said Ketter who received a sobbing phone call for help. "My mother in law was in tears and said Alice what am I going to do?, I called my ma and said get up here and bring your pans," Ketter said she managed to whip up a two tiered jobby, and the rest is cake history.

In the category of wedding cakes, Ketter is on the cutting edge. "I can make almost anything the bride wants," she said running through a list of stacked cakes, tiered cakes, fountain cakes and pillar cakes. "I can even make a big triple cake with a big fountain cake in the center and separate cakes on each side. That was more popular back in the 1980's," admitted Ketter, "But it's a design that's still going strong today."

White, yellow, lemon, marble, chocolate, spice, banana, poppy-seed and carrot cakes. Ketter makes them all depending on the order. "I basically need to know how many are coming for dinner, then we look through a book of cakes and select the design and frosting," said Ketter who is also able to create cakes from pictures brought in by the bride.

"If there are 100 guests then the cake would be three tiers high, 300 servings and it would be four tiers," said Ketter who once had an order for 900. "OH MY GOSH ALMIGHTY" said Ketter like a parent who has just seen their kids Halloween candy haul. "It was an overwhelming process making a cake for 900, but it was fun."

After the size of cake is selected, then comes the frosting "If they want basket weave as their frosting design, that's $10 per 100 pieces. It's very popular, but it's a lot of work," said Ketter who is an artist with a pastry bag and can design dots, scallops, scrolls, or swooshes that resemble herring bones. "I like doing the scallops best, because the sides of the cake finish off nicely. I don't mind the basket weave, but when you start that design on a 20 inch cake you often wonder when the other end is going to come around," said Ketter who can turnout six wedding cakes in a weekend.

Ketter keeps up with the latest in cake designs, attending the January Bridal Show in Fond du Lac. "These days brides are going with stack cakes and flower petals scattered on the side," she said of the plain but popular trend. "They're calling it the Martha Stewart look. It's just a simple stacked cake with no pillars. Sometimes there is no cake top and there's a flower here or there, no pattern, just random."

What makes a Ketter cake the best buy? Alice defers to the staff at the banquet hall. "The halls tell me that they can tell when it's one of mine when they cut the cake because it doesn't crumble or fall apart," she said. "I don't know what the other bakeries do but I use all top of the line ingredients. As a matter of fact the stuff I use is the most expensive but it gives me the best product."

Ordering an Alice Ketter Cake, is probably the easiest step in planning a wedding. "I hate to say no to anybody," said Ketter who has already taken orders for 2003 and still has several openings in 2002. "My best advice is when the engagement happens, get the hall then get the cake. Ordering a year ahead would be best and six months is ok," although even Alice admits to turning a miracle in a moment. Just ask the in-laws.

If you want to veer from a traditional wedding cake, then stop by Door County Cheesecake Bakery in Kewaskum. It has taken Bonnie Demos just three short years to build a reputation for the best cheesecakes in the state. "We make our cheesecakes from scratch," said Demos leaning up against one of the six ovens that line the back wall of the bakery. "Our recipe is all dairy including cream cheese, unsalted French butter, heavy cream, real vanilla, sour cream and eggs. We don't add artificial fillers or emulsifiers," she said of the recipe that is very old and European.

"It's not just the batter that makes the cake, it's the way we bake it," she said. "It's kind of a painstaking process that involves a water bath and four different temperature settings." And if you think that takes time, just look at the detailed designs that Demos hand paints on each piece of cheesecake. "We simply use regular paint brushes and tooth picks to draw the design into the cheesecake banner," said Demos who can detail a 16-slice cake in a matter of two minutes. "It's a kind of liquid on liquid art work where we actually use the cheese cake batter, color it with cherry juice, cocoa, or food coloring, paint it on the batter and then bake it in."

Designs for the top of the cake run the gamut. "We'll do anything from the colors of the wedding, we'll put initials on the cake, hearts in their wedding colors, and normally we work in their flowers," said Demos who once filled an order of 500 with pictures of tabby cats. "The guy wanted his cat represented at his wedding so he had 500 slices of cheesecake with a tabby cat on each slice," said Demos

Like Mother, Like Daughter: Great Looks For The Mother Of The Bride

By Annie Gilbar,
editor-in-chief of
WeddingChannel.com

(NAPSI)—The wedding dress, flowers and reception hall are all being planned to harmonize with the wedding theme of your dreams. Now what will mom wear?

You would think her wedding is the first time a bride can tell her mother what to do, but according to WeddingChannel.com, 88 percent of brides do not choose their mother's wedding outfit.

Fashion drives a wedding theme, and today's brides have more styles and edgy fashions to choose from than ever. So how can moms be sure and pick the perfect outfit to suit their daughter's wedding theme and dress? Today's top wedding themes have a unique look, and each has a style moms can wear to flow perfectly with their daughter's dream day.

Natural Beach Bride

She's a natural bride—bare-shouldered and radiant in windswept chiffon. To complement her bridal style, choose a lighter-than-air look; a slim silhouette in a sheer summery fabric or lightweight lace. This look is one of effortless elegance.

Downtown Hip Bride

That's your girl—a downtown sophisticate with her own brand of sleek and sexy style. To match her bridal look, put an emphasis on detail and drape. Choose clean lines, sophisticated fabrics, elegant silhouettes; a floor length gown of silk jersey paired with a crepe evening jacket. This is the look of the moment.

Romantic Garden Bride

A touch of embroidery, a hint of color, your princess bride's look is as romantic as an English garden. Complement her dreamy style with a grown-up version of fairy-tale finery—a pastel suit of soft silk, beautifully tailored and accented with delicate embroidery and beadwork. This is the perfect look for garden romance.

Classic Gala Bride

She learned it from you; great style is all about the details. In a strapless gown the color of candlelight, she's elegant and poised—the vision of a classic bride. To match her timeless look, choose a formal silhouette in a luxurious fabric. In a full skirt of sophisticated shantung silk, the look is pure, understated elegance.

mately an inch. Fold any excess width of border to make it fit the candle. Tape one edge of the border to the candle, then glue the remaining edge over taped area. Place all three candles on a glass or silver plate under the center of the wreath. Fill any open areas around the bottom of the candles with shiny polished stones or glass beads, which can be found at your local floral center.

Carry the theme to the sideboard using a decorated glass compote, an elegant, long-stemmed dish for candy or fruit. Run a length of the wild animal border along the top of the sideboard. Then cut a length of the platinum scroll border long enough to encircle the compote with one inch to spare. Fold back the excess border about an inch, creating a double thickness. Measure approximately one-half-inch down from the top and make an even row of holes along the folded edge with a hole-punch. Cut a 20 inch length of 1/2 inch silver ribbon. Thread it through the holes and tie it into a graceful bow. Trim a neat "V" at each end of the ribbon.

Insert an eight-inch tall pillar candle in the center of the compote and anchor it in the dish with glass stones or beads. Paint the pillar candle silver to match the silver table candles.

Remember to plan a few nights a month during pre-wedding planning time to go out with your fiancé and not to mention the word "wedding." Brides can sometimes get so wrapped up in wedding plans that the groom gets forgotten and your won-who intricately sketched the face of the feline on each piece of cat cake.

According to industry experts, cheesecakes came into vogue as an option to the traditional wedding cake a couple years ago. "I think it's a better option, especially because when we deliver our cakes they're already pre-sliced," which Demos said is easier for the caterer or banquet manager. Aside from being trendy, Demos said cheesecake goes over well because of their moist texture. "We've all had dry wedding cake," she said. "Some cakes are made in a big sheet pan and they can have a very pasty taste. Our cheesecakes are done in a nine-inch round spring form pan. The smaller size allows us to focus on the individual cake, rather than the entire guest list. Our end product, basically, melts in your mouth," she said.

Ordering a wedding cheesecake from Door County Cheesecake Bakery should be done at least two weeks ahead of the event, and the amount budgeted averages out to about a dollar a person. When ordering, Demos also needs to know the colors for the wedding, flowers, and theme. "We ask for the colors and flowers mainly so we have an idea how to tie that in with the hand painted designs on top of the cakes." One of the last cakes Demos sent out had a black and white theme with red roses, so every slice had a red rose painted on the top.

Demos said their wedding cheesecakes normally have a three-tier setup and then slices for the guests are included with the rest of the display. One of the new trends, however, is cheesecake on a stick. "They're cheesecake slices and they're on a Popsicle stick," said Demos. "It's like a Popsicle and they're dipped in chocolate," she said about the creation that also might sell at Miller Park. "If a couple wants something more casual and fun then they order the cake on a stick. It's a little smaller slice, but it's going over well," said Demos who makes her cakes the day before they are delivered.

Love Stories

In Due Time

The author of the story Rick Jaeger and his wife Sherry (Jandre).

There is a time for everything according to the Book of Ecclesiastes. Thirty-five years may sound excessive for the right time to occur but that's how long it has taken to reunite two hearts.

Sherry and I were high school sweethearts. We were engaged and planned to wed. The timing, however, wasn't right. Wanting the best and looking for further meaning in life, I broke the engagement and left to study to be a Catholic priest. After five of study and armed with a BA degree, I decided to leave the seminary.

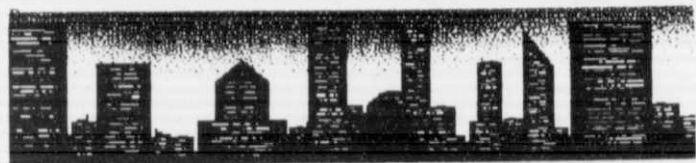

Sherry had gotten on with her life. She married and became the mother of two boys. I, too, married and became the father of three daughters and a son. My marriage was rocky from the beginning and after 24 years my wife found someone else and terminated the marriage. I had never forgotten Sherry and she had always posed a "void" in my life. I always thought about her - especially on her birthday and wondered how she was doing. Mutual friends in Campbellsport always kept me abreast of her whereabouts but I did not want to interfere with her marriage.

After being divorced for five years, I decided to sell my business and re-enter the seminary. I had just completed my first year and was home for the summer. One day when I read the obituaries in the local paper, I saw Sherry's husband had passed away. She was living in Colorado and the obituary didn't appear in our local paper until seven months after his death.

Our mutual friends gave me her phone number. I called to express condolences. I was apprehensive about making the call. When she answered and we talked for five minutes it was obvious that the bond we had established in our youth was still there. After numerous phone calls back and forth, I flew from Wisconsin to Colorado to see her for a few days.

The rest is history. The never dying love between us is greater than before. We were married last February 10th. It all happened in due time.

Finding the Perfect Wedding Gift

(NAPSI)—You've been invited to a wedding, maybe a number of weddings, and now you need to find the perfect gift.

To ease the pressure, and solve time and etiquette issues, a growing number of people are saying, "I do" to the Internet. Most couples register for wedding gifts by making a list of what they need for their new household. While buying a gift from a registry may seem unoriginal, couples create their registry because they want to ensure they get what they need.

However, traditional wedding etiquette deems it impolite for an engaged couple to tell their guests where they are registered. So how are guests supposed to know where to find a couple's registry?

Luckily, thousands of today's couples are registering online, which makes wedding gift buying easier and more convenient. WeddingChannel.com, the number one wedding Web site, brings numerous registry partners together in one place. The result? Brides and gift buyers only have to visit one place.

A Million Brides For A Million Bestowers

"There is an enormous number of gift buyers who can now find a couple's registry, or the perfect gift, with ease and convenience," said Adam Berger CEO and president of WeddingChannel.com. "We have nearly one million registered couples, so it is very likely that a couple's registry is with one of our esteemed partners, which include Macy's, Bloomingdale's, Crate & Barrel, Tiffany & Co. and others."

The online registries also have the engaged couple's address and will wrap and ship your gift directly to them, making numerous phone calls unnecessary.

What are brides and grooms registering for today? According to WeddingChannel.com, the number one item couples register for is casual china. With the rise of non-traditional gifts included in online registries, grooms are becoming more involved than ever, with tents and camping gear becoming top non-traditional choices for most couples.

The Very Latest Trends in Bridal Fashions

(NAPSI)—From bareness to simplicity to refined embroidery and lace, the latest fashion trends were showcased recently at the largest couture bridal show in the U.S., the Independent Visions Couture Exposition.

The show, which was organized by WeddingChannel.com, unveiled breathtaking new designs from more than 120 international and national designers and beautiful gowns from top couturiers, including Bridal Givenchy, Max Chaul and Ines di Santo. Highlights included:

- This year's theme is heralded as "the sensual silhouette." Bridal gowns celebrate the female form and highlight the back, shoulders and neck. The trend is about bareness and simplicity.

- Gentle gathering of fabric at the small of the back, loosely flowing cowl necks, removable bustles and subtle draping of sensuous fabrics reveal the purity of shape in this season's most elegant and feminine dresses.

- Adorning these sleeker silhouetted dresses is refined embroidery. Vine-like metallic and crystal embroidery or tiny sequins with fine crystal beading, all embellishment is intricate and delicate.

- This season is all about lace. Shown as a subtle detail or as the main fabric, modern interpretations of this classic material are coming on strong, invoking a sense of romanticism and stylishness.

- Color trends are soft and surprising, with subtle colors such as gold, dusty rose, mint green and the palest of pink adding a new sense of excitement to bridal gowns. Classic white and ivory gowns have been shown adorned with tiny

For Richer or Poorer

Every spousal financial relationship is unique. Through the years, couples develop their own systems for handling financial matters. Sometimes it is one partner's responsibility to manage all finances, sometimes the other's and sometimes a combination. Whatever the situation, certain information should be shared.

Couples should consider mutual responsibility for and knowledge of:

Retirement plans: Take time to fully acquaint each other with employer retirement benefits. Both partners should have current knowledge of pension plans, 401 (K) accounts and IRAs. For a complete picture of expected retirement benefits, become familiar with each other's Social Security benefits, as well. Understanding retirement benefit information will bring clarity and facilitate retirement planning.

Credit Card Documents: This one can be scary. Some may prefer to now know how much credit card debt their spouse has accumulated. But it's wise to know where to find account numbers in case one loses his or her wallet and needs the other to help cancel the card. Also, mutual awareness of credit card debt amounts will help with developing a family's overall financial plan.

Power of attorney: It is generally a good idea to have power of attorney on any individually owned assets, just in case one becomes ill or otherwise unavailable. Power of attorney can be limited to specific functions for a certain period, such as selling stock or withdrawing money while traveling. A broad document that authorizes each partner to handle almost any situation in the other's absence is also a consideration.

Wills, trusts and life insurance: It's especially important to share information about wills, trusts and life insurance if either has been married before. There could be restrictions on how some assets may be used and beneficiaries left unchanged by mistake. Most important, make sure each partner know where to find wills and will be able to easily access it if something were to happen.

Health Insurance Policies: Most insurance companies will cover care administered in the first 24 to 48 hours of a medical emergency, even if the coverage details have not been sorted out. But the situation isn't as clear with hospital visits that are less urgent. If each partner is covered under a different insurance plan, both should be familiarized with the requirement "hoops" they may have to jump through.

If one spouse had a sudden illness, would the other know which doctor to call first to get an okay for treatment? If not, they risk running up big bills at an out-of-network doctor.

Business Loans: If one spouse owns a business or is a partner in a professional

Children and Remarriage: The Family Wedding

(ARA) - You've found the man of your dreams and you've set the date. There is, however, one nagging dilemma: the children (both yours and his). How can the traditional wedding, which focuses exclusively on the bride and groom, be reconfigured to recognize the critical role that children play in the remarriage relationship?

That question plagued mother and bride-to-be Laura Clemmer, who spent months scouring wedding magazines. "My fiancé Paul (Kotz) and I wanted to do something concrete during our wedding to show my children -- 2-year-old Allison and 5-year-old Nathan -- that we were creating a new family," she says.

Laura and Paul were discouraged when the initial search for a family-oriented wedding ceremony proved fruitless. They were concerned that Nathan, who had early on been enthusiastic about his mom's marriage plans, began expressing some doubts. "Will you and Paul get divorced?" asked the preschooler, who still remembered the pain of his parents' divorce several years earlier.

The Greensboro, N.C., couple was grappling with a problem experienced by most of the more than 1 million single parents who remarry in the United States each year: What can be done to ease the concerns of children who feel, on a conscious or unconscious level, that their secure place in the family is threatened by the pending marriage of a parent?

After much research, Laura found a simple and emotionally satisfying answer in the form of a family-oriented wedding service firm, both should know about any personally guaranteed loans. It is critical to be aware of liabilities since household assets can be hit if the business can't repay the loan.

While many don't necessarily need to know everything about their spouse's finances, maintaining a working knowledge or the above points can help maintain proper, balanced control over a family's financial affairs.

'Cents' and Sensibility: Bridesmaids' Dresses Blend Affordability and Timeless Design

Courtesy of ARA Content

(ARA) - Quick: look in the back of your closet. How many old bridesmaids dresses are bunched into the corner that you wore when you were in a friend's wedding, but have never even looked at again?

If you're like most women, there are at least two or three, and you wince each time you think about how much you spent on that dress, how it looked on you, and how out of style it is today.

Of course, when it's your turn to be the bride and make the choices for your wedding party, you'll do no such thing to your friends.

It is possible to choose bridesmaids dresses that avoid adding to your friends' collection of "one-time wear" dresses. By looking for quality construction, fine fabrics, timeless design the ability to mix and match separates so each attendant can look her best, you can create a great looking wedding party as well as add a beautiful, useful gown to your friends' wardrobes.

"Quality construction is important not only so a gown literally stays put together, but also for the best possible fit," says Bill Levkoff, CEO of Bill Levkoff, Inc. "If a gown is well made, it shows," he says. "High-quality fabrics that suit a gown's design also make a difference between a one-wear gown and a classic gown your bridesmaids will look forward to wearing on other special occasions."

One especially useful feature Bill Levkoff dresses have is the availability of separates, providing the ability to mix and match different styles, colors and sizes for the best possible fit. This way each bridesmaid can wear what looks best for her figure, while still maintaining a coordinated look for the entire group.

"By offering skirts and tops separately, your attendants can choose different lengths, styles and a wide range of colors. It won't matter if one attendant is leggy and another has wide hips or one wants sleeves when another is willing to go sleeveless," Levkoff says. "Everyone can get what she prefers and all look great."

Bill Levkoff, Inc., offers three lines of formals. Champagne Formals are geared toward young women who want a sophisticated look for proms, dances or other special occasions. Moderately priced, this line features many designs that are a good choice for the bride wanting to keep wedding costs reasonable.

Levkoff's New Image line is directed at the woman whose wardrobe always reflects the latest style trends. And the Bill Levkoff line features luminous colors, graceful shapes and elegant fabrics for a timeless, feminine look that has achieved universal appeal for the past 50 years.

"By focusing over the years on high quality gowns and keeping up with design trends, the company has built a solid reputation with style-conscious women," says Bill Levkoff. "By building solid relationships with more than 2,000 retailers, the company has been able to make its gowns available all across the country."

black beads, a nod to the current fashion trend of using black and white.

- The stiletto is back and the heel is higher than ever.

- Progressive design choices include dresses with asymmetrical lines, oversized sequin beading, varying hemlines and square buttons. For a less traditional yet elegant look, designers are pairing pants with fitted tops and long coats.

Family Wedding

that gives children a meaningful role. This 5-minute ceremony -- called the Family Medallion service -- can be integrated into any religious or civil wedding ceremony. It differs from the traditional wedding in only one respect: After the newlyweds exchange rings, their children join them for a special service focusing on the family nature of remarriage. Each child is given a gold or silver medal (Family Medallion) with three interlocking circles, a symbol that represents family love in much the same way the wedding ring signifies conjugal love. (The medallion is available in the form of a pendant, ring or lapel pin.)

The Kotzes say they will never forget the moment during their wedding when Nathan and Allison were summoned to their sides to participate in the family wedding service. While the minister recited the words of the ceremony -- a pledge to love and care for all the children either spouse brings to the marriage -- Laura and Paul presented Nathan and Allison with Family Medallions. Then the hugging started.

"I don't mean to be trite, but it was really a bonding experience," recalls step-dad Paul. "I especially wanted Nathan, who was old enough to understand what was going on, to know that I wasn't just marrying Laura; I was making a commitment to be there for him and his sister. I could see from the way his eyes lit up that he understood. I will never forget it."

Laura Kotz says her family-oriented wedding was everything she had hoped it would be. "I could not have found a better way to communicate to my kids that, by marrying Paul, we were all coming together as a family," she adds.

Most of the guests attending the Clemmer/Kotz wedding were touched to tears by the family ceremony. "People later told us how wonderful it was that we did something so special for the children," Laura recalls.

The family wedding concept is an idea whose time has come since at least one-third of all new marriages in the United States involve divorced or widowed parents with children under 18 living in the home, according to the Stepfamily Association of America.

But finding family-oriented ceremonies is no easy task. "Although I have many books on wedding ceremonies, not one of them contains a wedding ritual that recognizes children from previous marriages," says Dr. C. Fred Werhan, the Baptist minister who officiated at the Clemmer-Kotz wedding. "That was OK 35 years ago, when practically every wedding involved people who had never been married before. But things have changed dramatically since then. Today, in half the couples that I marry, at least one spouse has been married before."

Werhan says he was very excited when he read about a family wedding service developed by a Kansas City minister.
