A bit of good news hit Kewaskum at the Washington County Fair held last week. Gregor

"Greg" Nigh, 78 was named the county's most admired senior citizen.

Greg lives with his wife Anna in the village. He has been here for 40 years. Most people know him for running

Kewaskum Frozen Foods and serving as a village trustee from 1970 to 1978. Greg has since retired from the daily toils of entrepreneurship but now finds himself just as busy as a driver

Nude Man Flees From Police, Hit by Truck on Hwy. 45

By Andrew Kuehl
 Staff Writer/Photographer

Kewaskum Police Department was dispatched to an apartment complex at 2:04 a.m. Wednesday morning for a female complainant who was struck by a male subject in her apartment.

The male subject then fled the scene, nude. Kewaskum Statesman staff members Andrew Kuehl and Nicole Rawley investigated the incident and came across the nude male running through the tree line between the Kewaskum Mall and the Bonnie Bell Motel.

The man then crossed Highway 45 and approached the Amoco station. He attempted to gain entry. Unsuccessful, he began to trek down highway 45 southbound in the middle of the roadway.

Upon seeing the man Rawley and Kuehl called the sheriff's department on a mobile phone and assisted deputies in locating the man.

A 44 year old Kewaskum business owner has been charged in Washington County court for mistreating animals - the intentional mutilation, disfigurement or death of an animal.

Steven Bath, a resident of East Highway 28 just outside the village limits was charged Friday.

The ordeal started on July 20th after Bath told a family member the cat scratched him so he put it on the ground and hit it with his three wood golf club, killing it. He then disposed of the cat in a dumpster.

This was heard by another family member who told the cat's 13-year-old owner, Bath's niece, and her mother.

for the county's Meals on Wheels program.

Nigh was nominated by the site manager.

In addition to driving meals for the homebound, Greg and Anna are both active members of Holy Trinity Parish in Kewaskum, and serve as Extraordinary Ministers of the Eucharist or as Greg calls it "delivering communion to shut-ins."

The Nighs share four children, eight grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

highway the male was almost hit by a northbound vehicle. The second time he wasn't so lucky.

Rawley stated "I covered my eyes, I knew what was coming."

A Ford Ranger pickup truck being driven by a female struck the nude man. The driver attempted to swerve but was unsuccessful and hit the subject with the passenger's side of the hood of her truck. She did have a male passenger who became ill after the incident.

Kewaskum officer Kevin Kohn was the first on the scene and county deputies took over once they arrived. Kewaskum Rescue Squad transported the subject to St. Joseph's Community Hospital in West Bend. Hospital staff were not available to give his condition at press time.

tioned Bath, he told them he found the cat alongside the road and threw it in a dumpster. The deputy then told Bath he (the deputy) had a conflicting story and Bath then changed his story, adding "It's only a stupid cat."

In a phone interview with Bath he stated that someone dropped the cat (that was a stray) at his sister's home, below his residence, three weeks ago.

"They cared for the cat for two weeks and then let it outside," stated Bath who owns two dogs himself and says he loves them and was simply concerned the dog would be scratched.

He was released on a $5,000 signature bond.

Bath faces being convicted of a class E felony that carries a penalty of up to five years imprisonment and up to $10,000 in fines. He returns to court August 6. Washington County court.

Semi-Semi-Finals Near... Who Will 'Take the Bacon'?

A "Letter to the Editor" came into our office this past week and righteous indignation dictates that I share it with the Statesman piggie contest readers. It reads:

In response to the Kiss the Pig Contest:

We would like to thank the Statesman for all their support. But, instead of just tavern and restaurant owners getting involved, we think we should include other small businesses and employees. So we would like to nominate the following people: Andy Kuehl, Lana Kuehl, Dennis Kuehl (sorry Dennis, you're married to her), Cheryl Kuehl, and Sheri Baldikowski.

Pucker up my friends!

Roy and Tammy Garbisch

I was wondering how long it would take for someone to attack my innocence. This pig-kissing business was NOT my idea. It was just a simple suggestion that someone else ran with. I just agreed to monitor the incoming votes (always willing to help my fellow man) and report on the results.

How can anyone possibly fault me for doing such a good deed? I just don't understand it.

Last week we were hurting for female nominees and the voting public responded in droves. Well, maybe in a half of drove, but they did vote female this week.

And... another first in pig-kissing history! A mother-daughter team, Linda and Krystal Gavin. But... when you get down to the final big kiss, how do you separate the two and decide on who to vote for? And what if you're the male in the household? Who do you cast your votes for... your wife, or your daughter? I got a funny hunch you'd be in a no win situation either way!

This contest is setting all kinds of records and should turn out to be the best one of all. (That is if the candidates don't pay big bucks to have me eliminated permanently.) Like I said, Don't listen to Tammy and Roy... I'm innocent! You can't shoot the reporter for reporting the breaking news. Now the instigator... that's a different story. For the right price... I could be convinced to "squeal" on the instigator!

Actually, I haven't done any significant voting... yet! I wish I could take credit for thinking of nominating the first husband and wife tag team piggie-kissers, but, alas I cannot! Roy and Tammy must look deep, deep into the infrastructure of their organization.

I don't want anyone to think I'm picking on Roy and Tammy (actually, I am, but I don't want anyone to know that!) I just know them personally and also know what good sports they are and have been throughout pig-kissing history. This whole fund-raising idea is supposed to be fun, and we really don't want anyone nominated that can't laugh at the whole sport of this endurance race. It's all for oinks and giggles!

We are now down to the final leg of the semi-semi-finals. At this writing, tomorrow is the last day to cast your votes. Any mail-in entries must be postmarked by midnight, July 31. Next week we will see who takes the bacon! The semi-semi-finalists will be announced in next week's edition. (Do you think we should have extra copies printed for the finalists to autograph?)

The nominees received this past week included (list does not include those nominated previously. We'll find out if they get to walk the gangplank runway next week):

Jeanne Amerling
Sheri Baldikowski
Bob Beisbier
Cindy Borland
Kathy Broecker
Audrey Dickman
Krystal Gavin
Jesslyn Geidel
Jerry Gosa
Lloyd Herriges

Tim Miller
Shelly (Petsch) Oelhafen
Cheryl Peterson
Timmy Poodles
Norb Rohlinger
Shirley Sarauer
Kristy Schacht
Kevin Stautz
Carole Timblin
Michelle Zembruski

Now be aware... the above are not necessarily in the finals... time (and nominations on Wednesday) will tell. However, just to give you a few clues... (I have such a bad time keeping secrets) at this point... unless things change drastically tomorrow... those who have already garnered numerous votes include one of Kewaskum's finest, a husband and wife team, a very "witty" lady, a guy who owns an original hot rod and hopefully... Timmy Poodles. Have you been paying attention to the articles? (I should have warned you there would be a pop quiz) Think you know who they are? Guaranteed though, you'll read it in the Statesman first. See... there IS another reason I count the votes!

Melissa Buechel Crowned Ms. N. Kettle Moraine Fire Dept.

Melissa Buechel

by Nancy Durn

A highlight of Dundee Daze, on July 13, was four fire departments competing in the Ms. NKM Fire Department Contest. They were Melissa Buechel, Ms. Beechwood Fire Department; Rachael Weber, Ms. Campbellsport Fire Dept.; Alesha Hill, Ms. Batavia Fire Department; and Amy Phillips, Ms. Kewaskum Fire Department. During their 45 minutes in the dunk tank each candidate accumulated points by the number of attempts and the number of dunks. Each one was a good sport and took some serious dunking.

It was a close contest and after the final tally Melissa Buechel, Ms. Beechwood Fire Department was crowned for the second year in a row, Ms. Northern Kettle Moraine Fire Department 2002. She was presented with a check, banner, and bouquet. The represented fire department will be receiving a check.

In the four hour period the girls were dunked a total 90 times. Tied for being dunked the most was Rachael Weber, Ms. Campbellsport Fire Dept. and Amy Phillips, Ms. Kewaskum Fire Dept. (25 times each). They shared the "being dunked the most" award.

Sponsors for this event were Benson's Hideaway on Long Lake; Browns Floral in Plymouth/Random Lake; Corner Pin Lanes in Cascade; Guenther & Haza, Attorneys in Campbellsport; Hollywood's Portrait Studio in Kewaskum; Timblin Trucking in Eden; and Floral Boutique of Ben Franklin in Campbellsport.

It was a beautiful day for the Dundee Daze Picnic and the girl's splashes in the tank. With the weather being so warm even some picnic goers asked if they could be cooled off by taking a turn in the tank.

Everyone had a good time enjoying the many activities available. There was a "Taste of Kettle Moraine," food and drink, games, music, bounce house, paintball, and "Elvis." It was a fun, filled day for the whole family.

Local Candidate Thrives On Bible Connection

Everyone knows that there is not a shortage of candidates in the new 59th State Assembly District. At last count there were at least seven Republicans vying for a spot on the September 10th ballot as well as one each on the Independent, Libertarian and Democratic tickets.

Amidst the confusing cacophony of platform statements, billboards, yard signs, parade appearances, flag waving and hand shaking, it may be getting a bit confusing for the average voter who, up until a few weeks ago, hardly noticed the whole new legislative district has been carved out of four Wisconsin counties.

Among Republican candidates the confusion may be getting even more intense. It seems that every candidate has about the same stance on most issues. Whether you pick up Bonnett wallet cards or scan a Thompson leaflet, everyone is pretty much lining up under the same conservative banner. The pro-life, pro-family, down on taxes and big government, and pro-gun agenda is a very popular one. And, those are the themes that ring well in these parts.

So, what is a voter to do? Well, for some, already suspicious of politicians who talk the talk but don't walk the walk, a deaf ear is already being turned. For others it might just be a wait-and-see proposition. Maybe after a few weeks of politicking, a few might drop by the wayside and narrow down the choices a bit.

Nonetheless, there may yet be hope. If a voter can't discern a difference in what the candidates think, maybe there is a choice when it comes to comparing how they think.

One Republican candidate, Mark Brunner, has developed an interesting way of expressing his thoughts on a wide range of topics, including life issues, character building, leadership, economy, and how we care for one another. He has turned to the internet to get his thoughts across. The internet and the Bible to be specific.

Several years ago when Brunner's oldest daughter Sarah entered college and moved away from home, he began coresponding with her via e-mail on a nearly daily basis with an original devotion based on a Biblical theme. Soon the word spread beyond the college campus to businesses in Milwaukee, friends and family around the country, ships at sea and, yes, even a Doctor in Pakistan.

Brunner's devotional ministry, with daily lessons on God's will for us in these times of stress and turmoil, is reaching scores of people throughout the world.

Since first beginning in the fall of 1999, Brunner has guided his readers through the Epistles verse by verse and is now finishing with the book of Proverbs. Subscription to the daily devotional is free and anyone is welcome. Brunner does not recruit subscribers but relies on his faithful readers to spread the word.

When asked how he continues to find the time to write these daily inspirations while still fulfilling his busy duties as Advancement Administrator for Christian Life Resources, Brunner remarks, "God just seems to give me the time. I truly miss writing them if I have to go on a trip or take a vacation. So, I just pack a laptop along and keep it coming."

When asked what he will do when he finally reaches the last verse in the Bible, he replies, "It's a big book and I'm not in a rush. When that day comes, I guess I will just have to start over again."

A Chance Encounter

It happened decades ago in Scotland. "Help me! Help me! Someone please help me!" came the screams from a nearby bog.

A poor Scottish farmer heard those cries and ran into the dangerous area to help. There, he found a boy sinking in thick, black muck. It was nearly too late for the child to be rescued, but with the farmer's help, the boy was saved.

There is a destiny that makes us brothers; none goes his way alone. All that we send into the lives of others, comes back into our own.

-Edwin Markham

The next day, there was a knock at the farmer's cottage. Opening the door, the peasant was greeted by a wealthy gentleman, perhaps royalty, who arrived in a stately carriage. The poor man wondered why someone of such obvious stature had come to call upon him. His question would soon be answered.

"You saved my son yesterday, and I am here to give you a reward," said the fine gentleman. The farmer, however, would not accept any of the money offered to him.

The rich gentleman, desperately wanting to bestow a gift of gratitude on the man for his heroic deed, looked into the humble abode and spotted a young boy.

"Because you helped my son, I will help yours," said the gentleman. "If you will allow me to take your child with me, I will see that he receives the finest education available in all of the country." The poor man smiled and accepted the offer.

The generous promise was kept, and the Scotsman's son later graduated from St. Mary's Hospital Medical School in London. Because of the educational gift he had received from the wealthy gentleman, the poor farmer's son, in turn, gave a gift to the world: he discovered penicillin. The little boy who was taken from that cottage was Alexander Fleming.

I've learned that a kindness done is never lost. It may take a while, but like a suitcase on a luggage carousel, it will return again.

-H. Jackson Brown

Ironically, the nobleman's son's life would be threatened for a second time. Now grown, he lay dying of pneumonia. As chance would have it, it was the poor farmer's son who saved him this time when penicillin was prescribed.

The nobleman, Lord Randolph Churchill, had provided for the education of Alexander Fleming, and that education now saved the Lord's son, Winston Churchill.

Alzheimer's Care Facility Adds Resource Library

Individuals and caregivers searching for the latest information on Alzheimer's disease and related dementia need look no further than our Cedar Community's Friendship House for answers.

Thanks to a successful collaboration between the facility's Memory Loss team, Foundation Board and the Alzheimer's Association, Friendship House is now home to a new Resource Library, complete with pamphlets, books and videos.

Currently in Friendship House's entryway, the new Resource Library is open to the community, residents, family members and staff. Among the resources available are more than 26 different free brochures from the Alzheimer's Association, covering issues from driving to financial matters to helping children deal with a loved one's memory loss. Books can be checked out for up to two weeks, and videos can be checked out for viewing right on the premises.

Dave Stone, Friendship House manager, said the new Resource Library fulfills the Memory Loss team's goal to provide support and information nearby where family members, residents and staff can access it easily. "The materials offer information on the full spectrum of Alzheimer's and related diagnoses, from early to terminal stages," said Stone.

IN MEMORY

In memory of GRACE NAUMANN, who died Aug. 4, 1982:

What we would give to clasp, your hands
To hear your voices, to see your smiles
As in the days that used to be.
But some sweet day, we'll meet again.
Beyond the toil and strife.
To clasp each other's hands
once more
In Heaven, that happy life.

We miss you!

Caregivers in particular are in need of resources, he said. "Seventy percent of elder caregivers are over the age of 50 themselves." The need for information on memory loss is growing as the number of those affected grows, he said. "Chances are one in 10 individuals over the age of 65 will develop Alzheimer's disease or other progressive memory loss," he said. "That number jumps to 50 percent for those over the age of 85."

Sandy Stearns, director of nursing, worked with the southeast Wisconsin chapter of the Alzheimer's Association and its librarian, Daryl Ransom, to select appropriate materials. The VCR, books and videos were purchased thanks to a $5000 grant from the Cedar Campuses Foundation Board. As more funds become available, more materials will be added, Stearns said. Plans are to expand the library into Cedar Campuses' new Geriatric Medical Center when the facility is completed next fall.

Cedar Campuses was the first in Wisconsin to provide specialized care for persons with Alzheimer's and related memory loss. In 2000, they opened Friendship House, an assisted living facility dedicated solely to serving those with Alzheimer's and related memory loss. It is a division of the Benevolent Corporation Cedar Campuses, a regional leader in providing superior health care, education, rehabilitation and senior housing.

Reasonable accommodation, including the provision of informational material in an alternative format, will be provided for qualified individuals with disabilities upon request.

Town of Kewaskum Board of Appeals

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Town of Kewaskum Zoning Board of Appeals will conduct a public hearing on the application for appeal filed by James and Sandy Derer. The hearing will be held at the Town of Kewaskum Community Center, 9019 Kettle Moraine Drive, Kewaskum, WI, 53040, on Monday, August 19, 2002, at 7:00 p.m. The applicant's property is located in the Town of Kewaskum, Section 24, at 2829 Salisbury Drive. The appeal seeks a variance from the requirements of the Zoning Ordinance 6.03 (A) (1), and if granted will permit the applicant to construct an accessory structure in the street yard of the parcel, and construct an accessory structure that will exceed the maximum allowed 864 square feet.

This site is requested because the parcel is 1.79 acres with the house situated more to the back of the lot. Because the house has an exposed basement on the south side, the land goes downhill from the front to the back of the house. The intended use of the accessory structure is for storage of personal recreation vehicles and maintenance equipment.

All interested persons wishing to comment on the appeal should appear at the hearing.

Dated this 29th day of July, 2002.

J. Sandra Stern, Zoning Secretary
Town of Kewaskum

Dairyland Seed Announces New Corn Releases

West Bend -- Dairyland Seed recently announced the release of 11 new corn hybrids for the 2003 planting season. Each of these varieties can be seen at research tours and field days through the Midwest this fall. Descriptions of new products for this area include:

73 Day Stealth-1473 - Our earliest hybrid, this flint/dent corn flowers early and makes grain in the very northern areas where GDU's are short. High test weight.

83 Day Stealth-1483 - These genetics feature strong yields and a flint dent combination. With the flint heritage, this hybrid features continuous development throughout the season producing grain in cooler growing seasons and in the northern reaches of the corn growing area thanks to its early flowering and early black layer traits. Also features high test weight. Due to continued strong performance, we've added the conventional and the YieldGard versions to our 2003 lineup!

84 Day Stealth-1483Br - Our YieldGard version of these outstanding genetics!

97 Day Stealth-1497 - Entered as DST-9552 in our 2001 GENI plots, it showed outstanding performance, finishing either first or second in 15 out of 22 plots. It yielded 205 bu/a. on the Lee Batterman/Joe Majerus farm near Fond du Lac, WI, and 191 bu/acre on the Harold Beckman farm near Iona, MN. It features very good drought tolerance and has shown stable performance across environments with very strong disease resistance and superior root strength.

100 Day Stealth-1499Bt - Stealth-1499 is enhanced with the YieldGard Bt corn borer trait.

103/101 Day Stealth-1602 - Previously known as DST-9811, Stealth-1602 is easily surpassing Pioneer 3730 from South Dakota to Michigan. A large robust plant type that will respond well to stress situations across all soil types. Excellent yield potential (related to both Stealth-1089 and Stealth-1609). Features very fast drydown, excellent disease resistance, excellent cold emergence and excellent staygreen. An excellent no-till hybrid.

108/106 Day Stealth-1608 - Stealth-1608 replaces Stealth-1507 with a five bushel yield advantage in the east and a three bushel advantage in the west. Features significantly improved stalk and roots when compared to advantage in the west. Features significantly improved stalk and roots when compared to Stealth-1507. A deep kernel hybrid with an excellent agronomic package and top-end yields. Features fast drydown with a nice visual appearance in the fall due to its excellent staygreen. Is outyielding Pioneer 35P12 by 5 bushels in research trials with better stalks and roots.

108 Day HIDF-4200 Soft Kernel/Digestibility - HiDF-4200 found its way into our silage lineup based on its excellent rating of one for digestibility as well as its rating of one for kernel density (the soft kernel feature). It also features a long grain filling period. It has been starred for significant performance in the University of Wisconsin silage trials for both milk per ton and milk per acre.

110/108 Day Stealth-1510 - Known as DST-11114 in our GENI strip plots, this hybrid has shown outstanding yield performance. A tall robust plant type with outstanding eye appeal and excellent fall health. Is showing consistent performance across soil types and is easily outdistancing Pioneer 34R07 and 34G81 in research trials as well as 33B50. One-half point wetter than Stealth-1507, it is showing a solid six bushel yield advantage. Yielded 194 bu/a. in the Carlos Wolfe GENI trial near Covington, OH and 194 bu/a. on the Eric Schwantz farm near Lincoln, IL.

112/110 Day Stealth-1411BT - This YieldGard hybrid features consistently strong yields with excellent late season intactness. Widely adaptable with good gray leaf spot tolerance.

114/111 Day Stealth-1514 - Entered as DST-11315 in our GENI strip plots, Stealth-1514 has shown consistent high yields. Better stalks and better root than Pioneer hybrid 33G26, 33J56, 33Y18m, and 34B23. It is also outyielding each of those hybrids in research trials. It has very good agronomics including excellent plant health and disease resistance. Very good gray leaf spot tolerance. Excellent in high plant densities.

Founded in 1907 in St. Killian, WI, Dairyland Seed Co., Inc., is the only family-held seed company that conducts proprietary plant breeding programs in hybrid corn, soybeans and alfalfa. In addition to the West Bend, WI, headquarters, there are breeding and nursery facilities in Gibson City, IL; Otterbein, IN; Clinton, WI; Gilbert, IA; Sloughhouse, CA; as well as winter sites in the southern U.S., Hawaii, Mexico and South America.

Popular BadgerCare Health Insurance Should be on Many Back-to-School Lists

Pencils? Check. Notebooks? Check. Health insurance for the entire family? You'd better double-check that one.

Uninsured students getting free or reduced-price lunches are income-eligible for the state's popular BadgerCare family plan, Health Officer Linda Walter said.

And now it's easier than ever to sign up for "whole family" BadgerCare - via phone or mail-in application, as well as in person.

After three years, the comprehensive BadgerCare health plan for children and their families has succeeded remarkably, enrolling over 98,000 residents statewide. About 2008 Washington County residents have already enrolled in BadgerCare and family Medicaid. But, as families prepare for the new school year, many are still unaware of BadgerCare's benefits.

"Our message is very simple," Linda Walter, Health Officer said. "If you're uninsured, and your child gets a free or reduced-priced lunch ticket, your whole family may qualify for BadgerCare health insurance."

In the Kewaskum school district, about 11 percent of public school students live in households whose income indicates they might qualify for BadgerCare.

According to state Department of Public Instruction data, 26 percent of all public school children - and about a third of elementary students - live in households within 185 percent of federal poverty level. For example, a family of four earning less than $33,485 a year can sign up.

And, as many families cope with job loss, Linda Walter wants newly uninsured families to know that laid-off heads of households may also qualify for BadgerCare for their families if they meet income and other requirements.

"Health insurance can give students the healthy start they need to begin the school year right," Linda Walter, Washington County Health Department Director/Health Officer said. "BadgerCare should be on the back-to-school list for every family needing health insurance." BadgerCare covers immunizations, sports physical exams, eyeglasses, medications and other common school-related needs.

Begun in July, 1999, BadgerCare extends health coverage to low- and middle-income persons through a federal-state partnership to enroll whole families with children. The state estimated that more than 100,000 Wisconsin children lacked health insurance when BadgerCare started. Since then, roughly 90,000 children have gained BadgerCare or Medicaid insurance in Wisconsin.

To apply, person may call or visit their county human services department. In Washington County, call Department of Social Services at 262-335-4677.

The coverage could cost nothing out-of-pocket for families with annual incomes below 150 percent of poverty guidelines ($22,530 a year for a family of three, or $27,150 for four persons.) DPI data show about 160,000 children live in families with incomes that could qualify for premium-free BadgerCare.

Above the premium-free income levels, families will be expected to pay three percent of family income. However, public health advocates believe such premiums are a good value, because of BadgerCare's broad coverage. The plan covers hospital and doctor bills, dental work, drug prescriptions, eyeglasses and many other needs - all at no added cost to the consumer. Educators know that something as simple as getting new eyeglasses can help a troubled student begin to succeed in school.

Once enrolled, families can stay on BadgerCare till their income exceeds 200 percent of federal poverty levels. That's $36,200 for a family of four.

The district-by-district DPI table of students in households below 185 percent of poverty level is at <http://www.dpi.state.wi.us/dlcl/pld/povstats.html>

Restless Legs Syndrome Group To Meet Aug. 20

A health awareness group to provide education and discussion for people with the common sleep disorder of restless legs will meet Tuesday, August 20 at 7 p.m. at St. Joseph's Community Hospital of West Bend. The group is free and will meet in the hospital's conference room A.

Restless legs syndrome causes creepy-crawly sensations in the limbs, primarily in the legs. The sensations occur when a person is lying down or sitting still for a long time and become more severe at night but are relieved when the limb is moved.

Robert Pamerter, sleep specialist with the Sleep Disorders Center at the Oakbrook Health Center, will facilitate the program.

For more information or to register, call the Sleep Disorders Center at 1-888-810-7575 or 262-306-7373. Walk-ins are also welcome.

The restless legs syndrome group meets on the third Tuesday of every other month (even numbered months.)

CWD Surveillance Plan for 2002 Released

MADISON - The state plans to test up to 50,000 deer harvested statewide by hunters this fall for chronic wasting disease to determine where exactly the disease exists in Wisconsin. The expansive sampling plan, which will include sampling 500 deer from most every county outside the CWD Management Zone, will determine with a high degree of assurance the presence or absence of the disease in every county in the state, state wildlife officials say.

"The fact is, on-demand testing simply won't be available for hunters this fall," says Tom Hauge, chief of DNR's Bureau of Wildlife Management. "But this statewide testing plan will tell hunters and citizens with 99% certainty that the disease does or doesn't exist in the deer population in a given county. We hope that this level of assurance will reduce some of the anxiety people may have regarding venison and the health of the deer herd in Wisconsin."

Testing will take a tiered approach, with the most intensive testing occurring within the CWD Intensive Harvest Zone, in eastern Iowa, western Dane and southern Sauk counties where 18 deer have been diagnosed since late February with the disease. In this zone, every deer will be sampled during the special summer landowner shooting periods and during the October through January gun hunt. "This sampling will yield information critical to understanding the dynamics of the disease," Hauge says.

The results of this sampling within the Intensive Harvest Zone will help guide future CWD management actions and will help answer many questions including distribution of the disease; age/sex relationships of deer and the disease; how and when CWD is transmitted within and among social groups of deer; vulnerability to harvest of CWD-infected deer and more, Hauge says.

A second tier of testing will sample about 500 deer over one-year-old from each deer management unit in the larger CWD Management Zone, which extends about 40 miles out from the center of the infection. Sampling may begin with the early archery season but will be heaviest in October, November.

"The objective with this sampling effort is to establish a baseline for later comparison to see if the infection is spreading outward," Hauge says.

In the third tier, about 500 deer will be tested for CWD from the remaining counties in the state. Some counties, where deer harvests are traditionally light, will be lumped together for the 500 deer sample. Deer heads will be removed for sampling at selected registration/sampling stations. Some deer stations will be staffed during the October 24-27 Zone T hunt (where applicable), some will be staffed during the November opening weekend, and some will be staffed during both periods.

"The 500 deer per county/deer management unit number was not pulled out of the air," said Hauge. "This sampling level will give 99% probability that we will detect CWD in an area - even if only 1% of the deer in that area are infected."

Hunters will be asked to supply tissue from their animal for testing. Plans are being worked out for sampling trophy bucks shot in the Intensive Harvest Zone so that hunters can keep the heads for taxidermy. It will not be possible to provide special tissue collection services for trophy bucks outside of the intensive harvest zone. In these areas, the entire head must be donated.

Wildlife officials point out that it could take up to six months for all sample results to be received; hunters may choose to wrap and store their venison until results come in. Hunters will be able to access a confidential CWD testing result site via an internet site or 1-800 telephone number. Information on how to access the service will be given at the time of sampling.

Hauge said that many people may still be unsure of the nature of CWD, a neurological disease found in deer and elk. CWD disease is related to mad cow disease and to scrapie in sheep; all members of a family of diseases scientists refer to as transmissible spongiform encephalopathies, or TSEs. All of them are caused by an abnormal protein called a prion, including a human form known as Crutzfeld-Jakob disease.

The World Health

Organization and the Centers for Disease Control have never documented an instance of chronic wasting disease being passed from deer to humans. Human health officials agree however, that following an outbreak of mad cow disease in Europe, humans did develop a new variant of Crutzfeld-Jakob disease after consuming beef from infected cattle. The human cases were linked to consumption of tissues known to concentrate the infection within the cattle such as brains. Mad cow disease has never been found in North American cattle.

Crutzfeld-Jakob disease is known to occur spontaneously in the human population at a rate of one-in-1,000,000. In areas where CWD has existed in wild and captive deer and elk herds in North America for nearly 30 years, this background level of the human form of the disease has remained stable at the one-in-1,000,000 level.

People can further reduce any risk by carefully processing the venison according to guidelines published by the Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection, and by not eating any obviously sick looking deer. The World Health Organization and Centers for Disease Control provide similar advice.

Even with available testing, there is the possibility that an animal may have some level of abnormal prions in its body that is still too low for the current test to pick up, according to prion scientists. Several research laboratories across the country are working on developing more sensitive test methods that can be completed in less time. The current test takes about 50 hours to complete from the time the sample arrives at the laboratory.

"Certification of laboratories to test for this disease takes time but by this fall, we expect to be able to test up to 30,000 deer per year with in-state facilities being developed at the Wisconsin Veterinary Services Laboratory," Hauge says. "USDA has assured DNR in a letter that certified laboratories in other states will provide the additional testing capacity for our increased statewide sampling."

In June, the National Resources Board approved a CWD emergency rule package addressing management of the disease through hunting. The twin centerpieces of the rule package are expanded hunting seasons in the CWD Management Zone and a statewide ban on baiting and feeding deer.

On the advice of DNR wildlife biologists, and veterinarians and epidemiologists from DNR, the state Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection and the state Department of Health and Family Services (DHFS), board members expanded the fall hunting seasons to greatly reduce deer populations in the infected areas. CWD is considered a communicable disease in deer and elk. Reducing populations in the infected area will remove the infectious agent and reduce spread. CWD is invariably fatal to deer. There is no cure or treatment once the animal is infected.

Similarly, baiting and feeding unnaturally concentrate deer and greatly increase the chance a communicable disease will spread. This applies to CWD and to other communicable wildlife diseases such as bovine tuberculosis.

For more information on CWD, see DNR's website at www.dnr.state.wi.us. For questions regarding captive deer and elk contact the Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection.

First Musky

Hello friends,

Iron County's Turtle Flambeau Flowage is about as close as you can get to Canada and still be in Wisconsin. Since the state purchased the vast majority of the 212 miles of shoreline, a person can easily persuade themselves that they have found paradise within the U.S. border.

This week, my wife, Laurie, daughter, Selina, and pups, Star and Pearl, joined our friends Jeff and Michele Neitzel and their daughters, Megan, 11, and Paige, 8.

We were joined by new friends, Don and Mary Voigt, for four days of camping, fishing and laughing on a remote island in the Flambeau Flowage.

Saturday, July 20
High 89, Low 61

Whenever I go on a four-day camping trip with several people, there is a lot more to write about than I have space for. This trip was no exception.

For starters, last night on the two-mile journey to the island, Don Voigt hit a stump or rock which sheared off one of the three prop blades on his 60-horse Johnson. The Flambeau is well known for being a prop killer, and Mr. Voigt found out the hard way.

Today, each family took a boat in search of the biggest fish of the day. We had a one dollar bet that would earn the winner seven bucks and bragging rights around the campfire. This has been the custom for the past 20 years, with my "pretty old" buddy Jeff Neitzel. Jeff enjoys giving me a hard time at every possible opportunity.

However, today I enjoyed flinging some dirt his way when I said I was looking forward to taking his dollar as well as his daughter's money.

The sun was hot and I truly did not care if I caught a fish, although I hoped everyone else would. We conversed with the other groups on our two-way radios while we caught a few panfish, a walleye and three or four smallmouth.

I took the time to clean out my boat, tackle box and put the new line on both of my muskie reels while jibber-jabbering back and forth with the Neitzels and Voigts.

We were all pretty much working leeches and crawlers over dropoffs and stumpfields, along with giving Jeff a hard time since his boat was the only one that did not have a fish for supper.

After my first musky rod was rigged with a Top Raider, I set it aside and rigged my other rod up with a Number Six Vibrax, which is basically a bucktail spinner.

In a lame kind of way, I feel it is important to say that since I started fishing musky three years ago, I've yet to catch one.

I decided to test my new line. On the third cast of the Super Vibrax, the water exploded. My rod started bending, and I knew I had my first Musky. Laurie was excellent with the net and, in the end, I caught a fat, 34-inch musky. My life has changed. I want another.

At dinner, there was muttering from my old buddy about how muskies shouldn't count. This made taking his money even more fun.

Sunday, July 21
High 90, Low 62

Jeff and I partake in a go-for-it trophy bow hunt on the feeder rivers of the Flambeau each November. Today, we took three boats on a 16-mile round trip to show everyone where we live each fall.

The journey was an adventure and lots of laughs. The biggest one was on me when I ran out of gas four miles from camp. My only reprieve was the tow in and picture taking when Jeff ran his flat bottom boat into a rock and had to be pulled off.

Paige and Megan Neitzel learned how to paddle a canoe on this adventure. Paige won the big fish bet today with a 16-inch smallmouth. For a final laugh, we cut some hair off Star and tried taping it to Jeff's head while he was sleeping.

He caught us, but now the conspirators have a new goal of giving Jeff a full head of hair.

We had fun!

KEWASKUM INDIANS SPORTS

Many Classes Unrepresented At KHS Alumni Outing

For the past three years, many Kewaskum High School Graduates have golfed in or contributed to the KHS Alumni Challenge Scramble on behalf of their respective graduation class. This year, however, four-somes and prize sponsors are still missing for most classes from the 60s and the 80s.

If you are unable to participate in the actual alumni golf scramble, then individuals can represent their classes by donating raffle or hole event prizes, sponsoring holes and/or attending the catered steak fry dinner. With the classes of 1973 and 1982 winning the Alumni Scramble the past two years, other classes hope to challenge for the title on Friday, August 2 at Hon-E-Kor Golf and Country Club.

Many classes from the 1990s will be attempting to capture the Alumni Challenge title while classes from the 1970s have sponsored several holes and made the most prize donations to date. Boys head golf coach, Glenn Eichstedt's class of 1972 and assistant golf coach Scott Rohlinger's class of 1979 are well represented in both alumni golfers and hole/prize sponsors.

All sponsors, contributors and golfers will enjoy a gourmet steak fry catered by Woody's Steakhouse at the American Legion Hall from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. Nongolfers may partake in the festivities by picking up tickets at the KHS office, Smith-Hatch Insurance Agency and Woody's Steakhouse for a donation of $20.

All individuals involved in the scramble and/or steak fry will be eligible to participate in raffles and athletic memorabilia auction following the awards presentation. Members and coaches of the KHS boys golf team will proudly accept and collect any prize(s) or auction items prior to Friday's festivities. Contact Mr. Rohlinger at 626-2332, Mr. Eichstedt at KHS or at 920-583-4209 or Agent Dennis Butz at 626-2277.

All proceeds from this annual event will be used to provide supplementary support for ongoing athletic programs. Many school district suppliers have donated prizes or are hole sponsors as well. Therefore, everyone involved is a winner by demonstrating your support of the sports programs at the high school level. In conclusion, you are hereby officially invited to help represent your graduating class through your involvement in the Third Annual Kewaskum High School Alumni Golf (Challenge) Scramble and Steak Fry.

Patients coming to the emergency care center at St. Joseph's Community Hospital can depend on its 24-hour staff of board certified emergency physicians, a distinction that not all hospitals can claim and patients should ask about.

Specially trained in a wide range of adult and pediatric emergencies, the emergency physicians at St. Joseph's are also board certified by the American Board of Emergency Medicine, having successfully completed the board's comprehensive examination of their competence in emergency medicine.

When life's emergencies need expert attention, you can depend on St. Joseph's specialists to provide the care you need.
