Town of Wayne Woman Charged With Animal Cruelty, Mistreatment

By Nicole Rawley
 Statesman Staff Writer
 nkuehl@kewaskumstatesman.com

Julianne M. Selmeier of Midland Drive in the town of Wayne, faces up to $40,000 in fines and up to five years and nine months in prison for four counts of cruelty to animals.

The first count, Providing Proper Food and Drink to Confined Animals, stated that on and between May 26 and June 19 of this year, Selmeier did not provide appropriate food and water to keep the animals in good health. The second count, Improper Animal Shelter - Ventilation is based on providing insufficient shelter for the animals on her property. The third count, Mistreating Animals, states that she did negligently treat an animal in a cruel manner. The first three counts are Class A Misdemeanors.

The fourth count, Mistreatment of Animals, stems from a foal that died of malnutrition, as determined by a veterinarian who performed a post-mortem report procedure, on May 28. This states that Selmeier did intentionally treat an animal in a cruel manner, resulting in the animal's death. This is a Class I Felony and carries the stiffest punishment.

Numerous people, including a veterinarian and a worker for the Humane Society visited the farm and agreed that the animals were not taken care of. They were not provided with food, water or clean stalls. Officers observed numerous animals that had visible ribs and that were obviously suffering from malnutrition.

One officer also noted that when he arrived on the property and entered the barn containing 14 horses, the interior was very hot and there were no doors or windows open.

In addition to the 18 horses, there were two donkeys, one goat, three dogs, seven cats and four ducks found on the property. They were all found to be living in poor conditions.

School District Tax Rate Projected to Increase 32¢

By Nicole Rawley
 Statesman Staff Writer

The Kewaskum Board of Education met Monday night to further discuss the 2003-2004 preliminary budget. This year's budget is approximately $16 million and 1.1% higher than last year's budget and as proposed would increase taxes 34¢ to $8.97. The final tax rate will be certified in October.

The board reviewed the documents presented to them and Jeanne Goeden proposed some changes. She proposed that some programs, including some of the middle school activities and high school sports, be reinstated and others be cut.

After much discussion and debate on the issue, Goeden made a motion to approve the budget with her proposed changes. Tammy Weyer seconded the motion, without the elimination of the KES volunteer secretary.

A vote was taken and failed, 1-6.

Goeden then made a second motion but took high school wrestling off of the elimination list. The motion went no further when a second was not found.

In order to move things along, Beth Steiner and Mary Meisser motioned to approve the preliminary budget as it was presented by Business Manager Paul Reichert with the understanding that it is a tentative budget and could be revised. The motion passed with Goeden voting no.

Focus on Farmington & Kewaskum

By Lisa Lickel

llickel@kewaskumstatesman.com

HOMETOWN HERO

Cathy Weinreich of Fillmore has done her part to help save lives. CPR? Pulling someone from a burning wreck?

"It's such a simple thing to do to save a life," she said of her recent effort. Her life-saving feat? She gave a donation of her own stem cells. After fifteen years of being on the National Bone Marrow Registry, Cathy recently was found to be a perfect match to someone in need. "It's the greatest thing I've ever done," Cathy said.

"When they called to tell me that I was a match, I didn't know what to think. I didn't know how to take it because it didn't work twice before." The procedures were cancelled by the recipients. Those who need stem cell or bone marrow transplants are gravely ill from terrible diseases, such as leukemia, and haven't responded to conventional treatment. The stem cells or marrow is used in an attempt to stimulate their own immune systems.

Cathy originally gave a blood sample and agreed to be on the national registry in response to a family from Hartford whose daughter was ill. For this procedure, Cathy had further blood and medical tests, some in West Bend and some in Milwaukee. She and her husband, Glenn, met with a medical coordinator to talk through the procedure and watch a video before making the final decision to go ahead with the "harvest," as it's called. She also received a medication five days prior and including the day of harvest to beef up her stem-cell production. Generally, the harvest is through a similar procedure to donating blood platelets, through veins in the arms. It takes about 3 1/2 hours, and is relatively painless. Costs of the medical testing and harvest were all covered through the Registry and recipients; there is usually a fee for the initial blood test to be included on the Registry.

They were very attentive and considerate, calling to make sure everything was going okay for Cathy during the days before and after the harvest, she shared. She was monitored closely all the while and asked to stay home from work the next day because she received a blood thinner. "Otherwise I felt fine, and it would have been okay to go back to work."

"You feel bad because of the person being ill," she said, "but I was just so excited (to be able to help). You're in the hospital but well, thinking about your blessings," Cathy said. The donor and recipient are unknown to each other for at least a year, then may contact one another if agreed. "People have the perception that this procedure is painful and nasty, when it isn't," Cathy said. "I hope more people become aware that they can do this."

Hometown hero? You bet! Cathy doesn't see it that way, though. "I just looked at it as an opportunity."

Find out more about the National Marrow Donor Program through the web at marrow.org or call 1-800-526-7809. Better yet, organize a registry drive in your organization or community.

FARMINGTON BASEBALL UPDATE

Coach Jane Meyer reports that her Senior 2 Girls team defeated Long Lake at Farmington Wednesday June 18. Farmington - 8 Long Lake 7. It took all seven innings to win the match. "We did not play our best game. Erika Hughes pitched a great game walking none and striking out one," stated Meyer Farmington 2 is now 3-0.

Fourth Radio Controlled Emergency Siren Installed In Village

By Andrew Kuehl
Statesman Editorial Staff
akuehl@kewaskumstatesman.com

Kewaskum's Emergency Government coordinator, Richard Knoebel, announced Tuesday that by week end the village's fourth radio controlled emergency siren will be up and running.

The siren is the fourth in a series of sirens that have been installed over the past two years. This siren cost the village $9,000 which had been budgeted for. The siren was purchased from American Signal.

American Signal Corporation has been designing and manufacturing warning systems for 60 years. Their client base includes municipal governments, industrial facilities, and military bases.

The significance of these sirens is they give Kewaskum patrol officers the ability to sound the siren from their cruisers and can be on the look out for foul weather or other emergency situations. Before a patrolman needed to sound the siren from the police station.

Though this improves village residents for emergency situations, it is not foolproof. "Sirens are not made to help people inside structures, they are to alert people outdoors to take shelter," stated Knoebel.

Knoebel further stated that this addition would help residents on the southern end of town. The most southerly siren was located at the Fire Station blowing south. The newly installed siren blows in a westerly direction that follows a storm wind pattern.

The other three sirens are located on Reigle Drive, Knights Avenue and the Fire station. Knoebel believes this latest siren will serve the village well into the future noting it has a range of two miles of the CTH H West and Kettleview Drive intersection.

Women's Club Plants Flowers

Shown above, left to right, Kewaskum Women's Club members Joyce Schlef, Gwendolyn Dreher and Jane Siegel "dig in" to a portion of the Village Beautification Project. The flowers for the 15 pots located throughout the village were purchased through PW Floral and funded by the Women's Club, Kewaskum Area Chamber of Commerce and the Village Park Department. This year the Women's Club also purchased 30 American flags from Kewaskum's American Legion Post #389 for the flower pots in support of the troops and the USA. The Kewaskum Women's Club committee plants the flowers and maintains the pots throughout the summer months. The KWC Beautification judging will be done in late July with five awards being presented to village residents at the village board meeting being held on August 4.

STATESMAN CORRESPONDENT

The Kewaskum Junior Women's Club made a citizens' appearance at the Kewaskum Village Board meeting Monday, June 16 updating the Trustees on the playground fundraiser and ribbon cutting ceremony scheduled for August 2, 2003.

President Matthew Heiser explained that the library summer reading program is going well, and that there is a Brat Fry for the library scheduled for August 2, 2003 at Mike's Country Meats in Kewaskum.

The Board then made a motion to accept Resolution No. 2003-17 authorizing the renewal of agreement for participation in the Suburban Mutual Assistance Response Teams. This allows law enforcement in other locations to extend aid when necessary.

Finally, the Village Board discussed establishing an "Application Review Procedural Manual" for the Board and plan Commission. This would be a procedure to deal with fees and time restrictions on engineers and developers working on village projects. The Board agreed that because of the numerous developments in Kewaskum a procedure would be efficient and helpful. Administrator Dan Schmidt will prepare a temporary policy for the Board to review.

Frank Beesten and Raynor Herriges were honored with Proclamations of Appreciation. Frank Beesten dedicated nine years to the Kewaskum Library Board, and Raynor Herriges served on the Village Board of Appeals for six years.

Five Injured In C-sport Crash

By Andrew Kuehl
akuehl@kewaskumstatesman.com

A Kewaskum man was one of five people injured in a two-vehicle accident Sunday afternoon at 4:26.

The crash unfolded on CTH G at CTH SS in the Town of Auburn when a sport utility vehicle driven by Ryan S. Witt, 17 of Fond du Lac allegedly proceeded west through the intersection after stopping. Upon proceeding he collided with a southbound pick-up truck driven by Jeremy T. Knorr, 20, of Kewaskum.

In an attempt to avoid Witt, Knorr swerved left but was unsuccessful and the two impacted each other. Witt's vehicle spun counter-clockwise and came to rest on its roof in the west ditch of CTH G. Knorr's vehicle spun sideways and entered the east ditch and overturned. In the whole ordeal Knorr was ejected from his vehicle.

Fond du Lac County Sheriff's deputies arrived on scene. The five were transported by Kewaskum and Campbellsport EMS to St. Joseph's Community Hospital in West Bend and St. Agnes Hospital in Fond du Lac. All of the victims were treated and released.

Plans Set For 99th Annual C-Sport Firemen's Picnic

The tradition of the Campbellsport Volunteer Firemen's picnic and parade, celebrated annually on Independence day, is embedded in most of the areas residents, memories as much as the rolling hills that surround this quaint village. Fireworks, food, music, and the large parade are just a few of the traditions past down from generation to generation. People from all over the state flock to this area to celebrate the Fourth of July and to support the local firemen.

This year the firemen have approached the Campbellsport community to help keep the celebration a success. And the community, including the Campbellsport Area Chamber of Commerce (CACC), has come through in a variety of ways. First, the Campbellsport Lions Club donated $750 for radio advertising to promote the celebration. Joining in the support, were the Campbellsport Jaycees and Randy Gremminger of Trendsetters in Beechwood. They donated two large 4x8' colorful signs you can not miss as you enter the village limits valued at close to $300.

Other organizations have contributed in other ways besides monetary support. The Campbellsport FFA plans to have a booth at the park promoting the area's fine agricultural opportunities. Multi, a Fond du Lac sports marketing company, will be doing a free BMX bike demonstration at the Fireman's Park at 4:30pm on July 4th. Area athletes will be performing eye-popping stunts that will make their parents cringe and the crowd of onlookers go wild. The Campbellsport Library and the Campbellsport Village will also be running a "dunk tank" on July 4th where you will be able to take your shot at local celebrities.

The CACC has also contributed their talents. This organization, made up of local businesses in our area, has worked closely this year with the firemen to make the parade and picnic a success. CACC members will help staff the picnic during its busiest times. Before the start of the July 4th parade, which marches down Main Street starting at 12:00, the CACC will also be selling raffle tickets along the parade route.

Realizing that this is an event for all ages, the CACC

the Campbellsport Boy's Scouts, sweet corn, and much more await those that attend. For more information on many of the events go to www.campbellsport.org.

The parade and picnic offer an opportunity for residents to get to know the person that lives across the street or shares the backyard. A laugh is shared, perhaps a beer is offered, and suddenly the residents of this quiet town feel a little safer and a little closer.

There are many other organizations, businesses, and individuals, that help with this event including all those that have an entry in the parade or make a cash donation to the firemen. Let this article serve as a "thank you" for their often-anonymous efforts. But, of course the real story is the months of preparation it requires to plan such an event. The volunteer firemen spend hundreds of hours to make this event one that the community can be proud of. Not only do the fireman volunteer to serve our community by fighting fires and saving lives, they plan this community event to raise money sure, but more importantly to bring the community together. It is a year round process to coordinate the bands (featuring Oil Can Harry on July 3rd this year), the parade, the food, and to put on a huge fireworks display on the night of July 4th.

The volunteer firemen and all the people that help them out hope you spread the word about the 99th annual Campbellsport Firemen's Picnic and Parade.

It's always helpful to learn from your mistakes because then your mistakes seem worthwhile.

along with the firemen met with Mr. Turchany's high school business class in a round table setting to brainstorm ideas for this year and for the future. Conceived at this meeting, the CACC will be hosting the first ever "Boom Pull." Five-man teams from the area will attempt to pull a large crane loaded with shingles-- over 31 tons in all-- at the park from 3:30-7pm on July 4th. Koffman Auto Body and Campbellsport Building Supply have donated a total of $750 for the 1st place team. Eric Zurn, of EZ Karaoke, has donated his time and equipment to DJ the boom pull. Hopefully Eric's tunes and these strong men will draw large crowds to cheer them on.

Other events include carnival rides, games offered by

Kewaskum Fireworks Celebration

By Andrew Kuehl
Statesman Editorial Staff
akuehl@kewaskumstatesman.com

Once again the Kewaskum Fire Department will dazzle Kewaskum residents and neighboring communities with the fireworks display July third in Riverhill Park.

Fireworks have been a growing tradition in Kewaskum. Each year the celebration gets bigger thanks to donations from businesses and community members. Donations are already being accepted for next year, they can be dropped off at the village hall.

Riverhill Park will open at 5 p.m. Thursday, July 3. Firefighters will be frying those delicious seasoned patties, brats and french fries, or do we still call them freedom fries? Either way, anything prepared by the firefighters are sure to please the palette. Liquid refreshments are also available.

Illusion will again take the stage in the beergarden from 8 until midnight.

All monies raised from food sales are used to purchase equipment and pay for training that could be used to save your life. Leave the cooler, snacks and food at home and support your firefighters!

The Kewaskum Kiwanis Club will also be stationed in the ice cream stand selling, soda, popcorn and glow novelties.

In a joint effort, the firemen and Kiwanis members completed a new kitchen on the grounds. The project was funded by the Kiwanis Club with many man hours put in by the firefighters.

Most Injury Related Deaths in Children Occur During Summer

May through August account for nearly half of all injury-related childhood deaths, with July being the deadliest month. Unintentional injury remains the leading killer of children under 14.

Deaths among children ages 10 to 14 increased most dramatically. 45% occurred in the summer months. Deaths among children ages 5-9 also increased substantially.

The majority of these deaths were a result of bike, pedestrian, motor vehicle occupant injury, falls and drowning. (May 3, 2001 National Safe Kids Campaign Report). "Drowning remains the second leading cause of unintentional injury, according to the May

1, 2003 National Safe Kids Report.

According to Dr. Martin Erichelbe, president of Safe Kids, "more can be done to keep kids safe." "Child injuries are not inevitable; they are preventable."

What parents can do now: Children over 12 should wear a lap shoulder belt. Restrain children under 12 in the back seat properly on every motor vehicle ride. Rear face infants until at least one year of age and 20 lbs. Children over one, weighing 20 to 40 lbs, should ride in forward facing child safety seats. Children from 40 to 80 lbs. or about four to eight years of age should be in booster seats with lap shoulder belts until they fit properly in a lap/shoulder belt.

Children should be actively supervised by an adult when they are near water. They should always wear a U.S. Coast Guard - approved personal flotation device when on a boat, near open bodies of water or when participating in water sports. Air filled aids, such as "water wings" are not considered substitutes for PFD's.

For information on summer safety, log on to www.co.washington.wi.us/ch and click on National Safe Kids Campaign, or call the Washington County Health Department at 335-4462 or stop in their waiting room, 333 E. Washington, Suite 1100, West Bend.

They have produced three unique recordings together, Waterdance, Heartwood, and Night Dancer and are included in Narada's collection of international harpists CD entitled Faces of the Harp. ## Klitzkie Closes The Book With The Kewaskum School District

By Sheri Baldikowski
Statesman Features Writer
sbaldikowski@kewaskumstatesman.com

Bonnie Klitzkie retired June 12, 2003 after 25 years of teaching various Business classes at Kewaskum High School. She graduated from UW-Whitewater in 1964 and received her Masters Degree from the same school in 1969. While working on her Masters, and, after receiving it, Bonnie taught in the Wisconsin cities of Clinton and Viola. She came to Kewaskum as a sub in 1977 and became a regular full-time business teacher in 1972.

Bonnie has taught all the Business classes, including Shorthand, Typing, Record Keeping, Accounting, Business Law, and Computer Accounting. She has seen "typing" go from manual to electric typewriters to computers! She is emphatic about all her students knowing the basic manual accounting system (which has not changed in all these years), BEFORE they can begin to do computer accounting programming. Although Bonnie was strictly "business", she did help out with the timing at various track meets and attended many sports events to see her students play.

Bonnie and her husband, Ron, who is also retiring as Librarian at Random Lake School, live in Random Lake and plan on staying in their home and doing some of "those" projects we all say we are going to do when we retire! They also want to spend more quality time with their children, Nick, 30 (Becky), daughter Penny, 32 (John), and their two granddaughters, Megan, age 21 and Joslyn, age one. Traveling is also on their retirement itinerary.

Bonnie said that she will always remember all the good students, whose lives she influenced, that have gone on into the Business Field. Well, Bonnie, we are sure all those students and many more will always remember you! Even though we wish you all the best of luck, your absence will be felt by many.

The Statesman will be running features on all of the school district's retiring educators in upcoming editions.

Howard Schneider Stays 'In Tune' With His Client's Needs

By Sheri Baldikowski
Statesman Features Writer
sbaldikowski@kewaskumstatesman.com

Many may recognize the name Howard Schneider from his musical groups, others from his part-time job as a police officer in Kewaskum from 1979-1999. Now though, he has done extensive remodeling of the old Homeplate restaurant and moved his agency into his new offices at 1523 Fond du Lac Ave., Kewaskum.

The Howard Schneider Agency, whose motto is "Proud to serve you", carries a diversified product portfolio such as Life and Health Insurance, including long term care plans, tax advantaged retirement vehicles, deferred variable annuities, mutual funds, and individual and group business insurance and other plans.

Howard feels it is essential to carry a vast array of products so he can stay "in tune" with the financial needs of his diversified clientele. It is music to HIS ears to hear a satisfied client sing praises of a financial plan they have worked out together.

To offer his expertise to his clients, Howard must keep current with the industry and tax law changes and he has no "sour notes" as far as this category goes as he has received many certifications. There are many "initials" given to certifications which the average "lay" person is clueless about, no matter which agent you are, so, we shall explain them as we stroll through Howard's itinerary, so the populous has an idea about what all financial representatives may or may not have accredited to themselves.

To receive his licenses in life and health insurance, he not only had to learn about insurance, but also must know his state laws and pass individual tests. He must continue his education per state mandate, getting continuing education (CE) credits as long as he holds these licenses. Howard attained his Series Seven NASD (Nation Association of Security Dealers) license after a great deal of studying, which culminates in an extremely difficult test. This license allows him to sell individual stocks, (through a brokerage firm), mutual funds, and variable products. Fees must be paid and ongoing educational credits must be earned yearly to retain these licenses.

Howard is also a CLU (Certified Life Underwriter), which entailed taking several courses similar to college accredited courses, with individual testing. Howard really jumped on the financial bandwagon when he became a CFP (Certified Financial Planner). The education for this designation develops theoretical and financial planning knowledge by completing a comprehensive course of study at a college or university, with programming registered with the CFP Board.

He also had to pass a comprehensive, two-day, 10 hour exam covering the financial planning process, employee benefits, insurance, investment management and tax, retirement and estate planning. The CFP designation is a mark of quality with a commitment to ethical conduct and financial planning practical standards.

Howard's most recent achievement was to receive his CSA (Certified Senior Advisor designation, which, once again, was attained through a rigorous course of instruction in the concerns facing seniors, followed by a comprehensive exam to demonstrate the knowledge attained in meeting the needs of senior clients. After receiving the CSA designation, Howard is now provided with monthly medical, social and financial issues that are important to older adults, which Howard feels is mandatory for him to have to keep abreast of the special needs of our aging society.

Howard's expertise can be captured at any of his seminars (currently on Medicare Supplements and Long Term Care) or when he appears as a guest speaker for various groups. Although Howard did not start the financial business until 1984, he has truly orchestrated a great deal of knowledge in the last 19 years.

Prior to 1984, Howard received an undergraduate degree and a master's degree in music, taught music and/or band at Horicon, Chilton, and West Bend, and was in NORAD (North American Air Defense) Command Band. While serving his three years in the air force. He played trumpet and piano and says it was quite an experience traveling all over the USA and Canada with the band.

Howard's main "hobby" continues to be his music. He mainly plays the trumpet, piano, saxophone and clarinet, but he also sings and arranges the music for the band. He contracts out in several types of musical groups including Dixieland, Polkas, Big band, (including the leadership of the Jan Garber orchestra), but he also does solos and trios.

He predominantly performs locally so as not to interfere with his financial business, but, he does go out of state over weekends and centers his vacations on cruises where he also plays, averaging a total of 80-100 jobs per year. When Howard is out of the office, his "right arm", Nancy Brodzeller can handle just about any situation. Nancy has an impressive background herself in the financial industry, having worked for the Bohn agency for 14 years previously. It is just Howard and

Howard Schneider

Nancy in their newly remodeled office for now, but, they are thinking of future expansion.

Howard and his wife, Janet, have been residents of Kewaskum since 1979. They have two children in college, Jonathan, 23, and Kathryn, 20, as well as Dan, 18 (fall college) and Lindsay, 12 at home. In his "spare" time, Howard also likes golfing, bowling, fishing and sports. He studies daily to keep current of the changes in the industry, in tax laws and in his clients changing financial needs. Howard is financially and musically "a leader of the band".

LeMahieu Votes Aye on 2003-2005 Biennial Budget

Madison -- State Representative Dan LeMahieu (R-Oostburg) was pleased to honor one of his primary pledges as a candidate running in the 59th Assembly District, voting in favor of a budget that did not raise taxes. LeMahieu commended his colleagues in both the state Senate and State Assembly for working and passing a budget bill promptly for the first time in over 20 years.

"We passed the state budget in a timely fashion, this is a huge step in controlling government spending within the State of Wisconsin," said LeMahieu.

Both the State Senate and Assembly voted in a bi-partisan manor to support the version of the state budget that was prepared and passed by the Joint Finance Committee. Many legislators considered the budget passed by both houses of the legislature a drastic improvement to the original budget proposed by Governor Jim Doyle.

LeMahieu commented, "Our budget taxes less, spends less and borrows less than the bill that was proposed by the Governor."

Highlighted points within the budget bill passed by the legislature:

- Freeze state government operations for the next three years, while cutting state bureaucratic spending.

- The legislative version of the budget protects Wisconsin taxpayers by freezing local property tax levies, allowing increases only when growth occurs for a period of three years. According to the Legislative Fiscal Bureau, governor Doyle's budget would raise property taxes 9.45% if local spending increased to compensate for his proposed shared revenue levels.

- Constructs a new method of distributing Shared Revenue that will allow more dollars to be placed in 70% of Wisconsin's cities, towns and villages. The legislative budget applies the shared revenue formula fairly across the board to cities, villages, and towns, giving police and fire services first draw on state funds.

- Despite facing the largest budget deficit in state history, the legislature increases funding for Wisconsin K-12 schools by over 200 million. Increases funding for education per student by $120.00 in fiscal year 2003-2004 and $100.00 in Fiscal year 2004-2005. In addition, the budget passed by the legislature allows school districts to enroll their employees in the state's health insurance plan. Taking advantage of this savings will allow districts to reduce their health care costs and direct more money towards the classroom.

- Restores Wisconsin's Autism Program, which was originally eliminated within Governor Doyle's budget. The budget passed by the legislature funds intensive home-based treatment for autistic children, providing over $17 million for children to receive intensive home-based treatment.

- Restores Personal Needs Allowance to $45.00. Governor Doyle cut the Personal Needs Allowance (PNA) for nursing home residents from $45 to $30 per month. The PNA helps nursing home residents purchase basic personal items like gifts, beauty shop appointments, etc.

- Despite the deficit, legislators maintained funding for Senior Care, considered one of the most generous senior prescription drug programs in the nation.

- Reduced Wisconsin's Stewardship Fund to $25 million within this budget, thus limiting additional land purchases to only the most necessary state land acquisitions.

With passage of this bill by both houses and legislature, the budget now returns to Governor Doyle for signature. Legislators, including Representative LeMahieu are urging the Governor to honor his campaign promises by keeping the property tax levy freeze within the budget, while supporting the new shared Revenue ideas that were brought forth by members. Finally, following the legislature's lead in protecting Wisconsin's most needy and vulnerable all without raising taxes.

LeMahieu concluded, "The budget that was passed by the legislature is a bill that my colleagues and I can take back to our constituents, the taxpayers of Wisconsin, and show them that state government has taken the lead in improving Wisconsin's financial future."

How to Decide When You Should Retire

Whether it's working on a home improvement project or on your financial plans, it's nailing down the details that can be frustrating.

Take retirement. Most folks reach a point where they know they want to retire: the kids are gone, the mortgage is paid down (if not off) and they no longer look forward to the 9 to 5 life. If they're lucky and they've put a little money aside, they may decide the time is near for taking the gold-plated watch from the folks at the office and spending afternoons on the golf course or in the garden.

But then there's those nagging details: should I retire this year, or the year after that? Will I have enough money coming in? And what about health care?

Well, the Social Security Administration is always happy to help people work through those issues. Most folks know that they can retire as early as age 62 and take a reduction in their monthly retirement benefit payments of 20 or more percent. And they know they can wait until their full retirement age and get unreduced benefits. But they don't always know what is the right choice.

We explain that the right choice is whatever is right for them. We show how much their benefits would be reduced and remind them that the reduction is permanent. But we also point out that if they choose to retire early, they'll be getting benefits over a longer period of time. A person whose health is not good may decide that the early benefits are best for them. Every choice is a personal one.

A person who is unsure about the decision to quit work may decide to wait. Some folks don't have hobbies, or other retirement plans, and might be all but lost without work. And we always point out that at full retirement age, they can get their benefits and still work.

How about those other questions about how much money you'll have? And health benefits? Social Security has a great calculator on our website - www.ssa.gov/planners - that helps people work through what they'll be getting from Social Security, and we connect to another site that helps calculate pension and savings income.

As to health benefits, if workers can't carry their employer's health insurance into retirement, then we always point out that Medicare doesn't usually kick in until age 65. That means that they should make other plans for health coverage until they become eligible for Medicare.

So here's the bottom line for anyone even thinking about retirement: give us a call, or visit our office or website. Social Security representatives want to be sure that people know as much as possible about the details when it's time to make one of life's big decisions.

IN MEMORIAN

In loving memory of SELMA "SALLY" LAWRENZ who was called home to be with her Lord on June 30, 2002.

God saw you getting weaker, So He did what He thought best,

He came and stood beside you And whispered, "Come and Rest." We could not understand it, No matter how we tried, If love alone could save you. You never would have died. You were gone before we knew it,

And only God knows why. We think of her with love today, As we have done so often, And felt once more the sudden blow, That does not seem to soften.

Dear God, forgive a silent tear: A silent wish that she were here.

Others are taken, yes, we know, But she was ours, and we loved her so.

A thought, a prayer, a silent tear, Keeps her presence ever near.

Sadly missed by family and friends.

Oh Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth, I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in my necessity (make request). There are none that can withstand your power. Oh Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (three times). Say this prayer for three consecutive days and then you must publish and it will be granted to you. Grateful thanks.

Social Security News

By: Mary Byrns, District Manager
712 Park Ave., West Bend 262-338-6182

Sometime last month, you probably saw news reports about the Social Security trust funds. In those reports, you may have read that tax revenues will fall below program costs in the year 2018, and that the Social Security trust funds will be exhausted by 2042.

"This report is yet another reminder of what we have known for some time: Social Security's long-term financing problems are very serious and will not be fixed by wishful thinking alone," said JoAnne Barnhart, Commissioner of Social Security. "I want to assure those already receiving Social Security benefits - as well as those who are close to retirement - that your benefits are secure. But doing nothing will have serious consequences for our children and grandchildren," she added.

Because the news reports might have piqued your interest about the subject, I thought it might be a good idea to give you a little background on how Social Security is funded. Today's Social Security taxes pay the benefits of today's retirees. Money in excess of what is needed to pay today's benefits is invested in special issue, interest-bearing Treasury bonds.

This system works well when there is a relatively high ratio of workers to beneficiaries. For instance, in 1965, there were four workers for every Social Security recipient.

But the demographics are changing. People are living longer. The first baby boomers are just five years from retirement. The birth rate is low. Today, there are 3.3 workers paying Social Security payroll taxes for every one person collecting Social Security benefits. That number will drop to two to one in less than 40 years. At this ratio, there will not be enough workers to pay scheduled benefits at current tax rates.

The Trustees Report indicated that the sooner the long-term funding challenges facing Social Security are addressed, the less abrupt the changes will have to be.

"Social Security retirement, disability and survivors' components touch the lives of nearly every American family," Commissioner Barnhart stated. "For the sake of our children and grandchildren, we must come together to meet the challenges facing this vitally important program.

Protect Yourself from Mosquito Bites by Using Insect Repellent

Mosquitoes seem to be an inevitable nuisance that return annually with the warm weather. Some mosquitoes have been detected to carry potentially serious viruses like West Nile Virus. The Washington County Health Department recommends using an insect repellent to reduce exposure to mosquito bites, while allowing you to continue to play and work outdoors.

Many of the mosquitoes that carry the West Nile Virus are especially likely to bite around dusk and dawn. If you are outdoors around these times, it is important to apply repellent. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), reports that repellents containing N, N-diethyl-m-toluamide, commonly known as DEET, have shown to be the most effective in reducing insect bites.

A higher percentage of DEET in repellent does not mean that your protection is better—just that it will last long. DEET concentrations above 50% do not increase the length of protection.

Based on a recent study, a production containing 23.8% DEET provided an average of five hours of protection and those containing 20% DEET, almost four hours of protection. Products with 6.65% DEET provides almost two hours, and products with 4.75% provide roughly an hour and a half hour of protection.

The American Academy of Pediatrics has recommended a cautious approach when applying DEET to children, 10% or less for ages 2-12. Be sure to apply an appropriate level of repellent consistent with the amount of time you will be outdoors.

Follow the directions on the product you are using in order to determine how frequently you need to reapply the repellent. Sweating, perspiration, or getting wet may mean that you need to re-apply more frequently.

If you are not getting bitten, it is not necessary to re-apply. When used according to directions, products containing DEET are very safe. The CDC indicates that repellent products that do not contain DEET are not likely to offer the same degree of protection from mosquito bites. Non-DEET repellents have not necessarily been as thoroughly studied as DEET, and may not be safe for use on children.

There are no reported adverse events following use of repellents containing DEET on pregnant or breastfeeding women.

Use of Comm-83 Septic Systems Expanding in Washington County

Since the adoption and implementation of the new COMM-83 provisions in July of 2000, use of the new technologies permitted has continued to gain acceptance by local designers and installers of the Privately Owned Wastewater Treatment Systems. Several of these technologies are intended to provide additional pre-treatment of effluent before it enters the environment. In some instances, this also allows for a reduction in the size of the treatment cells required or a reduction in the separation distance between the bottom of the treatment field and the limiting factors including groundwater. These technologies have helped many property owners overcome site constraints that would have resulted in the site not being able to be developed or allows for the installation of an on-site system instead of a holding tank in the case of a replacement system.

While these technologies help overcome some of the site constraints, they frequently add to the cost of the system and require more vigilance over the long term when dealing with the maintenance of the system and its components. Systems of this type sometimes require an actual signed contract with a maintenance contractor before permits can be obtained and the system installed. Since July of 2000, all systems that are reviewed and approved require an Operational Management Plan.

Systems utilizing the technologies advanced in COMM-83 have been designed and installed in Washington County and other portions of the State for some time as experimental systems. County records show that the following systems have been installed in Washington County: 2 Constructed wetlands; 6 Re-circulating and single pass sand filters; 1 Drip-line 35 A+4 mounds; 63 Gravel-less systems; and 36 Sand blankets. In addition, 24 Aeration tanks and 843 Effluent filters have been installed since July of 2000.

At this point, it does not appear that these new technologies have impacted the development patterns in Washington County as they have in other portions of the State. The use of A +4 mounds is the only system design that has had any significant use in the development of new subdivisions and certified survey maps.

If you have any questions concerning these technologies or related issues, feel free to contact the Planning and Parks Department at (262) 335-4445. Ask for one of the Land Use Inspectors and they can provide you with additional information in response to your inquiries.

County Health Dept. Cooperating With Monkeypox Investigation

The Washington County Health Department is cooperating fully with local, regional and state Public Health partners in the ongoing investigation of the Monkeypox outbreak. Follow-up is occurring on any reasonable link to the outbreak.

Regular consultation is occurring with the state Division of Public Health (DPH) and other Health Departments in southeast Wisconsin.

The Washington County Health Department has been investigating calls from the hotlines and referrals from other area health departments with no confirmed cases at this time. Public Health Nurses are contacting individuals and completing a standard questionnaire developed by state epidemiologists.

Three individuals from Washington County, two adults who had contact with prairie dogs in veterinary settings outside of the county and a child who had contact with a rabbit purchased from one of the pet stores in the Milwaukee area known to have prairie dogs, have been seen by healthcare providers to collect samples. None have been hospitalized.

Pet stores who have had any previous business with those stores affected in the Milwaukee area have been contacted for additional information and assistance. All pet stores and veterinarians in Washington County

Exposure of Skin to Wild Parsnip And Sun Can Cause Severe Burns

MADISON -- Early summer is a good time to recognize and remove wild parsnip, a common weed found throughout Wisconsin, which when people are exposed to in sunlight, can cause serious burns to skin.

Wild parsnip (Pastinaca sativa) can be found on roadsides, open fields, prairies or other sunny sites. When a person's skin comes in contact with wild parsnip it causes the skin to become photo-sensitive, which is why exposure to sunlight can cause extreme blistering.

"Now is the best time to recognize this plant," says Kelly Kearns, a native plant conservationist with the Department of Natural Resources Endangered Resources Program. "Mid-June to early July is when wild parsnip develops large, coarse flower stalks topped with yellow umbrella-like flower clusters. The flower stalks may reach 2 to 5 feet high, while the long divided basal leaves grow 8 to 16 inches long."

Another difficulty in treating the effects of wild parsnip, Eagan says, is that parsnip burns resemble the effects of poison ivy on skin. Because many people are aware of the rash caused by exposure to poison ivy, parsnip burns are often misdiagnosed and treated as poison ivy.

Prevention is most important in order to avoid the irritating burns and blisters and possible long lasting skin discoloration.

"By learning how to recognize wild parsnip in different seasons and stages of growth, you can protect yourself and remove it when risk of exposure is at its lowest," Kearns says. "Some people pull up the wild parsnip in the evening after the sun has gone down. Wearing long gloves, long sleeves and pants can protect your skin as well. If exposure to the plant does occur, the sooner you thoroughly wash the area, the less you will be affected and may prevent the blisters from forming."

"As this is a very invasive plant, early detection and eradication is the best way to control wild parsnip and keep it from spreading," Kearns says. "Cutting the root of each plant just below the ground level or pulling it out of ground that is wet can prevent resprouting and effectively control small populations of parsnip."

Large populations can be mowed from late June through early July during the early flowering phase to prevent flowers from spreading seed. Since plants die soon after flowering, preventing seeds from developing is the key to control. Cutting off and disposing of flowerheads before the seeds turn brown is effective on small populations. If more people learn to identify and remove wild parsnip, we have a greater chance of controlling this painful weed from spreading to our parks and burning children and adults.

According to David Eagan, a Madison area naturalist, the effects of exposure to wild parsnip are not immediate.

"Blisters appear a day or two after sun exposure," Eagan says. "Parsnip burns often appear as streaks and long spots. Then the skin may discolor dark red or brownish in the area where the burn occurred. This hyper-pigmentation can persist in the skin for as long as two years."

To treat a burn from wild parsnip Eagan recommends covering the affected area with a cool, wet cloth. If blisters form, it is best to keep them from rupturing for as long as possible. The blisters protect the skin below while it heals so if a blister pops, try to leave the skin in place. To avoid infection, keep the area clean and apply an antibiotic cream. When extreme blistering occurs it is best to consult a physician.

Turkey Hunters Set Spring Harvest Record

MADISON -- Wisconsin turkey hunters put another record spring turkey harvest into the books, registering 42,237 birds -- an increase of 7 percent over the 2002 spring harvest of 39,336. Hunters took advantage of an expanding turkey population and an increased number of hunting permits.

"Hunters continue to set new harvest records, something I wouldn't have predicted even a few years ago," says Keith Warnke, Department of Natural Resources upland game ecologist. "But there are a number of things coming together that make it possible. While hunter success rates have been pretty stable at around 25 percent overall in recent years, the state turkey population continues to expand its range. In addition, bird density within that range is increasing and both factors lead to a larger number of harvest permits."

"This season also set a high mark for hunter safety," adds Tim Lawhern, DNR hunter education coordinator. "This was just the second spring turkey season since 1991 to be completely accident free. Hunters who participated in this year's hunt can be proud about that because every one of them contributed to a safe hunt. I'd like to throw out a challenge the fall turkey hunters to match this high point."

Biologists estimate that turkey population densities now exceed 26 birds per square mile in some wooded areas. An effort to develop a turkey habitat model is underway and if successful, will provide a uniform basis for turkey population estimates. As the birds have expanded into new areas of the state, biologists have created new population management zones based largely on road boundaries for the purpose of managing the hunt. Habitat types vary across the zones and total turkey habitat needs to be documented, say biologists.

"While the overall turkey population is increasing, there are variations in the population picture across the state," said Warnke. "For instance, in the southwest, populations have remained stable for several years with the balance between recruitment and mortality and survival remaining roughly equal. In pretty much the remainder of the state, recruitment has outpaced mortality and survival leading to a steady population growth. As long as that trend continues, I expect we can look forward to increasing permit numbers and harvest totals as long as hunter success rates remain about the same."

Once native to Wisconsin, the wild turkey was reintroduced in Vernon County in 1976. The turkeys released there came from Missouri in an exchange with Missouri wildlife managers for Wisconsin ruffed grouse that they released in their state. Eventually, a total of 335 Missouri birds were released in Wisconsin. As they prospered, Wisconsin biologists captured and translocated birds to new areas of Wisconsin. By 2000 the population had grown to an estimated 200,000 birds statewide.

Looking ahead to the fall hunt, Warnke cautions that until poult, or turkey young-of-the-year, counts are completed in August, it's difficult to predict a fall hunt but conditions so far appear to favor a strong recruitment. Additional information about Wisconsin's turkey program, hunting seasons and turkey management can be found on the Department of Natural Resources Web site.

Indians Participate in Two 'Ten Run Rule' Games

By Lisa Lickel

The Kewaskum Indians Boys Baseball sport a three and six record in conference play, with makeup and continuation of games yet to come. Games on Friday the 13th against Kiel and the next Tuesday against Sheboygan Falls were both stopped after the "10-Run Rule" was called.

The Indians beat Kiel, but lost to Falls. Lack of cohesive infielding and inexperience at key spots has cost the team. "I tell the players that what they do off field affects the team," said Coach Donath.

He lost key players to ineligibility. One bright spot will be the return of veteran graduated senior Jake Wilson, expected back this last week.

Pitcher Matt Hartmann shone at the first of a double-header against Roncalli on June 6, taking his team to a 14-0 win. Travis Kempf took the mound for the second game, a 3-3 tiebreaker which was called due to dark in the eighth and has yet to be finished.

Hartmann pitched on June 17 at the Two Rivers game, giving up three runs in the first inning. Stolen bases and hesitation on missed balls added up to significant damage. The only run scored was in the second when Garrett Mlejnek came in on a Hartmann bouncer to right. Though the Indians put two more men on base, they couldn't bring any more home.

The next home games at the Kiwanis Park will be on Friday, June 27 against Two Rivers. Both begin at 5:30 p.m.
