Call of The Wild Opens on Long Lake

Call of The Wild owner, Barbara Rettler with her children, Justine and Joseph. The trio is shown behind the bar of the completely renovated building

BY AMY SWANSON

The Call of Wild restaurant will tame your taste buds. Located just north of Campbellsport on Long Lake, it's a call worth answering. Owner, Barb Rettler said business has been strong and steady since they opened last spring. "Tourism this summer has definitely picked up with the weather finally turning the corner," Rettler said. "I'm definitely seeing more people." Veteran campers say Call of the Wild is a welcome addition to the Long Lake area. "Campers who have come here for 40 - 50 years are very pleased with it remodeled," Rettler said. With encouragement from a friend to open the old Millies Pub, Rettler decided to pursue opening a restaurant. She has worked in the restaurant business for 25 years. "It's in my blood," she said. "We have a beautiful view of Long Lake," she said. "When people walk in the door, they know exactly what we are about. I want people to feel like they walked into up North." The five wolf murals and the pine woodwork complement the restaurants menu. "We can accommodate anybody," Rettler said. "We've got everything from burgers, steaks and salmon. You won't go away hungry. Call of the Wild also offers all you can eat fish fry for $7.95. The restaurant is smoke-free and family friendly, Rettler said, so kids are welcome. "We have a lot of regulars, campers and lake people. We have lake access, so people can come right up to our pier. "It's nice to have a restaurant that's not really buried in the woods. We are right on HWY 67, which is a major tourist route for bikes and motor homes. "It's rewarding doing the work for myself this time," Rettler said. "I accomplished this with my family and friends. It's something we accomplished together." Rettler is grateful for all of the support she received to capture her dream. "My family was a big help in putting this together; my husband, kids, brothers and sisters. It's definitely an effort by all of my family. They helped with the realization of a dream." Cost of lunches rise at Kewaskum schools this year

BY NICOLE KUEHL

Milk prices at the Kewaskum schools will be increasing for the upcoming school year. We've all noticed a higher price tag for gallons of milk, and now the schools must compensate for the higher rate. Prices for a single carton of milk will be 5¢ higher than last school year, bringing the price to 30¢ a carton. Upon Food Service Director Kathy Robinson's research, she found that the majority of districts are also raising their milk prices. In other news, the board set the high school graduation date and time for June 11, 2005 at 1 p.m., the same week, as it was this year.

The board also approved creating a position for an aide position at the high school and a sign language interpreter for a second grader in the district. KHS Principal Christine Horbas stated that the aide position would be for someone to oversee the in-school suspensions. She stated that with the staff reductions made last year, it's very hard to find staffing for that room. She said that with creating this position, it would also help to cover the shortages they're facing in the lunchroom. Instructional contracts were approved for Tiffany Kraus, high school English, Michael Hendricks, high school math, Todd Paaske, high school band and Jacquelyn Mueller to cover the first semester for a medical leave. Mueller will cover special ed at Farmington. Kraus was also approved as the cheerleading coach for KHS. She attended the meeting and was very happy to have the opportunity to take on these new jobs.

The next regular board meeting will be held Monday, September 13 at 7 p.m. at the Administration Building. There will also be a meeting of the Ad Hoc committee on August 17 at 7:00 p.m. at the high school, however school tours will be given starting at 6:30 p.m. All community members are invited and encouraged to attend.

Area farmers take yet another hit

By JUDY STEFFES
SPECIAL TO THE STATESMAN

Farmers across Kewaskum, West Bend and the rest of Washington County have taken another hit, as the current crop of winter wheat is being rejected by grain elevator operators. UW Washington County Agriculture Agent Alan Linnebur said quite some time ago it became apparent scab would be a problem. "The heavy rains have caused a mold that has tainted the wheat," he said. "As farmers harvest their crops the wheat yield is as low as it has been in quite some time."

Linnebur said the infected wheat grains are shriveled and pink in color. He said the wheat has toxins that are a threat to animals, especially for single-stomach animals like pigs and chickens.

Ralph Dornacker recently harvested 60 acres of winter wheat on his farm just north of Slinger. "Some farmers are being rejected when they take their wheat to the grain elevators," he said. "We'll probably sell our crop in Milwaukee," said Dornacker who is happy just to get rid of the wheat. "The discounts are quite a bit more and the price of wheat is down," he said noting the price has dropped from a rate of $4 to $3 this year.

Some of the grain elevator operators in the Washington County refused to talk about this years crop of winter wheat, saying 'it's a very sensitive issue.' Nick Laatsch manages the feed mill in Saukville. "There is a disease on this years crop that animals can't tolerate. A lot of farmers are not able to turn in their crops and they are just scratching their heads wondering what to do with their harvest," he said.

The July 16th issue of the Wisconsin State Farmer newspaper said 'wheat scab is at an epidemic level.' Local Agriculture Agent Alan Linnebur said the wheat scab is a crisis for farmers across Washington County. "For the average farmer the number of acres of wheat they grow wouldn't normally be a crushing blow, but along with the other challenges the wet weather created this year this is just insult on top of injury." Many farmers in the Washington County area say they are unsure what they are going to do with this year's harvest of winter wheat and some are questioning how they are going to makeup for the loss.

Campbellsport adds bowling to curriculum

Although school districts across Washington, Dodge and Fond du Lac counties are dealing with budget constraints, the Campbellsport School Board has approved spending $6,500 to up a boys bowling program.

Cary Serwe, from King Pin Lanes, is the one who proposed the program. The addition of boys bowling is expected to cost Campbellsport taxpayers about a dollar a year.

The Campbellsport school board voted 4 - 3 in favor of the program, however they also agreed that if cuts had to be made before the November 1 budget finalization date, the boys bowling program would be the first thing they would consider cutting.

Village president 'proud of our own' display at village hall

Village of Kewaskum Village President, Matt Heiser announced Monday that he is asking citizens of the village for their help in creating a display of service men and women at the village hall.

"Part of my motivation is to provide proper recognition for the men and women currently serving. They deserve to be recognized," said Heiser on Monday.

Heiser said that he is looking for submissions from families of village residents serving in the military. Photos, biographies with branch fo serivce post and family information can be sent or delivered to the village hall.

"I was also motivated because we are proud of those folks who dedicate themselves to our country. I know that the individual families of service people are proud of the commitment from their loved-one. In the same way I believe the village as a whole is proud of Kewaskum's contribution to the defense of this country and would enjoy seeing these people recognized," said Heiser.

Area Lions present bike to Weimer

By JUDY HARLOW
STATESMAN CORRESPONDENT
jharlow@kewaskumstatesman.com

It will probably take Jacob Weimer a long time before he is able to spell the name of the disease he contracted when he was four years old and even longer to understand why it causes him to have trouble with his balance.

Weimer, who lives with his parents Scott and Kellie and siblings Caleb (13), Anna Joy (4) and Lydia (18 months) in Town of Polk, has Rasmussens Encephalitis ... a pretty tough cross for anyone to carry, lest a 9-year-old boy, who just wants to run and swim and ride a bike like other children his age.

Thanks to the members of the Kewaskum, West Bend, Richfield and Newburg Lions Clubs, along with others from Zone 27A2 Lions Clubs, Weimer will now be able to participate in the latter activity. Members of those four area service organizations presented Weimer with a specially made three-wheel bicycle last Thursday night at the Amerahn.

The bike is "one that he can operate ... He can keep his balance on it," Earl Kleinke, the past president of the Kewaskum Lions Club, said before the presentation, explaining Weimer's parents heard about Lions members helping young children with disabilities, and they asked for help in obtaining a bike.

It didn't take Jacob long to get on the shiny red bike and take it for a test run around the hall in the Amerahn, and his smile told the whole story of how appreciates the efforts of the Lions Clubs who presented it to him.

Kellie Weimer said her son was a healthy four-year old when, "One day, out of the blue, he started having seizures." Within four months, the seizures were coming once every 90 seconds, according to his mother, who explained he was hospitalized and got jaundice because of all the medication he had to take.

Still, Jacob is a survivor, which is not always the case with children who contract Rasmussens Encephalitis.

"Some don't make it through the surgery," Kellie

Weimer said. "It depends on the degree of the severity."

"To save his life, they had to removed one half of his brain," Kellie Weimer said, reporting he had to be put into a medically-induced coma, and when he came out of it, he was paralyzed on his left side, he could not sit up, and he was blind in the left side of both his eyes.

At one point, according to Kellie Weimer, Jacob was seeing double, and everything was upside down.

The situation is much improved now, to the point where Jacob learned to read this past year — he is home schooled by his mother — and some of his depth perception came back.

"I know it's a miracle," Kellie Weimer said, noting the doctors are even puzzled with the sight improvement.

Also, Jacob is walking, "and even running," according to Kellie Weimer, who said "The opening of his hand is what we're praying for next."

Through the five surgeries he has had to undergo (one of them 12 hours long), and all the other difficulties Jacob has had to face, he and his family maintain a strong belief in God.

"He always shares the Lord with people," Kellie Weimer

Washington County Population up to 123k

The state department of administration has come out with a population report and it shows Washington County's population has grown to 123,000. The new January estimate shows a growth of 4.7% over the past four years.

Some tallies from surrounding counties show Ozaukee's population was up to 85,135 which was an increase of 3.4% since the year 2000. The most growth is occurring in the western half of the state near the Mississippi.

The State's population grew to 5.53 million which was an increase of 3.1% over the past four years.

W.B. may be to blame for fatal Ozaukee crash

An elderly West Bend man many have caused the accident last week that killed a 16-year-old Mequon girl. The Wisconsin State Patrol is still reconstructing the accident.

A final report will not be available until next week. The Ozaukee County Sheriff's Department says, Anne Stover, 16, was traveling south on I-43 when another vehicle, driven by Donald Niese, 71, of West Bend made "incidental contact" with the girl's Chevy Blazer.

The Blazer rolled over and smashed into a concrete bridge support. The teen was pronounced dead at the scene. The accident happened just before 2:30 p.m. on Thursday, August 5.

Funeral services for Stover are being held over the next two days. Visitation was held Wednesday afternoon at Feerick Funeral Home in Shorewood. A funeral mass was Thursday morning at St. Joseph Catholic Church in Grafton.

A scholarship is being established in the name of Anne Stover. An area newspaper reported that her father, Paul said he wished to keep his daughter's memory alive.

The scholarship will be through Homestead High School where Stover would have been a junior this year.

W.B. Home Depot Opening Soon

There's a sign outside Home Depot in West Bend saying "Opening Soon" The big box store has been under construction for the past few months. Crews have completed a majority of the blacktopping outside the building off Paradise Drive and south Seventh Avenue.

West Bend, Hartford Harley-Davidson Sold

The Harley dealerships in West Bend and Hartford have been sold. Store owner Jim Dricken, who has been with Harley for more than 20 years, sold both dealerships to three men.

The buyers include long time Harley mechanic Louie Lauters and two men from Illinois Chuck Moore and John Jordan. The West Bend Harley dealership is located on Washington Street and Hartford Harley is located off Highway 60.

Third debate set in local state senate race

On Monday, State Representative Glenn Grothman fielded questions and met with eager constituents at George Webb's in West Bend. Glenn will host another coffee meet and greet at George Webb's in Cedarburg, Monday at 8:30 a.m. Others will follow in Fond du Lac and Sheboygan counties.

Mary Panzer will shake hands with supporters on Monday, August 23rd at Klotz's Piggly Wiggly, 2575 Highway 33, in West Bend at 4 p.m. and on Wednesday, August 25th at Klotz's Piggly Wiggly, 450 CTH W in Campbellsport at 4 p.m.

Both Grothman and Panzer will participate in three debates. They are set for August 26th, September 7th and 8th. The primary is Tuesday, Sept. 14.

Sheboygan man sentenced for Eighth O.W.I.

A 41-year-old Sheboygan man will spend the next three year and a half years in prison after being convicted for his eighth drunk driving offense.

Thomas Lutzke was arrested last month and failed a field sobriety test. Aside from prison Lutzke will also spend three years on extended supervision.

His prior drunk driving arrests occurred in 1989, 1990, 1992, twice in 1994, 1998 and July of 2000.

W.B. Farmers Market may be on the move

Some changes may be ahead for the downtown West Bend Farmer's Market. The Downtown Association says they have been talking about possibly moving the market to an area near the library.

Program coordinator Missy Proper says they currently have 53 vendors and a waiting list of about 30. She says because of space constraints they are exploring their options. Some businesses on north Main Street feel moving the Farmer's Market is a bad idea Katie Steerman is with Ruth Anne's Gourmet Market located on Main Street. She said the downtown has room on the side street near Mill Street to expand.

"They can also move further north into the turnaround or just south of Old Settler's Park if they want more room," said Steerman.

Others like Joe Guttman say it would be a mistake to move the market. "it's tradition to have the Farmer's Market in the downtown," He said. "Plus the exposure the stores get, that's free advertising that helps promote the downtown."

Proper said the possible change is still in the discussion phase.

The Downtown Farmer's Market runs for 23 weekends during the summer. West Bend's market is rated as one of the top three in the state along with West Allis and Madison.

Holy Trinity students will miss her smile and enthusiasm

For the past 15 years, Holy Trinity School second grade students have been like a second family for Betsy Schill.

By JUDY HARLOW
STATESMAN CORRESPONDENT
jharlow@kewaskumstatesman.com

The first thing you noticed about Betsy Schill is her warm, genuine smile.

It is a smile which can be comforting for any second grader who might be apprehensive about an upcoming test, or it can be contagious because Schill's enthusiasm is catching for all those around her.

That smile and Schill's professional approach to education will certainly be missed at Holy Trinity Catholic School this fall because she decided in spring, after a career spanning more than two decades, she was ready to retire.

"I'm going to baby-sit for my new grandchild (who is due in September), and I'm also going to sub," Schill said from her home last week.

Schill, who taught second grade for 15 years at Holy Trinity and at St. Rose of Lima School in Fredonia for four years before that and also for the South Milwaukee Public Schools for five years, is well aware the break will not be an easy one, especially when the school bells ring on Sept. 1.

"I'll miss the kids the most ... They do so many funny things," Schill said. "There's always a good story to bring home."

"Just the way they say things and the questions they ask (are fun)," Schill said.

Even though both of Schill's parents were teachers, she didn't originally plan to go into the field. Instead she started out in nursing at UW-Eau Claire, but it didn't take long for her to make the switch.

"I switched a semester in (to college)," she said, indicating she never regrets the move into education.

"I like the variety (it offers). Everything is always new. The kids are different, and everything you're teaching is different," Schill said, and while it took time for her to find her way to Holy Trinity, once she did, she knew it was the right place for her.

As far as the strengths of Holy Trinity, Schill lists the support she receives from parents and staff members at No. 1.

"(There is) a lot of parent support and a lot of parish support," Schill said, adding, "The priest has always been very positive about the school, and I always had nice parents to work with ... You're kind of working together as a team for the kids."

Even over a span of 15 years, Schill said, "I never had a bad parent conference or a run-in with a parent."

It is obvious Schill also appreciated the special intangibles a parochial school can offer its students.

"The religion component ... That's the thing that holds everything together," Schill said, indicating parents seem to have a special concern in what children are doing in the school because they are willing to sacrifice to pay for the tuition needed to support it.

And what major changes has Schill seen in education during her career?

"More emphasis on writing," she said, and, incorporating writing into other subjects, such as social studies and science.

The other major area of change is "the use of computers and technology," ac-ording to Schill, who said, "I used that a lot in my classroom."

While it appears Schill will have a lot of extra time on her hands beginning this fall, she has plenty of hobbies to keep her busy. She likes to walk, "and I read a lot," Schill said, also listing travel as an interest, and, "I like to garden in the summer."

Family is also important to Schill. Her husband is planning on retiring from the Grafton School District in the near future, and she has a married daughter in Chicago (the one who is expecting the baby) and one who is a nurse at St. Joseph's Hospital in Milwaukee.

Schill was also close to the staff at Holy Trinity, which she lists as another strength of the school.

"They were wonderful to work with, very child-centered," Schill said. "I think we all realized it's a special place to be, and we were lucky to be there."

Holy Trinity principal June Gauvin said the school was fortunate to have a teacher of her caliber.

"She's a fantastic teacher ... I called her Holy Trinity spirit," Gauvin said. "She always had ideas to enhance school spirit."

Gauvin went on that Schill was "always willing to do extra things to make school more special."

Sedgwick Named as Rodeo Queen

2004 Washington County Round-up Rodeo Queen Emily Sedgwick.

BY JUDY HARLOW
STATESMAN CORRESPONDENT
jharlow@kewaskumstatesman.com

Her knowledge of horses and ability to ride them has landed Emily Sedgwick a place of honor in the upcoming Washington County Roundup Rodeo, which is being held at the Washington County Fair Park on Friday and Saturday, Aug. 20-21.

Sedgwick, who will be a sophomore at Kewaskum High School in the fall, was recently selected over two other candidates as queen of the event.

When asked why she decided to participate in the contest, Sedgwick said, "I thought it would be a fun thing to do." Sedgwick said she witnessed her first rodeo two years ago at the Fair Park.

The main criteria for contestants was being able to ride a horse and being able to show one, and while she doesn't currently own her own horse, Sedgwick's aunt, Pat Tonn, helped her out by letting her use her horse, Teddy.

riages of Kewaskum and Amelia George of West Bend, also had to ride their horses carrying a flag.

The judges awarded points for each of the areas, and after they were totaled up, Sedgwick was announced as the winner.

The two nights of the rodeo, both nights the competition begins at 7 p.m., Sedgwick will lead the competitors into the ring while riding on Teddy and carrying the American flag.

She was also expected to promote the rodeo during the recent Washington County Fair. She wore her rodeo crown and sash and answered questions people had about the event.

The admission fee for the rodeo will be $10 for adults, $6 for youth between the ages of 6 and 15. Those five and under are free.

The rodeo will have competitions in calf roping, bull riding and bronco riding, and for the kids there will be "mutton busting" where the competitors will ride sheep.

When she attended the first rodeo at the Fair Park, Sedgwick said large crowds were on hand to watch. Concerning where the competitors come from, she said, "I think they come from all over the state."

Sedgwick lives near Beechwood with her family. At KHS, she is involved in volleyball, soccer and the ski team, and she is also a member of the 4-H Club and the Washington County Saddle Club and Equestrians. During the County Fair, Teddy received several second places and one first in her class.

And what do Sedgwick's friends think about her new royal status? "They think it's pretty cool," she said.

After a brief interview about horses and rodeos, Sedgwick said the contestants had to ride in front of the judges and direct the horse to perform a "pattern," which Sedgwick said included walking the horse, then trotting and doing a pivot, cantering and then trotting again.

Sedgwick and the other two candidates, Becky Her-

Three Washington County women are delighted to be delegates at the Republican Party National Convention.

Washington County Republican Party Chairperson, Jan Baldock of West Bend; Kathy Kiernan of Richfield and Crystal Berg of Hartford are gearing up to be part of the Republican National Convention, which takes place in New York City at Madison Square Garden, August 30 through September 2.

"I'm very very happy to be there as we cast the vote to re-elect President Bush," said Baldock, who plans to bring President Bush more Bear Claws from Mick's Candyman. "The whole experience is exciting...this election is so important."

The women will join 77 delegates from Wisconsin going to the Convention. Forth-eight delegates, plus three others that were elected to the caucus; 13 delegates-at-large and 13 alternates.

"The biggest thing for me going to the Republican National Convention was something I want to do because of how much I admire this president. He is what this country needs for a president right now," Baldock said. "He will protect us from terrorism."

The Republican National Committee recently completed certification of the 2,509 delegates and 2,344 alternate delegates who will make up the most diverse Republican delegation in the party's history.

In 2004, minorities make up 17 percent of total delegates and women make up 44 percent. In 2000, minorities made up 10 percent of the total delegates and women made up 36 percent.

Aside from the excitement of being a delegate, Baldock is also eager to listen to the speakers at the National Republican Convention. The Prime Time Speakers include, Mayor Michael Bloomberg, former Mayor Rudy Giuliani and Senator John McCain (R-AZ) on Monday; First Lady Laura Bush, Secretary of Education Rod Paige and Governor Arnold Schwarzenegger on Tuesday; Mrs. Lynne Cheney, Vice President Dick Cheney and Senator Zell Miller (D-GA) on Wednesday; Governor George Pataki and President George W. Bush on Thursday.

"I'm really excited to hear Zell Miller speak," Baldock said. Though he is a lifelong Democrat, Miller has regularly reached across the aisle to work with Republicans to cut taxes, improve education, confirm the President's nominees and strengthen national security by giving the President his full support in Iraq and in the global war on terrorism.

"He has a heart of gold and a spine of steel," said Kiernan, Bush Campaign Chairman - Washington County. "That's how he is. He's not afraid of his faith, which I admire."

"For me, this president is a man of integrity. I so respect that. He doesn't have to fluff or mince. He doesn't talk down to me," Kiernan said.

"He says what he means and he means what he says. He's just real. I just have a huge admiration for who he is," Kiernan said.

After the women return from the Republican National Convention, Kiernan said, "We will pick up where we left off to make sure we reach our goals for the President in this state...To win the State of Wisconsin for President Bush this time."

Acclaimed chef will put his Mark on the Land Trust Fish Boil August 15

Mark your calendars and send in your RSVPs to make sure there's a place for you - the 12th Annual Ozaukee Washington Land Trust Boil and Silent Auction will be held on Sunday, August 15 at Riveredge Nature Center.

The food will be prepared by one of the area's most acclaimed chefs, Mark Weber, and the staff of his Watermark Seafood restaurant.

"Chef Mark Weber has been a fixture at the Fish Boil, and we are pleased that his new restaurant, Watermark Seafood, will provide the catering this year," said Chet Nielsen, co-chairman of the event committee.

This year's menu will feature the traditional fish boil made with fresh whitefish, plus roasted tenderloin, boiled potatoes and onions, corn-on-the-cob, salads and desserts. A cash bar offering premium wine and beer will complete the feast.

Weber's efforts have always drawn raves at OWLT fish boils, just as his new restaurant in Milwaukee has. Milwaukee Journal Sentinel food critic Dennis Getto wrote, "Watermark, since opening last summer, marks the start of Weber's solo career. And judging from two recent dinners there, I expect that career will continue on a stellar path."

You can come early for self-guided tours of the Riveredge trails from 3 to 4 p.m. The social hour will start at 4 p.m. followed by a short program at 5 and dinner at 5:30. Entertainment will be provided by Sawdust Symphony, a local bluegrass band that delighted the audience last year. Expanded Silent Auction bidding will run from 4 to 6:30 p.m., so come prepared to bid early and often. Cash, checks, Visa and MasterCard will be accepted.

All Land Trust members and the general public are welcome to attend. The cost is $30 for adults and $15 for children under the age of 12. To find out more about the event, contact Sally at the Land Trust office at 262-338-1794.

Ashford Blast for Charity August 21

The Ashford Blast for Charity, a community celebration to raise money for cancer research, will be held on August 21 at the home of Dwain and Peggy Knuth, W4332 State Rd. 67, Cambell-sport.

The party, which started as a family party in 1997 has evolved into a community celebration to raise money for cancer research in 1998. A parade was then formed, which is believed to be the first parade in Ashford, consisting of 12 entries 20 years old or older. The parade has grown each year, reaching 32 in 2003.

After the parade, the fun continues with games (including golf, football, softball, darts, horseshoes, basketball, and various little kids games), music, attendance prizes (donated by area businesses and individuals), raffle prizes (mostly donated) and of course plenty of food and beverages.

Money is raised by accepting donations for the games, food, beverages, raffles, t-shirts and cash or checks. Each year the goal is to exceed the previous year's money total. As of 2003 the Ashford Blast for Charity has donated the accumulated totals of $11,953.16 to the American Cancer Society and $1,050 to CMTA.

2004 looks to continue growing with the support of the local Ashford community as well as contributions from other Wisconsin cities, Minnesota, Illinois, Indiana and Florida.

The parade is expected to still be larger this year, still maintaining the original restriction that each entry must be at least 20 years old. It doesn't have to be pretty, just old.

The festivities this year will be on August 21, 2004 with the parade starting at 1:30 p.m., DJ music from 2 until 6 p.m., followed by the Dynamics Reve band from 6 until 10 p.m.

Sincere thanks to everyone that participates and donates to the event in helping the American Cancer Society improve the quality of life with hope, progress and answers through research, education and service.

Nature's music

The Friends of the Kettle Moraine Saturday Evening Events is proud to present "Nature's Music" with David Stokes. The program will be held on Saturday, August 14, from 7:00 to 8:30 p.m. at the Henry S. Reuss Ice Age Visitor Center. The Ice Age Visitor Center is located off of Hwy 67 half mile west of Dundee. The program is free, but donations are always gratefully accepted.

The pitter-pat of rain drops, a trill of a toad, the melodious song of a wood thrush and so many more sounds are all part of the nature's symphony of sound. Participants will learn about the sounds animals make and why they make them through the use of songs, stories and sign language. You will make rain and a thunder storm right in the auditorium. You can learn how to imitate the animals in order to see them better. You will also learn what frog says ribbit and if all ducks quack.

David Stokes is the National Association for Interpretation's informal educator of the year for 2001. He uses songs, stories, riddles, hands-on activities, live animals, animal artifacts and humor to educate folks of all ages. His love of nature and his enthusiasm are contagious, so come for a fun-filled evening you are sure not to forget.

For further information please contact the forest staff at the Ice Age Visitor Center. They may be reached at (920) 533-8322, Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m., or Saturday and Sunday, 9:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Dawn McCambridge from Campbellsport.

The "Share the Forest Relay" was held to foster greater awareness and understanding of the various groups who use the trails in the state forest.

The Northern Kettle Moraine Horse Trail Association sponsored the "Share the Forest Relay" Sunday, June 6, 2004 on the Greenbush segment of the Northern Kettle Moraine State Trails. Each relay team consisted of a runner, a bicyclist and a horse and rider.

The runners began the team race by traversing four miles of marked forest paths before returning to the start to tag off to a waiting bicyclist. The bicyclist covered 11 miles before cruising to a return. An official then signaled the horseback rider to start the final four mile leg to the finish.

Nine teams competed with participants from Campbellsport, Kewaskum, Eden, Cascade, Glenbeulah, Plymouth, Sheboygan and as far away as Spooner. The weather was ideal as all participants raced for fun. Rob Boldt, coach of PCW Team Biking was on hand to assist his team members in their warm-up for an eastern United States race series.

The first place team completing the course in 1:36:28 was team number one including Andrea Hilderbrand, runner from Sheboygan, Brian Matter, biker from Spooner and Renee Stanz-Gilmour, horseback rider from Cascade. Renee also contributed her expertise in running this event as she had been race manager of two previously held relays in the Fox Valley.

Placing second, just two seconds behind the first place team, was team number four. Teammates included Erik Eckert, runner from Kohler, Chad Dova, biker from Spooner and Lynn Becker, horseback rider from Cascade.

In third place was Glenbeulah team including runner Hannah Hau, biker Marshall Hau, and horse rider Jennifer Weiss. Jennifer and her 10-year-old Thoroughbred, Callie, who previously raced in Kentucky, finished the four mile wood-

Food for Thought

Old World Wisconsin

My kids tell me we are the only family in Wisconsin that isn't going on vacation this summer. However, the thought of taking three kids, ages 9, 7 and 2 on a trip any longer than to the grocery store is not very appealing to me. Where would we go? What would we do? Would my husband and I actually have to spend time together and talk to each other?

I've tried to distract my kids from the whole dream vacation idea with day trips. This has allowed my husband to enjoy the trips by hearing about them when he gets home from a restful day at the office. It has also allowed me to enlist the help of Grandma and Grandpa, who my kids prefer to be with, anyway because my dad thinks eating an entire bag of Cheetos is a well-balanced meal, especially if it is accompanied by a box of fruit snacks.

We recently took a road trip to Old World Wisconsin. I remember enjoying Old World Wisconsin as a kid on school field trips, so I asked my perfect sister if she and her perfect children would like to go with us.

"Yuck," she said. "I didn't like it as a child, why would I want to go as an adult." I was shocked! Who wouldn't enjoy Old World Wisconsin...? It's probably for the best; her broomstick couldn't fly that far anyway.

Grandma jumped at the chance to road trip with us and travel back in time 200 years to a 500-acre outdoor living museum in 90 degree heat. Grandpa came along too, a little reluctant about the time travel. He hates history and he has never liked museums, so a living museum was going to be a real challenge for him. What fun we were going to have with Grandpa!

Our hour-long trip to Eagle was pretty uneventful. My 2 year-old daughter sucked the salt off of every pretzel in the entire bag of pretzels before she put each one back; my dad used his passenger-side air brakes less than 10 times; my voice-automated speedometer kept me in check with the speed limit every mile and sounded a lot like my mom; the boys kept themselves busy giving each other snake bites, grabbing each other's noses and spitting in each other's face through the entire Kettle Moraine Forest. Nothing less than usual.

When we arrived, I dumped my passengers off at the welcome building and parked the car. When I hooked back up with my group, my parents had purchased an annual membership to Old World Wisconsin. Now we can come back end-less times!

"That's so cool. It's like a pass to Great America, without the rides," my 6 year-old said enthusiastically.

"Yeah, what's good about that? There aren't any rides here.... So, can we go to Great America instead?" my 9 year-old asked.

"But, there is a ride!" I said. "There is a tram that we can take to every village. We could spend days here and not get bored! We don't need high-speed exhilarating rides to entertain us, we can experience history!"

It was a hard sell, but we all had a blast!

As we packed back into the car after exploring history for three hours, my kids were bustling with memories they enjoyed; watching a blacksmith make a decorative J hook; learning about school, shopping, trading and cooking; seeing the horse-drawn carriages; and learning about different cultures and challenges. It was an enriching learning experience.

It's interesting to learn how people lived 200 years ago. It makes me grateful that I was born when I was. I didn't see any bread machines or smoothie makers and my cell phone only worked in a few villages, so they must not have had as many towers back then either. Imagine how many dropped calls they had to deal with in the 1800's? When I got home, I hugged my microwave, refrigerator and electric coffee pot. A trip back in time gave me a new perspective on how much I value modern conveniences...like the television my kids are plugged into so that I can darn my husbands socks while he is out hunting for dinner at the grocery store.

Here are a few things I learned from Frontier Life 1800s.

ABC's of Washing Clothes - The tub should be a third full of water, not hot but very warm. Stir in enough soap to make a weak suds, and put in the nicest clothes. Rub handkerchiefs, nightcaps, and other fine articles between the hands, using a little soap. Never rub them on the washboard. As fast as they are washed, wring and shake them open, and put them into an old pillowcase or white bag, else they will liable to be torn by the weight of the larger articles when taken out of the boiling kettle. Use a washboard for the large articles and for those which are not easily made clean. Make sure to rub both sides of the garment.

Testing an Oven - Hot Hand Method is as follows: if a hand can be held in the oven from 20 to 30 seconds, it is a quick oven; from 30 to 45 seconds it is a moderate oven; and from 45 to 60 seconds, it is a slow oven.

Uses for Hay in the Oven - To remove the iron taste from new kettle, boil a handful of hay in them and repeat the process if necessary. Hay-water is a great sweetener of tin, wooden and iron ware.

Govern a great nation as you would cook a small fish; don't overdo it.

One Woman's Motorcycle Journey Through North America

A few days ago, I went to visit a friend, and on the way there, I shared the road with hundreds of motorcycles, all heading for Sturgis, South Dakota. At one point, I was surrounded by about 30 bikes, something akin to what a bear must feel like when he breaks into a beehive. I also noticed something else that's rather rare: one woman by herself on her own bike. "Breaking the Limit" by Karen Larsen (c.2004, Hyperion), is a book about the good, the bad, and the Harley, and what it's like to travel alone through North America on two wheels.

Karen Larsen's love affair with motorcycles started at age fifteen and she bought her first motorcycle at nineteen. She says that, growing up in New England, she loved riding around, becoming familiar with roads less traveled. After college, a stint in the Peace Corps, her father's cancer diagnosis, and a health scare of her own, Larsen decided that, because she happened to be between jobs, it would be a good time to seize a dream and travel to Alaska on the back of her Harley Sportster.

Packing extra clothing, a tent and other portable items, Larsen headed out across New Jersey into Pennsylvania and up to Niagara Falls; through Canada into Michigan, Illinois, Iowa, and across America's breadbasket into Colorado, Utah, Nevada, and California, then north through Oregon, Washington and British Columbia to Alaska and back. Along the way, she saw wildlife and breath-takingly beautiful scenery. She met kindred souls, including some good-hearted campsite owners, bikers who shared information and meals, and homeowners who offered her a spot to rest. She broke up with her boyfriend, and was propositioned by a man who might have been perfect "another time". She was almost killed by bad weather, bad roads, and bad drivers, and she met her birth parents who gave her up for adoption thirty-one years before.

Much more than a book about "finding yourself", Larsen has written a book about knowing who you are and feeling comfortable about it. While I liked "Breaking the Limit", I thought that the incessant inventory of weather, while important, was a little tedious. I also thought that a map of Larsen's route would have been nice. Not being intimately familiar with the roads (as one would be on a bike), the litany of specific routes taken on the trip made me a bit confused. Reading about up-close-and-personal peeks at America's scenery was enjoyable, though, and really made me want to travel more than I do. Be sure that, when you're done with this book, you go back and read the acknowledgements; there's a little surprise for you there that won't make any sense to you until you're finished with Larsen's story.

"Breaking the Limit" is a perfect book for you if you're looking for a little armchair excitement, or if you long for wind in your hair and a bike between your knees.

Gen. Curtis LeMay

By: Wallace R. Daggett
former T/Sgt. USAF

As I told you in my story entitled "A Lesson Learned" Gen. LeMay was a no nonsense, tough guy. He was the Commander of SAC (Strategic Air Command) at the time he was aboard our aircraft, a KC-97 passenger.

He inquired about my air experiences and I told him I had flown in a lead B-29 crew in the Korean War. His whole personality changed, and he became quite relaxed in his personal chair, which had been brought aboard, chewing on his unlit cigar.

Gen. LeMay was the Commanding Officer during the II World War of the 305th Bombardment Unit of the USAF. The 305th was one of the first units to enter combat, and it soon proved a number of LeMay's convictions concerning strategic bombing tactics. Despite contentions that his proposed tactics were suicidal, the 305th under LeMay's personal leadership demonstrated beyond all doubt the efficiency of a straight-in bomb run and formation's firepower could be fully exploited against fighter attacks from any angle. This type formation was used during the II World War and is in use today.

In 1944, he was transferred to the China-Burma-India Theatre to head the 20th Bomber Command. Using the lead-crew system and combat formation developed over Europe, he increased the number of sorties being flown by India-based B-29s Superfortress.

In January 1945, he was appointed commander of the Mariana-based 21st Bomber Command. He continued to head this command after it became the 20th Air Force. Later he was called upon by General Arnold to assume the duties of Chief of Staff of the U.S. Army Strategic Air Force with headquarters in Guam. His group dropped the atomic bombs on Japan which ended the war much sooner than expected. When questioned by the United States Defense Minister during the Truman era if the B-29's were doing a good job, he said "hell yes and I'll burn (destroy) the whole damn country (Japan) if you want me to."

In late October, 1948, Gen. LeMay returned to the United States to become commander of the Strategic Air Command, headquartered in Omaha, Nebraska. As commander-in-chief of SAC, LeMay was the US Air Force's top bomber general and was considered "the boss" even by those in B-29 squadrons that reported to the Far East Air Forces. His command supplied two B-29 Superfortress bomb groups, the 98th and the 307th Superfortress bomb groups and an F-84 Thunderjet fighter group to Korean action.

I felt very intimidated having the Commander of SAC aboard our KC-97, G model aircraft. Once he learned that I was a flight engineer, for which he seemed to have great respect for, on B-29s for the 98th bomb group, in the Korean War, it seemed it broke the barrier between us.

He questioned me about my former aircraft commander and what happened to him after we had flown our missions. I told him he applied for jet bomber training which he got. Gen. LeMay seemed genuinely happy hearing that because it meant my former aircraft commander was still in SAC.

I told him my aircraft commander and he had a lot in common. My former aircraft commander always had an unlit cigarette in his mouth and he always had an unlit cigar. He laughed which made me laugh too. He commented that his was bigger.

When we landed he shook my hand and said he had an enjoyable ride.

I always remember this experience fondly because it seemed to me that once he learned I had flown B-29s as a lead crew, I was one of his boys. It was obvious he was very proud of his B-29 crews. During that hop, from Tinker AFB, Oklahoma to Biggs AFB, Texas, on an inspection tour of bases, he relaxed completely and we saw the man - not the commander for that brief period of time.

The KC-97 pilot, 1st Lt. Shneck and co-pilot, 1st Lt. Howell, later informed me that General LeMay had told the base commander, Gen. Reynolds, at Biggs AFB, Texas that he had a very enjoyable trip and we were to be complimented on our performance during the trip to Texas. We had passed his inspection.

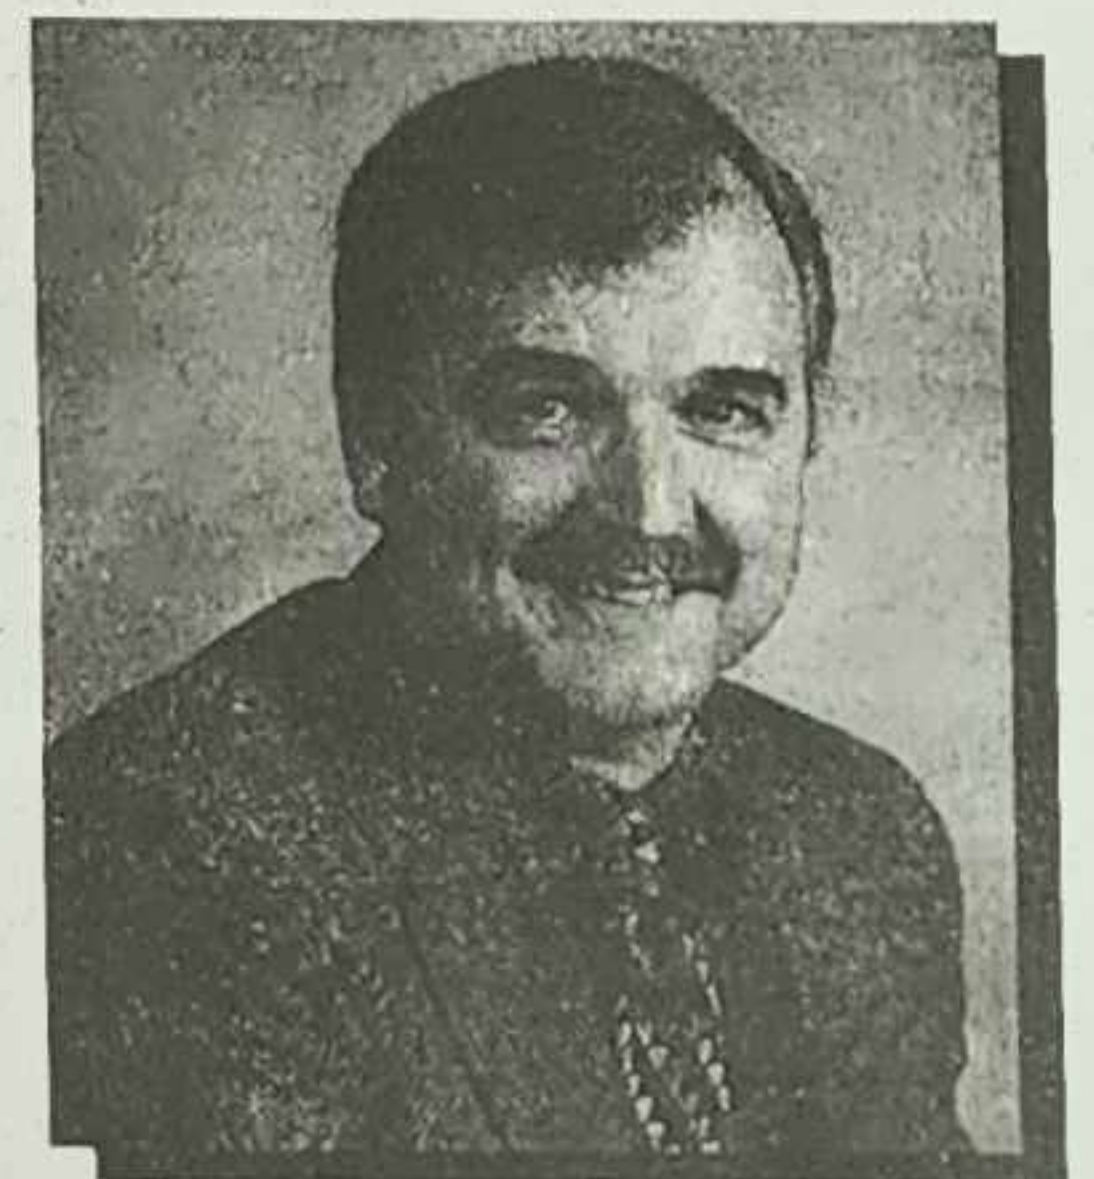

During the six-and-a-half-years I was in the service it was the only time I had the opportunity to shake the hand of a General and it was a special honor to do so with Gen. LeMay.

Friendship's Test of Time

Hello Friends,

Saturday, July 31
High 78°, Low 49°

This past weekend, Laurie, Selina and I made our annual trip to Algoma in Kewaunee County to visit our friends, Patti and Jeff Rouse.

The entire gang was ready to board the boat at 5 this morning. Unfortunately, the fog was so dense that visibility was 50 yards at best. This is the final weekend of the Door/Kewaunee Salmon Tournament, one of the biggest of the summer. This meant there were a lot of boats on the water and because of the fog, they would not be able to see. We headed back to the house, took a snooze, and ate a big breakfast. At 10 a.m., Jeff and I found ourselves idling down the Anhapee River (without the women) in search of salmon.

The Rouses live in rural Poynette and have a vacation home in Algoma where they fish on Lake Michigan, play tennis, golf, and ride bikes. Patti was in the same high school class as Laurie and I was Laurie's neighbor. We had a lot of good times growing up, and for the last four summers, we have pegged out the fun meter fishing for salmon and relaxing together.

Last night, the average surface water temperature was 59 degrees. This morning, it was 52 degrees. A drastic change in temperature is not good for fishing.

Friday, July 30
High 73°, Low 52°

Selina was 6-months-old when we made our first trip to Algoma. She is 3 1/2 years old now and starting on her fourth trip. For Jeff, who is a utility technician for Alliant Energy, and Patti, a pharmacy technician at Harris Pharmacy in Lodi, today would be a vacation day. For Laurie, Selina, and I, today would be day two of a 23-day stint of outdoor travel.

We started trolling at 90 feet and headed east toward deeper water. As soon as we hit 140 feet, we started marking fish, and one of our downriggers baited with a Woodpecker J Plug tripped. Jeff caught a 7-pound king and I caught a twin on a Howie fly. That evening, we had a full crew once again and the water temperature had jumped to 59 degrees. The seas were calm, our crew was healthy, not a fish was caught, and a good time was had by all.

This afternoon, Jeff and I got his 25-foot Star Craft cabin cruiser ready for a weekend of relaxed salmon fishing. Our plan was simple - fish Friday afternoon, Saturday morning and evening, and then wind the weekend down with an outing Sunday morning.

Sunday, August 1
High 80°, Low 50°
Jeff and I were on the water at 4 a.m. The water temperature had dropped seven degrees overnight and there was lightning on the western horizon.

This afternoon, a freak afternoon fog settled on Algoma and made seeing anything over a quarter mile away pretty difficult. Our gang of five headed out to the big pond anyway eager to try to land a big salmon. We were happy just to be together and to socialize.

I drove the boat and Jeff worked the lines. Judging by the talk on the marine band radio, we were not the only fishermen experiencing uncooperative behavior from the local salmon.

Unfortunately, the fog was replaced by a brisk east wind which made maneuvering a boat difficult. Patti did all of the driving tonight and was the first to tackle the weather.

The two most interesting parts of the morning were trying to drive a boat among a bunch of other boaters while trolling in the dark, and then pulling the pin after deciding catching fish was not going to be a part of this day. Good friends got together this weekend and my guess is we will for many years to come.

While the seas were high, we had some of our best action of the weekend. First, we lost a fish. Then, I caught a 7-pound king salmon on a Howie Fly. Then, another pole tripped and it appeared we had a screamer on the line. Laurie fought the fish, Patti valiantly drove the boat, and Selina sat on the floor. By the time Laurie's 15-pound king succumbed to the net, Selina was in pretty bad shape and Patti was looking for a plastic bag.

Stay in touch with your friends!
Sunset

Like the tough farm girl that she is, Patti stuck it out without a complaint. Laurie held onto Selina and told her to go to sleep. Selina woke up an hour later and was as good as new.

Kempf concentrates in mound, not mountains

Even though he is flanked by the Green Mountains, and the Adirondacks are only about 100 miles away, Travis Kempf is only concerned about one height this summer, that being the 10 inches the pitching mound stands above the rest of a baseball diamond.

Kempf, a 2003 graduate of Kewaskum High School, is spending this summer in Montpelier, Vermont, while playing baseball with the Vermont Mountaineer team, which are part of the New England College Baseball League (NECBL) designed for players from 19-22 years of age.

After being red-shirted this past year at the University of Illinois-Chicago (UIC), Kempf's coach, Mike Dee, suggested this would be a good place for him to gain some experience over the summer so he will be ready for collegiate pitching during the 2004-05 season.

"It's great out here. The fans love us. We draw big crowds every night," Kempf said last Tuesday, while the Mountaineers were preparing for their second playoff game against the Keene Swamp Bats from New Hampshire.

Two teams from the North Division and two from the South are in the playoffs, according to Kempf, who said the regular season consisted of 42 games, and he and the Mountaineers wound up a perfect .500 with their 21-21 some of the best hitters in college," Kempf said, indicating he understands this league is the second best in the Country, second behind the league in the Cape Cod area, which is in the one former West Bend East High stand-out Ryan Rohlinger played in this summer.

The game Kempf is most proud of is his lone start, a six inning effort in which he gave up no runs and only three hits. "I really did well in that game," Kempf said about the game, which ended up as a 2-0 victory for the Mountaineers. "I surprised myself in how well I started off."

"We play right in Montpelier, right outside the city," Kempf said. "We averaged right around 2,000 every night. One crowd we had was 4,500. That was the biggest."

Kempf wasn't real excited about not seeing action during his freshman season, but he understood the coach's decision to red-shirt him to let him work on his strength.

"I've gained 35 pounds in under a year," Kempf said. "I've taken a lot of protein and lifted a lot of weights."

Now he is eager for the fall practice session and the "live" spring season with the Flames.

Already the speed on his fastball has improved from his high school days. "Ninety one is what I topped out at ... That's the fastest I've ever pitched," Kempf said, but the fastball isn't all he throws, with a good curve and change-up in his repertoire.

The first night of the playoffs did not end up well for the Mountaineers, who ended up on the short end of a 12-1 score. "They killed us," Kempf said, reporting he got in one inning of relief and gave up one unearned run.

Another loss and the series would be over, according to Kempf, who said he would return to Wisconsin after the playoffs were over and be ready to return to UIC, where he is on scholarship, in early September.

Reporter's note: According to Mary Kempf, Travis made the dean's list both semesters at UIC. "We're very proud of him," Kempf said of her son, which is studying business administration.

Because the league older college players, Kempf had to start on the bottom rung of the ladder, but he didn't mind at all.

"I'm just glad I got this experience," Kempf said, reporting the players live with host families, and that he is living with the mayor of Montpelier.

The family has been very hospitable, according to Kempf, who said, "They have one boy. He's a senior in high school and we play basketball all the time."

"They actually took me to a Red Sox game," Kempf went on.

As far as his play, Kempf had mainly been coming out of the bullpen because the other pitchers are juniors and seniors in college.

In 35 and two-thirds innings, Kempf said he has given up 23 hits, struck out 37, walked 19 and is sporting an ERA of 3.03. His record of 1-2 may be a bit deceiving, according to Kempf, who said, "one of the losses I got the run was unearned, but it still was a loss."

Close loss hurts A's playoff hopes

BY JUDY HARLOW
STATESMAN CORRESPONDENT
jharlow@kewaskumstatesman.com

After working so hard to get in position to finish among the top four teams, the Kewaskum Athletics' playoff hopes took a jolt Sunday after suffering a heart-breaking 4-3 loss to host Hustisford.

What was especially disheartening about losing was the A's outhit the Astros eight to five, and only two of the Astros' four runs were earned, according to Athletics spokesperson Jim Ziegler, who ended up taking the loss, despite the tossing the five-hitter.

Hustisford scored a single run in the first after the lead-off man doubled and moved the other two bases on sacrifices.

The 1-0 lead held up until the top of the third when the A's scored all three of their runs. Ziegler said the fireworks started after one out, with Ty Schill acting as the igniter with a base hit. He stole second and scored on Steve Ketter's hit.

Adam Sarauer saw his two mates on base and knew he had to come through for them and the team, which he did, stroking a single to right field, giving the A's a 3-1 lead.

The Astros drew closer to Kewaskum in the bottom of the third when they came up with their second and third hits of the game, a single and a double by Jamie Hennen.

Hustisford tied the game in the last of the sixth, using an outfield error to put a man on second base and moving him around on a ground out and fly out.

Kewaskum had runners on base a couple of times but could not get them home. The ninth inning was the A's best chance to score. Ziegler, who had two of his team's eight hits, doubled with one out, and it looked for a minute like he might be able to score on Josh Parent's single.

Unfortunately Ziegler stumbled rounding third and had to hold. Then winning pitcher, Andy Steffen, struck out Keith Heberer and Schill to end the threat.

The Astros scored the winning run in the bottom of the ninth on just one base hit. After a single and stolen base, the next man up laid down a bunt, which was mishandled, putting runners at the corners.

"It just took a funny hop," Ziegler said of the bunt.

Player/manager Jason Strobel called for the infield and outfield to move in for a possible play at the plate; but the next man hit a line drive to Strobel in center, and he wasn't able to hold onto it.

"It was a tough play," Ziegler said.

Steffen fanned an even dozen Kewaskum hitters and issued just three free passes to first base. Ziegler struck out four and walked two.

In addition to Ziegler, Panzer came up with two hits.

The loss gives the Athletics a 9-7 record in Rock River action. They have two games remaining. Hustisford is 9-6, with three games left on its schedule. The two have been battling for the fourth and final playoff spot for the past month.

"The only way we can make it to the playoffs now is if they lose two of their three games, and we win both of ours," Ziegler said.

First up for the A's is a date with Hartford on Sunday at Kewaskum Kiwanis Community Park.

Canter ready for breakout year at Bemidji University

By JUDY HARLOW
STATESMAN CORRESPONDENT
jharlow@kewaskumstatesman.com

The Green Bay Packers weren't the only football players in the state who were chomping at the bit to open camp last week.

Former Kewaskum High standout Chris Canter was making the move back to Bemidji State University where he is starting his junior season as a corner back for the NCAA II football team.

After spending all summer either working at his job or working out, Canter is eager to see what the 2004 season will bring for the Beavers, who finished 6-5 when he was a freshman and 7-4 during the 2003 campaign.

"I am looking forward to it," Canter said en route from Wisconsin Dells to his home near Wayne last week before leaving for Minnesota on Saturday.

"We have quite a few seniors this year ... over 20 seniors that's for sure," Canter said, indicating, "A lot of guys are ready to step up."

It looked like the team's quarterback position might be a bit weak with the graduation of last year's starter, but Canter said two candidates have emerged to take over signal-calling duties. They both possess different qualities which might offer the Bemidji coaching staff the option to run a variety of offense.

"A kid came in from Chicago ... he's like a Michael Vick," Canter said, reporting he has excellent speed and the ability to take off and run. "The other guys is a pocket passer, so we can run two different offenses, and keep other teams guessing."

The loss of a top running back is also a concern, according to Canter, who said it looks like the position will be handled "by committee," meaning there are three or four candidates who may all get their chance to run the ball in the Beavers' games.

On the other side of the ball, Canter reports the team will need a tackle to take over for the 2003 starter, who, in his opinion, was "one of the best guys I ever played with."

Going back to the secondary, Canter is confident he and his teammates will have a strong unit against the pass and the run.

"Our two safeties are very good," he said. "I'm really excited. It's nice being the veteran" and being asked to step up and be the leader instead of being the guy learning the ropes and making the adjustment from high school ball.

In his two years of collegiate ball, Canter has picked off four passes, two in each season, although he reports, "I've had quite a few knockdowns" and was on track to set the Bemidji school record until opposing quarterbacks stopped passing in his direction.

Still the 5-11 cornerback, who said he currently weighs around 193 pounds, is looking more at the team's win-loss record than at individual stats. He is especially concerned at how the Beavers will do against other teams in Northern Sun Intercollegiate Conference.

There will be one obvious change this year, as "Duluth just left our conference, and they were always good," Canter said, adding, "But we always played really well against them."

Concordia College is the defending champion in the league, but their coaches have taken jobs at another school, according to Canter, who said the Minnesota Southeast University also lost many of its football coaches.

That opens the door for Bemidji to possibly challenge for the title, and Canter admits, "Every year, we go in very optimistically ... There's not going to be a dominating team this year."

David Wicklund, who graduated from Kewaskum High in June, is also going to attend Bemidji and play on the football team. "I'm anxious to play with him He's been doing really well with the (summer) workouts," Canter said, but quick to add, "It's a transition from high school.

As far as his academics are concerned, Canter said he is studying business administration and was scheduled for an interview for an internship at an office furniture store in Green Bay last week.

"The school work is going well. Tutors are always available for the athletes," Canter said, and when he does have spare time, he likes to spend it with his girlfriend, who is from Brookfield and plays on Bemidji's women's hockey team, which competes at a Division I level against many of the Big Ten women's hockey teams.

Saturday's trip to Bemidji was only the start for Chris and Cindy Canter, Chris' parents, who have only missed a couple of his games at Bemidji, even though the trip to the school is eight hours by car.

"They are my biggest supporters. I don't think I could have done this without them," the younger Canter said about his parents.

Bemidji's first game is Aug. 28 against the university of Minnesota-Mankato.

With a second place, Voleskys move up in standings at HEK

By JUDY HARLOW

jharlow@kewaskumstatesman.com

New winners emerged in the scramble tournament that is part of the Player of the Year competition at Hon-E-Kor Country Club, but Joe Volesky of West Bend still looks like a good bet to win the event for the third year in a row.

Larry Sterr and Kevin Youngberg combined for a net 61 in the men's division Sunday, while Judi and Don McBride bested six other twosomes to win the mixed division with a 60.6, just .4 of a stroke ahead of Volesky and his wife, Roxanne.

The men's division was very competitive from the second through the fifth spots, with the team of Ken "Buck" Averill and Pete Kostelac finishing in a dead heat with Brian Ogle and Chris Kerry for second at 63.6. Fourth with a 64 were Butch Ritzman and Fred Gauthier with a score of 64, and Gary Curreri and Tony Curreri claimed fifth place at 64.6.

Doug Gonring and Jim Volesky just missed a place in the top five, finishing at 65.2, with Mike Pfeiffer and Dave Wietor sharing seventh place with Dave Donath and Chuck Rondorf at 65.4.

There were 14 teams in the men's division Sunday, and seven in the mixed division.

Using points from the scramble and the best ball, which was held on July 11, the two Voleskys both have 3.375 points, with Averill and Kostelac in striking range at 4.5. The McBrides both have 5.525 points, with Sterr tied for ninth with Youngberg at 6.0, and Dave Carey and Carey Wolf, the winners of the best ball, in 10th place with 7.0.

The next competition that figures in the scoring for the Player of the Year title is the Hon-E-Kor Club Championships, which take place on Labor Day weekend. The last of the four competitions is the alternate shot tournament which will be held on Sunday, Sept. 12th.

HEK Pro Joe Harlow said applications are now available for the annual Hon-E-Kor Club Championships. The event opens Saturday, Sept. 4 with 18-hole qualifying to determine who will advance to the match play portion of the tournament on Labor Day. Those entered in the Men's Open Division play 18 holes on Saturday and another 18 on Sunday to determine the four finalists who move on to match play. The defending champion is Craig Anderson of West Bend, who finished fourth in the Wisconsin State Golf Association's Men's Amateur Tournament in July at The Bog in Saukville.

While it's important to win, it's imperative to compete.

Fate brings three KHS grads together for triathlon

By JUDY HARLOW
STATESMAN CORRESPONDENT
jharlow@kewaskumstatesman.com

Nearly everyone on earth has a story about how fate intervened in their lives, but here's an interesting one on three young women who recently participated in the Danskin Women's Triathlon in Pleasant Prairie near Kenosha.

The three, who currently all live in Mayville, were all graduates of Kewaskum High School. Their paths crossed in a training class on participating in a triathlon, and now they are all close friends.

"We didn't know each other (in high school)," Jessica (Schulist) Stortz, a 1997 KHS grad, said recently about how she met Nicole Mueller and Patricia Erickson, who graduated in the late 1980s.

Paula Larsen, a former physical education teacher and well known cross country skier and runner, was teaching a class in triathlon training they all signed up for at the T.A.G., a fitness center named after Ted and Grace Bachhuber, who gave an endowment to the facility, which includes a pool, cardio vascular training center and a lap track.

Paula ... She was our coach," Stortz, who works part-time at the Coffee Corner in Kewaskum on weekends and during the summer when she is not teaching art and Spanish at Beaver Dam High School. "She's won national titles ... competed for 20 years. She's an amazing coach."

The class began in April and quickly the three learned of their common backgrounds and their desire to compete in a triathlon, which consists of a half-mile swim, a 12.4 mile bike ride and a 3.1 mile run.

They trained from five to seven hours a week in preparation for the Pleasant Prairie competition, which is one of eight Danskin triathlons held across the United States each year to raise awareness of cancer detection and funds for breast cancer research.

"A lot of the women are cancer survivors, not just breast cancer," Stortz said. "Part of the entry fee (which is $75) goes for breast cancer research," and another portion goes to help women get back into shape after they have had cancer."

The event was held on July 11th, a Sunday, and Stortz recalls it being pretty warm, but the three plugged along and completed the swim, bike and running, each finishing pretty well against other competitors in their age groups.

Stortz was 73rd out of 145 in her 20-24 age group, and she wound up at 1,050 out of the 2,900 women who were keeping their times. (There were 4,000 total, but some women participate in groups and stay together in the event, so their times are not kept).

A breakdown showed she finished the swim in 14 minutes and 20 seconds (14:20), the biking in 43:32, and the run in 33:08.

Mueller, who overcame a bout with skin cancer, finished 270th out of 424 in the 30-34 group, with a combined time of 1:44.47. She was 1,607th overall, while Erickson, who is divorced and works for Erickson Engineering Company, had a sensational effort, finishing 23rd out of 424 in the 30-34 group and was 118th overall, with a time of 1:20.29.

Erickson had a little more experience than the others because she had run a marathon in 2000, according to Stortz, who stressed finishing was the accomplishment they were all after.

"It was the most empowering experience I have ever had," Stortz said. "Anybody can do this ... at any age, any fitness level. If you're willing to commit eight to 12 weeks, five to seven hours a week, you can do it."

"The woman who started the race is not the same woman who finished the race," Stortz said. "Finishing is winning."

For Stortz personally, she managed to overcome a breathing problem to compete. "I suffer from asthma, and until last year, I couldn't even run around the block," she said, indicating a new medication, plus encouragement from others to improve helped her.

Some of the encouragement came from Corrine Drexler, a fellow Beaver Dam teacher, who saw her at the T.A.G. pool one day last year and encouraged her to compete.

"I started thinking maybe I could do this," Stortz said.

Both Larsen and Drexler competed in Pleasant Prairie, Larsen winning her division in 1:16.00 and Drexler 13th out of 130 in her 50-54 group at 1:30.30.

When asked if she planned to do this again, Stortz said, "I'm going to do it until my body doesn't let me anymore. I want to see if I can do another one in the fall."

Stortz doesn't have to worry about training alone. She, Mueller and Erickson get together several times a week to work out, and, "We do things with each other and each other's families."

She went on, "For us, the whole triathlon was not just about doing the race. It was about encouraging each other. It was about doing something we all thought we couldn't do, and now we did it!"
