Aurora Healthcare receives site approval to build clinic here

By Andrew Kuehl Statesman Managing Editor akuehl@kewaskumstatesman

KEWASKUM- Village Plan Commission members seemed less than enthusiastic about a proposal from Aurora Healthcare to build a 4,085 square foot clinic on vacant land next to Cousins Subs. Firms representing Aurora made their plans known at a Plan Commission meeting Tuesday evening, July 24.

Teri Shaver of Hammes Company stated the building would have space for two doctors, however only one doctor will practice when the clinic opens. When asked, she also reported that the construction of the facility would proceed regardless of a possible merger with SynergyHealth who has a large clinic in the village.

In addition to questioning the possible SynergyHealth-Aurora merger, commissioners also had issue with a much larger than allowed illuminated monument sign. Recently appointed liaison between the Village Board and Plan Commission Derek Peterson stated village ordinances state that a sign cannot exceed 80 square feet in area. The proposed sign in his estimation looks to be over 100 square feet.

Shaver reported that is the standard for Aurora's clinics and it has

Over 170 cans discovered after store owner catches thief

By Andrew Kuehl

Statesman Managing Editor andrew@kewaskumstatesman

KEWASKUM- With the help of an alert grocery store owner, The Kewaskum Police Department has ended a string of thefts from a number of area stores that sell infant formula. Two Milwaukee women have been charged with retail theft while their driver, a Texas man, has been charged with party to a crime. Additional charges may follow for the trio after it is determined where the formula was taken mula was taken.

Geidel's Piggly Wiggly owner,
Mike Geidel, called police on Thursday, July 19 at 2:20 p.m. after a salesperson advised him that he witnessed two Hispanic women leaving the store and emptying their purses in the back of a van. The pair then walked back into the store and Geidel says he witnessed the two put cans of baby formula into their purses.

Geidel and store manager Aaron Laatsch apprehended the two after they allegedly left the store without paying for infant formula. The driver of a van in which the subjects were passengers fled the store's parking lot.

Geidel and Laatsch brought the two back into the store where they took the formula out of their purses. Kewaskum Police Officer Troy Ellis responded to the store but was unable to speak with the two because neither was able to speak English.

Officer Ellis transported both subjects to the Washington County Jail. A translator for the Washington County Sheriff's Department attempted questioning the first woman, who was identified as 39-year-old Melina Suniga. The second female was identified as 32-year-old Catalina Agilar. Both were booked into the jail for retail theft.

As the questioning concluded, Sheriff's Department dispatchers informed Officer Ellis that the van seen in the Piggly Wiggly parking lot was apprehended by members of the Washington County Drug Unit, along with the City of Milwaukee Police Department. Deputies informed Officer Ellis that over 140 cans of baby formu-

Clarification

In last week's edition of The Statesman, we need to clarify information given in the article about the Kewaskum School District teaming up with the Boys and Girls Club of Washington County.

It was stated that the Boys and Girls Club would not be associated with the district new early release policy. However parents became confused when it was a choice on a survey mailed to parents.

KES Principal Tom Fischer, stated the survey went out before anything became formal with the Boys and Girls Club. We apologize for the confusion.

The driver of that van was taken into custody along with another male subject. The van was then brought back to the Kewaskum impound yard and another Kewaskum Police Officer went to take custody of the male driver.

A 14-year-old male passenger of the vehicle, who could speak English, informed police that he was also from Texas and was unsure of how much formula was stolen.

The Kewaskum Police Department stated that the total number of 12 through 16-ounce cans was 170. Various brands included Enfamil, Nestle and Similac. Upon further investigation, it was discovered that a number of the cans had stamps from Pick N Save stores in West Bend and Germantown.

Charges from West Bend Police Department may be pending for the thefts that occurred in that city.

Former Statesman writer, Roznik, wins Media Award

In a tribute to her talents, Sharon Roznik of The Reporter, Fond du Lac's daily newspaper, was chosen as the winner of the Wisconsin Technical College System (WTCS) District Boards Association 2007 Media Award.

Roznik was nominated by Moraine Park Technical College for a feature she wrote in September 2006 about Moraine Park's new Culinary Arts Center, culinary arts students and faculty, and the student-run Park Terrace restaurant.

Roznik was recently honored at a July 13 awards cer-emony. "She serves our com-munities well with insightful writing. The news media can be proud to call her a colleague and I am proud that Moraine Park Technical College can call her a friend of technical education," said Dr. Gayle Hytrek, Moraine Park president Moraine Park Distric

District Board member Peter Sensenbrenner and Marilyn Grainger, WTCS District Boards Association Marketing/PR & Awards Committee chair, also addressed the audience. Grainger presented the award to Roznik.

"One of my favorite beats as a reporter has been education," said Roznik. "Newspa-pers and schools both serve the community in different ways, and it is always a pleasure to join forces in letting people know about new op-portunities. The public relations people at Moraine Park always make sure I am aware of what's going on at our area technical college.

Roznik joined The Reporter in 1999, focusing on edu-cation ranging from K-12 to college-level issues. She had been a school board member in Campbellsport for five years. Covering an area that includes 13 public school districts, Roznik has received an annual media award from the Wisconsin Association of School Boards several times, nominated by school districts that include Fond du Lac, Kewaskum and Oakfield. She was the first-place winner this past year in the Wisconsin Newspaper Association Awards for best feature page design and writing in the

T. Wayne considers buying land for park

TOWN of WAYNE-About 25 residents gathered at the town hall on Tuesday, July 17 to voice their displeasure at a proposal to purchase land for recreational uses. The township's park committee is investigating 80 acres on Mohawk Road, west of the town hall.

"We don't know how much of this (the 80 acres) the town will be interested in purchasing," stated town chairman Scott Weiss. He stated he saw the potential for a new town hall, baseball diamond, soccer field, hiking trails and a sledding hill.

Del Ellefson stated he was opposed to the idea and was con-cerned about the township's coffers paying for upkeep. He asked why the baseball diamond at Wayne Elementary could not be used. His question went unanswered.

Town residents will make the decision whether or not the purchase and how much is made. Weiss assured everyone in attendance that the purchase will need to come up for a vote at a special meeting of the electors.

PEOPLE

Martin receives promotion and achievement medal

Lieutenant Lucas J. Martin

Serving in the U. S. Navy since 2003, Lucas J. Martin was recently promoted to the rank of Lieutenant and was awarded the Navy and Marine Corps Achievement Medal presented by Rear Admiral Cecil D. Haney in Portsmouth, New Hampshire for his participation in testing the readiness (sea trials) of three submarines that had completed their year-long overhaul.

Lieutenant Martin's achievement medal from the Secretary of the Navy was presented in recognition of LT Martin's superior performance of his duties during the conduct of sea trials for submarines USS Philadelphia, USS Pittsburgh and USS Jacksonville in December 2006. Rear Admiral Haney stated LT Martin consistently performed his demanding duties in an exemplary and highly professional manner. He ensured the flawless execution of deep dives for the submarines and assisted in coordinating all communication requirements above and below the surface for the submarines. His keen attention to detail was evident when each submarine provided a detailed summary of lessons learned.

As a qualified diver, LT Martin assisted in the execution of an emergency medical evacuation that took place on board one of the submarines during her sea trials. LT Martin's managerial ability, personal initiative and unswerving devotion to duty reflected credit upon himself and were in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Naval Service.

Assigned to the USS SAN-TA FE, a nuclear-powered, fast-attack submarine home based in Pearl Harbor, LT Martin is the Assistant Engineer. Currently the USS SANTA FE is undergoing a year-long overhaul in Portsmouth, New Hampshire. During the overhaul, LT Martin oversees the Engineering Department. He is fully qualified in Submarine warfare, is a qualified Navy diver and is a qualified Nuclear Engineer by the United States Department of Energy.

Lucas is a 2003 graduate of the United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, Maryland, a 1999 graduate of St. Lawrence Seminary, Mt. Calvary and a 1995 graduate of Holy Trinity Catholic School, Kewaskum. He is the son of Larry and Louise Martin of Kewaskum.

Ruplinger - Wagner

Ken and Sharon Ruplinger of West Bend announce the engagement of their daughter, Kelly, to Adam Wagner, son of Janine Ackatz and Wayne Wagner of Kewaskum.

Kelly is a senior at UW-

Oshkosh majoring in Human Resource Management.

Adam is in his final year at Moraine Park studying CNC programming.

A 2009 wedding is being planned.

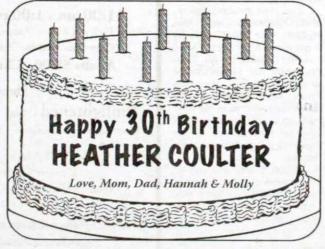

Jennifer Detloff and Timothy McKee are pleased to announce their engagement.

EVENTS

'Li'l Abner' being performed in C-Sport

Shown above are Tim Hagen as Li'l Abner and Lindsay Krautkramer as Daisy Mae in the Campbellsport Community Production of Li'l Abner.

Campbellsport Community Theater is creating Dogpatch USA on the stage of the Lang Auditorium in Campbellsport High School. The cast is assembled from Campbellsport, Kewaskum, Lomira and Fond du Lac.

From the 1950's through the 1970's a comic strip appeared in the nation's newspapers called Li'l Abner, written by Eau Claire's own Al Capp. It was a political spoof set in a mythical town in the south called Dogpatch.

In 1956 all the characters in the well-loved strip came to life on the Broadway stage in the musical of the same name, Li'l Abner. The show provides satire as well as the homespun humor of the comic strip.

Dogpatch is a town with its own traditions. The show begins with the introduction to many of the characters in town. Marryin' Sam (played by Dan Seidl) is the preacher who as his name says performs the nuptials and advises folks as well. Mammy Yokum (played by Sheena De-Long) is a town leader and gives Pappy, her husband, (played by Alan Venturini) "what for". Their son, Abner (played by Tim Hagen) likes to take it easy and spends most of his time avoiding Daisy Mae (played by Lindsay Krautkramer) who is in love people get married is on Sadie Hawkins Day. On that day if a girl catches a man he has to marry her. Daisy has been trying to catch but to no avail. Someone is also pursuing Daisy- Earthquake McGoon, the world's dirtiest wrestler (played by Steve Berres), Earthquake announces there will be a hideous change in the Dogpatch way of life and his chance to claim Daisy Mae.

Senator Phogbound (played by Karl McCarty) comes to tell all the residents of Dogpatch that the United States Government is going to blow there home off the face of the earth. The residents soon realize their town will be gone unless they find something necessary. This, of course, leads to all kinds of complications and intrigue and zany behavior by all.

General Bullmoose (played by Randy Hestekin) gets involved as well as Dr. Finsdale (played by Kent Joas) a government scientist. More government agents, military men and other Dogpatchers round out the show.

Dogpatch will debut on August 9 and run through August 12. Tickets for adults are $8 in advance and $9 at the door. Children's tickets are $4. A special senior citizen rate of $5 will be available for the Sunday matinee. Reserved seating is available this year.

Tickets are available from cast members and these businesses- Ben Franklin, Twohig Furniture and Sheila's Beauty Salon in Campbellsport and National Exchange Bank in Eden. For additional information or tickets, call Karl at (920) 533-8884 or Rose at (920) 533-4375.

Lions Club Steak Fry Aug. 7

The Campbellsport Lions Club announce Tuesday August 7, from 4:30-8:30pm, as the date for their annual steak fry. Cost is only $15 for a grilled steak, salad, potatoes, dinner rolls, dessert and coffee.

Auburn Bluffs will again be hosting the event. Located on River Road, just a mile east of Campbellsport off of Highway 67, the scenic golf course will be offering a "Steak Fry" special offering a "Steak Fry" special.

Pat Adams, owner of Auburn Bluffs, explains, "All golfers will receive $2.00 off green fees on August 2nd. (The $2.00 is donated back to the Lions Club.) We love having events like the Steak Fry. The Campbellsport Lions Club is another great organization in our community. Auburn Bluffs is proud to be able to host this great community event. Tee times are highly recommended."

Many other events will be going on in conjunction with the fry and auction. A 7:30pm auction will be held during the steak fry. The auction includes many unique packages including a VIP Brewer package on Wednesday evening Sept 5th. The VIP package includes 6 VIP tickets, a catered tailgate meal and drinks, as well as chauffeured transportation donated by Campbellsport Building Supply and Koffman Auto Body. Dean Gassner and Daryl Smith will be running the popular hole-in-one contest. Come early and stay late to socialize with the good people of the community. Local "celebrity" Lions members will be your hosts and bartenders at this annual event.

The proceeds raised will go for many of the Lions' projects. The Lions hard work allows them to give back to many local charities. Also, a portion of the money will go towards the annual Campbellsport Lions Scholarship.

Don Spangenberg, president of the Campbellsport Lions explains, "The annual steak fry is our major fundraiser. Please consider joining us on Tuesday August 7th. Events like the steak fry make our community strong. We thank all those that have dined with us in the past. Please contact a Lions member soon for your tickets; we are expecting a large turnout again this year."

If you would like further information visit Pat Adams at Auburn Bluffs or contact a local Lions member, they would be glad to assist you.

Peace UCC to hold PIGNIC Festival August 5

The winner of this multi-purpose child's playhouse, garden shed, ice fishing shanty, winter bus shelter will be selected on August 5 at the ninth Annual Peace Church PIGNIC Festival in Kewaskum's Kiwanis Park.

Area residents are invited to attend Peace United Church of Christ's ninth annual PIG-NIC pig roast and festival on Sunday, August 5, 2007 at Kiwanis Park.

Events for the entire family will kick off at 8:30 a.m. with welcome time and social fellowship music by "Enlightend." A 9:30 a.m. community worship service will follow in the park pavilion, led by Rev. J. Eric Kirkegaard. Children will provide special music from Vacation Bible School. "No matter who you are, or where you are on life's journey, you are welcome here."

This year, a favorite local dance band, "The Julida Boys," will perform a live concert from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. The band plays a collection of musical styles, including 50's and 60's rock and roll, country standards, ballads and polkas.

A roast pork and chicken dinner, complete with salad, vegetable and beverage, will be served from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Carry-outs are available and tickets will be sold on the day of the event. Dinner tickets are $8 for adults, $5 for children four to 10, and free for children under four. Advanced sale tickets are recommended and are available from the church office at 262-626-4011. For those with a sweet tooth, the dessert booth will offer homemade special-

Children may enjoy the free games and projects, while adults purchase hand-made crafts or take a chance on the beautifully hand-stitched "Country Sampler" quilt. Every member of the family will find something of interest in over 75 bucket raffles, featuring sports, dining, jewelry, home and garden, music, auto, pet care, and entertainment packages. Girls will love the American Girls dolls and books. Boys might want the Nerf Shooter or collegiate basketball. Gift cards from many local businesses are also included. Chances are $1 each or 25 for $20.

A favorite raffle this year is a multi-use child's playhouse/ garden shed/ice fishing shanty. Sturdily built and beautifully hand-painted, its all-wood construction will support hours of imaginative play for children or grandchildren, garden storage for adults, or protection from the elements on the lake. Children might even use it to wait for the bus in inclement weather! Tickets for the multi-use building raffle are $5 each or 5 for $20 and are available at Peace Church, Gateway Café, Habitat for Humanity and Van Ess Dental.

Don't miss the variety "talent" show at 12:30 p.m., which will feature music, comedy, drama, and wacky humor for the whole family.

In case of rain, the PIG-NIC will be held at Kewaskum Elementary School.

Village Market Celebration being planned in Campbellsport celebration is coming to Campbellsport. Businesses in the downtown area are putting together a Village Market Celebration as a way to welcome in the fall harvest and to showcase the downtown businesses.

Chris Schanen, owner of Ben Franklin True Value, says the first-time event will be held Saturday, August 4 from 8 a.m. until 2 p.m. The event will run in conjunction with the Campbellsport Chamber of Commerce's weekly Saturday Farmer's Market, held on Main Street from 8 a.m. until 11 a.m.

"We've asked the farmers to stay longer that day. We've had a lot of calls from people bringing craft, rummage and flea market items. (It) sounds like a number of organizations are going to have bake sales. Kevin Reilly from Creative Image and Sound will be providing DJ entertainment," Schanen reported.

Schanen stated that his store would be having a huge closeout and clearance sale both inside the store and outside. Erin Enterprises, located east of his store also has a sale planned.

Schanen says the event is free for the vendors who wish to set-up. For more information they can call him at (920) 533-4732.

WASHINGTON COUNTY FAIR

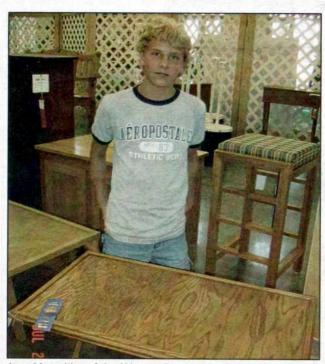

4-H'ers finish first round of judging Monday

Wayne Crusaders 4-H Club member for seven years, Karla Stoffel, meets face-to-face with a judge to discuss one of her entries "Wildflowers of the Roadside and Prairie" which featured a scrapbook of pressed flowers. Stoffel received a red ribbon for her entry. She also has several other fair entries including three rabbits she will be showing later in the week.

Kettle Country Kids 4-H members Kaysi Fischer and Kelli Fischer are all smiles after judging. Kaysi received her Cloverbuds rosette ribbon and Kelli received four blue ribbons for her four entries.

Jared Luedtke of the Wayne Crusaders 4-H Club received a blue ribbon for his woodworking entry in the fair. He has been in 4-H for two years and will be showing pigs later in the week.

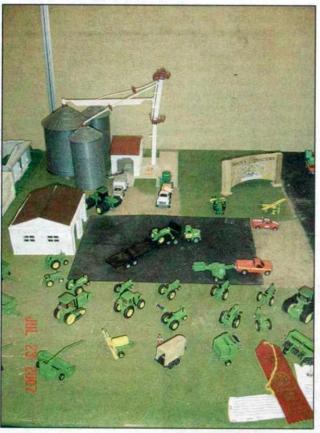

By Amber Donath Statesman Correspondent

The Washington County Fair officially started Tuesday, July 24, however, some of the real excitement happened before the gates even opened.

Monday, July 23, was judging day in the Fair Park Pavilion Building for all Washington County 4-Hers entering projects in 27 category options including but not limited to Cloverbuds, exploring, arts and crafts, woodworking, clothing, natural and vet science, cake decorating and photography.

Keep in mind, there are 17 Washington County 4-H Clubs, four of which are from the Kewaskum area. That means dozens of members entering hundreds and quite possibly thousands of projects.

And a judge in a face-to-face meeting examines each and every junior class project entered in the fair. Judges ask questions and award a ribbon not only on the appearance of the finished project but also based on each individual's knowledge of his or her project, what was learned, what skills were used and if there is any way to change or improve the project.

An important note is that each member is not competing against others. They are being judged strictly on their own merit.

Face-to-face judging for each junior class participant is part of the huge success associated with 4-H. It is a great way for young people to develop communication skills, build self-esteem and self-confidence as well as being more creative and imaginative in each project. Members have the opportunity to explain their vision.

4-H strives to continually give opportunities to young people that help them become better people and prepare for their future.

Be sure to take time to visit the Fair Park Pavilion Building on your trip to the fair. But be prepared. You will be amazed at the effort put into fair projects. Admiring the quality will range from WOW to flat-out astonishment.

The top projects in each category in the junior division are selected for Grand and Reserve ribbons. Some youth may also receive Merit Awards on outstanding work. Plus, a few projects are selected for State Fair. They do not necessarily have to be Grand Champion to advance. Selections are made based on State Fair criteria.

There are even senior citizen and open class exhibit entries for any person not affiliated with an organization. The Danish judging system is used for these exhibits.

As an added bonus, the 4-H is hosting a silent auction in the Pavilion. There are dozens of items ranging from collectibles to gift baskets, certificates and much more donated by 4-H alumni and friends of 4-H. The Washington County 4-H Leaders Association uses the proceeds from the auction for 4-H camp scholarships, leader training, leadership workshops for youth, music & drama programs and other educational opportunities. Bidding is open through Sunday afternoon.

Stop by, show your support and prepare to be amazed. You'll be glad you took the time.

PRAYERS

Through the application to the Holy Spirit. Holy Spirit you who solve all problems, light all roads, so that I can attain my goals. You who give me the Divine gift to forgive and forget all evils against me and that in all instances of my life you are with me. I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things as you confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you, even in spite of all material illusions. I wish to thank you in your mercy toward me and mine. The person must say this three consecutive days. After three days the favor requested will be granted even if it may appear difficult. This prayer must be published immediately after the favors is granted.

J.

ST. JUDE'S NOVENA For Prayers Answered

May the Sacred Heart of Jesus be adored, glorified, loved and preserved throughout the world, now and forever. Sacred Heart of Jesus, pray for us. St. Jude, worker of miracles, pray for us. St. Jude, hope of the helpless, pray for us. Thank you St. Jude.

Say this prayer 9 times a day, by the 8th day your prayers will be answered. It has never been known to fail. Publication must be promised.

IN MEMORY

In loving memory of ALLEN (ALBS) DREHER, who passed away two years ago, July 25, 2005:

If tears could build a stairway, And memories could build a lane We would walk right up to Heaven And bring you back again.

No farewell words were spoken,

No time to say goodbye, You were gone before we knew it,

And only God knows why.

Our hearts still ache in sadness And secret tears will flow. What it meant to lose you No one will ever know.

But now we know you want us, To mourn for you no more, To remember all the happy time, Life still has much in store.

Since you'll never be forgotten We pledge to you today, A hallowed place within our hearts.

We love and miss you! From Shirley & families

Is where you'll always stay.

IN MEMORY

In loving memory of EUGENE PESCH, who passed away 11 years ago, July 19, 1996:

I'm safely in heaven, dear ones, Oh, so happy and so bright! There is perfect joy and beauty In this everlasting light, All the pain and grief is over, Every restless tossing passed.

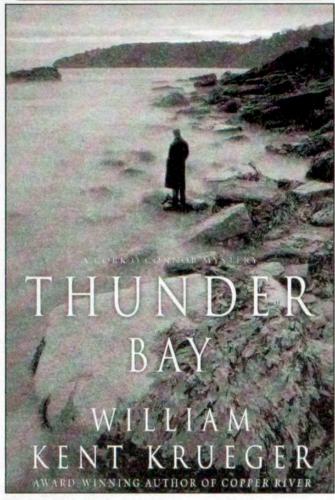

I am now at peace forever, Safely home in heaven at > Deeply missed by his family.

The Bookworm Sez

by Terri Schlichenmeyer Thunder Bay By William Kent Krueger

Atria, $24.00 288 pages

When something you have is missing, how far do you go to find it?

Do you look everywhere, concentrating on where you were when you last saw what was missing, or do you ask around, hoping someone's seen it? Or maybe, like Little Bo Peep, you just assume that whatever is missing will find you instead. In the new mystery "Thunder Bay" by William Kent Krueger, Henry Meloux just learned that he has a son, born some seventy years ago. But since he doesn't know where his son is, Meloux asks his friend, Cork O'Connor to help. But they need to hurry. A vision told Henry that his son is in trouble.

It's the end of summer in Northern Minnesota, and Cork O'Connor is looking forward to a quiet rest of the season. His little restaurant, Sam's Place, is running smoothly with daughters Jenny and Anne at the helm. Jo, Cork's wife, is doing well at her law firm. Even son, Stevie, seems happy this summer, even though he keeps begging - fruitlessly - for a dog.

And then the call comes: Henry Meloux, an Objibwe Mide and Cork's old friend, has taken ill. He's in the hospital, and although doctors are doing tests, they don't know what's ailing him. But Henry knows exactly what's wrong.

When Henry was a young man, he fell in love with the daughter of one of the men who hired him to guide them through the forests of Northern Minnesota. Maria Lima was beautiful and smart. She embraced the woods and learned to be silent on the trails. Despite that her father and his partner were looking for hidden gold in the northland, a plan that would ruin Henry's beloved forest. Maria and Henry's romance was sweet and intense. If it hadn't been for tragedy and murder, the couple could have easily been quite happy.

Now a vision has told the old Mide that he has a child he never knew, and Henry needs Cork to find his son. But the son has grown to be a reclusive and eccentric oddball who has barricaded himself on an island in Thunder Bay, Canada, and Cork learns that the man doesn't want to meet his father. Henry, however, is adamant.

Like it or not, he's going to Canada, with or without Cork O'Connor's help.

Are you tired of a violent, blood-soaked, wild-car-crash, blow-em-up, cringe-filled mys-tery? Then "Thunder Bay" is a book you can grab and relax with, because you won't find anything like that in here. Author William Kent Krueger gives you a murder in this book - a couple of them, in fact, as well as two bittersweet romances and a plot twist you won't like - but overall, you won't need to look away while you're reading this book and you won't have nightmares because of it.

If you're tired of the same old bloody sleuthfest and you want something different, I think you'll be happy with this "Thunder Bay" is a book you'll read with lightning speed, and a definite don't-miss mys-

BUSINESS NEWS

Aurora named one of the 'most wired' health systems for fourth year in a row

Health Care has been named one of the Most Wired health care providers for the fourth consecutive year by Hospitals & Health Networks Magazine.

"Technology is an important part of the process of improving patient care," said Philip Loftus, Aurora's vice president of information services. "It has helped us to be more efficient in the use of our resources, positively impact the quality and cost of care, and create a safer patient care environment."

Advances that have been incorporated at Aurora include computerized physician orders, electronic medication prescribing; simpler patient access for registration and scheduling, an integrated electronic system bringing together patient schedules and historic information on those patients, and providing nurses with physician orders, care reminders and nursing interventions in a single location

Loftus said that the next wave of enhancements would include electronic bedside medication using barcode technology to reduce the number of potential medication errors, and technology to enable physicians and nurses to access "best practice" information, helping to ensure consistent care throughout Aurora. "This approach leads to better outcomes and helps hold down the cost of care," Loftus

The nation's 100 Most Wired hospitals show better outcomes in four key areas: mortality rates, patient safety measures from the Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality, core measures from Hospital Compare, and average length of stay. Based on analysis of the results of the ninth annual Most Wired Survey and Benchmarking Study, hospitals are embracing technology as a key tool for health care quality improvements.

"Many hospitals have made strong commitments to using information technology to improve the quality of care," says Rich Umbdenstock, president and CEO of the American Hospital Association. "They are combining technology with clinical knowledge and creativity with a focus on improving outcomes, and making care safer and more streamlined for both patients and clinicians."

Hospitals investing in quality are also investing in IT. "The Most Wired hospitals are focused on quality," says Alden Solovy, executive editor of Hospitals and Health Networks. The analysis does not establish a direct causal relationship between technology and outcomes; however, health care organizations are looking to measure trends documenting better outcomes

"The continued adoption of technology for clinical systems in health care is driving rapid change and great outcomes," said Lewis Redd, managing partner of Accenture Health and Life Sciences North American Provider Practice and one of the 2007 Survey sponsors. "The leaders in the field are already showing us how technology can help connect hospitals with their patients and enhance clinical outcomes. This survey is a call to action."

Sunny Sanyal, chief operating officer for McKesson Provider Technologies, adds that the strategic use of IT to drive quality and performance is becoming more common. "The use of IT to automate, measure and connect health care is clearly helping many organizations to improve their performance," he said. "Looking ahead, we see increased use of analytics and connectivity to drive better outcomes, increased efficiency, greater patient satisfaction and ultimately, a stronger competitive position.

The Most Wired Survey is conducted annually by Hospitals and Health Networks magazine, which uses the results to name the 100 Most Wired hospitals and health systems. It focuses on how the nation's hospitals use information technologies for quality, customer service, public health and safety, business processes and workforce issues.

Hospitals and Health Networks conducted the 2007 survey in cooperation with Accenture, McKesson Corp. and the College of Healthcare Information Management Executives. The magazine's July cover story detailing the results is available at www.hhnmag.com.

1 clove garlic, minced 1/3 cup bottled water

1 21/2- to 3-pound broiler-fryer chicken, quartered

2 tablespoons honey

Combine first seven ingredients. Place chicken in plastic bag set into a shallow dish. Add marinade; seal bag. Turn chicken to coat well. Chill for 6 to 24 hours, turning chicken occasionally. Remove chicken from bag. Discard marinade. Arrange preheated coals around a drip pan in a covered grill. Place chicken, bone side down, on grill over drip pan. Cover and grill for 50 to 60 minutes or until chicken is tender and no longer pink, brushing occasionally with honey the last 5 minutes of grilling. Serves 4

Gridiron Club awards two scholarships

For each of the past five years, the Kewaskum Gridiron Club has been able to award former Gridiron Club players with a scholarship to assist them in their post high school education. This year however, the Gridiron Club awarded not one, but two scholarship to senior football players graduating from Kewaskum High School this past June. This became possible when donations far exceeded expectations at the club's offseason scholarship fund-raising event.

At their May 2 Board of Directors meeting, Casey Scheel and JJ Logan were chosen to each receive a $1,000 scholarships.

At a small but special ceremony on June 8th at Hon-E-Kor, both Casey Scheel and JJ Logan were formally presented with certificates commemorating their scholarships. In attendance were several Gridiron Club Board members as well as parents of both recipients.

The efforts and accomplishments of these two players did not go unnoticed on the football field during the 2006 season as they helped Kewaskum High School capture another Eastern Wisconsin Conference Championship and advance through the playoffs to the division three state semifinals.

With his dominating size, Logan helped open big running holes in the offensive line, as well as helping to stuff running plays by plugging the middle in the defensive line.

Scheel's tremendous season at quarterback garnered him such accolades as first team all-conference quarterback, offensive MVP and offensive back of the year.

JJ, son of Jeff and Jodi Logan, is currently attending UTI Technical College in the Chicago area.

Casey, son of Dean and Coyla Scheel, plans to attend Marquette University in the fall.

To be eligible to apply for the Gridiron Club Coaches Scholarship an applicant must have participated in the Kewaskum Gridiron Youth Football program all years eligible and then go on to participate in the Kewaskum High School football program all four years of their high school tenure. Both Casey and JJ met these requirements as both started playing football as members of the 2000 sixth grade Gridiron team, continuing all the way through high

Please join the Kewaskum Gridiron Club, it's coaches, players and parents in congratulating these two fine examples of scholar athletes for all their successes on the football field, and offering them the best of wishes in their chosen career paths.

As we draw near to the start of the 2007 football season, please come out and support all of Kewaskum football, whether at the Gridiron youth level games on Saturdays, or the high school games with the freshmen and JV on Thursdays, and of course, varsity on Friday nights. Watch The Statesman for game schedules, scores and highlights in the upcoming weeks and months.

Searching for Hidden Treasures: Geocaching

"Searching for Hidden Treasures: Geocaching" is the next program in the Evening Events series at the Kettle Moraine State Forest - Northern Unit. The evening is sponsored by the Friends of the Kettle Moraine. The program will be held on Saturday, July 28, from 6:30 p.m. to 8:45 p.m. at the Henry S. Reuss Ice Age Visitor Center. The Ice Age Visitor Center is located off of Hwy 67 half mile west of Dundee. The program is free, but donations are always gratefully accepted.

Hidden treasures . . . Secret codes . . . Challenging, beautiful natural terrain . . . Cool technology toys . . . Do these things pique your interest? Then geocaching is for you! What is geocaching? It is a great, new fun-filled sport that uses the technology of GPS (global position system) satellites to locate treasures hidden by fellow geocachers. Once you get the clues from the Internet, you are off on your quest to find hidden treasures or caches.

Join Brian Geoffery and friends of the Wisconsin Geocaching Association and Jackie Scharfenberg, forest naturalist, as they provide you with the tools and knowledge to begin geocaching. Jackie will cover how to use topographic maps and orienteering compasses. Brian will explain how the GPS system works and the ins-and-outs of the sport of geocaching. The evening will end with actual treasure hunts to find nearby hidden caches.

For further information or directions to the Ice Age Visitor Center, contact the forest staff at the Ice Age Visitor Center. The staff can be reached at (920) 533-8322. The center is open Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m., and on Saturday and Sunday from 9:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Indians eliminated by East after falling behind early

By Judy Harlow

Statesman Sports Corresponden

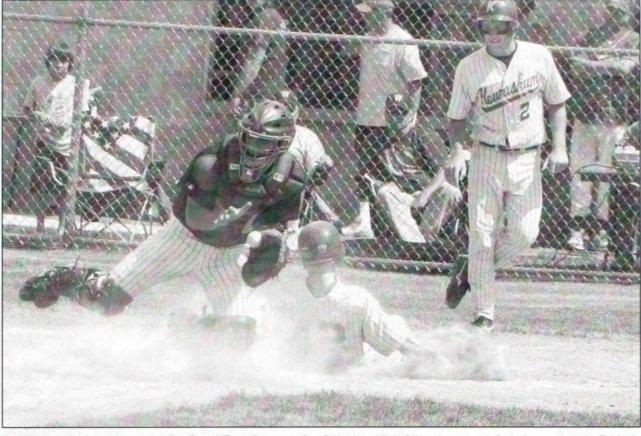

Perhaps Kewaskum High School's Matt Parrent was a bit rusty after not having pitched much in the past several weeks. Nerves might also have been a problem, as evidenced by the difficulties the Indians had in handling a few early bunts. Nonetheless, the Indians fell early and never caught up ending the match behind the Suns, 9-6.

But overconfidence and looking past West Bend East anticipated rematch against West Bend West ... well, KHS coach Dave Donath would have no part of it after his Indians lost to the Suns in the sectional semifinal Friday, July 20 at Random Lake. Donath looked stunned when asked if the Indians looked past East. "Our kids, no, not at all," was his answer, pointing more the defensive woes as part of the problem, but stressing how proud he was his players bounced back and made the game very exciting after falling behind 7-0 after the first two innings.

"They could have packed it in and hit the highway a lot sooner," Donath said. "I was proud of the way they came back. They did a good job. Another couple of bounces here or a base hit there and..."

East got to Parrent early, using a single by Aaron Kasten and a ground rule double by E.J. Sexton to get on the board in the first inning. In both cases, the Suns got their hits off first pitches. Still, Donath was certain he made the right choice going with Parrent as his starter. "I pretty much had Matt in mind right away. I wasn't sure how John (Holt) would bounce back from Tuesday," the coach said, referring to Holt's 136-pitch effort in the 8-3 win over Port Washington.

Perhaps Donath was recalling the gritty performance Parrent turned in a year ago, pitching the win over West to get to state. He never made it through the second inning Friday, lifted after he gave up

SAFE! Ben Butler slides past the Suns' Tony Decent after following Nick Olla, shown at left, to homeplate in Friday's Sectional match in Random Lake. Both Olla and Butler scored as Decent missed the catch. A poor start in the first two innings was to blame for leaving the Indians without a run to the state tournament in Stevens Point. The Suns grabbed a 9-6 victory, but later were shadowed by West Bend West in the game following.

five more runs in the second and was responsible for a sixth after Nick Ebert came on in re-

The Suns sent 11 batters to the plate in the second, starting with Brad Young's double over Jordan Petrin's head in left field. Nick Mundinger followed with an RBI single, then a little bunt by Tanner Pruett found a home between Parrent and first baseman Casey Scheel, and by the time Parrent gloved it, Pruett was safely at first base.

One out to go, and the Indians could have been out of the inning down by just three runs. It was not to be, however, as Sexton got his second base hit of the afternoon with an RBI single to left field, making the score 5-0. Then Tony Decent smacked a double into the gap in left center, and suddenly the score was 6-0.

Ebert later gave up a single to Eric Gremonprez, which first appeared to be a foul ball, and then was signaled as a hit, stretching East's lead to 7-0. Young followed with his second double of the inning, then Ebert got Mundinger to line out to right to end the long inning.

Santarlasci gave up only one hit, an infield single by Scheel, in the first two innings, then the Indians rallied for four runs in the third, and it all started when Decent dropped the third strike by Nick Olla, and the KHS sophomore scampered safely to first.

The next two KHS batters, Justin Krueger and Scheel, hit fly outs, before Ben Butler singled to past third. Shea came through with a big double to left, driving in his two buddies, and Parrent kept the rally alive with a single that took a big bounce over the shortstop's head. An East error gave KHS its fourth run, and then Ebert hit into a ground out to end the inning.

Kewaskum closed the gap to just two runs (8-6), scoring two more in the fourth. Nick Olla and Justin Krueger got back-to-back singles, then Santarlasci hit Scheel and Butler, forcing in a run, and Shea's fly out brought in the other.

East added an insurance run in the sixth when a pitch hit Decent, he advanced to second on a bunt and third in Young's third hit of the game. Statesman photo: Andrew Kuehl

He scored on Mundinger's sac fly.

Eric Kempf relieved Santarlasci in the fifth and gave up just two infield hits in three innings. In the seventh, he struck out Parrent and Ebert and got Staege to hit into a ground out to first.

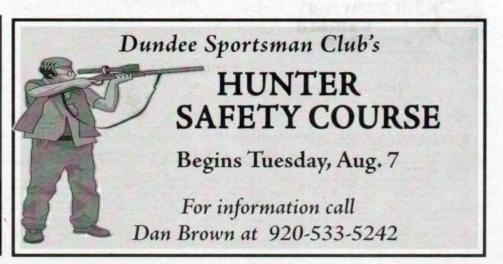

Kewaskum ended its season at 21-9 but fell short of its goal of another trip to state.

"We gave 'em momentum early," Donath said. "In the second, things got way out of hand."

In the finals, East battled hard but eventually could not match West's offensive power. West won the game 11-8 and takes a 31-1 mark into Wednesday's opener at state (11 a.m.) vs. Franklin, 30-12.

Ramel is County's 4-H Matriarch

Gladys Ramel, specializing in knitting and crocheting has been a Washington County 4-H volunteer for over 50

By Amber Donath Statesman Correspondent

For more than 50 years, Washington County 4-H has had the help and dedication of Gladys Ramel, a Kewaskum woman with talents to share and the willingness to teach.

Since 1956, Ramel has been volunteering for the Kewaskum 4-H club in the clothing projects area thanks to her daughter's encouragement...and the lack of a teacher who specializes in knitting and crocheting.

Over the years, Ramel has helped close to 300 4-H members work on their projects as well as teaching several adults along the way,

"Sometimes I run into a former student and they tell me they are still doing knitting and crocheting, said Ramel.

Volunteering for 4-H seems to run in the family. After encouraging her mother to help out over 50 years ago, Ramel's daughter, Diann, who had been a 4-H member for 20 years, now herself has been a leader for 30 years in Sheboygan County. Ramel also has four grandchildren who are 4-H

"I have enjoyed the conversations while knitting and crocheting over the years," said Ramel. "It is nice to see it when some of the 4-H members work hard and have a nice finished piece for the fair. Some of my pupils have even made it to the Wisconsin State Fair."

In 2006, Ramel received the 4-H Gold Clover award for 50 years of service. She also decided to hang up her teaching hat, however, this asked that she help them learn her craft. And so she is back at it once again.

Be sure to stop by the 4-H exhibit hall to see some of the projects created by the area 4-H members at the Washington County Fair July 24-29, 2007.

David Walter, Campbellsport, restores and collects antique gas engines. He's seen here at the 2006 Dodge County Antique Power Show with his three horsepower Economy gas engine. The Economy brand was sold by Sears and Roebuck Co. The 2007 Dodge County Antique Power Show runs August 3 - 5 near Burnett.

The sleepy little settlement of Burnett Corners will be bustling on August 3-5 as the 39th annual Dodge County Antique Power Show opens for business.

The show is 1/2 mile south of the Village of Burnett on Hwy. 26 then west on CTH B or two and 1/2 miles east of Beaver Dam on CHT B.

The show is a working museum that was started 30 years ago to recreate the old-time threshing bees that were a big part of life on Wisconsin farms in past decades. It has grown to include many related activities displays and demonstrations.

The show regularly attracts several hundred exhibitors and several thousand spectators.

Each year the show includes a feature area spotlighting a particular brand of tractor or farm machinery.

This year the show will have two main features. The featured brand will be Fordson and Ford tractors along with Ford's Dearborn machinery line.

The second feature will be a large display of antique garden tractors including the 2007 "Garden Tractor Expo" of the Vintage Garden Tractor Club of America.

As part of these features, club members will sell raffle tickets for a chance to win a restored 1956 model 640 Ford tractor and a Ford model LGT 145 lawn and garden tractor. A Ford pedal tractor and a framed print will also be raffled.

Along with those featured tractors, the show will include 300 or 400 antique tractors of every other possible make, model or color.

Row after row of antique hit and miss gas engines will be cranked up by their owners, the popping and whirring engines are a fascinating display of old time propulsion. Several steam traction engines will be fired up and lumbering around the grounds. These coal and wood burning machines show off their quiet by impressive power as they provide power to the sawmill or threshing machines.

Steam engines were used on farms from the 1870's into the 1920's and 1930's when they were replaced with more versatile gas tractors.

Both a sawmill and a shingle mill will be operating, turning logs into planks and shingles.

There will be demonstrations of old-time corn harvesting using a machine called a corn shredder. The cornstalks are then baled with an antique hand-tie baler.

A working blacksmith shop is set up in an authentic looking wooden building. Several blacksmiths will be demonstrating their craft and making several items for sale to the public.

An antique tractor pull gets underway at 11 a.m. Saturday. Always a popular feature, the pull is limited to tractors built before 1960.

The Dodge County Train Club will be housed in one of the buildings. They will have several layouts in a variety of sizes set up and operating.

A large flea market will be set up on the north end of the grounds. Dealers carry a little bit of everything with an emphasis on old tools, parts and farm collectibles.

Other activities include a kid's pedal pull at noon on Sunday, a tractor parade Friday and Sunday afternoons, and a kid's treasure hunt in the straw pile both Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

Food and refreshments are available at the show all weekend. Club members will serve a fish fry Friday evening and a chicken barbecue will be available Saturday afternoon and evening.

Radio station WXRO's Bill McCullum will host the "Barn Show" Friday afternoon from 5 till 6:30 p.m. The broadcast will be located near the food stand. ANTOMITIE 3 STATE

Dave Bradley, Fox Lake, restores and collects classic Ford tractors and is involved with planning the Ford and Fordson tractor feature at the antique power show. Dave is seen here with one of his three Fords.

Admission to the show is $5 per adult, children 12 and under are admitted free with an adult.

Persons wishing to exhibit antique cars, truck, tractors, antique machinery, models, tools, crafts or any related items are encouraged to attend. Enter at the exhibitor gate, there is no admission charge for exhibitors.

Rainbow of services bridges concerns about aging

"Big decisions are never easy," said Norman, who moved to Cedar Ridge Apartments in West Bend last November. "But now I wonder why I waited so long." His daughter, who used to worry if he didn't answer the phone, now knows it's likely he's out and about on the grounds, having dinner, taking a class, enjoying a performance down the street at the Cedar Theatre, or finishing a project in the woodshop with his friends.

CedarRidgeispartofCedar Community, a not-for-profit, church-affiliated provider of health care, rehabilitation and senior housing established in 1953. In over 50 years, Cedar Community has grown from one small nursing home to five campuses in Washington and Sheboygan counties, providing the full continuum of care for more than 1000 residents. In 2006, home-based hospice and health care was added, extending Cedar Community's tradition of 'the right care for the right reasons' to hundreds more living in their own homes throughout Washington County.

Cedar Experts at Community agree Norman's experience is not unique: There are many obstacles and fears associated with moving to a senior community, but once a family can get past them, there are many benefits. "If you bring up the idea of moving, an older parent may resist, with bona fide fears about selling their house, keeping their possessions, outliving their resources or losing their freedom in general," said Betty Christen, Ridge manager. "We can help them envision how much can be gained."

At Cedar Ridge, those benefits include dozens of wellness programs, outings, classes, activities, social events, music groups, volunteer opportunities and more each month. An onsite pool and fitness center, health clinic, heated underground garage, two-hole golf course, trails, Big Cedar Lake access, beauty shop, store, restaurant, woodshop, train room, gardens, greenhouse and other amenities all contribute to a fun, engaging atmosphere, without the burden of home maintenance.

For those concerned about the future, Cedar Ridge is also a gateway to additional services, offering residents priority access to additional care settings within Cedar Community should including needs change, (short-stay) care subacute and rehabilitation following a surgery or illness, assisted living, skilled nursing, memory loss services and hospice.

In assisted living, older adults get the support they may need, including onsite nurses 24/7, to keep track of medications, monitor a chronic condition, regain strength and mobility and also enjoy regular, nutritious meals, learn new hobbies and socialize, Christen

When considering senior housing and services, Christen encourages individuals to tour the facilities, and meet the staff and residents. "Everyone should be cheerful and welcoming," Christen said. "Do guests and children feel welcome? It's a nice place to live if it's a nice place to visit." Consider what programs and resources are available, as well as the setting and the parent organization's reputation and strength. Cost should be the final consideration, Christen said, taking into account all the services and amenities that are included.

To learn more about aging parent resources or to schedule a tour, contact Christen at 262.338.2811, email bchristen@cedarcommunity.org or visit www.cedarcommunity.org.

House Swapping: A nice travel option for retirees

Dear Savvy Senior

A while back I read an article about "home exchange" programs that offer free travel accommodations to their members. My wife and I will both be retiring soon and are interested in traveling, but also have a limited budget. What can you tell us about this option?

Budget Travelers

Dear Travelers.

Home exchange programs have become a popular option among many retirees who like to travel, providing free accommodations in a homey setting, but it's not for everyone. Here's what you should know.

Free Vacation Lodging -In a home exchange program, you agree to swap homes with someone who is interested in visiting the area where you live. You stay in their place; they stay in yours, and no money is exchanged – it's purely a barter system. The payoff comes in the opportunity to live like a local, have some extra space and save money.

All you need to do is list your home (photos included) on an exchange Web site for a modest fee. Then you e-mail the owners of houses you're interested in or they e-mail you – and you cut a deal. Perhaps you exchange cars too or agree to take care of each other's pets.

Who would visit here? -Finding an exchange partner can be more difficult if you live in a remote area but it's not impossible. Home exchange companies recommend focusing on your best assets. For example, if you live in an area that's not an obvious tourist attraction, pitch the nearby destinations that are appealing.

Not For Everyone - While home exchanges have a great upside, they're not for everyone. For starters, you have to feel comfortable opening your home and possessions to someone you've probably never met face-to-face. And keep in mind you'll be staying in somebody else's home, which is different from staying in an anonymous hotel room. Your fellow exchangers may have different standards of cleanliness or neatness from yours. And, there's also the concern they might break or damage something while in your home or back out of the deal at the last minute.

- Swapping Sites - While there are lots of online companies that provide home exchange services, here are some top sites that offer both U.S. and international listings:

- HomeExchange (www. homeexchange.com): Offers more than 16,000 listings in 100-plus countries. Listing and contact privileges cost $100 per year. Nonmembers can view listings for free.
- H o m e L i n k
 International (www.swapnow.com): Provides about 14,000 listings in around 70 countries.
 Yearly membership fee and Web access are $90. Add $50 to receive their annual printed directory.
- Intervac (www. intervacusa.com): Lists about 10,000 homes in more than 50 countries. Fees start at $65 a year for Web only, $110 for Web plus printed directory.
- Digsville (www. digsville.com): Has about 4,000 homes and apartments in 55 countries. Annual fee is $45.
- SeniorsHomeExchange (www.seniors homeexchange.com): The only home exchange service exclusive to the over 50 age group. They offer around 2,500 home listings in more than 40 countries. Fees are $79 for three-years or $100 for a lifetime membership.
- Craigslist (www. craigslist.org): This isn't a home exchange site but it does offer a house-swap section and it's free.

House Sitting - If you don't like the house swapping concept another option is house sitting. This is where you live in someone else's home while they're away. In exchange for the free accommodations, you take care of certain responsibilities such as their pets, lawn, mail, etc. To find these worldwide opportunities visit www.caretaker.org which posts more than 1,000 house-sitting openings per year, ($30 annual fee to see listings). Also check out HouseCarers. com, MindMyHouse.com and SabbaticalHomes.com.

Evergreen Club - If you like staying in bed-and-breakfasts and have a spare bedroom yourself, consider the Evergreen Club (www.evergreenclub.com). This is network of more than 2,000 club members (age 50 and older) who agree to play host to each other for short stays. For a modest gratuity of $15 a day for two ($10 for singles) you can stay in a host guest bedroom with breakfast. Annual club dues are $60 ($75 for married couples). Guests make arrangements directly with hosts, and you're free to turn down inquiries anytime you choose.

Downsizing and Relocating: Tips to know

Dear Savvy Senior

Do you have any tips for seniors who want or need to downsize to a smaller home but need help moving? The idea of packing and moving from my home of 45 years is overwhelming me. Any suggestions?

Stressed-out Sandy

Dear Sandy,

Any move is stressful, and moving from a long-time residence is even more so. The idea of actually sorting through decade's worth of stuff can be terribly daunting. But today, there's a new kind of moving service that can make downsizing and relocating a lot easier. Here's what you should know.

Hassle-Free Moving

There's a growing new industry called "senior move managers" that specialize in assisting older adults and their families with the emotional, physical and organizational aspects of relocation. These are professionals who understand how difficult it can be to move from a long-time residence and can make the move easier and less stressful. Although services will vary, most senior move managers can help with some or all of the following:

- Setting up a time-line and comprehensive plan for your move.
 - Locatingandoverseeing

a mover

- Drawing up a scalemodel floor plan of your new residence.
- Creating scale-models of your furniture to help you plan your space.
- Helping you sor through your possessions.
- Packing those items to be moved.
- Arranging for the disposal of unwanted items (donations, estate sales, etc.)
- Unpacking and organize your new home.
- Helping you prepare your home for sale.

Note: Costs vary depending on the services and size of the move, but you can expect to pay somewhere around $1,000 to $3,000, not including the cost of movers.

To locate a senior move manager visit the National Association of Senior Move Managers Web site at www. nasmm.com. But before you hire one, be sure you ask for references from previous clients and check them. Also find out how many moves they have actually managed, and get a written list of services and fees. And make sure they're insured and bonded.

If you can't find a senior move manager in your area, another option is to hire a certified professional organizer – many of whom offer moving/relocating services for seniors. To find one, check out the National Association of Professional Organizers at www.napo.net.

Hiring a Mover

If you don't have any luck locating a senior move or organizing professional, or you don't need this type of service you'll probably still need to hire a mover (see www. protectyourmove.gov). But before handing your money and your hard-earned possessions over to just anyone, it's smart to do a little research. Here are some tips to help you hire the right mover.

Start by getting recommendations for movers from family and friends. Real estate agents are also a good source. Look for companies that will offer you estimates in person – these are the only ones that will give you a reliable figure.

Once you have a few options, conduct a background check starting with the Better Business Bureau (www.bbb.org). Also see www.movingscam. com and www.movingsham. com, which provide blacklists of moving companies and a history of consumer complaints.

Next, get several in-home estimates, and ask for a written, binding estimate, guarantees the total cost of the move based on the weight of the items to be moved, the distance to be moved, packing, and other services. When an estimator comes to your home. be sure you show everything you want to have moved (the closets, the backyard, basement, the attic) so there are no surprises. Also, find out what the mover's responsibilities are for damages that may occur to your belongings, ask for a list of references, and get the company's USDOT and motor carrier license numbers.

If one company offers a much lower bid than the others, it's smart to be skeptical. Once you choose a company, make sure it has the license and insurance it needs to move you legally. Visit www.safersys.org and enter the company's USDOT number to check. You can also call the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration hotline at 888-368-7238 to check if there have been any complaints filed against your company.

Send your senior questions to: Savvy Senior, P.O. Box 5443, Norman, OK 73070, or visit www.savvysenior. org. Jim Miller is a contributor to the NBC Today show and author of "The Savvy Senior" books.

Use of sunglasses, hats cuts risk of vision loss

We all love sunny days, especially those of us who live under a milk-white cloud cover most of the year. We also know that while some sunlight is enjoyable, too much can lead to sunburns, blisters and worse yet, skin cancer. But, have you ever thought about the shortand long-term consequences of ultraviolet (UV) light exposure for your eyes?

"Studies have shown that long-term exposure to the sun's UV rays without protection may contribute to the development of various eye disorders, including macular degeneration and cataracts," says Dr. Mark Freedman, an eye surgeon at Eye Care Specialists ophthalmology practice in Milwaukee. "The more exposure to bright light, the greater the chances of developing these leading causes of vision impairment and blind-

UV-A rays have been shown to penetrate deep into the eye and may injure the macula, the part of the retina responsible for sight in the center of the field of vision. UV-B rays are mainly absorbed by the cornea and lens of the eye, and can damage these tissues. For example, cataracts are a clouding of the lens of the eye, which may be increased by exposure to sunlight.

Photokeratitis, or "corneal sunburn," is a result of intense exposure to UV-B and can cause extreme pain and vision loss for several days. Ptervgium is tissue growth on the white of the eye that can be caused by UV-light exposure and may spread to the cornea without treatment and may eventually require surgery.

"In addition to long-term UV-light exposure, you also need to protect your eyes from severe damage caused by single outings on very bright days," reports Dr. Norman Cohen, an opthalmologist with 32 years of experience. "Excessive exposure to ultraviolet light reflected off sand, snow or pavement can damage the eye's surface. These surface burns are similar to sunburns in that they usually disappear within a couple of days, however, they may lead to further complications later in life."

One of the state's busiest cataract surgeons, Dr. Robert Sucher, explains, "It's most important to stay out of the sun or to protect your eyes between 10 and 2, when ultraviolet rays are the strongest. But, you really should just make it a habit to wear both sunglasses and a hat or visor whenever you're outside for a prolonged period, even if it's gray and overcast," Sucher adds, "No matter what your age, you should take precautions. If you instill these habits in children early on, it will be easier to enforce, and you'll be protecting their sight for the future."

But what type of sunglasses should you wear? "You need sunglasses that block 99 to 100 percent of the same UV-A and UV-B rays that can damage your skin," advises Dr. Brett Rhode, Head of Ophthalmology at Aurora Sinai Medical Center. "And don't be misled by lens colors or price tags. The ability to block UV rays is not dependent on the darkness of the lens.

UV protection comes from a chemical coating applied to the lens surface. As for cost, many $10 sunglasses provide equal or greater protection than $100 lenses. With expensive sunglasses, you're paying for style, frame quality, and options such as scratch-resistant coatings -- not protective

"If you spend lots of time by a pool, at the beach, fishing, or water or snow skiing, you should wear goggles or sunglasses that wrap around your temples. Reflected sunlight off water and snow can be the most dangerous type of UV light because it is intensified. Besides wrap-around that block the sun's rays from the sides, we recommend a hat or visor to protect against rays from above for the best possible protection," says Dr. David Scheidt, past president of the Milwaukee Optometric Society. "And don't forget to wear protection when near UV-light sources other than the sun, such as welding lamps or tanning booths."

Avid outdoorsmen and opthalmologist Dr. Daniel Ferguson, offers additional advice, "Before jumping into the water, take off your sunglasses and pop on a pair of swimming goggles. Chlorine can make your eyes red and puffy, and ponds and lakes may have bacteria that can get underneath contact lenses and cause potentially blinding damage to the cornea. In fact, the best policy is to never wear contacts while swimming."

Now that you're not "in the dark" about the dangers of UV light, don't forget to grab a pair of sunglasses before heading to your favorite lake or vacation spot, or a backyard pool. You'll not only look great, you'll enjoy distortion-free, comfortable vision now and, quite possibly in the future.

Piggly Wiggly/Hunger Task Force Dollar Day at State Fair Aug. 2

State Fair officials are pleased to announce the Piggly Wiggly Hunger Task Force Dollar Day promotion will take place Opening Day of the 2007 Wisconsin State Fair, presented by U.S. Cellular. The Fair will take place Thursday, August 2 through Sunday, August 12.

For the fourth consecutive year, Fairgoers can enjoy the Wisconsin State Fair while helping to stomp out hunger as part of the Piggly Wiggly Hunger Task Force Dollar Day on Thursday, August 2, between 8:00am and 6:00pm. Fairgoers simply donate two non-perishable food items or make a cash donation of $1.00 or more to receive $1 admission at all Admission Gates. Prior to the Fair, the public can go to any of the 86 Wisconsin Piggly Wiggly and nine Dick's Supermarket Stores and make a donation of two non-perishable food items or a cash donation to purchase $1 Fair Admission Tickets in stores through August 1.

Inaddition to $1 Admission through Piggly Wiggly/Hunger Task Force Dollar Day, all fairgoers will receive the added bonus to enjoy all the thrills and excitement the Midway ride area has to offer by taking advantage of $1 Midway rides. Discounted ride tickets can be purchased from 10:00am until 6:00pm on Opening Day, Thursday, August 2 and are only valid on August 2.

"This is an excellent opportunity to provide for our local families. We have the potential to receive over 100,000 pounds of food and as the last big event before fall, this promotion is huge," stated Sherrie Tussler, executive director at the Hunger Task

Force. "We are encouraging people to imagine the potential of their donation, be generous and not limit themselves to just two items."

Fair Wisconsin State Executive Director Randy Prasse stated, "This promotion is an incredible opportunity for everyone to enjoy Opening Day of the Fair and all it has to offer while making a valuable contribution to the important work of the Hunger Task Force while helping those in need in our community.

Odd Wisconsin: Amusing, Perplexing and ICE CREAM CAKE Unlikely Stories from Wisconsin's Past

The Wisconsin Historical Society Press announces the release of Odd Wisconsin: Perplexing and Amusing. UnlikelyStoriesfrom Wisconsin's Past (paperback, $16.95) by Erika Janik. Odd Wisconsin features strange but true stories from Wisconsin's past that will surprise, perplex, astonish and otherwise connect readers with the state's fascinating history. From "the voyageur with a hole in his side" to "pigs beneath the legislature," Odd Wisconsin gathers 300 years of curiosities, all under the radar of traditional stories. Organized thematically, this unique book unearths the stories that got lost to history even though they may have made local headlines at the time.

While Bob La Follette's explouts as leaders of progressive politics are legendary, his early morning exertions to save valuable documents government and executive department paintings during the disastrous 1904 capitol fire are largely unknown - until now. Odd Wisconsin captures the Wisconsin people, places, and events that didn't make it into conventional state histories, lowering a bucket into the depths of Wisconsin history and brining to light curious fragments of forgotten lives.

Erika Janik has a master's degree in American history and journalism from the University of Wisconsin - Madison and has written dozens of essays and articles on Wisconsin history for the Wisconsin Historical Society online collections. She also writes from Wisconsin Trails magazine, the Isthmus and the Wisconsin Magazine of

Downsizing, more than a buzzword it has a to-do list

Our population is living longer. having Therefore greater opportunity to more of life's accumulate possessions in addition to inheriting "tangible memories" from generations past. Clare Walker, owner of Next Step Senior Services says she has a plan to help seniors take that next step in their lives.

The conundrum of seniors having to re-evaluate their belongings and lifestyle occurs at a different time for everyone. At one point in their life, seniors need to ask themselves how they fit into certain living environments.

This can be particularly difficult. As the saying goes, it's easier said than done and there are as many different decision levels and timeframes as there

Where To Start

One of the biggest hurdles is making the decision that needed, identifying the direction that's right for you. After dedicating so many years building homes for children and careers, seniors ultimately need to look at their surroundings with new

Can you keep the yard work up? Do you still enjoy the yard work even though some days it's a bit harder to get up from the flowerbed? Will you continue to make meals, do laundry, go shopping, do banking, and climb stairs? What's the best living environment for your needs? How accessible are your church, doctors, grocery store, friends, children and grandchildren? Do you feel safe? Where do you start?

These are only some of the questions that start going through the minds of seniors when contemplating a transition. Of course, there are many important factors to consider. Everyone comes to the point of change with different circumstances.

Whether you come to the conclusion that your current home is where you want to continue or if soul searching prods you to investigate an apartment, condominium, or senior community, one thing's for sure. There's a lot to do.

The To-Do List

With the increase in the senior population, and with it growing every year, many new services and resources seniors have become available. Many companies and associations have been formed to start addressing the demand. Next Step Senior Services of Menomonee Falls is one of those companies.

Clare Walker, company's owner says after many years of participating in the elder care of family members and moving them forward through their senior stages, she made the decision to join the National Association of Senior Move Managers and attain her Certified Relocation & Transition Specialist (CRTS) designation.

Enabling people supporting them at this stage of life is a valuable and needed service, especially when faced withtheemotionalrollercoaster that comes with downsizing to move." says Walker. It's too much to handle alone and in many cases, family and friends are not geographically close enough or unable to help tackle the task. As a senior move manager, I can provide my clients and their families with a variety of services that include taking the time to sort through possessions with them and implementing their decision on whether to keep, store, appraise, sell, pass on, donate or dispose of each item. This is followed up with all the tasks and necessary resource coordination between packing and unpacking."

Walker says she will also assist in the organization or modification necessary in an

"My goal is to help seniors and their families get to the next step, whatever that is, efficiently and with a positive, joyful attitude. At the end of the day, we've transformed a burden into a relief." Walker concludes

My favorite lake in the Kettles

ByMr. Fisherman Kettle Moraine Fishing Expert

Is there a favorite lake this savvy senior likes to fish for bass in the Kettles? Yes, Auburn Lake. It reminds me of far away waters up north with over half the lake houseless. You also get two lakes to fish.

They are connected by a tree lined channel, which has an old, rundown duck blind on the west side. There is also an outlet with a bridge for cars and the many crossing farm tractors. If you choose to go into the very shallow outlet stream you can hear the sound of water rushing near the small viaduct

Another good feature of the lake is the launch, with a tranquil, natural look that enhances the excitement. It has, as my grandkids would say, the "bestest" launch in the Kettles. Backing up into the water is a breeze. Parking is limited, yet, I always find a

The anticipation of the journey starts at the entrance to the lake and launch that is off County Highway G. You enter the backwoods adventure on a winding road and cross over one small bridge. There are a few DNR storage sheds that just add to the allure of the area. As always this small trip into the woods slowly starts my blood boiling with the thought of fishing Auburn's pure dark waters.

From early spring to the late fall this lake has always given me a challenge. Several times the fish have not been cooperative but this does not matter.

It is enough just having the opportunity to fish there. The process of learning to bass fish there has been slow, but I go back, having fallen for the natural beauty and wilderness

It has paid off in the long run with huge fish to show for it. The photos on my computer with me and bass in the 5 lb category prove it. The biggest northern that has been personally boated by me has been over 30 inches long, so you know there must be bigger ones lurking around.

Besides catching big bass, a fabulous memory of one fourth of July weekend comes back to me. While fishing, two Auburn celebrating residents were the patriotic holiday. neighbor was trying to out do the other with their fireworks display. It was a heavenly site with one spectacular array of lights after another in the sky.

Kavakers should also like this lake because of its wilderness look. Just enjoy the pristine area of this lake or try fishing it. What have you got to "lose"? Possibly a big fish and/ or a great outdoor experience.

If you get a chance to visit Auburn Lake my hope is you will enjoy it as much I have.

Bob Durn is known in the Kettle Moraine State Forest's Northern Unit as Mr. Fisherman. He resides with his wife in the Dundee area where he spends most of his time on various lakes in the forest area.

Washington County Historical Society will open West Bend Company/Regal Ware Museum

Curtis Forester works on cleaning some of the thousands of pieces that will be displayed at The West Bend Company/Regal Ware Historical Museum in West Bend.

WEST BEND- Soon workers of Regal Ware and West Bend Company will join the community in viewing product and memorabilia from the two companies that were pioneers in their industry in the 20th century. The Washington County Historical Society will open the doors to the West Bend Company/Regal Ware Historic Museum after five years of planning and hard work.

ny's Factory Store, unofficially got the project started and fellow West Bend Company employees, Curtis Forester and Ken Norskog, later joined him. Kiefer says while he managed the store, he and fellow store employees would put together a monthly display of past products. He recalled that many customers loved to see the products and past factory employees enjoyed reminiscing about the products they once produced.

When Regal Ware bought the West Bend Company, the store closed, and the collection was about to be scraped until Kiefer saved it. "It ended up in my garage," Kiefer stated.

He approached the Historical Society and they jumped at the chance to take the collection. It took some time, but the group, with Kiefer's aid, secured the purchase of the former Glacier Hills Credit Union at 18 E Washington St in West Bend. The building was a perfect fit being neighbors to the former West Bend Company Factory.

Glacier Hills Credit Union also played a role at the West Bend Company. The credit union was opened for employees of the West Bend Company. It was later opened to the general public.

Since that time, Kiefer, joined by his wife and cohorts, have been working weekly on cleaning, archiving and preparing the 4,000-piece collection for viewing. Items have already been transported to the new museum.

The Historical Society also plans to bring back the Regal

Test Kitchen and have an exact replica at the Museum.

"The vast collection represents how something as everyday as housewares can create a huge impact on women's history and American consumerism. This national story, along with local history, oral histories, educational programs and other events will be part of the museum's regular programming," stated Lisa Rogers, the Historical Society's Director of Marketing and Development.

Right now, until the official move is made, the items are being stored at the Regal Ware factory in Kewaskum. Regal Ware has allowed the Historical Society to store and prepare the collection there for the move to West Bend.

The Historical Society is also seeking items for the museum. Anyone willing to make a donation to the museum is encouraged to call Curator of Exhibits and Collections, Chris Borchert, at (262) 335-4678

The Historical Society is planning an open house for the public on Thursday, August 2 at the new museum from 3 until 9 p.m. Tours will be given with refreshments to celebrate the opening of the museum.

The Healthy Senior

By Fred Cicetti

The Healthy Senior is new syndicated column. It is devoted to the health questions of seniors who are wondering what is going on with these bodies of ours. I pen the column myself, a firstclass geezer over 60 who's been writing about health issues for more years than I want to talk about. The column is in a question-and-answer format. Okay, here's the first question:

Q. I've been noticing this thing in my eye. At first I thought it was an eyelash. Then I realized the thing was actually in my eye. One of my friends told me it's a "floater," and not to worry. What exactly is a "floater" and should I see a

To allay any fears you may have, I should tell you that floaters are usually nothing to worry about. I have them myself. More than 7 in 10 people experience floaters. Now for some biology.

The lens in the front of your eye focuses light on the retina in the back of your eye. The lens is like the one in a camera, and the retina is like film. The space between the lens and retina is filled with the "vitreous," a clear gel that helps to maintain the shape of Floaters occur when the vitreous slowly shrinks over time. As the vitreous changes, it becomes stringy, and the strands can cast shadows on the retina. These strands are the floaters. They can look like specks, filaments, rings, dots, cobwebs or other shapes. Floaters are the most vivid when you are looking at the sky or a white surface such as a ceiling. They move as your eyes move and seem to dart away when you try to look at

WHAT CAN YOU DO ABOUT OSTEOARTHRITIS?

Every year, an estimated million Americans undergo arthroscopy on their knees, shoulders, and on many other joints. The results, however, depend to a great extent on the patient's observance of certain tips and guidelines, both before and after surgery. But what should you know about arthroscopy, and how can you prepare for this important operation? The American Arthritis Society has compiled some useful and practical tips for self-care, and made them available on the Society's website. Developed with the help of some of the world's leading arthroscopy specialists, each tip is easy to follow and can be helpful in preparing for your operation. These and many more suggestions regarding osteoarthritis can be viewed online at: www. americanarthritis.org.

In most cases, floaters are just annoying. When you discover them, they are very distracting. But, in time, they usually settle below the line of sight. Most people who have visible floaters gradually develop the ability to make them "disappear" by ignoring them.

When people reach middle age, the vitreous gel may pull away from the retina. causing "posterior vitreous detachment." It is a common cause of floaters, and it is more likely in people who are diabetics, nearsighted, had eye surgery, or suffered inflammation inside the eye.

flashes Light these vitreous accompany detachments. The flashes can be a warning sign of a detached retina. Flashes are also caused by head trauma that makes you "see stars." Sometimes light flashes appear to be little lightning bolts or waves. This type of flash is usually caused by a blood-vessel spasm in the brain, which is called a migraine. These flashes can happen without a headache and they are called an "ophthalmic migraine."

If your floaters are just bothersome, eye doctors will tell you to ignore them. In rare cases, a bunch of floaters can hamper sight. Then a "vitrectomy" may be necessary. A vitrectomy is a surgical procedure that removes the vitreous gel with its floaters. A salt solution replaces the vitreous. The vitreous is mostly water, so patients who undergo the procedure don't notice a difference. However, this is a risky procedure, so most eye surgeons won't recommend it unless the floaters are a major impediment.

Many new floaters can sometimes appear suddenly. When this happens, it usually not sight threatening and requires no treatment. However, a sudden increase in floaters could mean that a part of the retina has pulled away from its normal position at the back wall of the eye. A detached retina is a serious condition and demands emergency treatment permanent prevent impairment or even blindness.

What should you do when you notice your first floater? It's a good time to get that eye examination you've been putting off.

Lifestyle changes can help seniors prevent falls

According to the National Institutes of Health (NIH) of Bloomington, Minnesota, more than one in three people age 65 years or older fall each year. In fact, falls are the second leading cause of accidental death in the United States.

Although these may be significantly high numbers, falls are not an inevitable part of aging. There are lifestyle changes that can be made to reduce the risk of falling.

Regular physical activity is one of the single most impor-tant preventatives for falling, Paul Osterbauer, D.C., M.P.H., an associate professor at Northwestern Health Sciences University. Dr. Osterbauer teaches gerontology courses at Northwestern and is a faculty clinician at the University's sponsored wellness clinic at Cerenity's Care Center, Marian of St. Paul, which specializes in treating the elderly.

Dr. Osterbauer recommends that adults stay active at least 30 minutes, three times a week. "Gardening, walking; anything to stay active is key in regards to reducing the risk of having a fall," he says. "Physical activity will strengthen muscles while increasing endurance and flexibility."

Having a strong balance is also key in preventing a fall. Dr. Osterbauer suggests simple balance exercises such as standing on one leg next to a stable chair and counting to 10 for each leg. "Increasing the number of seconds will increase tolerance and strengthen muscles in the lower body, resulting in improved balance," says Dr. Osterbauer.

Dr. Osterbauer "Growing awareness of fall prevention is important because it is becoming more acute due to the fact that more people are falling and becoming injured."
Other lifestyle changes

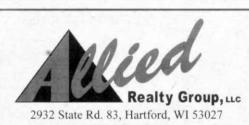

Other lifestyle changes that can reduce the risk of falling include:

- Having medications reviewed to learn more about possible side effects;
- · Checking blood pressure when lying and standing;
- · Having vision checked regularly;
- Wearing sensible, low-heeled shoes that fit well and support the feet;
- · Limiting the amount of alcohol consumed because even a small amount can affect, balance and reflexes; and
- Having a risk assessment performed by your health care

LeMahieu gets first win in ending Death Tax

MADISON—State
Representative Dan LeMahieu
(R-Oostburg) left the Assembly Committee on Ways
& Means Wednesday pleased after the committee voted in a bi-partisan fashion 10-3, passing Assembly Bill 149, the Elimination of the Estate Tax in the State of Wisconsin.

Assembly Bill 149, authored by Representative LeMahieu, would eliminate the "Death Tax" here in Wisconsin retroactively to January 1, 2007. Two areas affected the hardest by the "Death Tax" here in Wisconsin are the Small Business community and the Agriculture Industry. Surviving second and third generation family members are hard-pressed to continue their family's business because of the amount of double taxation leveled on the estate by the Department of Revenue.

"I have seen the Federal Government work hard to lower the Estate Tax. As an already over taxed state, Wisconsin needs to follow the Federal Government's lead," said Rep. LeMahieu. "Passage of this bill will bring relief to the best Wisconsin has to offer, local family businesses, farms, and small industries."

Rep. LeMahieu would like to thank Senator Joe Leibham, the lead Senator on this bill for his efforts during the bills deliberation in the Assembly Ways & Means Committee. The Companion bill to AB 149 is in the Senate awaiting a hearing.

Representative Dan LeMahieu, who was elected to serve the 59th assembly district, currently serves as Co-Chairman of the Joint Committee for the Review of Administrative Rules. In addition LeMahieu is a member of four other assembly committees.

Reporters interviewing a 104year-old woman: "And what do you think is the best thing about being 104?" the reporter asked. The woman simply replied, "No peer pressure."

Complementary care may offer hope for chronic pain sufferers

BLOOMINGTON, MN
-- Millions of Americans are affected by chronic pain everyday, including problems associated with back, neck, headache, and arthritis pain according to the Center for Disease Control and Prevention's National Center for Health Statistics.

While low back pain is the most frequent complaint reported by the National Institute of Health, 43 million are affected by arthritis and almost 45 million adults experience disabling headaches. With costs totaling an estimated $90 billion in medical bills, lost working days, lost income and workers compensation, chronic pain costs more than cancer and heart disease costs combined.

"Chronic pain occurs when an individual experiences constant pain or pain with specific motion that hasn't resolved after eight weeks. Chronic pain can be caused by an injury, structural problems, genetics, poor posture and inactivity, says Katie Burns Ryan, DC, an associate professor and faculty clinician at Northwestern Health Sciences University in Bloomington, MN. "However, postural and inactivity-related chronic pain seems to happen most frequently."

Because chronic pain is so complex, there are several treatment options. The type of therapy depends on age, gender, race or ethnicity, cultural beliefs, and the patient's condition. Dr. Burns Ryan says, "Chronic pain, to a doctor of chiropractic, indicates there have been long-term factors leading up to the individual's presentation of pain. Treat-ment is completed when all of the patient's issues have been addressed and they have the ability to be proactive in their treatment to avoid further conditions.

Dr. Burns Ryan suggests the following methods to decrease problems associated with chronic pain and to promote healthy lifestyle changes.

* CHIROPRACTIC CARE. "A chiropractic treatment is centered on an adjustment, which treats subluxations," says Dr. Burns Rvan. "A subluxation is a joint that no longer has the appropriate positioning and range of motion that then alters the body's structure which in turn alters the body's functions. Symptoms can include tight muscles, tingling, numbness, and the inability to use the joint. Structure is linked directly to function. By improving structure, we improve the function. Chiropractic care allows you to experience well-rounded treatment and still benefit from the results 20 years down

* ACUPUNCTURE. Studies suggest that acupuncture may provide relief for sufferers with low back pain, headaches, migraines, and osteoarthritis. By inserting fine needles into your skin, acupuncture works by releasing endorphins, stimulating the spinal cord, and promoting blood flow changes.

* EXERCISE. "One of the most vital ways to eliminate pain is to become physically active. If the pain is severe, try swimming, which doesn't place too much strain on the back." suggests Dr. Burns Ryan. Exercise helps the body release endorphins (the body's natural pain killer), increase energy, develop strength, enhance flexibility or range of motion, lower stress levels, and burn calories. "Weight control is important because the back is already holding up the torso, arms, and head; additional weight is straining on an already stressed area.

NUTRITIONAL SUP-PLEMENTS. Taking fish oils and glucosamine may help if there is chronic inflammation of a joint, Glucosamine, found naturally in the body, forms and repairs cartilage while fish oil can be used as an anti-flammatory because it contains omega-3 fatty acids. "Although some inflammation is necessary to help repair the body, it is important to keep it controlled. Chonic inflammation is associated with many chronic degenerative conditions including cardiovascular disease, obesity, diabetes, arthritis, and dementia," says Paul Ratte, ND, a naturopathic practitioner at Northwestern Health Sciences University's Woodwinds Natural Care Center in Woodbury, MN. Chondroitin, another suggested supplement, is a structural component of cartilage and provides elasticity. Always consult your doctor before taking any new supplements.

* INTEGRATIVE THER-APIES. This term refers to chronic pain treatment using a combination of the best therapies in complementary medicine with more traditional forms. Dr. Burns Ryan says, "Depending on the diagnosis and the patient, a well-rounded treatment plan, in which doctors of chiropractic and medical doctors are working in unity, can significantly increase recovery time while decreasing their discomfort."

(ARA) - Caring for aging skin involves far more than fighting wrinkles and age spots. Skin health - from protection against UV rays to proper wound care - plays a vital role in overall health for senior Americans.

Skin is the body's first line protection against harm. It shields us from infection, impact and the environment. "Age brings a number of changes that can compromise the skin's ability to protect us," says Cynthia Fleck, a registered nurse and vice president of clinical marketing for Advanced Skin and Wound Care at Medline, which manufactures skin care products educational and resources for seniors.

"As the skin ages it becomes thinner, less resilient and much drier," Fleck explains. "The layers of skin can easily separate, tearing the paper-like uppermost area called the epidermis. The skin cells do not 'turn over,' or replenish themselves as quickly as when we are young. Therefore, the old skin cells become clumped and do not function as efficiently as young, healthy skin cells do.'

Fleck offers the following advice on how to care for aging

"Drying is the single largest skin problem among the aged," says Fleck. She recommends avoiding a daily shower or bath, which can contribute to dry skin. Instead, opt for gentle cleansing with soap and surfactant-free (detergent-free) cleansers of the kind that do not need to be rinsed. These cleansers do the job of removing dirt and natural oils, but do not impact the natural acid balance of mature

* Moisturizing on a daily basis is essential since older skin cannot retain moisture as well as young skin. "There are new, advanced skin care products that actually nourish the skin from the outside in, delivering amino acids (proteins), vitamins, antioxidants and ingredients that are gentle and soothing, making the skin more resilient and strengthening it," says

* Take care to avoid bumps that can tear the skin, or caustic substances that can disrupt the skin's ability to protect. Immobile seniors who must use adult diapers should have special care taken to keep them clean and free of irritants. "Barrier products that contain protectants like dimethicone and other silicones, as well as zinc oxide, can help protect the skin from these issues," Fleck

* Continue to protect your skin from the sun. Melanocytes, the skin cells that protect us from the sun, do not work as well as we age. As a result, older skin burns easily. Stay out of the sun as much as possible, and when out wear protective clothing, wide-brimmed hats and sun screen

Be aware of special skin care needs that often accompany some common diseases, such as diabetes. For example, diabetics need to take particular care in protecting their skin, especially on extremities.

* Avoid strong antibacterial soaps that may have high pH, which can further dry aging skin. Astringents and products that contain alcohol can also be too harsh and damaging for older skin.

"Many seniors may not know what products they need and often can't get out of the house to get them," Fleck says. "The Internet has made it easier to order products online and keep them handy for daily skin care, but not all seniors have online access or know how to use the Internet."

"Health care professionals are a great source of information and can relay simple instructions for daily skin care and protection while suggesting new products that may help seniors in their routine," she says.

Skin care secrets for seniors Baby Boomers are embracing high tech

(ARA) - Today's Baby Boomers are the first generation to grow up with television and contrary to popular opinion, recent studies show they are still the generation most likely to embrace new technol-

In other words, Boomers are more likely than the younger generations to have a high definition television (HDTV), iPod, digital video recorders (DVRs) and subscription to satellite service.

The reason they stay on or ahead of the curve is simple demographics show they tend to have higher household incomes, are college-educated and have more disposable income. Boomers also spend more time researching the latest trends and innovations.

Simply stated, Boomers have the want, the means and the know-how to create their own techno-savvy world. So, what are they looking for?

TV Land recently conducted a "Joy of Tech study" that identified three key factors Boomers look for when buying new technology, specifically for the home theater -- a luxury that has changed significantly over the past several decades. Their priorities include:

Content & Quality

Programming options with a large variety for the entire family (news, documentaries, weather, sports, movies, shows for the younger generation) and the excellent picture and sound quality of high definition televisions (HDTVs).

The price of HDTVs is on the decline and the Consumer Electronics Association estimates that 16 million HDTV sets will be shipped to U.S. stores this year making these high-end sets more affordable and more accessible. Boomers who have done their research and want the most out of their HDTV investment will also seek out HDTV channels like the National Geographic Channel HD, Discovery HD Theater and more to make the investment in HD worthwhile. Satellite TV provider DISH Network has these popular channels and many others and offers the largest lineup of national HD channels today with 32, as well as hundreds of all-digital standard definition channels.

Convenience

The convenience of being able to record shows to watch later and cut commercials.

Boomers also want control of their TV and the ultimate in convenience like the digital video recorder (DVR) that allows them to control when and how they watch their favorite TV shows. Satellite TV viewers like DISH Network subscribers use the DVR to speed through commercials and record their favorite shows to watch whenever they want. Want the 6 o'clock news at 7:34 p.m.? You got it. And because DISH Network has one of the highest-ranked high definition (HD) DVRs on the market and the most national HD channels, Boomers will get their favorite programs in stunning HD combined with the ultimate convenience of a DVR.

For more information, or to sign up for service, log on to www.dishnetwork.com. DVRs come standard with the DishDVR Advantage Package and the HD/DVR receiver, the ViP622, is free to new custom-

Adaptive Equipment for Aging Golfers

Dear Savvy Senior,

Do you know of any good golfing gadgets or equipment that can help a stiff, old, less mobile golfer? I love to play golf, but at age 74, I struggle with arthritis and a few other health conditions. What can you tell

Aging Golfer

Dear Aging,

No matter what your handicap or physical limitations are, there are a variety of golfing gadgets, gizmos and equipment on the market that can help with almost every problem.

Adaptive Golf

As we age, changes in our strength, flexibility, range of motion and vision make most things in life more difficult, including golf. Here are some of the key areas that can cause older golfers problems, and some adaptive products that can help keep them playing and maybe even improve their game.

Gripping

Being able to grip a golf club can be challenging for seniors who struggle with arthritis or have limited hand strength. To help alleviate this problem there are specially designed golf gloves and jumbo grip golf clubs that can make a big difference. Here's what's available:

- Power or Sure Grip Gloves: These use a Velcro strap to secure the club to your hand which increase grip power and prevents the club from slipping in your hand. www.powerglove.com and www.suregripsportsglove. com.
- Bionic Golf Gloves: Ergonomically designed to improve grip with less effort. www.bionicgloves.com Visit or call 877-524-6642
- Jumbo golf Oversized cushion grips (sizes vary) can make gripping the club much easier and more comfortable. To get jumbo grips installed on your clubs, a good resource is the Professional Club Makers' Society which provides a nationwide list of club makers on their Web site at www.proclubmakers.org or call 800-548-6094. The cost per grip is $5 - $10.

Bending and Stooping

Golf is a game that requires a lot of repetitive bending and stooping, which can create problems if you have a bad back or limited flexibility. To address this problem, the Uprightgolf (www.uprightgolf. com or 319-268-0939) offers a variety of affordable products (most are under $40) that eliminate the bending and stooping that comes with teeing the ball up, repairing divots, marking the ball while on the green, retrieving the ball, picking a club up off the ground and more.

Adaptive Clubs

golfers with mobility, custommade adaptive golf clubs are a great option to consider. Two types you should know about include:

- Flexible shaft clubs: Ideal for golfers who have lost some of their strength and range of motion. The flexible shafts increase club head speed for greater lift and more distance on your shots, making for a more enjoyable round of golf. The cost range is $50 - $85 per club.
- · Flat lie clubs: For handicapped golfers, these clubs are angled outward at the club head, which makes for better ball contact from a seated position. Cost is around $75 per club. Again, the best resource to get these custom clubs is the Professional Club Makers' Society (www. proclubmakers.org).

Riding Carts

Golfers with mobility loss or who have problems with balance or stamina, there ergonomically several designed (single riding) golf carts that offer the ability to play from a seated position (see www.usagpi.com or www. solorider.com). Golfers just swing the seat out to the side of the cart to take their shot, and turn the seat back to the forward position to drive to the next shot. These carts are light weight and precisely balanced so they can be driven on tee boxes and greens without causing any damage. By law. they must be allowed on public golf courses nationwide. Price ranges from $7,000 to $8,500.

Extra Golfing Goodies

For golfers who like to walk, a terrific ergonomic walking golf cart is the threewheeled Kaddy Stroller ($180, www.kaddystroller.com). And if you could use some help finding your golf ball from time to time, take a look at www.radargolf.com for $200.

Sleep Apnea: What you should know Dear Savvy Senior,

Can you tell me about sleep apnea and what can be old husband snores like a chain saw and wakes himself up so frequently he keeps me up too.

Sleep Deprived Susan Dear Susan.

Sleep apnea is a common potentially serious condition that affects more than 12 million Americans. But the problem is that most cases (up to 90 percent) go undiagnosed and untreated. Here's what you should know.

Apnea

Sleep apnea is a disorder that causes a person to stop during breathing dozens and even hundreds of times during the night for up to 30 seconds at a time. If that sounds dangerous, it is. Untreated, sleep apnea can cause high blood pressure and can sharply increase the risk for stroke and heart attack. It can also cause morning headaches, memory problems, mood swings or feelings of depression, impotence, and excessive daytime sleepiness which is a major cause of car accidents. But the good news is that sleep apnea is treatable and most insurance companies, including Medicare, cover it.

Symptoms to Know

There are two different types of sleep apnea: central apnea, the least common form that occurs when the muscles you use to breathe don't get the signal from your brain. And obstructive apnea (nine out of 10 people with apnea have this type), which occurs when the throat muscles relax during sleep blocking the airway. Some people may have a combination of both. Symptoms of obstructive apnea include loud snoring (however not everyone who snores has apnea), long pauses of breathing, gasping or choking drowsiness. But because most of these symptoms happen during sleep, many people don't recognize them. They're usually noticed first by the person they sleep with.

Who's at Risk?

While anyone, children, can have obstructive apnea, it's typically more common in men. Seek Help

If your husband has any of the listed symptoms, he should talk to his doctor or a sleep specialist who may recommend an overnight study at a sleep center (see www. sleepcenters.org) to determine if he's suffering from apnea or another problem.

Treatment Options

If he is diagnosed with annea, the most commonly prescribed treatment is a positive airway continuous (CPAP) device. pressure This involves sleeping with a snorkel-like mask that's hooked up to a machine that blows air up your nose to keep the passages open. As unpleasant as it sounds, CPAP is the most effective treatment for apnea. However many find the mask uncomfortable and difficult to adjust to. Others simply can't tolerate it at all and opt for dental appliances or surgery to keep the throat open and prevent blockages.

cases In milder obstructive apnea there are various lifestyle changes that

Avada hearing centers focus on educating baby boomers about treatment of hearing loss

Avada Hearing Care Centers is joining with the Better Hearing Institute (BHI) to focus attention on educating "baby boomers" about hearing loss and what they can do about it. Avada operates three centers in Southeastern Wisconsin.

Baby boomers, those born between 1947 and 1964, may be particularly susceptible to hearing loss because of their lifelong exposure to loud music and other noises, according to Russ Hearn, director of marketing for Avada Hearing Care Centers.

"This country and our community must stop treating hearing loss as a minor problem," said Hearn. "The good news is that hearing loss can easily be diagnosed and for most people, there are solutions in the form of digital and programmable hearing aids, many of which are not visible.

"Many people associate hearing loss with advancing age," continued Hearn. "In fact, hearing loss is also associated with exposure to loud noises, something that some baby boomers have faced since childhood. According to the Better Hearing Institute, two-thirds of people with hearing loss are below retirement age."

Symptoms of hearing loss include not being able to hear well in a crowded room or restaurant, having to ask friends to repeat what they are saying, or not being able to hear sounds that others seem to be able to hear.

Surveys published by the Better Hearing Institute (BHI), a not-for-profit organization that educates the public about the neglected problem of hearing loss and what can be done about it, have found that:

An overwhelming majority (93 percent) of consumers with hearing devices say the devices have improved their quality of life.

* Eighty-five percent (85 percent) say they are satisfied with the benefits they get from hearing aids.

Specific improvements associated with better hearing health include more effective communications (71 percent), better social life (56 percent), better relationships at home (55 percent) and in the work place (48 percent), improved emotional health percent), improved mental/cognitive ability (35 percent), and better physical health (24 percent).

Ninety percent (90 percent) of the respondents said their hearing aids improved communication in one-on-one situations, while more than eight out often were satisfied by the instruments' performance in small groups and while watching television. Three Dimensions of a Golfer: Gary Player helps improve your game simple, but it is a complex sport requiring drive and determination. There are three dimensions that create a complete golfer: a solid mental game, technical skill and physical fitness.

Gary Player, professional golfer and winner of golf's career grand slam, advocates mastering these dimensions to improve your golf game. He has partnered BoomerTowne.com to provide advice to anyone, especially the 9 million baby boomer golfers like himself, who strives to improve their

Mental Game

"The most important dimension, mental game, is often the most overlooked and least practiced," says Player.

A lot of golfers buy into the phrase "grip it and rip it." They assume the game of golf only requires one to grab a club and swing away. The truth, however, is that without a solid mental game a golfer will never reach his or her true potential, no matter how great the swing is or how physically fit the person.

Player reminds golfers, "By simply making the effort to start something, you will be miles ahead of almost everyone else, and after that, success lies in your determination.

One way to improve a mental game is to visualize success. Before beginning a round, or even while practicing, visualize the desired outcome. See yourself hitting the perfect shot, reading a complicated break on the green and sinking the putt or hitting the approach shot to within a few feet of the golfer can Before succeed at golf, he or she must understand and implement fundamental techniques.

Often it is a lot easier, and more effective, to learn the proper golf swing from a professional golfer right away rather than try to unlearn the wrong swing and bad habits.

Ben Hogan was a great me to practice and develop a balanced swing technique. He always said the "secret was in the dirt," says Player. "What I understood that to mean, and still believe to this day, is that the harder you practice, the luckier you get. Better said; nothing worth achieving comes easily.

With that in mind, make sure to get out on the practice range and do exactly that practice! Start warming up by hitting with a middle-iron, a 5- or 6-iron works perfect, and then work your way through your entire bag. Focus on past instruction and really concentrate on making a good, consistent swing.

Physical Fitness

Golf requires a sound base of physical strength and flexibility. This becomes very apparent when you consider that in the course of walking 18 holes, one can cover over a couple of miles while carrying a 20- to 30-pound golf bag. There is no doubt that the physical fitness aspect of the sport is the most difficult for golfers to sustain.

A great place to get going with a good physical fitness routine, and low budget effort, is stretching. Before hitting the range or playing a round, make sure to stretch out and get loose. Swinging a weighted club or swinging two or three clubs at a time effectively accomplishes this. Start by taking the club back and hold it at the top of the backswing. Then swing through and hold again at the finish. Doing this will effectively stretch out the muscles used when golfing.

A man was at the country club for his weekly round of golf. He began his round with an eagle on the first hole and a birdie on the second. On the third hole he had just scored his first ever hole-in-one when his

It was a doctor notifying him that his wife had just been in a terrible accident and was in critical condition in the ICU.

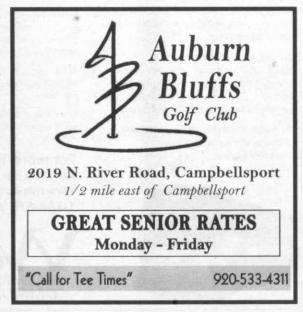

The man told the doctor to inform his wife where he was and that he'd be there as soon as possible. As he hung up, he realized he was leaving what was shaping up to be his best ever round of golf. He decided to get in a couple more holes before heading to the hospital. He ended up finishing all 18. He finished his round shooting a personal best of 61 and shattered the club record by five strokes and beating his previous best game by more than 10.

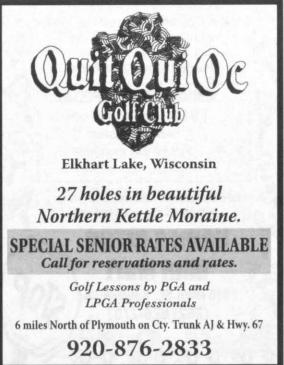

He was jubilant, then he remembered his wife. Feeling guilty he dashed to the hospital. He saw the doctor in the corridor and asked about his wife's condition.

The doctor glared at him and shouted " You went ahead and finished your round of golf didn't you? I hope you're proud of yourself. While you wre out for the past four hours enjoying yourself at the country club you wife has been languishing in the ICU! It's just as well you went ahead and finished that round because it will more than likely be your last! For the rest of her life she will require round the clock care And you'll be her caregiver!

The man was feeling so guilty he broke down and sobbed.
The doctor started to snicker and said, "Just kidding! She died more than two hours ago. What'd you shoot?

OCEANS OF FUN - August 23, 2007- Thursday Leave at 8:30 a.m., return at 4:30 p.m.

Tour of the brand new DISCOVERY WORLD AT PIER WISCONSIN. Fantastic luncheon buffet at the Pieces of Eight restaurant. Following lunch it's off to the IMAX Theater at the Milwaukee Public Museum where we will enjoy "The Deep Sea". Our last stop will be at the new Milwaukee Market, in Historic Third Ward. COST: $60.00

SAILS & RAILS - September 17, 2007 Monday Leave at 7:30 a.m., return at 6:30 p.m.

Join us for this brand NEW tour that takes us on a boat ride and a train ride! We'll begin the day by exploring the scenic heart of the Rock River Valley. We'll travel one of Illinois' most scenic highways to reach the dock of the Pride of Oregon Riverboat. Her 102 feet of elegance and charm, graciously styled, will take us back in time as we travel on board this beautiful paddlewheel boat. After we've docked, we'll enjoy a bountiful buffet at Maxson's Riverside Restaurant.

Then before you know it, we will be boarding a 14-ton, 1945 antique diesel engine driven train – the Silver Creek and Stephenson Railroad. This rustic train experience finds us sitting in either an enclosed caboose or an open-air flat car. We'll ride several miles out and back on the tracks of the original Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad line. Following our train ride, we'll visit the Silver Creek Railroad Museum, operated by the Stephenson County Antique Engine Club. This wonderful 28-room museum is filled with memories of yesteryear. As we travel home, we reflect back on what a great day of "Sails & Rails" we've enjoyed. COST: $62.00
