

Community Pantry opens at new location

Members of the KHS Student Government Desiri Jantz, April Stern and Rae Monte work on stocking the shelves at the new Community Pantry.

KEWASKUM- Kewaskum's Community Pantry moved into their new home over the weekend. Operations began at the new location on Tuesday, March 8.

Student Advisor Luke Piwoni reported members of the KHS Student Government moved the Kewaskum Community Pantry from the Kewaskum Municipal Building Annex to its new location, the corner of Reigle Drive and Second Avenue (behind Kewaskum Elementary School) on Saturday, March 5.

The new pantry building is vastly larger in size and will allow the pantry to now offer perishable goods and clothing. KHS students under the supervision of technology education teacher Kevin Hein constructed the building.

Pantry hours will be from 4-6 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays and from 9-11 a.m. on Saturdays.

Fundraising for the new building continues as organizers currently raised over $27,000 for the building and are over half way towards the original goal of $50,000.

If you would like to donate food or clothing you can drop it off at the pantry during business hours. You can also drop off food at Geidel's Piggly Wiggly, your local church or Kewaskum High School. If you have a larger donation and would like to schedule a pick up please contact Piwoni either by phone (262) 626-8427 ext. 4362 or e-mail at lpiwoni@kid.k12.wi.us.

Piwoni was thankful to the community for their help, "Thank you to everyone who donated his or her time, money, labor or energy to make this project a reality."

An open house at the new pantry location will take place later this spring.

Village could lose $23K in state aid, library circulation down

By Mitch Maersch
Statesman Correspondent

If the budget repair bill and the newly proposed budget both pass in their present forms, Kewaskum would lose an estimated $35,600 in revenue from the state.

Village Administrator Mathew Heiser gave the Village Board the figure at Monday night's meeting, stressing the number was just an estimate and that both pieces of legislation may be amended before final approval.

The budget repair bill saves the village an estimated $29,700, but the state budget costs the village an estimated $65,300 in revenue, Heiser said. The breakdown is: Shared revenue: The budget calls for a 12 percent cut but Heiser said the state is using a mathematical formula so each municipality won't lose 12 percent. The League of Municipalities figured an 8 percent average. Heiser split the two with a 10 percent loss and came up with $27,500.

Transportation aid cut 10 percent: $22,400

Recycling mandate repealed and grant rescinded: $15,500

In addition, part of the budget calls for a levy freeze which Heiser said means the village can't recover some of the lost revenue through taxes. The budget also does not allow for recyclables to be put into the trash, and the village has a contract with Veolia for garbage and recycling pickup, anyway.

The two unions with which the village negotiates - the American Federatopm of State County Municipal Employees (AFSCME) with 10 village employees and the Labor Association of Wisconsin (eight police department

C of C donates to Annex remodeling project

KEWASKUM- The Kewaskum Area Chamber of Commerce have joined the Kewaskum Junior Women's Club in their quest to modernize the Kewaskum Municipal Building Annex. The organization recently donated $2,000 to the Juniors to help them move remodeling projects forward.

The Chamber used proceeds from their former Bingo fundraiser. Last year, the Chamber turned the fundraiser over to the Kewaskum Sno-Chiefs, through the many bingo sessions the chamber split proceeds with various organizations and was able to make the sizable donation.

Karen Heberer of the Juniors stated the money will be used to update electricity in the building and construct a new bar area. So far the club has repainted the building and has agreed to oversee other various projects.

Heberer stated various remodeling projects will be ongoing, if any other person or group is interested in making a contribution, she can be reached at (262) 626-2816.

The new bar will be ready for the Juniors' annual Murder Mystery Event on Saturday, April 2. Those seeking tickets for that event can also contact Heberer at the phone number above or visit their website, www.kewaskumjuniors.org

Prescription drugs stolen from pharmacy

By Andrew Kuehl
andrew@kewaskumstatesman.com

KEWASKUM- A single vandal is suspected to have broken into Kewaskum Aurora Pharmacy on Tuesday, March 1 and stole a supply of drugs. Kewaskum Police are looking for suspects.

Kewaskum's Chief of Police Richard Knoebel stated the thief threw a rock through a window of the pharmacy located in the Kewaskum Mall on Fond du Lac Avenue to gain access to the building between 12:30 and 1:30 a.m.

Kewaskum Police

responded to the scene after an alarm was set off at 1:25 a.m.

The incident remains under investigation and police did not wish to give out the name of the drug stolen. They are currently reviewing surveillance video.

Chief Knoebel encourages anyone who might have information on vehicles or people in the vicinity at that time last week to contact the police department at (262) 626-2323 or the Washington County Tip Line at 1-800-232-0594.

School board to discuss KEA/KAP contracts

By Mitch Maersch
Statesman Correspondent

KEWASKUM- The Kewaskum School Board was scheduled to meet in closed session on Wednesday to discuss contract negotiations with the Kewaskum Education Association and the Kewaskum Auxiliary Personnel.

Neither union was to be at the meeting, said Superintendent Michael Krumm. The board is meeting to see how it wants to proceed with contract negotiations. The KEA contract expires June 30.

The meeting is not to quickly settle on a contract before the state's budget repair bill passes, which would eliminate unions' collective bargaining ability in regards to health care and pensions.

"We're not going to do that," Krumm said. "We'll see what our approach is going to be here."

The board will meet in closed session on Monday to further discuss the issue, and to discuss searching for a superintendent as Krumm is retiring June 30.

Womens' Club to meet Thursday

The Kewaskum Womens' Club will be having a meeting to wrap-up plans for their upcoming luncheon. The meeting will be held on Thursday, March 10 at 7 p.m. at the Kewaskum Municipal Annex Building on Fond du Lac Avenue.

During the meeting, nominations will also be taken for vice-president and secretary.

Hostesses for the meeting will be Susie Guth and Eileen Bonlender

Kewaskum Police Officers assist in Madison at Capitol protests

By Mitch Maersch
Statesman Correspondent

KEWASKUM- Two of Kewaskum's finest helped ensure peaceful protests at the State Capitol remained just that - peaceful. Washington County Sheriff's Deputies have also provided continuous mutual aid.

Kewaskum Police officer Troy Ellis worked 12-hour shifts on Thursday, Feb. 24 and Sunday, Feb. 27, and Barry Granrath worked a 12-hour stint on Feb. 27.

Neither witnessed any arrests as protestors were mostly well behaved.

Ellis on Thursday guarded Gov. Scott Walker's office doors.

"Everybody was very peaceful and complimenting us and thanking us for being there," he said.

On Sunday, Granrath said it was quiet and nearly empty until after lunch.

"They were boisterous. They wanted to get their points by, but they were also respectful. There were no arrests," he said.

Ellis said on Sunday there was talk of busting down the doors, "But the crowd themselves took care of that. They calmed the situation."

Ellis said the Capitol did smell on Thursday and worsened by Sunday. Someone had evidently defecated in the corner of the rotunda.

"It had the odor of a locker room," he said.

After putting in long days, Ellis said he was glad to go home - protestors thanked him and shook his hand as he left - but as soon as he got back, "I wanted to go back down there and re-experience it because that's what this country is all about."

"I had a great time down there," he said. "I understand that everybody had their rights to protest."

Granrath said working in such a building was quite the experience, noting it cost $7 million and was built from 1906 to 1917.

"The workmanship in that building is phenomenal, especially when people had to build that all by hand," he said.

Wisconsin Emergency Police Service requested extra help at the Capitol from departments across the state. Ellis and Granrath got to see old friends.

"I saw people I hadn't seen for years," Granrath said.

"That was the greatest thing," said Ellis, "guys that I know from all over the state."

Kewaskum Police Chief Richard Knoebel said the village will be reimbursed by the state for the officers' time.

The Washington County Sheriff's Department has been providing several deputies every day to help with Capitol security since Feb. 17, in response to a mutual aid request from Capitol Police. The department has provided communications officers specially trained to work in an emergency operations center environment. Costs will be paid by the state.

Child abuse, battery charges dropped for Kewaskum man

By Mitch Maersch
Statesman Correspondent

WEST BEND- A 24-year-old Kewaskum man had a felony physical child abuse charge and misdemeanor battery-domestic abuse charge dropped last week because one of his alleged victims recanted her story due to being high on drugs.

Joseph Klahn pleaded guilty to a third charge, misdemeanor disorderly conduct-domestic abuse, and was sentenced in Washington County Circuit Court to 60 days in jail concurrent to his sentence for three theft charges in 2009 and $343 in fines.

Klahn, according to the criminal complaint, battered the victim and the couple's 2-year-old child at the victim's residence on Highway S on Nov. 6, 2010. Klahn and the woman do not live together.

The complaint alleged Klahn and the woman got into an argument after she refused to give him money for cigarettes citing he was a drug addict. Klahn grabbed her by her hair, threw her to the ground and smashed her head into the floor, then dragged her into another room and threw her down again and began punching her with a closed fist, according to the complaint.

Klahn began to choke the woman as he was slamming her head onto the floor, and in the meantime pushed away the 2-year-old who had come to her mother's side. The child landed on her belly and began to cry and scream hysterically, according to the complaint.

The woman broke free and ran downstairs but was caught by Klahn and thrown to the floor. Klahn dragged her around the kitchen, kicked her in the mid-section and shoved her into the refrigerator when she got to her feet, according to the complaint. Klahn then left the residence on foot, according to the complaint.

A Washington County Sheriff's deputy responded to the scene, and Kewaskum Rescue noted the woman had a bump on the top of her head, abrasions to her neck and an abrasion to her lower back. Her daughter had abrasions on her stomach, chest and left knee, according to the complaint.

Washington County Assistant District Attorney Mandy Schepper said when the victim "totally recanted" her story she didn't have much choice but to drop most of the charges. Schepper said at the preliminary hearing the victim said she is a heroin addict and was high during the incident.

The disorderly conduct-domestic abuse charge carried a maximum penalty of 90 days in jail and a $1,000 fine.

Klahn is slated to be released from jail in October, said Schepper.

Kewaskum Community Gardens accepting registrations for plots

FARMINGTON- On the evening of February 16, Master Gardening representatives of the Kewaskum Community Gardens had the pleasure of sharing the gardens at the Farmington Elementary School's Health Fair. Children and older visitors alike shared an interest in the fruits of that garden.

Vertical gardening was demonstrated with the actual framework as well as photos with the climbing beans on the outside and a tomato on the inside. This is a fun way to introduce children into gardening, by making a tent with the vegetable on the outside.

"Little ones are very good at picking stones and planting corn or beans. They love to be involved and get their fingers in the soil," stated Bonnie Wenzlaff, the garden's organizer.

Wenzlaff encourages grandparents to pass on their knowledge and spend time with children.

"Have you seen the new pink radishes? Purple carrots and potatoes? Pink beans and potatoes? Purple and striped purple beans? Take a stroll through a current seed catalog and visit with the black tomatoes or the purple broccoli," Wenzlaff stated.

On a more serious note, it's time to get registered for your plot in the Kewaskum Community Gardens. The plots are located southeast of Kewaskum High School, walking distance from the south end of the tennis courts or north from the St. Lucas parking lot.

The garden is fenced. Water and grass mulch is provided. Using the mulch, a lot of it, to a thickness of four to six inches will not only keep in the moisture but also will prevent weed growth and give you little to no work. The mulch breaks down and enhances the soil.

Cost of a 15' x 20' plot is $20. Contract forms are available at the School District Administration office and at more locations around Kewaskum shortly or you can call (262) 483-6385 to reserve your plot and get information.

If you're interested in sponsoring a plot for the Kewaskum Food Pantry, please call the number. Organizers are also looking for sponsors and have people who will work the garden for sponsors or you can work a garden you sponsor for the Food Pantry. The group is also looking for donations of a wheelbarrow, wagon, garden weasel, spade, fork, garden tools. If you have these tools and don't need them any longer, please call the number above.

Coaches Clinic held

Waupaca High School football coach John Koronkiewicz uses Kewaskum volunteer coach and former star quarterback Casey Scheel (class of 2007) in sharing some of his 35 years of expertise at last Saturday's football coaches clinic at Kewaskum High School. Kewaskum athletic director and football coach Jason Piittmann and his staff organized the all-day event which drew 100 people from across the state and featured 10 speakers. Piittmann hopes to make the clinic an annual event. "It went really smoothly. The speakers did an outstanding job," Piittmann said. "We picked up some ideas to make it better next time around."

employees) - have contracts until Dec. 31, 2011. The budget repair bill would not impact the Labor Association of Wisconsin.

The board did not take action on the item as it was informative only.

Library circulation down slightly

Library circulation was down by about 2,000 items in 2010, but that's off of an all-time record in 2009.

Kewaskum Public Library Director Steev Baker presented the Village Board with the library's annual report at Monday night's meeting.

Library circulation totaled 74,742 items, down from 76,833 in 2009. Baker said he wasn't sure why, but noted the consistent increase in every other year of the past decade. In 2000, the library circulated 31,592 items, which increased each year to the high in 2009.

The latest technology hasn't fully caught on yet - e-books - as Baker said only four were checked out in 2010 of the 8,240 e-books available across the state.

"I'm sure that will change," he said.

Baker said e-books act just like a physical book - when one is checked out, others must wait for it to be returned.

Of circulation of materials to non-village residents who live in an adjacent county who don't have a local public library, Fond du Lac dominated with 8,139 items. Baker said law requires counties to pay for 70 percent of those materials, and he recently received a check from Fond du Lac County for $21,000.

UWVC to host Economic Security Forum

Economic security is a topic that is on everyone's mind these days. As the nation slowly recovers from its worst recession in decades, it's time to ask, "What can be done to achieve economic security in our families, communities, state and nation?" A forum to gather this community input is being planned at UW-Washington County in West Bend on Wednesday, March 16 at 6:30pm in Room 322. Hosted by The Wisconsin Institute for Public Policy and Service, the two-hour forum is one of several such events planned throughout the state. The results of these forums will then be discussed at a statewide event in spring as well as a nationwide event at the National Archives in Washington D.C.

The community is invited to attend this free public forum and encouraged to add their voice to the national conversation on improving our economic security. Results of the deliberations will also be shared with state and national policy makers.

The University of Wisconsin-Washington County is located at 400 University Drive (off Hwy. 33 West) in West Bend. It is the fifth largest of the 13 UW - Colleges, offering the first two years of study in over 200 majors. For more information about UW-WC, visit: washington.uwc.edu.

Smitten with skiing

Jack Lutz and Lynn Molenda give a 5-year-old boy a beginner lesson in downhill skiing at Sunburst Ski Area in Kewaskum.

Submitted photo

By Sue Mroz

Statesman Features Correspondent

KEWASKUM- For the past eight winters, Jack Lutz and his partner Lynn Molenda's spare-time hours have held abundant ups and downs -- both literally and figuratively speaking.

That's because in 2002, they became certified ski instructors at Sunburst Ski Area in Kewaskum, two years later, earning their national certification -- Level 1, PSIA (Professional Ski Instructor of America) ratings. Acquiring that certification entailed a written test, in addition to two days of demonstrating various ski movements for examiners at Sunburst. They plan to complete requirements for Level II, PSIA rating in the future.

The couple pointed out that seniors between ages 65-75 are often given discounts to ski at U.S. ski resorts, while those 75 and older are allowed to ski free of charge at various locations. Since becoming credentialed instructors, they have taught dozens of children and adults the thrill of downhill skiing. They use a system known as zone teaching, a sequential, seven-step program.

Donald Phelan, 84, one of three members of the Sunburst Ski School Leadership Team, along with Jim Engel and Herb Schactner, pointed out that zone teaching was derived from the Sunburst Pathway to Parallel Teaching System. "This system was primarily the result of Roger Kane's initiative," he said.

Lutz and Molenda are naturals as teachers. Lutz, an artist/designer is a former Catholic priest. He taught religion to elementary students in the 1960s and 70s, and Molenda retired this past June from the Kewaskum School District, where she taught art at the Middle School for 14 years. During her tenure, she and her students, over a three-year time frame (1998-2001) redesigned the landscape in front of the school, an area of 50-foot-by-150-feet. They removed the lawn, planted native grasses and flowers and installed walking paths, sculptures and benches, and maintained the landscape since then.

Eight years ago, Lutz, now 75, and Molenda, 65, Town of Scott residents, enrolled in the Candidate-Training program at Sunburst. At that time, the program was held one day each week for two and one-half months. But currently, that ski-instructor training is completed in two Saturday and Sunday sessions.

The two ski enthusiasts had some obstacles to overcome at the onset, since the style of skis to which they were accustomed had changed. Straight skis had been replaced by the shorter and wider parabolic (shaped) skis.

By way of explanation for those unfamiliar with the sport, the key advantage to these shaped skis is the ease of turning, and it's easier to maintain one's balance and stability with the shaped skis than on straight skis. A 5'9" man would most likely have used a 200 cm. straight ski. However, since the advent of free-style skiing, his shaped skis would measure between 140-160 cm.

"We were used to the longer, straight skis," Molenda said. "With those skis, the whole body is moving around. But with shaped skis, the effort is from the knees down and mainly in the feet. So, it took about three months to become adequate to perform the movements well enough to become instructors."

Through nearly a decade of instructing, Lutz and Molenda have learned a great deal from observing their students, as they imparted tips to them from their expertise.

"The students' attitude is so important," Molenda said.

"Because of that, you have to know when to go with the rules and when to use a different approach," Lutz added.

Molenda provided an example. She recalled an incident during which she was teaching two 9-year-old girls beginner lessons. "One girl was coordinated, while the other girl struggled," she said. As the lesson continued, the struggling student fell farther behind and was ready to give up.

"So I decided to drop the rules and came up with a plan for what she could do -- a simple move across the snow to have fun. I said to her, 'Let's do one thing. Go up this little hill and go down.' She did that and then laughed and had fun. Suddenly, with her new attitude, everything became easier."

Being creative in a specific situation is important in ski instructing too. On one occasion, Lutz was giving semi-private lessons to a father and son. "The son was catching on, but his dad was just not getting it," Lutz recalled.

"So I asked him what he does for a living. He told me he is an engineer. I then removed my skis and gave him a technical explanation about how the skis work. He got back on his skis and caught on almost immediately."

Lutz learned to ski in 1964 and later taught Molenda the sport. They did not ski much from 1980-2000. However, a few years after moving into the stunning, energy-efficient home that Lutz built in the Kettle Moraine area of the Town of Scott in 1995, they took up the sport in earnest.

"We are only 15 miles from Sunburst," Jack noted.

They purchased season passes. "We started talking to people at the hill, and they said,

"Why don't you work here? You'd be great instructors," Molenda recalled.

They have no regrets that they followed through on that advice. "As instructors, we commit to teaching two days per week," Molenda said.

To date, in addition to Wisconsin and Michigan, they have skied at various locations of Colorado, and in Utah and Taos, N.M. Lutz has also skied in New Hampshire and New York. They consider the hills at Taos to be their most challenging.

Molenda's dedication to the sport has withstood a major setback. On March 6, she and Lutz were participating with about 300 ski instructors in a two-day event on a ski hill in Welch Village, Minn., near Red Wing, south of Minneapolis, attempting to update their national certification. Their judges were expert skiers, known as the D-Team (Demonstration Team).

"These D-Team members are experts," Lutz said. "They ski here all winter and then in South America in summer."

"The conditions at Welch Village were horrible," Molenda said. "The hill was covered with chunks of ice and sugar snow, ground up slush."

Molenda's instructor Michael Rogan suggested that the whole group ski on one foot. Molenda did so and, "I hit ice, fell backward, and in the process of trying to recover, twisted my body and heard a snap," she said.

She slid 200 feet down the hill and sustained a spiral fracture of both the tibia and fibula bones in her right leg. She was in excruciating pain.

"One person in the group was a ski patroller, so he untwisted my body," Molenda said. "Other ski patrollers carried me off on a stretcher."

She was transported to Red Wing Memorial Hospital. "I was really lucky that the physician on duty was an orthopedic surgeon," Molenda said. "I arrived at the hospital at 12:30 p.m., and I had surgery at 4:30. A titanium rod, held into place with three screws was implanted into my leg."

Her leg was then placed into a plastic cast.

The proprietor of the motel at which the couple spent the night mailed their skis back to their home, so that Molenda would have enough room for her leg in their ride back home in the back seat of their car.

Her injury was so severe that she experienced swelling in her leg for an entire year, and she was not able to return to teaching at Kewaskum Middle School for the remainder of the school year.

"Jack made me a cart on wheels, so that I could get into the garden to do some planting and weeding," she said.

"Learning to walk on crutches was most difficult, and I fell on occasion," she added. "I learned a lesson that I should have put my foot down and not skied on just one foot, with conditions being what they were."

However, in December 2008, the courageous Molenda returned to Sunburst Ski Hill for another year of teaching. "It was very tough to overcome my fear," she admitted.

"This sport is one of the most people-friendly activities in winter," Lutz affirmed. "Older people could develop a whole new attitude toward winter and be in better physical shape too." She said what she enjoys most about ski instructing is the variety of people she meets. "You adapt every lesson to a different age and culture," Molenda noted.

Lutz agreed, adding that he enjoys meeting people from different countries. He has worked with Pakistanis, Chinese, East Indians and Russians attending schools in Chicago.

Then too, during Christmas vacation, they occasionally have students from the South who have never witnessed snow.

"They are so much fun and are often less intimidated than those of us who are familiar with snow," Molenda said.

The challenges they sometime face entail for one, the language barrier, according to Lutz. In those cases, he uses hand signals and demonstrations to bridge the gap.

"Sometimes parents bring children who really don't want to learn to ski," Molenda said. "That can be difficult."

Sheboygan Theatre Company to present 'Escanaba in da Moonlight'

The Sheboygan Theatre Company will continue their Seventy-Seventh Season on Friday, March 11 with their production of the Jeff Daniels comedy, "Escanaba in da Moonlight." Sargento is sponsoring this show and the season is funded in part by the Stefanie H. Weill Charitable Fund and Acuity and the Arts.

Many people know the show as a motion picture which premiered in January 2001 but "Escanaba in da Moonlight" was originally written by Daniels for the Purple Rose Theatre Company which he founded 20 years ago.

The show takes place at a family deer-camp in Upper Michigan, just outside of Escanaba, Michigan. It is narrated by the Soady family patriarch, Albert Soady. He tells the tale of one year in which his son, Reuben age 35, does everything he can to bag his first buck. The crazy antics and occurrences lead to an unbelievable and comedic story.

Along for the ride is Remnar Soady, Reuben's bigger little brother who is very set in his traditions and not exactly sensitive to Reuben being buck-less. Also joining them is their friend, the incomprehensible, Jimmer Negamane from Menomonee. Ranger Tom T. Treado, from the DNR, who recently saw God, ends up interloping on the camp too.

The comedy is filled with hunting humor and Yooper accents. The show does include some adult language but the show is a relaxed comedy.

"Escanaba in da Moonlight" will open Friday, March 11 at 7:30 p.m. Subsequent performances at 7:30 p.m. will be March 12, 16, 17, 18 and 19. There will be a 2:00 p.m. matinee performance on Sunday, March 13. The production will be presented at the Leslie W. Johnson Theatre, 2820 Union Avenue, Sheboygan. As a warning, the show will be using strobe lights for a section of the performance.

Admission, before taxes, is $20.00 for adults, $16.00 for seniors sixty and over and $10.00 for youngsters through high school and college students. Tickets are available at the Theatre Company office in the Community Recreation Department, 607 S. Water Street, or at the theatre box office 45 minutes before curtain of each performance. To learn more visit www.sheboygantheatercompany.com and then call 920/459-3779 to reserve tickets or for further information.

Spring College Preview at UW-WC Answers Questions

WEST BEND - UW-Washington County is hosting two College Preview sessions this spring. High school juniors and seniors and their parents as well as returning adult students are welcome to attend. The sessions are designed to answer questions about college - including the admission process, financial aid and scholarships. The sessions are planned for Thursday, March 17 and Tuesday, April 19 from 6:00pm to 8:30pm. Admission is free, but reservations are needed at least two days prior to the event. To reserve seats, register online at www.washington.uwc.edu or phone Student Services at 262-335-5201.

Over 1,100 students attend UW-Washington County from five area counties. In addition to substantial tuition savings, attending a small campus has other advantages, including:

1. A small campus may give you the opportunity to work directly with a professor in research or other project in your freshman or sophomore year. At a larger school, those opportunities usually go to upper-classmen.

2. Most classes are taught by professors, not teaching assistants, so you have more direct contact with the real experts. At UW-WC, for example, about 85 percent of faculty members have a Ph.D. or equivalent.

3. You have a better chance of becoming a leader in campus organizations. Research shows that the more you are involved in campus activities, the better your odds of staying in school and graduating. It looks good on your resume, too.

4. Studying is different in college, as generations of freshmen have discovered. A smaller campus has people to help you learn how to study at the college level before you fall behind.

College Preview sessions are intended for students who are considering attending UW-Washington County as well as other Wisconsin universities. The two-hour sessions include presentations from Interim Dean Alan Paul Price, Kim Schwamm, Interim Assistant Dean of Student Services as well as Library staff, and faculty members. Information about athletics, student government, and student organizations is also presented. Following a question/answer session, a campus tour is available, which includes the Collins Science building and expanded Fine Arts area.

The University of Wisconsin-Washington County is located at 400 University Drive (off Hwy. 33 West) in West Bend. It is the fifth largest of the 13 UW-Colleges, offering the first two years of study in over 200 majors and your best start on a bachelor's degree, which can lead to unlimited career opportunities. In addition, eight collaborative bachelor degree programs are available through UW-Milwaukee, UW-Oshkosh and UW-Platteville. For more information about UW-WC, visit: washington.uwc.edu.

Homeschool Performing Arts Club to present 'Finn McCool and His Fearless Wife'

The Homeschool Performing Arts Club will be presenting Finn McCool and His Fearless Wife, a play set in Limerick, Ireland, on March 18 at 7:00 pm and March 19 at 1:00 pm at the UW-Fond du Lac Prairie Theater. In this scene from the play, two leprechauns, Shillelagh (played by Luke Pallo) and Shay (played by Ellena Pallo) plan to play tricks on the town of Limerick and the town's braggart, Finn McCool. Finn McCool keeps the whole town amused with his frequent boasts and demonstrations of his presumed abilities, while the leprechauns watch and play their own tricks on the townsfolk. Tickets are $4.00 and available at the door.

St. Patrick's Day! Just the idea conjures up thoughts of leprechauns and pots of gold. This year, the leprechauns have brought some of the fun of Ireland to us here in Fond du Lac. On March 18 and 19, the Homeschool Performing Arts Club will present "Finn McCool and His Fearless Wife," a play set in Limerick, Ireland. Here, in Limerick, delightful little leprechauns Shillelagh, Shay and Shannon help orchestrate the fun! Between them and boastful Finn McCool, there's a story hiding behind every bush!

Braggart Finn McCool has made himself the talk of the town, stretching the truth more than a wee bit too much. Thank goodness his wife, Oona, has been clever enough to get Finn out from between many rocks and hard places. But with his latest tall tale, he might be in the rockiest, hardest place yet! The loveable folks of Limerick add even more spice and laughter to these Irish folktales — the Malone family, sneaking around town to buy surprise gifts for each other; the Sweeney sisters, who like to sing but don't know they lack talent; and the town hypochondriac, who follows the doctor so closely she almost steps on her heels!

This is the fourth year for the Homeschool Performing Arts Club. The group is a non-profit organization comprised of thirty homeschooled children, ages 4-18, from Calumet, Dodge, Fond du Lac and Washington Counties. The children of the Homeschool Performing Arts Club have been working together for six months. The children have been involved in all aspects of theater: painting the set, creating advertisements and art work for the play, and finding and creating costumes and props for their parts in the play. With performances right around the corner, the children are busy rehearsing. Join us for a St. Patrick's Day treat as they bring you to Limerick for a day of fun and adventure. You never know who you will meet, and you'll be laughing all the way!

Showtimes are Friday, March 18 at 7:00 p.m. and Saturday, March 19 at 1:00 p.m. at UW-Fond du Lac, Prairie Theater. Tickets are $4.00 each and will be available at the door. Children under 3 are admitted free. For information about this production or about joining the Homeschool Performing Arts Club for the next school year, please contact Dawn Doll at 920-921-4565.

The Homeschool Performing Arts Club will be presenting Finn McCool and His Fearless Wife, a play set in Limerick, Ireland, on March 18 at 7:00 pm and March 19 at 1:00 pm at the UW-Fond du Lac Prairie Theater. In this scene from the play, Finn McCool (played by Zachary Doll) is being scolded by his wife Oona (played by Hannah Thomas) for making silly and impossible boasts to the townspeople of Limerick. Oona has just helped Finn demonstrate his boast of being able to walk across town with peas in his shoes without pain. Oona's creativity and wit help Finn stay out of trouble with the townspeople.

25 Years Ago

January 3, 1986

When Highway 28 east from Kewaskum to Highway 144 is repaved within the next two years, several dangerous curves between this village and St. Michaels will be reconstructed and eliminated. Two of the curves are near the gravel pits east of the village in the state-owned recreation area. About 5,000 yards of earth will also be removed from the hilly north side of Highway 28.

Three Kewaskum residents were hurt in a two-car accident shortly after noon Saturday on Highway 45, just south of Badger Road. Injured in the incident were David Batt, 30, of Kewaskum, driver of one of the vehicles and Debra Goodsell, 32, also of Kewaskum, driver of the second vehicle, and her daughter, Jennifer, 8, a passenger.

A daughter, Ashley Lynn, was born to Frank and Connie Gasner, Kewaskum, on December 30. Ashley has a sister, Kelli Jean, 2-1/2. Paternal grandparents are Mrs. Dorothy Gasner, West Bend, and the late Frank Gasner Sr., and maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Elton Ludwig of Kewaskum. A daughter, Crystal Jayne, was born to Carl and Cindy Marquardt, Kewaskum, on December 27. Crystal has a brother, Chad.

Sons were born to Randall and Jennifer Koepke, West Bend, on December 27; to Douglas and Lori Weckwerth, Kewaskum on December 27; to James and Christine Schoofs, Kewaskum, on December 27; to Douglas and Teri Fischer, Kewaskum, on December 28, and to Dennis and Charlene West, Campbellsport, on December 30.

January 10, 1986

Gerald Gosa of Kewaskum was instrumental in the recent capture of a suspect who was subsequently arrested and charged in connection with a West Bend burglary. Gosa, a former University of Wisconsin Badger football player, is now a chemistry teacher at Kewaskum High School. The incident occurred December 19 at the residence of Bernard Uebersetzig on Highland Drive in West Bend, who returned home and apparently surprised some intruders who then exited out the back door. Uebersetzig heard running and followed the noises to Ridge Road, where he saw two men walking north. One of the men turned south and the second man went east. He chased the second man, yelling for him to stop. The man fell and Uebersetzig pushed him to the ground when he tried to get up. The man rose allegedly hitting Uebersetzig with a small crow bar. At that time Gosa was leaving St. Joseph's Hospital heading for the parking lot when he heard a man call for help. The suspect then came over a hill into the parking lot followed by a bleeding Uebersetzig. The man jumped into a truck and as he tried to drive out of the lot, Gosa caught up to it and managed to open the door and pull the man out. He held on to the man while turning off the ignition. Uebersetzig and Gosa held on to the man until police came. Police later found a .38 caliber gun under the truck seat.

It looks like the 1986 Kewaskum School Board election could be almost as interesting as 1983's. With only two seats becoming available, six candidates have thrown their hats into the political arena. Incumbents Neal Weare and Lynn Dieringer are seeking re-election and they will be receiving stiff competition from Ralph Horner, Ruth Schmitt, Donald Nowak and Clara Horner necessitating the February 18th primary. In the Village of Kewaskum, three posts on the village board will be open. Incumbent trustees Howard Laubenstein and Tom McElhatton will be running for re-election along with Richard Schmidt and Gary Moody.

The Kewaskum High School Art Department would like to invite everyone to Tom Stuck's senior art show. The display will be set up in two locations. The first showing will be from January 6-12 at the KHS main lobby and then moved to Valley Bank in Kewaskum from January 13-17th. Tom is planning on graduating early and further his education at the Milwaukee Institute of Art and Design.

Early snow this year gave members of the Kewaskum High School ski team a good start for their second year of competition which starts January 9. Coach Dave Wietor has a squad of 22 boys (no girls tried out) lined up for this year's team. He has only lost one regular, that being Paul McFadden, from last year's squad. Leading candidates returning for the varsity squad include: junior Jesse Mueller, seniors Mark Johnson, Brian Sedgwick and Ethan Miklas and sophomore Sonny Sison. Other good prospects are seniors Cory Garbisch and Mark Brodzeller and sophomore Eric Pearson. Others who could contribute are seniors Wade Jepsen and Scott Schmidt, sophomore Craig Hubbell and freshmen Adam Miklas and Tom Ladwig.

A daughter was born to Ricky and Dawn Volm, Campbellsport, on January 5. Daughters were also born to Scott and Lorraine Stevenson, Kewaskum, on January 2 and to Steven and Susan Cotter, Random Lake on December 28. A son was born to David and Sandy Wynveen, Kewaskum, on December 31. A son was also born to Patrick and Nancy Pelischek, West Bend, on December 29.

75 Years Ago

October 18, 1935

Fire destroyed the large barn on the George Herman farm on Highway 28, in the Town of Wayne, several miles west of this village at 8 am last Wednesday. A large amount of hay and grain stored in the barn were also consumed by the flames. The origin of the fire is unknown and the loss is fully covered by insurance. The Kohlsville Fire Department was called out, but arrived too late to be of any service to the barn as the flames had gained too great a headway. They were instrumental, however, in saving the surrounding buildings and preventing the fire from spreading.

Posters have already been circulated by the high school announcing its production of three one-act plays on November 4 and 5. The three plays selected and the cast included in each play are as follows: "Uncle George Pops In," with Doris Mae Rosenheimer, Herbert Hopkins, Vilas Bartelt, Ray Pfenning and Helen Rosenthal; "A Case of Suspension," with Viola Backhaus, Armond Mertz, Janice Koch, Ruby Menger, Norma Hawig, Permin Kohler, Anthony Uelmen, Delbert Backhaus, Marie Beilke and Carl Kohlschmidt; and "Elmer," with Harry Koch, Lucille Romaine, Eleanor and Elaine Schleif, Marion Petermann, Dorothy Backhaus, Dolores Horning, Howard Schmidt and Vilas Backhaus.

Plans have been prepared for a 52 x 122 foot combination engineer's office and building for storing equipment owned by Washington County in West Bend. Preliminary steps have been taken for the erection of the proposed building but the matter will not be decided until later. It will be of brick reinforced concrete and steel, two stories high with a concrete foundation, and is estimated to cost $40,000. It will be built adjoining the present highway shop on Highway 33, just east of West Bend.

Congratulations are in order to Mr. and Mrs. Emil Bartelt on the arrival of a baby girl born last Thursday.

October 25, 1935

A final tribute was paid to the Badger State League championship Kewaskum baseball team of 1935 last Thursday evening when backers of the club and fans entertained them to a royal banquet at the Republican House here. A guest of honor at the banquet was none other than our old friend, Fabian Gaffke of Milwaukee, former member of the Kewaskum team, who recently finished his season as an outfielder with the Minneapolis Millers, pennant winners of the American Association this season. Besides Gaffke, the 29 others who attended were: Don and Stan Hodge, Jim Huffman, Alfred Kral, Harold Marx, William Harbeck, "Matty" Mathias, "Casey" Conley, Ray Jagmin, Ray Mucha, Joe Miller, Harold Claus and "Brady" Brabender, players; John Behn, manager; Paul Kral, mascot, and Elwyn Romaine, Art Bauer, N.W. Rosenheimer, A.W. Koch, Arnold Martin, Carl F. Schaefer, Ervin Koch, Carl Rafter, K.A. Honeck, George F. Brandt, Lester Dreher, Joseph Eberle, Dr. R.G. Edwards and Paul Landmann.

The Weyenberg Shoe Manufacturing Company, largest shoe manufacturers in the northwest, will establish a branch factory in Hartford. The company will make their quarters in the Kissel factory and men are now at work remodeling the plan and building additional floor space.

A 7-1/2 pound baby girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kirchner of this village last Saturday morning. A baby daughter arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Backhaus of St. Michaels. Mr. and Mrs. Jake Staehler of St. Michaels received the announcement of the birth of a son at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Staehler at Milwaukee. Mr. and Mrs. Peter Straub of Elmore are the parents of twins, a boy and a girl, born October 19.

November 1, 1935

In an important business transaction which was completed in this village last Friday, William F. Schaefer purchased the interests of the trucking business which was owned and operated by Lester Dreher for the past several years. William, who has operated a trucking business of his own for some time, on a somewhat smaller scale than his newly acquired business, built it up to a marked success and we are sure he will attain equal success in his new business venture. For the present Mr. Dreher will confine his work to the farm he is running, although he will continue to do cattle buying with the new owner doing the trucking. The purchase also includes two trucks which the former owner has been operating in connection with the business.

L.A. Eichstedt, an experienced jeweler and watch repairer has leased the William F. Schultz building, formerly occupied by P.J. Haug, as a jewelry store just two doors east of the Republican House and will open up a jewelry store in same on November 1.

The initial meeting of the Kewaskum basketball team was held at Joseph Eberle's on Tuesday evening of this week with a fine turnout in attendance. About 17 young athletes have already signified their intention of joining the team this year.

A baby boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. Arno Aupperle of the Town of Scott.

November 8, 1935

Roman Smith, who has been harvesting ice off the Milwaukee River in this village for a number of years, this week had his ice storage house torn down, and as far as we know, is undecided as to what he will do in that line of business during the coming winter. Originally Mr. Smith occupied two ice houses for storage, but when one of the buildings became dilapidated some time ago, it became necessary to tear it down. The newer building which was erected only a few years ago, was used by Mr. Smith during the past season, but now, it also began to sag, therefore this house was also done away with.

The high school basketball season will open next Tuesday evening. The Grafton team will meet the locals in their opening game. Coach Rose has been drilling the team for the past three weeks and both coach and players anticipate a successful season. Listed are the boys who show promise of seeing service on the team: Kilian Honeck, Otto Weddig, Earl Bartelt, Herbert Hopkins, Fred Dorn, Clarence Werner, Willard Prost, Ralph Marx, Anthony Uelmen, Myron Belger, Howard Schmidt, Walter Werner, Ray Pfenning and Louis Bath.

Four masked bandits last Thursday night held up the Phil Mayer tavern, located 1-1/2 miles west of West Bend on Highway 33 and escaped with loot estimated at $150 in cash.

The first snowfall of the winter, which was hardly noticeable, arrived in the village on Tuesday. Snow fell throughout the majority of the afternoon but it was so light that it did not get a chance to cover the ground. However, some trains arriving in the village from the north the past week plainly showed that it won't be long now.

While plowing in his field near Richfield recently, Ben Aulenbacher unearthed many human skulls. Fearing he had uncovered the scene of a massacre or some other deed of foul play, he notified county officials, who, with picks and shovels dug a hole in which they found more than 30 skulls and a large pile of bones. The skulls, some of which were remarkably preserved, are believed to be those of Indians. Because it is thought there may be many more skulls buried there, officials of the Milwaukee museum have been notified.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Butzlaff had their infant son baptized in the Peace Evangelical Church Sunday morning. He received the name Lloyd Walter.

A baby boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Straub of St. Kilian Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Preo of Milwaukee are the parents of a baby boy born October 29.

Julius Reysen, who resides several miles northeast of this village on the Forest Lake road, had a very narrow escape from death or serious injury early last Sunday, when a guard post on a road near the village of Beechwood prevented the truck he was driving from rolling over on him. The truck turned over and was held up by the guard post on the brink of a 30 foot drop along the roadside. Mr. Reysen was thrown out of the truck and rolled down the incline where a Sheboygan County Traffic Officer found him in a somewhat dazed condition, half way down the incline in direct line of the suspended truck. Had the post given away he undoubtedly would have been injured or crushed to death.

Five Kewaskum High School senior girls have merited 60 word shorthand transcription certificates. These awards are the result of taking a 300 word letter at the rate of 60 words a minute for a period of five minutes and then accurately transcribing the letter on the typewriter back into long-hand. The winners are Dorothy Backhaus, Viola Backus, Janice Koch, Lucille Romaine and Doris Rosenheimer.

The annual poultry tournament which is looked forward to by many before Thanksgiving at the William Windorf farm, located two miles south of Kewaskum, will be held on November 17. A choice lot of poultry will be on display and everyone is cordially invited to come out for an enjoyable afternoon and perhaps a profitable one.

Wernie Bruhn, who has been spending the past four weeks in this village at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Bruhn, left on Wednesday for the Panama Canal Zone where he intends to spend some time with his brothers, Alfred and Richard, who are employed there.

WOULD YOU BELIEVE... Mort Oberly, state highway engineer, reported, "lost" a bridge at Knobtown, MO. Thieves who dismantled and removed the structure were caught.

To the Editor,

There can be no legitimate question, the greatest SINGLE impediment to the smooth function of a free economy is COMPULSORY unionism. I have always supported the right to join a union (membership is a privilege, not a "right") so long as there is an equal right NOT TO JOIN. In an allegedly free country, it is reprehensible that employer and employees are, essentially, vassals, subject to the dictates and whims, of a union thug.

In Madison, our capital has been invaded by a mob of thugs, whose behavior borders on barbarism, in their frenzied determination to hold taxpayers, and legislators, hostage to their demands. AND, I cannot ignore the criticism of Sen. Grothman, by some wimp in our area; I've always said, "call a spade a spade," so I agree completely with the Senator in describing those losers as "rude, smelly and obnoxious." BECAUSE I've heard, and read, considerable evidence that few, if any, of them are teachers.

TV, radio, and other sources strongly suggest that most of them are pea-brained jerks from the U.W., who probably aren't qualified to be in charge in the first place (and sure as Hell would not be hired by me). Further evidence that the rest of the horde are professional protesters, bussed in from out of state by Obama worshippers and the like.

However, we dare not ignore the arrogant and despicable behavior of those 14 Democrat lackeys, and their supporters. Let there be no question, their ultimate goal is to eradicate the results of the 2010 election. "We support not election which we did not win." Remember Willy Wonka and the Chocolate Factory? "I want it NOW, Daddy." "It's for the children?" BULL! It's for the power and control of everybody affiliated with public education.

Sadly, it is now, widely and publicly known that this includes many school boards, operated or controlled by the unions. Finally, research, widely verified, has proven that 75 to 80% of union members (not the leaders) oppose compulsory membership.

Steve Chantelois

To the Editor-

I have never been more embarrassed of a public official than I am of our State Senator Grothman. On national TV he called protesters, who stayed overnight in our state capitol, slob and that the whole place stinks. They are staying there in a protest as provided for citizens in our Wisconsin State Constitution.

I've was to Madison protesting at least 10 times in the first 2 weeks of the protest and I was in and out of the Capitol on each visit and I saw and smelled nothing. If anything smelled, it was Governor Walker's clearing out the Capitol under the pretense of cleaning it and then not letting people back in. He even violated a Court order to open the doors.

I know our Senator reads this paper because he is always putting his newsletter in free of charge. His office has a budget paid for by the taxpayers of our state to communicate with his constituents. What a freeloader.

Senator Grothman I know you will soon be drawing the new lines for your senate district because of the recent 10-year census. While you gerrymander it to guarantee you a safe district for your re-election, I am asking you to take my hometown, the Village of Kewaskum and the Town of Auburn in Fond du Lac County, where I live, out of your new district because your arrogance embarrasses many, if not all of us.

Joe Gruber

To the Editor:

After reading many editorials and listening to many other people, I thought I would try to add some insights to the budget discussion. I was born and raised in Kewaskum, went to college at UW-Whitewater, and moved back to our community to raise our family. I am an owner in a CPA firm that employees 18 people, and I understand the struggles that businesses and individuals are going through, as I see it every day.

Bottom line our state, as well as our country, is in serious trouble in regards to government overspending. This is not because of one political party or the other - this is because both political parties have continuously "kicked the can down the road." This needs to stop and we voted this last November to put people in place to accomplish some fiscal restraint. We will never agree with everything that our governor or legislators do, but we have to agree that some drastic measures need to be taken.

As far as all of the figures and tax rate percentages being thrown around, you have to compare apples to apples not apples to oranges. The tax rates of 91% and 70% going back to the 1960s through 1980s are not comparable to today's top tax rate of 35%. Back in those days, a taxpayer could deduct Oil and Gas Losses, Passive Losses, Political Contributions, etc. - in effect the kitchen sink. These deductions reduced the effective top tax rate to usually below our current tax rates if not lower. All of these "tax shelters" have been done away with to a more "simplified" tax structure. How do I know - I have prepared these types of tax returns and studied tax law for longer than I care admit.

Another misnomer is that corporate tax collections have gone down significantly over the years, while individual tax collections have gone up. The problem with this statement is that most businesses are now S Corporations or LLCs and are pass-through entities. What's income is taxed on the shareholders/members individual tax return - thus, most corporate tax collections are included with the individual tax collections and the statistics do not break this out.

For some to say - Tax The Rich - this will solve our problems is a falsehood. In 2009, Wisconsin's top tax rate was already raised from 6.75% to 7.75%. What did this accomplish - did it solve the budget problem? No. So -- for some to suggest lets raise the tax rate another 1% and this will fix our budget problem carries no water with me. This does not FIX the budget problem - it FEEDS the budget problem. We DO NOT want to become another New York or California - raising taxes in these states has stifled small business which is the life blood of our economy.

In our own lives, we have to live within our means or face some serious legal issues. We cannot create more household revenue we don't have -- unless we take it from others. Our only solution is to reduce our household expenses which means living within our means and reviewing our "wants" versus our "needs." This is the same logic we must require of our government. There is no THEM versus US - there is only US -- as we are all in this together.

Dear Editor:

Since announcing my candidacy for the Kewaskum School Board in the upcoming April 5th election, I have been highly involved in preparing for the possibility of being a Board member. Many questions have been presented to personnel within the district as it is most important to know the facts. This on-going analysis also included extending a request to visit each of the school principals to see and hear first-hand how their respective facilities are functioning, what their successes and issues are, as well as their needs. The purpose of this expression is to thank the administrators that accepted my request: KMS Principal Christine Horbas, KES Principal Darcy Budnik, and Farmington/Wayne Elementary Principal Janet Molebash.

In visiting each of their respective facilities within the past two weeks, I witnessed pride in student and educator, structure and organization in the dynamic process of educating, passion in ensuring each facility excels in its environmental support of student education, and strength in leadership as administrators. Each Principal is exceptional and I was instilled with the sense that they will continue achieving the goals that ensure success in the education of their students! I am most grateful to these administrators for their time, effort, understanding, and support of my visit. Each session was highly enlightening. I look forward to visiting again and in working with each to support their success.

Respectfully submitted,

The Hidden Cost of Collective Bargaining

Employees in Wisconsin are protected through a combination of regulations from the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA), National Safety Council (NCS), Center for Disease Control (CDC), Department of Workforce Development (DWD), and Department of Health Services (DHS). Not to mention our state boasts some of the strongest civil service laws in the country.

With rules in place ensuring acceptable working conditions for state, county or local municipalities, collective bargaining now has gone over the edge. Consider a perk bargained for by the Milwaukee Teachers' Education Association. Costing taxpayers $800,000 - the union insisted on - and got coverage for Viagra included in its contract.

A fall 2010 report by the Education Action Group Foundation, Inc., a Michigan-based 501(c)(3) public charity with support from Wisconsin's John K. Maclver Institute for Public Policy estimates that Wisconsin public schools could save anywhere between $68 million and $143 million per year if school districts could freely replace the Wisconsin Education Association Council's (WEAC) own healthcare insurance company - WEA Trust.

About 64% of Wisconsin's 426 school districts carry WEA Trust insurance. According to school administrators, WEA Trust is written into the local teachers' contract as the only insurance provider, and the union refuses to remove that clause during contract negotiations - read collective bargaining.

The report states the numbers as follows: "The average monthly premium for single employee coverage at schools with WEA Trust insurance was $734, while the average for non-WEA schools was $614. The average monthly premium for family coverage at schools with WEA Trust insurance was $1,665, while the average for non-WEA schools was $1,466."

Continuing the analysis the study states: "Applying that average over a full year, a school would pay $1,440 more to cover a single employee under WEA Trust coverage, and $2,388 more for a family under WEA Trust coverage. If you applied those differences to a school with 300 covered employees (assuming 2/3 family coverage and 1/3 single coverage), a district would pay $477,600 more for family coverage and $144,000 more for single coverage."

Also emphasized in the report: "schools previously had a degree of financial protection under the state's Qualified Economic Offer (QEO) statute, which capped the combination of salary and benefit increases for school employees at 3.8%. If WEA Trust health insurance got too pricey at contract time, employees were not in a position to demand very large salary increases."

Wisconsin's 2009 - 2010 budget removed the QEO and 3.8% cap on teacher pay and compensation. It passed through the legislature on a straight democrat party line vote and was signed into law by Governor Doyle as Act 28.

Additionally, Section 2231 ACT 28 pertaining to binding arbitration was written to read: "This bill eliminates the requirement for the arbitrator to give any weight to economic conditions in the jurisdiction of the employer or to any state law or directive that places expenditure or revenue limitations on an employer if the decision involves a collective bargaining unit comprised of school district employees."

Therefore, no matter what pay and benefits package a school board offers, the teacher's union can reject it, propose their own offer, and then go to collective bargaining where an arbitrator by state law can not look at the unemployment rate or ability of the citizens in the district to pay for the increases in compensation.

The Education Action Group 2010 findings concluded with: "A quick look through the company's federal financial statements reveals a tax-exempt, non-profit company that makes a great deal of money. At the end of 2008, WEA Trust reported net assets were $316,837,155."

Consider the salaries of WEA Trust's upper management. According to the study, "The Company's CEO, Fred Evert, made $333,375 in salary in 2007, with total compensation package of $469,522, according to tax records filed by the company. Eleven other employees under Evert received total compensation packages worth at least $181,792."

It is clear as well that WEA Trust and WEAC are essentially one entity with two names. WEAC's President Mary Bell, Director Amy Johnson, and Director Suzanne Kahl all sit on the WEA Trust board. Furthermore, their offices reside at the same address in Madison.

Every excess a public union collectively bargains for cuts into school districts' and other government entities' budgets. Wisconsin's taxpayers can no longer afford the hidden costs of collective bargaining.

from IRISH pastures comes a pot of gold

FAMILY FEATURES

Yes, there's a pot of gold at the end of the rainbow. It's found in each blade of grass growing in Ireland's lush pastures. Small herds of cows graze freely, and the milk, rich in beta-carotene from the grass, produces butter and cheeses of an exceptionally golden hue.

Thousands of years before the Irish discovered potatoes, dairy cows and butter were being woven into the fabric of Irish society, according to the Cork Butter Museum in Cork City, Ireland. The Cork Butter Exchange, a market created by the merchants of Cork City in 1769, was in its time, the largest butter market in the world, exporting as far away as Europe and America.

Today, dairy products continue to play an important role in Irish cooking. Cooperatives of farmers, creameries and cheesemakers provide delicious Irish butter and cheeses throughout the U.S. under the Kerrygold label.

Here are some iconic recipes from some stars of Irish cooking, using Kerrygold cheeses and butter. To learn more about Kerrygold, and for where-to-buy information, visit www.kerrygold.com/usa.

Dubliner Shepherd's Pie

Roasted Root Vegetable Soup

Serves 4 to 6

"You can substitute pumpkin, turnip or celeriac for the swede (rutabaga), or just use a mixture — this is a very flexible recipe."

— Neven Maguire, chef/owner of the renowned MacNeain House and Restaurant in Blacklion, County Cavan, Ireland; popular TV cooking star and cookbook author

- 1 small swede (rutabaga) cut into cubes
- 2 carrots, cut into cubes
- 1 parsnip, cut into cubes
- 3 tablespoons olive oil
- 4 tablespoons (1/4 cup) Kerrygold Irish Butter
- 1 onion, finely chopped
- 2 celery stalks, finely chopped
- 1 garlic clove, crushed
- 1 teaspoon chopped fresh thyme
- 1 quart (4 cups) vegetable stock
- 1/2 cup single cream (or substitute half and half)
- Salt and freshly ground black pepper

Preheat oven to 400°F. Place swede, carrots and parsnip on baking sheet and drizzle with 2 tablespoons olive oil. Season generously and roast for 25 to 30 minutes until golden brown and tender, shaking baking sheet occasionally to ensure even cooking.

Meanwhile, heat remaining tablespoon olive oil and butter in large heavy-based pot, and add onion, celery, garlic and thyme. Cook for 4 to 5 minutes until softened but not browned, stirring occasionally.

Add roasted root vegetables to pan and then pour in stock. Bring gently to boil, then reduce heat, cover and simmer for 25 to 30 minutes until completely tender, stirring occasionally. Purée with a hand blender until completely smooth.

To serve, stir cream into soup. Gently heat through and season to taste, then ladle into warmed bowls.

Note: You don't have to add the cream if you're watching the calories, but you might need a little extra stock to thin the soup.

Cheese Toasties

Serves 4 to 6

- 4 tablespoons (1/4 cup) Kerrygold Irish Butter
- 8 slices firm, country-style white bread
- 1 package (7 ounces) Kerrygold Dubliner Cheese, grated
- 1 tablespoon snipped fresh chives
- Salt and freshly ground black pepper

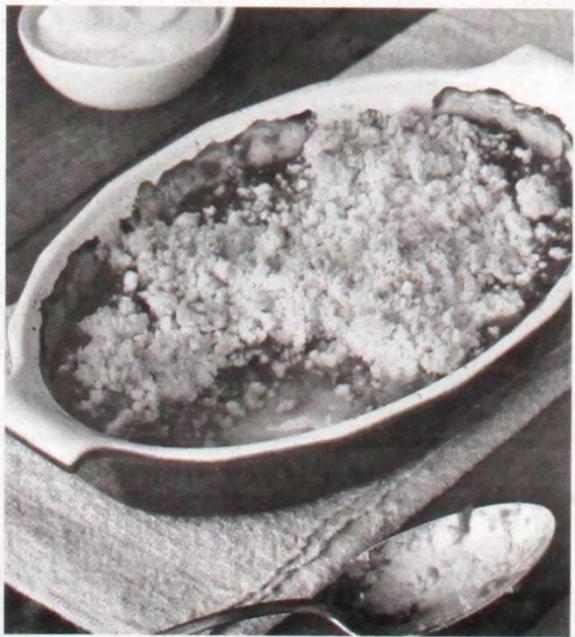

Butter and arrange cheese over half of the slices, buttered side down. Sprinkle with chives and cover with remaining slices, buttered side up.

Preheat a griddle or large non-stick frying pan and cook sandwiches two at a time 2 minutes each side until golden brown and cheese has melted. Keep hot.

To serve, cut the cheese toasties into fingers.

Brown Soda Bread, Roasted Root Vegetable Soup and Cheese Toasties

Rhubarb Crumble

Brown Soda Bread

Makes 2 loaves

"This is an all-purpose and relatively fool-proof recipe based on several I collected while researching 'The Country Cooking of Ireland.'"

— author Colman Andrews, whose Irish cookbook won the 2010 James Beard Foundation award for Best International Cookbook and Cookbook of the Year

- 3 1/2 cups stone-ground whole wheat flour, preferably Irish or Irish-style
- 1 1/2 cups unbleached white flour, preferably Irish, or pastry flour, plus more for dusting
- 3/4 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon softened Kerrygold Irish Butter, plus more for greasing
- 1 3/4 to 2 cups room-temperature buttermilk

Preheat oven to 375°F. Mix wheat flour, white flour, baking soda and salt together in a medium bowl. Work butter into mixture with your fingers.

Form a well in the middle of flour mixture and pour buttermilk into the well. Form your hand into a rigid claw and stir dough slowly but steadily in a spiral motion, starting in the middle and working outwards. Dough should be soft but not too wet or sticky. (Start with 1 3/4 cups buttermilk, gradually adding, if necessary, to achieve the right consistency.)

Turn dough out onto a floured board. Flour your hands lightly, then shape dough into a flat rectangle about 2 inches high. Cut dough in half lengthwise with a wet knife, then gently push each half into a lightly greased glass or foil loaf pan. Bake for 50 to 60 minutes, or until the tops of the loaves are nicely browned.

Serve this bread with plenty of Kerrygold Irish Butter.

Rhubarb Crumble

Serves 6

"Crumbles are the ultimate comfort food. Vary the fruit according to the season." — Darina Allen, founder of the world-famous Ballymaloe Cookery School in Shanagarry, County Cork, Ireland

- Filling:
  - 1 1/2 pounds rhubarb, cut in 1/2-inch slices
  - 1/2 cup sugar
- Crumble:
  - 4 tablespoons (1/4 cup) Kerrygold Irish Butter
  - 4 ounces (scant 1 cup) white flour, preferably unbleached
  - 1/4 cup superfine sugar

Preheat oven to 350°F. In bowl, mix filling ingredients; turn into a 1-quart (4 cups) capacity pie dish.

Dubliner Shepherd's Pie

Makes 4 to 6 servings

"Our family loves a hearty shepherd's pie after a long day working on the farm. Because our cows produce milk to make Kerrygold Dubliner Cheese, we like to add some shredded Dubliner to the potato crust." — Donal Murphy, Kerrygold dairy farmer, Bandon, County Cork, Ireland

- Potato Topping:
  - 1 1/4 pounds russet potatoes, peeled and cubed
  - 2 tablespoons Kerrygold Irish Butter
  - 1/3 cup milk
  - 1 cup shredded Kerrygold Dubliner Cheese
  - 1/2 teaspoon salt
- Filling:
  - 1 pound lean ground beef
  - 2 tablespoons Kerrygold Irish Butter
  - 1 medium onion, chopped
  - 4 small carrots, peeled and sliced 1/4-inch thick
  - 2 tablespoons flour
  - 3/4 cup Guinness Stout
  - 3/4 cup beef stock
  - 1/2 teaspoon dried thyme
  - 1/2 teaspoon salt
  - 1/2 cup frozen peas, thawed

Preheat oven to 375°F and lightly butter an 11- x 7-inch baking dish. Cook potatoes in boiling water for 15 minutes or until very tender; drain well. Mash with butter and milk until smooth, then stir in cheese and salt and set aside.

Crumble beef into a medium skillet and cook until no longer pink; remove from skillet and set aside. In same skillet, melt butter. Add onion and carrots; cook for 10 minutes over medium heat to soften, stirring occasionally. Stir in flour and cook for 1 minute more.

Add Guinness, stock, thyme and salt; cook and stir until mixture is slightly thickened then stir in peas and cooked beef. Spoon into prepared baking dish then spread potato mixture over the top. Bake for 20 to 25 minutes or until top is lightly browned.

Rub butter into flour just until mixture resembles coarse breadcrumbs, then stir in sugar.

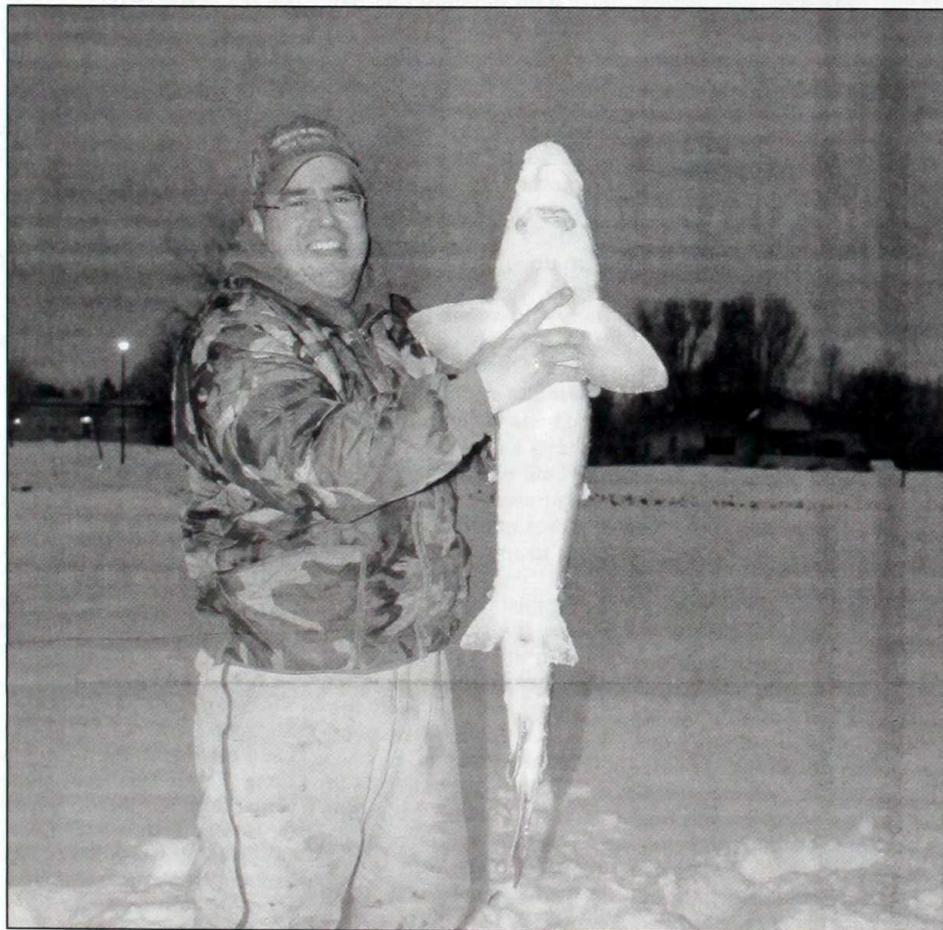

Sprinkle this mixture for 30 to 45 minutes until topping is cooked and golden. Serve with whipped cream and soft brown sugar, or try stirring a little Amaretto into your cream.

On Wisconsin Outdoors

With the Dick Ellis Experts

Long Lining.....Technique takes meal to the walleyes

Ron Rutledge of New London agrees to one photo before quickly releasing the juvenile surgeon that took his walleye jig and minnow back into the Wolf River.

Fishing the Wolf River hardwater near New London in 1991 during his senior year of high school, John Faucher and friends worked the same proven technique for walleyes that their fathers had worked before them. A Wolf River Rig with treble hook and shiner minnow was vertical jigged on the bottom directly beneath the augured hole. They caught their walleyes, but downstream... once again... a strange noise caught the anglers' attention. "A buddy and I always fished a straight stretch along Highway X," Faucher said. "We used box tip-ups, homemade tip-downs, regular Polar Ice tip-ups, willow sticks, and standard spinning jig combos to catch walleye. About a 100 yards downstream there was always this guy perched on a bucket jigging two stiffer style rods with what I'd call old cat-fish reels. Every so often we'd hear the line peel out the bait clicker. We'd jump to our feet instinctively with that rush of sound, nearly every time he did it. We didn't know if he had a fish on or if he was just letting out some more line." "We'd never seen such technique ice fishing before. We often joked around and chuckled at his unusual style of jigging. We thought, 'crazy old man'.

Crazy like a fox. The man was Don Cashmore, a Vietnam vet and eventual owner of a local bait business, Cash's Little Shoppe of Bait. The technique was self labeled by Cashmore as "long lining". And after he routinely caught more fish than anyone else by using the tactic, the chuckling ceased and the questions began that would enable the scoffers to evolve to disciples. The questions continue today more than two decades later, this time by a reporter in Cash's Little Shoppe of Bait. Although Cashmore these days usually stays off the ice due to diabetes that makes walking painful.

According to Cashmore, an excellent fall fishing for walleyes from shore on the Wolf in the mid-80s made him theorize that the fish should still be in the area after freeze-up. Knowing that experienced anglers often successfully vertical jigs in the shallows where walleyes come to feed during early and late low-light conditions, he began to look elsewhere for the fish, with a different tactic letting more and more line out carried by the river current, during mid-day hours when walleyes are notoriously not active.

"In shallow, you can work the fish jigging straight up and down," Cashmore said. "You're raising the jig a foot or two off the bottom and the fish are in a chasing mode. They're active. They're in shallow feeding. In daytime, they're out in deeper water staging. During the day I drilled a couple holes in the middle of winter. I used a short, fiberglass rod but as I was jigging the line wasn't hitting the bottom anymore so I started letting more and more line out. You're going to the fish. I started catching a lot of walleyes in the middle of the day. Now, my favorite time to fish for walleyes is 8:00 to 2:00."

Twice last week, Faucher and Josh Muskevitsch offered a hands-on lesson on the Wolf River that Cashmore had given in his bait shop. We were joined by Muskevitsch's son Drake, Chad Hoeth, and the father-son team of Jason and Wyatt Magolski, all of New London. Basically, instead of vertical bouncing a jig in the same spot all day under one hole, the angler uses the lightest jig possible that enables the fisherman to still feel bottom, with braided, colored main line which floats better in the current and which allows the angler to accurately estimate the length of line he is working at any given time. He purposely "walks" the jig down river, in an effort to cover more ground, working the jig downriver to those pockets of fish waiting to ambush feed coming down current. When he hits fish, the colored line allows him to repeat the performance (feet of line) and find that pocket of fish again after the fish is caught or lost. Long lining is a different experience. The angler must trust that his jig is on bottom and keep going with the flow. A strike, Faucher said, feels more like the dead weight of a wet sock, because instead of eight feet of line straight down, he might have 50 feet out down current. More fish are lost because the angler instinctively and aggressively sets the hook instead of reeling in steady and then more "passively" setting a hook closer to the hole.

"Depending how much line you have out it can take a while to get the fish to the hole," Faucher said. "The closer he gets the more he fights. A stiff short rod with an open face, level-wind reel also plays a part in hook-ups and compensates for all that line stretch when you have a lot of line out. Kids often do well with the technique because they naturally work the rod and set the hooks on a strike more passively than adults. I've been long lining for several years now and I still have to work on getting rid of those bad habits like aggressively setting the hook. This year I've been going quite well with the technique, thanks to some refresher courses from Cashmore and Muskevitsch. Josh could catch a fish out of a bathtub." Faucher claims "nowhere near" the finesse as Muskevitsch in feeling bottom, a problem magnified for the new long-liner. He recommends that beginners use a heavier jig to ensure maintaining bottom contact.

"With long-lining, the bottom is there but you don't feel it as prominently as vertical jigging," he said. "You hit bottom when you first drop that jig down, but then as you let line out you just have to trust that the bottom is there. Every two to three pumps of the jig you let some line out from the reel with your thumb."

Mobility, Faucher believes, the willingness to move, makes Cashmore an even better angler with the technique. He will fish in spots no one else ever fishes. Many people fish traditional methods in the morning and evening hours targeting feeding walleyes on sand bars, and on the flats at prime time. Long lining allows the angler to cover more ground and find feeding fish, regardless of the time of day.

"I've seen Cashmore go out in the middle of the river mid-day, and catch five fish when everyone else left for lack of action," Faucher said. "He often will set up above a hole and let his jig surf the current down into pockets or nests of fish that for the most part have been unmolested. A lot of fishermen work salmon stream with spawn sacs where allowing the line to work out into certain hot spots is very effective. This concept is similar through the ice, but you can't see your line working down."

In the end, long lining is all about presentation, Faucher believes. A meal carried down with current is more natural to a fish than something heavy going straight up and down. The current flow is the fish's feed belt, he said. And the bottom is the kitchen table. When the line stops, it's usually a fish on the other end. It a phenomenon experienced often by Don Cashmore.

"To me it's the most exciting way to catch walleyes," he said. "Walking the jig out and seeing how far you have to go to catch fish is unbelievably rewarding. They thought I was crazy, sitting out in the middle of the river in the middle of the day. You can be out all day and get nothing but you start long lining and boom boom...you're on them."

Apprentices like Faucher know long lining will pay dividends. Gold dividends weighed in pounds, not ounces, on the scale. "Compared to just plain old jigging vertical it has made a huge difference in my success on the river," he said. "I've been fishing with Cash and or Josh plenty of times before I actually took up long lining and they typically would out-catch me by a ratio of 5:1, or worse yet, I'd get nothing. It didn't take long, for me to finally give in and buy a bait caster reel for long lining. And I'm catching a lot more fish."

Best boys' season in years ends in Slinger

Kewaskum junior forward Brad Boegel takes an inside shot over Slinger's Dan Sabin (24) in the first half of last Friday's playoff game in Slinger. The Indians lost, 51-36, and ended their season 10-13, best in years.

By Mitch Maersch
Statesman Correspondent

SLINGER - Kewaskum's boys' basketball team started out with a hot first quarter last Friday night, matching Slinger's 15 points in a WIAA Division 2 regional playoff game.

Then the Indians' offense promptly exited the gym, made its way to the team bus and sat there, leaving its players left on the court to struggle.

No. 3-seeded Kewaskum tied a season-low for points-and ended its year with a 51-36 loss to a team it beat 41-48 to start the season back in December.

Junior guard Brett Nuernberg nearly kept his team in the game singlehandedly, scoring a game-high 17 points and draining four three-pointers. He shot 6-for-12 from the field; the rest of the team went 6-for-22.

"We weren't really able to put the ball in the hoop very much," said Coach Quinn Heintz.

The Indians shot barely 33 percent against a defense that knew what was coming and tightened accordingly.

"They had us scouted very well, probably the best all year that anyone's had us scouted," Heintz said. "They got through our screens. We didn't set good enough screens."

But the boys' basketball program is developing, now after its second year under Heintz. After going 3-20 last season, the Indians finished 10-13, its most wins since 2002, and 5-9 in the Eastern Wisconsin Conference, its best record since 2006.

"It's a huge step forward. Thirteen losses but seven of those losses by six or less points. We were in every game," Heintz said. "We learned so much from every game that we played this year and it can transfer over to next year. You're not going to go from three wins to 15, 16 wins; it's very difficult to do that. We had the potential to do that but with a young team you're going to have your bumps along the way. We've got to learn from it, get better over the summer and come back next year and win those close games."

Kewaskum beat Waupun for the first time in school history and knocked off regular conference contender Plymouth. The Indians lost some leads late in games, much due to lack of experience, but had leads instead of being blown out.

Heintz said the Indians have "a lot of experience now coming back compared to other teams - we didn't have any coming in to this year. We should be a tough team to beat next year."

Kewaskum loses center Lucas Kopeschka to graduation but returns everyone else, including point guard and leading scorer Eric Perkins, forward and second-leading scorer Brad Boegel, Nuernberg - all juniors - and 6-foot-4 athletic sophomore Hunter Flanders. Heintz looks to have a bigger bench after seven players took the bulk of the load this season.

"We're going to be a lot deeper next year. We didn't have a lot of depth this year. A lot of minutes and you won't see that next year," he said. "Hopefully, you'll see us play a little more up tempo but you'll see we'll be able to put a lot more guys in the game to keep guys fresh. I think we might have gotten a little worn down at the end of the season. It's a lack of depth. There's not much you can do about it. Just need more players."

Heintz said he looks forward to the near future but he will miss Kopeschka.

"One of my favorite kids, just an awesome kid. I wish he never had to leave. We're going to miss him a lot," he said.

Against No. 2-seeded Slinger, the Indians couldn't get into any kind of rhythm after the first quarter. Cold shooting and the Owls' patient, slowdown offense wore Kewaskum down.

"That's a big key. When we don't control the tempo it's hard for our guys to get any kind of rhythm on offense. We have one team slowing it down and our guys want to go and get a quick shot because they didn't get a shot in a while," Heintz said. "We've got to be more patient. It starts with defense. If we don't give up scores then we don't have to score so fast."

In the second and third quarters combined, the Indians committed more than 10 turnovers and got outscored 25-11.

"We're a rhythm team. When we get out of sync it's really hard to get back into it," Heintz said. "We don't move well enough without the ball. We're still learning how to move without the ball, how to set better screens. Once we can learn how to do that in the future we'll be a better team."

Down 40-26 entering the fourth quarter, the Indians had to take some chances to try to get back into the game. They couldn't get the lead to single digits.

It wasn't from lack of support. Kewaskum brought a large crowd to the nearby hostile gym, many students dressed in beach attire.

"The student section was awesome tonight, best student section I've seen in a long time. I hope next year they continue to back us. Our players feed off that energy. Big crowd tonight," Heintz said.

Slinger went on to lose Saturday against No. 1 seed Beaver Dam, 58-36.

Kewaskum 15 4 7 10 - 36
Slinger 15 11 14 11 - 51

Kewaskum: Brett Nuernberg 17, Eric Perkins 7, Lucas Kopeschka 5, Brad Boegel 3, Hunter Flanders 2, Corey Burdick 2. Three-pointers: Nuernberg 4, Perkins, Kopeschka. Free throws: 6-10. Fouls: 10.

An off-season celebration for Gridiron Club

By Judy Harlow
Statesman Correspondent

KEWASKUM- Football and wrestling were major topics at the recent Gridiron coaches dinner held at Hon-E-Kor Country Club.

It was a time to look back at the successes of the past season and to anticipate how "graduates" of the Gridiron program will continue to help the Kewaskum High School football team move toward being among the elite ranks of prep teams in the state.

The Kewaskum Gridiron Club is now 15 years old, with two coaches, Jim "Jonesy" Korth and Jeff Brettingen, the only two that have been in the program since it started.

Korth, the president of the Gridiron program and head coach of the eighth grade team praised Brettingen (who could not attend the event this year) for his dedication. Brettingen has had different assignments over the years, filling in where he is needed. Currently he is a sixth grade assistant.

"There are a couple other guys right behind him," Korth said afterward, noting Rollie Maul has coached for over a decade. Altogether, there have been at least 50 men from the community who have volunteered their time to coach.

Korth also took time to honor seventh grade assistant coach Greg Ziebell, who took a year off while he was going through cancer treatment and returned to the program last fall.

The night is designed to thank the Gridiron Club sponsors for their support to the program and to treat the wives for all the time the coaches are away from home during the season. Several of the KHS football coaches were also guests at the event.

The helmet was passed around for contributions for the Gridiron Scholarships. Between $500 and $600 was donated by those in attendance, according to Korth, who said the club will again award two $500 scholarships this year, with the rest of the money coming from proceeds from the 50-50 raffles and individuals donations.

Korth indicated the club recently ordered replacement helmets and some new uniforms, so it should be set for the next several years.

Before the dinner was served, those in attendance watched KHS sophomore Brett Scoles in his championship match in the WIAA Division 2 competition in Madison.

After dinner Brad Bentz and Bo Seibel, who won state titles at 160 and 189 pounds, respectively, provided entertainment.
