First Veterans Night Draws Rave Review

By Judy Harlow

While the outcome of the basketball game wasn't what the home team had hoped for, the first Veterans/Active Military Personnel Night held at Kewaskum High on January 5 was a huge success.

Eighteen veterans were introduced at halftime to a rousing and emotional round of applause by fans from Kewaskum and their guests from Plymouth as members of both boys basketball teams and their coaches stood on the floor cheering.

Those in attendance included: Rod Donnelly, Roger Strack, Dennis Bingen, Bob Kirst, Gino Giudice, Joe Fox, Norbert

Keller, Bill Barber, Tom Fabitz, John Fabitz, Armund Miller, Michael Hughes, James Buechel, Patrick Gill, Roger Heberer, Michael Nummerdor, Bob Pick, and Paul Fellenz. They represented the U. S. Army, Navy and Marine Corps.

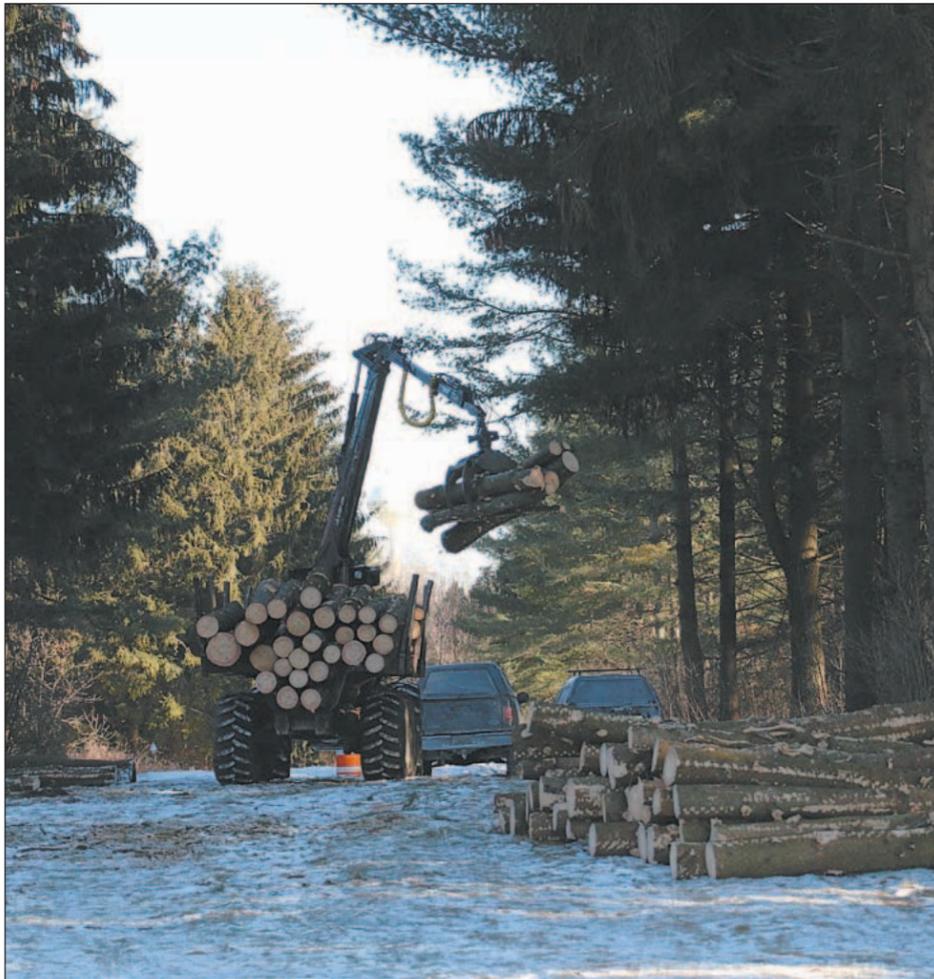

The invited guests entered the door to the Kewaskum High School gymnasium greeted by a huge lighted American flag suspended overhead, and members of the Robert G. Romaine American Legion Post 384 honor guard presented the colors with the Kewaskum High School band playing the Star Spangled Banner.

The event was organized by Sue Goeden.

Trees are stacked along the entrance to Reigle Family Park. Logging began at the park on January 5, and is expected to be completed next week. The trees are being logged to clear space for soccer and baseball fields.

Local Veteran Recalls Honor Flight

By Anne Trautner

It has been nearly four months since Dennis Bingen went on the Stars and Stripes Honor Flight to Washington, D.C., but the memories from the trip are still vivid for the Korean War veteran.

On September 16, Bingen went on the Honor Flight. His daughter, Deborah Nevsimal, accompanied Bingen on the trip.

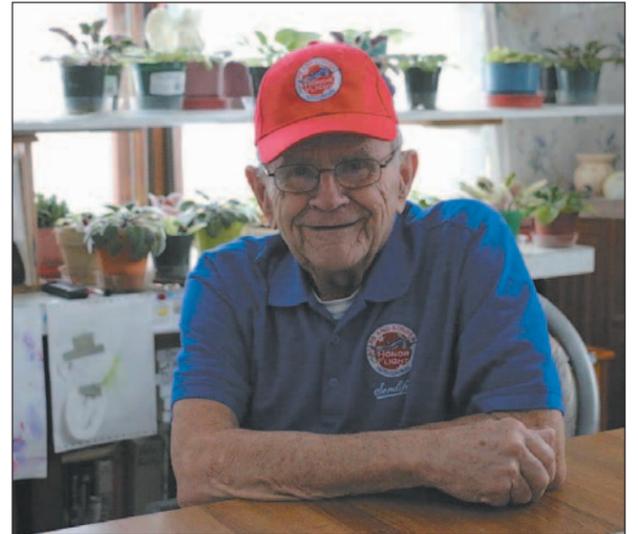

"They treated us like kings," said Bingen, who had never been to the nation's capitol before going on the Honor Flight. "It was really good...they really took care of us."

The veterans visited various memorials and monuments. A highlight was the Changing of the Guard at Arlington National Cemetery.

"That was really something," Bingen said.

He was stationed on Paengyong-do, an island in South Korea, from December 1955 to March 1957. Located near the 37th parallel in the Yellow Sea, the island covers about four square miles.

"Actually, we could see North Korea on a clear day across the Yellow Sea," Bingen said.

Fire Destroys Building At Valley Hydro Excavating, LLC

A fire on Monday, Jan. 8, destroyed a building owned by Valley Hydro Excavating LLC of Campbellsport. The structure, an 80-foot by 200-foot pole shed, which was used as an office and for heavy equipment storage, is considered a total loss.

The call went out at 2:30 p.m. for the report of a structure fire at N2496 Highway 45, in the Township of Auburn. The Fond du Lac County Sheriff's Office and Campbellsport Fire Department were dispatched.

Highway 45 in the area of the fire had to be closed off for several hours on Monday afternoon to allow firefighters to battle the blaze.

The only employee in the building was able to exit the building without any injuries. The cause of the fire is unknown and is being investigated by the Campbellsport Fire Department and the Wisconsin State Fire Marshal.

Heavy smoke filled the air all afternoon and Highway 45 was shut down for a few hours while the fire departments battled the blaze. No one was injured in the fire and the cause is under investigation by the fire department. Kewaskum and Boltonville fire departments responded to the fire.

Trust And Accountability

Trust and accountability have never been more important than now. Who can you trust? How do you know things get done that are suppose to get done? .....especially if it is important and you depend on it.

Last week, someone called our newspaper office and asked us if a particular car dealer could be trusted. They did not ask about a particular car or deal. What they wanted to know was if they could trust them. I also received a similar call a few weeks back from someone who wanted to know who they could trust to come to their home and do some painting. Both people who called read our paper (one of them online).

Over the years, I have had many people come to our office and tell me about various situations; some of them were very serious subjects and not for just a reference. They told me many times they just did not know who to tell but they felt they could trust the people who work at this paper. Why do they trust us?

I may not know all of the reasons but I have an idea. What we do at the paper is clearly transparent and people can see what we do, even when we make mistakes. We hold ourselves accountable to the public. Our newspaper represents the public's interest with our coverage at local meetings, the publication of legal notices, and opportunity to publish our findings after reviewing open records.

We have been around for a long time and people see us at work as well as in the community. We have a proven track record that we make every reasonable effort to always publish the truth. It is in our interest to do so. If we find out later something is not true we let you know. We will also let you know if we make a mistake. It is interesting to note that trust and accountability have little to do with the technology tools we use including all of the nifty digital stuff we do with our readers and customers.

Threat To Public Notices

Most of the newspapers in Wisconsin are community newspapers like the Kewaskum Statesman. They contain information including government notices that pertain to what will happen or what happened right here at or near home.

I have been a newspaper publisher for 29 years and almost without exception, there has been an effort from certain government employees or organizations that represent government employees to remove notices from community newspapers every year. Their reasons for taking out the notices have changed but ultimately have to do with not wanting accountability. The reasons for publishing notices have not changed. They are to clearly inform the public of what the government has done and what actions they are considering. It should be noted that many government employees support the notices being in community newspapers.

In the summer of 2016, the State of Wisconsin put together a group, the Joint Legislative Council Study Committee, to study the viability and effectiveness of having legal notices being published in newspapers.

Legal notices for local governments are currently required by law to be published in newspapers and online at wisconsinpublicnotices.org. The print notices are put online automatically when the newspapers upload their pages for archive publication to the State Historical Society. The notices are put online even for municipalities that do not have websites. Their publication is verified by a third party (newspaper) sworn affidavit to prove it ran and ran on time. After several months of taking testimony and interviewing many experts, the Legislative Audit Committee recommended to keep the notices in newspapers and on the statewide website early last year.

However, despite the results of the study, there is currently a proposed bill that may be considered by the Assembly next week known as AB70 (Senate version is SB42) that would give the option for publishing official proceedings from school boards, county boards, city councils, and village boards, on their own websites to fulfill publication requirement instead of printing them in the local newspaper and statewide public notice website.

The bill calls for notice proceedings to be placed on a government website with no authentication and little to no accountability. The newspaper industry is not against municipalities putting notices on their websites. In fact, more information, not less, is good public policy.

Amazingly, when I gave my testimony about this bill at the committee level on March 9, 2017, a person testifying for school boards said they wanted proceeding notices out of newspapers and online so they could make changes to the proceedings at a later time. This is unbelievable, outrageous, and even disgraceful. Proceeding notices are a legal description of what happened including notice of future actions. They need to be verified and never changed or altered after publication in print as well as online. It is not a good idea for citizens to trust the government to police itself and cut out the newspapers. The system in place now requires third party verification of notices both for content and timing.

The threat of this legislation is very real to the people of Kewaskum and the Kewaskum Statesman. It should not be taken lightly. There is much more to this subject matter than I could possibly comment on in a short column. There will never be a good time for a few members of state legislature to pull a fast one on the citizens of Kewaskum.

A power failure Tuesday afternoon interrupted service in a widespread area when a 138,000 volt transmission line originating at Saukville and servicing this area failed. The trouble in the line was not immediately determined but an alternate line was later "cut in" to supply power until the difficulty could be reached. Affected by the interruption in power were customers in West Bend, Slinger, Hartford, Campbellsport, Lomira, Kewaskum and as far away as Watertown.

On Christmas day, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence

Bruessel, Route 2, Kewaskum, announced the engagement of their daughter, Joyce, to Mark Kral, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Kral of Kewaskum.

The Kewaskum Indians probably wish the Christmas vacation would have lasted a week longer. Returning to action after the holidays, they had a busy week and a disastrous one, playing three games and losing all of them by decisive scores. Opening with a non-conference game against Lomira, third place team in the Tri-County League with a 4-2 record, here last Wednesday, the Indians took it on the chin, 70-57. Kewaskum hit only 17 of 57, but connected on 23 of 38 from the foul line, which kept them in the game.

The wealth of Washington County has increased over two million dollars during the past year, according to the statistical report on the assessments for 1917, submitted to the County Board. The total true value of all real and personal property combined is $44,594,521, an increase in exact figures of $2,146,488, over the true valuation given in the 1916 report. Of this increase, $1,113,683, is due to the increased value of the real estate, the farms and city and village lots. The total value of all real estate in the county now is $36,628,807, and that of real and personal property combined is $44,594,521. The value of the latter is $7,965,714. The automobiles in the county during the past year increased by 720, making the number at the time of the assessors' rounds 2,073. Those aggregate value of those machines of "high and low degree" is placed at $784,175, and their average value at $378.28. Among the towns, the town of Germantown is predominant in the number of autos, 168, having been counted, while the town of Kewaskum has the least number, 46. The City of Hartford is set down with 304 autos, and the City of West Bend with 205. The percentage of people owning autos seems to be about equal in both cities, while formerly it was decidedly in favor of West Bend. One out of every fifteen inhabitants is the owner of an auto. But the Hartforders seem to sport higher priced machines, for the tables give them an average value of $371.62, while that of West Bend machines is given with only $307.87. Of course Hartford patronizes its home industry and the price of the Kissel Kars did not yet come down to that of the "Tin Lizzies."

Supply Sargeant Ralph Petri, Corporal Jack Tassar, Corporal Edwin Backus, Corporal Chas. Guth, Sargeant Theodore Schmidt, Privates Walter Schaefer, Carl Schaefer, Adolph Rosenheimer, Jos. The date of departure is suppressed by the censorship. These divisions are now in training at Spartanburg, S.C., Waco, Texas and Houston, Texas, and the information as conveyed means that they will soon be on their way to France or some other scene of the great war.

The blizzard which prevailed over the country last Sunday and Monday was one of the worst in the history of the state. Trains were abandoned, rural mail delivery was impossible and traffic of all kinds was obstructed by the huge snow drifts that were formed during the 24 hour gale. The storm began during Saturday night and was at its worst during Sunday afternoon when the wind blew at a rate of from forty to sixty miles an hour, which continued until Monday forenoon, when the wind abated and the general public began to shovel itself out from the drifts that surrounded the homes.

An eight pound baby girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. William Schaub of Kewaskum last Thursday morning.

HEALTH TIP*VITAMIN D MAY IMPROVE
FUNCTION

Vitamin D is essential to keeping bones strong and may even play a role in staving off depression and cardiovascular disease. Recent findings from a new study of diabetic patients with low blood levels of vitamin D suggest that supplementation may help to improve vascular function and reduce oxidative stress. It is important to take a vitamin D supplement that contains vitamin K to get the most out of each vitamin and to prevent arterial calcification. Vitamin D deficiency is common in the elderly. Check with your doctor or pharmacist regarding your vitamin D blood levels and before beginning any supplementation.

In Other Words...

– Finding The Bright Lights Of Christmas

By Anne Trautner

It is the most difficult assignment I have each year.

Each year, the Kewaskum Women's Club holds a Christmas Holiday Decoration contest and picks out houses with the best holiday light displays in the Village of Kewaskum.

And each year, I go and take pictures of the displays for the newspaper.

As all photographers know, taking night photos is not easy. Add a poor sense of direction to the mix, and the duty of finding numerous addresses out in the cold each year, the job proves to be extremely challenging for me.

But it is an important job and brings plenty of holiday cheer.

To choose the winners, the Women's Club has a committee that drives around to select the best holiday light displays. All houses in the village are automatically entered in the contest.

This year, seasonal flu bugs delayed the club's group of light seekers, so the ladies went out a little later than normal. But they found so many good displays that they gave out two new awards this year: the KWC Griswold Award and an Honorable Mention.

Once they determined the winners, they sent me the list and I prepared for my search.

Don't get me wrong. Going out and looking at all the Christmas lights is a fun assignment. But I get lost very easily, and I can never find the correct houses.

ANNE TRAUTNER

Even if I somehow locate a winning entry, the house numbers are invariably hidden in dark shadows.

Usually, it takes about three trips for me to find all the houses. And lots of miles on my car.

This year, I decided to enlist the help of a willing assistant.

My son, who is a graduate student at UW-Madison, was home for the holiday. He has a keen sense of direction and excellent night vision. The perfect guide.

So we hopped in my car and I loaded the winning addresses into my GPS.

Unfortunately, the GPS in my car seems to know its way around about as well as I do. It likes to take lots of detours and doesn't seem to notice when roads are actually dead ends.

As we drove slowly past each house, I hoped the residents wouldn't be afraid that we were prowlers. Just in case, I kept a lookout for Kewaskum's police chief, Tom Bishop.

As we looked for the third address on my list, even my son had trouble finding the correct numbers on the house.

"Shine the headlights onto the numbers," he instructed me.

In the end, I had captured pictures of only one wrong house.

The whole experience highlighted one of the great wonders of Christmas.

I always marvel how the shepherds and the wise men were able to find the Baby Jesus on that first Christmas. They had no GPS.

I wonder how many cul-de-sacs the wise men entered while riding on their camels, only to find the star was actually shining above the stable that was one block over.

Last week when I met all the winners at Village Hall, it was a proud moment for us all. They received beautiful plaques and I had completed the great feat of finding all of their beautiful Christmas lights.

I know they had all worked also...it is no easy task to put up all those holiday lights. One of the homeowners, Jeff Stremke, acknowledged that he had actually considered making this the last year he put up all the grandeur, much to his wife's dismay.

Thankfully, after receiving the award, he will now continue to carry on the tradition for his family and all of Kewaskum to enjoy.

And I will be out there again next year, driving around, hoping for a Christmas miracle to help me find the winning holiday lights.

Offense Stalls; Indians Fall To Powerful Plymouth

By Judy Harlow

The Plymouth boys basketball team has height, crackerjack guards, plenty of depth and quickness, and a combination of the four was too much for the struggling Kewaskum Indians, who lost to the Panthers 65-34 on January 5.

With the win, Plymouth improved to 3-1 in the East Central Conference and 7-3 overall, while the Indians are still winless in EC action, falling to 0-4, and 3-7 overall.

"If Jordan (Carlton) doesn't score, we struggle," KHS coach Don Gruber said afterward, and Carlton, the 6-foot 1-inch senior and team's leading scorer, was not on target and only lasted for 70 percent of the game.

In the first half, Carlton made one of six shots and after the break scored just one basket, a layup off a nifty pass by Jared Chesak, before picking up an early fifth foul and exiting to the bench with 10:39 left in the game.

Other Kewaskum High School starters also struggled from the field. Junior guard Brad Buechel was 1x8 for just two points, while Chesak, again giving up five or six inches inside, connected on one of five shots. The Indians shot just 23 percent, hitting 10 of 40 attempts.

Junior Talon Ralph, starting in place of Dan Kreis, led the Indians with 10 points on three baskets and 4x5 free throws. Next came Cole Surprenant with eight points, including four free throws and a basket in the second half.

"We had some outside shots. They didn't fall," Gruber went on. "If we don't make those, they are not going to come out and challenge us."

Kewaskum made just 4 of 18 shots in the first half, falling behind 31-14. The defensive effort was there, according to Gruber, but the offense never got going. "Just way too much dribbling," Gruber said, adding, "The longer we keep dribbling, the more (Plymouth) guys will be in the lane waiting for passes inside."

"The guys did a lot of good things," Gruber went on, "but Plymouth is a big team. They get a lot of put-backs and second-chance shots."

Panthers' best big man was 6-foot, 7-inch forward Brandon Keller, who started off with eight points the first 10 minutes en route to a 12-point effort. Guards Cole Boothe and Cade Knaus also took turns with the hot hand, especially Knaus, who scored 10 points in the first six minutes of the second half when the Panthers opened up a 47-18 lead.

Kewaskum is at Campbellsport tonight (January 11) in a game that promises to be very competitive.

Man With Dual Fractured Leg Bowls 808 Three-Game Series

By Anne Trautner

Jeff Scannell, 51, bowled an 808 three-game series at King Pin in West Bend on December 26.

While any three-game score breaking 800 in bowling is notable, the feat was especially significant because Scannell was recovering from a double leg fracture.

At the end of September, Scannell tripped while jogging. He fell and broke his tibia (shin bone) and tibial plateau (upper part of the tibia).

Because of his fractures, Scannell had not been able to bowl without wearing a brace.

Finally, about a week before the big score, Scannell's doctor said that the fractures were healing properly. There is still plenty of swelling going on in the leg, and Scannell is somewhat limited as far as leg movement.

But the doctor told Scannell that he no longer had any restrictions, as long as he did not endure any pain.

Scannell was not sure how he would do when he went to bowl on December 26. The breaks were on his left leg. Scannell is a righthanded bowler, so he uses his left leg to plant his foot for bowling. Injuring that leg would make bowling particularly challenging.

In his first game that day, Scannell bowled a 279. He followed that with a 259 score.

In the third game, he thought he was out of contention of breaking the elusive 800.

"It kept a lot of the self pressure off, which was good. I didn't know I was in the running," Scannell said.

He did know that the lane seemed to have excess oil, on it, so Scannell was afraid he would over hook the ball. And in the third frame of the third game, the ball did just that.

So Scannell switched from the oily Storm ball he had been using to a less oiled Storm ball.

"I made the decision to switch balls. I could have easily moved over, but I thought it would be easier to grab a different ball. It was a good judgement call that night," he said.

Scannell did not realize he had broken 800 until he finished the last game.

It was the third time in two and a half years that Scannell has broken 800 in a three-game series.

He has bowled six perfect 300 games in his lifetime, five of which are sanctioned by the by the United States Bowling Congress.

Scannell, who bowls twice a week, has set up some goals for himself.

He would like to do well in a state or regional tournament such as the Greater Milwaukee Open.

"It would be nice to up the ante, to win some major tournament," Scannell said.

After Soundly Defeating Plymouth, Indians Are Eager For EC Showdown

By Judy Harlow

Kewaskum High's wrestling freight train notched dual meet win number four on January 5, romping over Plymouth 52-21 to mount a head of steam for tonight's (January 11) East Central headliner dual match against Campbellsport.

The host Indians bring a 4-0 conference mark into the competition versus the defending conference champion Cougars, who are 3-0 after its recent 58-18 victory over Winneconne.

The match against Plymouth marked the return of Eric Bauer, who missed the recent Mid-States Classic Tournament after injuring his arm in the Marty Loy Invitational the week before Christmas.

Bauer, who is currently ranked number 3 at 145 among D-2 wrestlers, didn't show any rust, pinning Caden Nicolaus in 3:18. With the win, he improves to 4-0 in EC action and 15-2 overall.

Also returning after forfeiting their final matches in the Mid-States were Braden Maertz at 138 and Alex Deheck. Maertz, who has a recurring knee problem, had a tight match against veteran Panther Will Birkholz, edging him 6-5.

"Braden did most of the work," Rhoads said, reporting Birkholz spent most of the match countering Maertz's moves except for the one time when he "hit a real nice duck under and caught him (Maertz)." It came near the end and closed the point gap.

Deheck came back from a sprained wrist to post a 3-1 win over Josh Koll at 152.

"He (Deheck) got a take-down right away. That's kind of his mantra," Rhoads said, reporting there were lots of opportunities for other points, so "It was a nail-biter."

Another close match came at 112 where Kewaskum High School senior Adam Bruss edged Devin Gore 1-0 on an escape in the third period.

"That was kind of a gift," Rhoads said, reporting

Gore took up position in the third period and intentionally let Bruss go. "Both have similar styles so it is hard for either one of them to score," the coach said, reporting there were "some iffy situations" where Bruss nearly had takedowns.

Kewaskum dominated 10 of the first 11 matches, winning six by pin and one by forfeit. Plymouth won the final three, all by pin.

Kewaskum currently has five wrestlers in the Wisconsin Wrestling D-2 rankings, including Bruss (17-9), 12th at 113; Maertz (18-6), 12th at 138; Bauer; Deheck (7-3), 4th at 152; and Goeman (19-7), 11th at 160.

About the Campbellsport match, Rhoads said, "It's going to be close. We're watching how things unfold," Rhoad said, referring to a couple of Cougars who may be injured, prompting lineup switches.

"Our lineups line up almost perfectly," Rhoads said, indicating both have strength at the lighter weights and newer wrestlers at the upper weights.

The Indians will head to the Craig Belcher Invitational at Milwaukee Hamilton High School on Saturday, Jan. 13. KEWASKUM 52, PLYMOUTH 21

106 Nathaniel Droese pinned Jack Miller, 1:09; 112 Adam Bruss dec. Devin Gore, 1-0; 120 Mason Pomeroy pinned Andrew Steinhardt, 4:29; 126 Isaiah George pinned Cameron Fohr, 0:40; 132 Alex Butler won by forfeit; 138 Braden Maertz dec. Will Birkholz, 6-5; 145 Eric Bauer pinned Caden Nicolaus, 3:18; 152 Alex Deheck dec. ## KHS Coach Notes His Team's Defense Needs A Boost has made.

What has been hurting Kewaskum is its defense. "The common denominator in these games is defense. We are struggling to stop anyone," Thull said, adding the offensive efforts have been as good as last year.

"We're going to keep working on the defensive end," Thull said. "The girls are working hard."

MAYVILLE 28-30—58 KEWASKUM 10-27—37

Kewaskum: McKenzie Schneider 9, Star Below-Kopf 2, Leah Theusch 1, Max Paulowske 12, Kennedy Adams 13. 3-point goals—Schneider (3) Paulowske (2). FTs—6x14. Fouls—14.

In their only East Central Conference game last week, the Indians were defeated by host Berlin, 63-45.

"We fought hard," KHS coach Russ Thull said. "We were down by just six with six minutes to go."

"Kennedy (Adams) had a strong game," Thull said, reporting Adams scored a dozen points and contributed five offensive rebounds and one steal.

Maxine Paulowske led the team with 14 points with a pair of three-pointers in seven attempts.

Thull also praised the efforts of sophomore Kaitlyn Leitheiser. "She had four assists, six rebounds and two steals. She is doing all the things that don't show up in the scorebook," the coach said, optimistic her scoring stats will go up in the future.

With the loss, the Indians are 0-5 in conference action.

Berlin was led by Emily Klawitter, who poured in 22 points.

In the first game of their "triple header" week, the Lady Indians were right on Horicon's heels at intermission but struggled after the break and wound up losing a 69-47 decision.

"Max (Paulowske) went out with an injury two minutes in (the second half)," Kewaskum High School coach Russell Thull said. "She hurt her back" and did not return to the game.

"We battled, kept it close the whole way," Thull said.

Paulowske and McKenzie Schneider ended up in double figures, with 13 and 12 points, respectively. "I believe we had six threes in the game. Kenzie had three in the first half," Thull said.

Overall, the Indians did not shoot well, hitting just 17x58 attempts for 29 percent.

HORICON 32-37—69 KEWASKUM 30-17—47

Kewaskum: McKenzie Schneider 12, Anna Surprenant 1, Megan Winkler 2, Ashley Trapp 5, Sara Below-Kopf 4, Kaitlyn Leitheiser 2, Paulowske 13, Kennedy Adams 8. 3point goals—Schneider (3), Trapp, Paulowske (3). FTs—6x19. Fouls—17.

Senior Season Finally Underway For Former KHS Wrestler

By Judy Harlow

After recovering from knee surgery, Kewaskum's Brett Scoles is back wrestling for UW-Parkside and returning just in time to help the Rangers make a strong run at placing high in the upcoming NCAA D-2 championships.

"This weekend we saw a lot of encouraging things from him, and it was great having him back," first-year Parkside coach Corey VanGroll said via e-mail about Scoles' recent effort in the Maverick Duels hosted by MSU-Mankato on January 6.

"Brett tore his meniscus this past summer and had surgery in August. He was medically cleared to start wrestling again mid-December. Therefore, it is still early for him and work in progress," VanGroll said.

Parkside won all three dual meets on the day, starting with a 32-12 victory over Southwest Minnesota State, then defeated MSU-Mankato 28-12 before ending the day with a convincing 36-10 decision over Central Missouri.

Leading the Rangers was Nick Becker, former Hartford Union High wrestler, who is currently ranked No. 1 among 174-pounders and finished the day with three victories, including a 16-0 technical fall, a 13-8 decision and another 16-0 tech fall.

Scoles, competing at 165 pounds, started out very well, outscoring Kegen Fingalsen of Southwest Minnesota State 7-4 and then posting an 11-3 major decision over MSU's Logan Saltou. In his third match, Scoles was beaten by 13-5 major decision by Jesse Reser of Central Missouri.

"Brett has a few things to clean up technically and tactically on the mat, and I know this will come in the next few weeks," VanGroll said. "Brett is a huge piece to our team's success. Not only because he is capable of winning a national title, but because of the energy and passion he brings into the practice room every day and also the way he competes."

VanGroll is definitely happy to have Scoles on his team. "It is a true honor to work with Brett on a daily basis, and I can't describe how good of a person he is," VanGroll said. "If I could fill my entire team with Brett Scoles' type of guys, that would be ideal."

Scoles will graduate in spring with a psychology degree and an applied health science degree. His future plans include attending a physical therapy school, according to VanGroll.

UW-Parkside is currently an undefeated 5-0 in dual meets and the winner of the prestigious Midwest Classic held December 16-17 in Indianapolis, Ind. By virtue of this victory, the Rangers are ranked No.2 among NCAA D-2 schools.

The Rangers will host Findlay University (Ohio) and Tiffin University (Ohio) this coming Saturday, Jan. 13, for the annual Ranger Duels at the Petretti Field House in Somers, which is near Kenosha.

The NCAA Super Regionals will be held February 23-24 at Findlay, Ohio, and the D-2 Nationals will be held March 9-10 in Cedar Rapids, Ohio.

Wildcats Host Parents' Night

The Holy Trinity School yearly hosts parents' night, where they acknowledge and celebrate the parents' help and support of their basketball program. The Wildcats hosted the Washington County Home School teams.

The first game of the night was the fifth and sixth grade girls.

"We were able to play great defense early with a plethora of steals and made layups to get an early lead that we never relinquished," explained coach Joel Fleischman.

Izzy Butler and Emily Burmeister were the thieves that continually stole and drove for layups leading to a 34-10 victory.

The older Wildcat girls followed their younger counterparts with a 36-11 victory. The Butschlick family cast a large shadow over the game.

Dad and Uncle Tim Butschlick coach his daughter Jenna, and his nieces Hailey and Kate. Grandpa Tony Butschlick, who coached for 18 years for the Wildcats, cheers them on. The "Butschlick clan" makes up a good portion of the crowd for these games. All the Butschlicks played well this game, chipping in with many scores and rebounds.

Holy Trinity's fifth and sixth grade boys won a nail biter against a much improved Washington County Home School team. With an all around team effort especially on defense the boys held off a late comeback to win 31-27. Josh Koenig had a stand out game offensively. Showing a little more aggressiveness driving to the basket opened up opportunities for his solid outside shooting. David Zillmer and Bailey Ralph again handled the point guard duties and continued to demonstrate excellent ball handling skills to execute the Wildcats offense. Holding their composure during the final few minutes proved to be the determining factor in the outcome of the game to improve their league record to two wins and one loss.

At 8:30 p.m., tip off the seventh and eighth grade boys contest was a back and forth battle the entire way.

"We didn't have our usual intensity tonight, which bothered me. Hands down on defense. Too much dribbling around. Just not in sync," commented head coach Chad Cook.

Thankfully, the Wildcats had just enough great plays to offset the lackluster performance. Max Melzer finished well and had some key layups by attacking the weak side of the defense. Luke Bauman chipped in seven points for the wildcats. The Wildcats held on to victory by making a threepointer late to seal the deal, 34-27.

Izzy Butler (43) sets up the ball for the Wildcats offense.

Statewide Business Plan Contest Open

At a time when more veterans are expressing interest in becoming entrepreneurs, the 15th Annual Wisconsin Governor's Business Plan Contest is accepting entries online for the 2018 competition until 5 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 31.

In 2016, for example, a Madison-area startup formed by a U.S. Air Force veteran placed first in the Information Technology category of the statewide contest. Nick Mastronardi, a former Air Force officer, launched POLCO as a civic engagement platform.

The contest is designed to encourage entrepreneurs in the startup stage of tech-based businesses in Wisconsin. The contest links up-and-coming entrepreneurs with a statewide network of community resources, expert advice and mentoring, management talent and possible sources of capital.

Two workshops are scheduled for people who would like to learn more about entering:

January 11 at the Tech Council Innovation Network meeting at the U W - M i l w a u k e e Accelerator in Wauwatosa.

January 17 at the Industrious co-working space, 25 W. Main St., Madison.

Over time, the contest has led to valuable public and media exposure for the top business plans and spurred economic growth in Wisconsin. Finalists will share in more than $100,000 in cash and in-kind prizes.

For their initial entries, contestants will submit a 250-word (about 2,000 characters) idea abstract online at www.govsbizplancontest.com. That's where contestants will also find business plan templates and other information, such as the Entrepreneurs' Toolkit. The toolkit provides business startup information and assistance, networking contacts and technical resources.

Contestants who advance to subsequent contest rounds will expand their plan in stages. More than 70 judges drawn from the finance, sales, marketing, research and technology sectors across Wisconsin will score the entries and provide feedback on submissions.

To get started, contestants must create a free account at www.govsbizplancontest.com. All entries are submitted through the website. Contestants use their account to gain access to mentors throughout the process, as well as review the judges' comments and feedback.

Since its inception in 2004, more than 3,500 entries have been received and about $2.2 million in cash and services (such as legal, accounting, office space and marketing) have been awarded. Contest categories are Advanced Manufacturing, Business Services, Information Technology and Life Sciences.

Wisconsin residents 18 years old and older are eligible, as are teams from Wisconsin-based businesses and organizations. Businesses or teams from outside the state are also eligible to compete if they demonstrate intent to base their business in Wisconsin. Entrepreneurs may also enter multiple ideas, though each idea must be separate and distinct. Companies or individuals that have raised less than $25,000 in private equity for their plans in a current form may enter.

As with past contests, the 2018 competition will take place in stages:

In Phase 1, which is open until 5 p.m. Wednesday, January 31, the contest will accept idea abstracts on the website. Entries should be roughly 250 words (or no more than 2,000 characters, including spaces) and will be graded by the pool of BPC judges. The top 50 idea abstracts will advance to Phase 2.

In Phase 2, which runs from February 19 to 5 p.m. March 12, the top 50 idea abstracts will submit an executive summary. The top 20 executive summaries will advance to Phase 3. A mentored "boot camp" for contestants will be held in early March.

In Phase 3, which runs from April 2 to 5 p.m. April 23, the top 20 executive summaries will prepare full business plans. Judges will review the plans and pick three finalists from each of the four categories to advance to the final presentation round. Mentored practice sessions will be offered to the top 12 in late May.

The top 12, or "Diligent Dozen," will square off with oral presentations during the Wisconsin Entrepreneurs' Conference on June 5 at Union South in Madison.

Past finalists have launched companies that have raised more than $200 million in angel, venture, grants and venture debt over time – all while creating jobs and economic value for Wisconsin. The contest's major sponsors include the Wisconsin Economic Development Corp. It is produced by the Wisconsin Technology Council.

To enter, become a judge or learn about sponsorship opportunities, visit www.govsbizplancontest.com.

Bingen was one of about 25 military personnel located on the island. They worked around the clock, 24 hours a day, intercepting messages from North Korea.

"We never found out what the messages said, but it was all by Morse Code. We sat in this little hut, with a typewriter," Bingen said.

Two or three of them worked at a time in the hut. The messages all came over in five-letter increments, and Bingen and his crew relayed the information to headquarters in Seoul.

On the island, the U.S. military had four generators to produce electricity. A plane arrived on the island once a week with mail and perishable supplies for the soldiers. A ship brought other supplies monthly.

A well was located in the center of the village located on the island, where the residents went to collect drinking water. Water tank trucks brought water to Bingen and the other soldiers.

Before And After Service

Bingen and his friend, Jules Dreher, enlisted in the service in January 1955. They had heard they would have a better chance of choosing what they wanted to do in the service than if they were drafted.

"Jules and I went in on the buddy system," Bingen explained.

They went to basic training, but unfortunately, Dreher came down with pneumonia and was held back in the hospital.

"That was the end of our buddy system," Bingen said. "Jules ended up going to Germany as an MP, so he got the best deal."

After basic training, Bingen went to Fort Devens, Massachusetts, and was trained in deciphering Morse Code. After graduating from that program, he flew to Seattle and then boarded a ship to Japan.

It took 19 days for the ship to get to Japan from Seattle. Coming back, the ship took 21 days to travel from Japan to Seattle.

Bingen arrived in Japan around Thanksgiving Day, and he remembers eating a Thanksgiving dinner in Yokohama, Japan.

While there, Bingen did some Christmas shopping, and bought a set of chinaware for his sister, Mary Bingen, who was engaged to be married the spring after Bingen returned home.

However, Mary Bingen never got the china. On his return to the United States, Bingen planned to visit his mother, who had moved to California. But the Red Cross workers came on board the ship and told Bingen he should go to Kewaskum instead.

He was informed that on March 17, 1957, his sister Mary had been killed in a car accident by a drunk driver.

Mary was one of three Kewaskum residents killed in a head-on crash in Dotyville while on their way home from a basketball game. A woman from Dotyville was also killed in the crash.

After the funeral, Bingen finished his service at Fort Devens and then at Camp Wolters, Texas.

Following his service, Bingen returned to Kewaskum and worked for 10 years at Gehls.

He then became a driver's license examiner and worked at the DMV office in West Bend for 27 years before retiring 22 years ago.

Bingen and his wife, Sue, have three children: Daniel Bingen, Timothy Bingen and Deborah Nevsimal.

Dennis Bingen visits the Korean War Memorial in Washington, D.C., during the Stars and Stripes Honor Flight.

Supporting Farmers During Challenging Times

With the incredibly challenging financial and emotional situation plaguing the majority of farm families in our communities, UW-Extension Manitowoc, Fond du Lac, Sheboygan, Ozaukee, and Washington Counties will be hosting a one-half day meeting to help agri-business professionals and agency staff feel more comfortable and confident working with families in distress.

The agenda includes: "Green Flags, Red Flags: How To Analyze a Farm's Finances," Frank Friar, WI DATCP Farm Center Economic Specialist.

"The Fog of Stress: Decision-Making During Tough Times," John Shutske, UW-Extension Specialist: Safety Engineering & Agricultural Health.

"Nutrition Strategies with the 2017 Crop & Financial Challenges," John Goeser, UW-Madison Department of Dairy Science Adjunct

Professor and Rock River Lab, Inc. Director of Nutritional Research & Innovation.

There is no fee for the meeting; however, registration is required by January 22 online at <http://goo.gl/adqSrt> or by contacting UW-Extension Manitowoc, Fond du Lac, or Washington County offices to ensure materials and light refreshments.

For more information on the meeting or to register, please visit <https://fyi.uwex.edu/dairy/events/supporting-farmers-during-challenging-times/>, or contact one of the following county agriculture extension agents: Manitowoc County Dairy Agent Scott Gunderson at 920-683-4175; Fond du Lac County Dairy & Livestock Agent Tina Kohlman at 920-929-3180; or Washington/Ozaukee County Agriculture Agent Steph Plaster at 262-335-4482.

Local Students Win Patriot's Pen Writing Competition

In November 2017, students from Kewaskum Middle School's (KMS) Social Studies classes participated in the Patriot's Pen writing competition sponsored by the VFW of Washington County. This year, the theme was "America's Gift to My Generation." Students' writing discussed topics around freedom, work opportunities and education.

On December 22, Veteran and VFW Commander John Kleinmaus kicked off KMS' holiday assembly by presenting five students with awards. Though the selection is never easy, Kleinmaus shared that four of the 10 winning essays came from KMS. He graciously presented four cash awards to eighth grade students Lisa Bolek and Melody Humphreys, and to seventh grade students Braeden Scoles and Josey Curtes. Sixth grader Audrey Grensavitch received an honorable mention and a gift card.

This is the second year that KMS students participated in the annual Patriot's Pen essay contest. Kleinmaus urged students to continue their participation into their high school years, when they can earn substantial scholarship dollars.

Calf Insight: Are Automated Feeders In Your Future?

Automated calf feeders have grown in popularity in recent years due to numerous benefits such as labor flexibility, and improved ability to deliver a higher plan of nutrition.

UW-Extension Fond du Lac and UW-Extension Washington and Ozaukee Counties will each be hosting a one-half day "Calf Insight: Are Automated Feeders in Your Future?" Calf Management Meeting on Thursday, Jan. 25. The morning session (10 a.m. to noon) will be held at U W - E x t e n s i o n Washington County, 333 E. Washington Street, West Bend. The afternoon session (1- 3 p.m.) will be held at UW-Extension Fond du Lac County, 400

University Drive, Fond du Lac.

Featured presenters will focus on various aspects of utilizing automated calf feeding systems within one's calf management program. Speakers and topics include: UW-Extension Dairy Facilities Specialist Dave Kammel on "Design & Management of Group Pen Calf Barns"; Milk Products, Inc. National Accounts Manager Skip Olson, DMV will share "Automated Calf Feeders: Considerations & Expectations"; and UW-Extension Dairy Agents Tina Kohlman & Steph Plaster on "Cost of Raising Calves: Automated Systems versus Traditional Feeding."

The program is open to any individuals with interest regarding automated calf feeders. There is no fee for the program; however, pre-registration by January 23 is strongly encouraged to ensure materials and light refreshments. Refreshments will be provided by Hubbard Feeds.

Detailed agenda and registration information for the Calf Insight meeting can be found on the UW-Extension Dairy Team Calendar at <https://fyi.uwex.edu/dairy/events/calf-insight-are-automated-calf-feeders-in-your-future/>. Online registration for either session can be completed at <http://goo.gl/E385rB>.

Ideas For Parents: Easy Things To Help Your Child Succeed

Why do some kids grow up with ease while others struggle? Search Institute Researchers identified specific, practical things that can have a tremendous and lasting positive impact on youth. Rather than focusing on the problems, this research concentrates on the Developmental Assets – the positive things (such as parent support and commitment to learning) that help young people thrive. The assets are values, experiences and positive qualities that young people need to help them make wise decisions and choose positive lifestyles. The more assets they have, the better.

Creative Activities

Youth are more likely to grow up healthy when they spend three or more hours per week in music, theater, or other arts.

The smallest bursts of artistic expression are important ways we communicate our uniqueness. By bringing more art and music into our homes, we can help to develop another side of our children's personalities.

Helpful Hints

- Play music when your child is around. Expose them to different sounds such as light jazz, classical, rock, hip-hop, and country

- Emphasize that the importance of participating in the arts is enjoyment, not necessarily becoming the greatest performer.

- Display your child's artwork at home or work.

“We Discovered Something Today”

— Seventy Years Ago, A UW–Madison Grad Helped To Invent The Transistor And Changed The World Forever

Seventy years ago, on December 16, 1947, a University of Wisconsin-Madison graduate helped to make possible almost every electronic device that you use — from your computer to your cell phone.

John Bardeen was a Madison native and the son of the University of Wisconsin's first medical-school dean. He was a soft-spoken man who skipped so many grades that he became an eighth-grader at age nine. Bardeen graduated from the University of Wisconsin in Madison with a bachelor of science degree in 1928 and a master's degree in 1929.

On December 16, 1947, Bardeen — along with Walter Brattain and William Shockley — made the first working transistor. Their invention, developed while they were working at Bell Telephone Laboratories, revolutionized modern-day electronics. Before transistors, fragile and bulky vacuum tubes made amplification possible in televisions and radios. With the much smaller size and greatly increased mobility of transistors, a new era in electronics had dawned: the invention of the transistor became the basis for our digital age.

In 1956, the trio shared the Nobel Prize for Physics. At the Nobel ceremony, the king of Sweden asked Bardeen why all of his children weren't present, and Bardeen assured him that they would be next time. He made good on that promise in 1972, when he accepted his second Nobel in physics, becoming the only individual to earn two prizes in the same field. The 1972 prize honored Bardeen, Leon Cooper, and John Robert Schrieffer for their explanation of superconductivity. Calling it the BCS theory for the initials of their last names, the trio explained that certain metals can conduct electrical current when cooled to temperatures close to absolute zero.

The theory led to practical uses such as magnetic resonance imaging for medical diagnoses. Bardeen considered it to be his greatest achievement, but he didn't begrudge the teamwork it required. "Science is a collaborative effort," he once said.

In 1990, Bardeen appeared in LIFE Magazine's list of the 100 Most Influential Americans of the Century. Still, because he "differed radically from the popular stereotype of 'genius' and was uninterested in appearing other than ordinary," wrote historian Lillian Hoddeson, "the public and the media often overlooked him."

Bardeen took that same unassuming nature home each evening. When he returned after work on the day the transistor was born in December 1947, he murmured to his wife, "We discovered something today." They had indeed.

Bardeen and his amazing discoveries are highlighted in the Alumni Way "Discovery" exhibit in Wisconsin Alumni Association's Alumni Park, which opened on October 6, 2017. The park is located between Memorial Union and the Red Gym on the UW–Madison campus and is open year-round.

Tips To Recognize And Prevent Ice Dams On Structures

With recent severe and freezing weather, Paul Davis Restoration and Remodeling of Southeast and Fox Valley, a leading provider of fire and water damage clean up and restoration services, is providing consumers with the following tips for recognizing and removing ice dams from homes and businesses.

Ice dams can form when a roof that is warmer than the eaves causes snow on the roof to melt, the water to flow down to the colder eaves, and re-freeze. As this cycle repeats, ice can back up or "dam" under shingles, allowing water to accumulate behind it.

The water can leak through the roof and cause serious damage to walls, insulation, ceilings, and painted surfaces inside the home or office that may only get worse over time. However, there are some relatively simple steps one can take to prevent ice dams:

Ice dams are caused by the interaction of many factors:

- Ice and snow melt at 35°F. Liquid water freezes at 32°F. Minor temperature differentials can lead to major problems.

- Layered roof systems such as shakes or shingles do not keep out standing water. They require a continuous, uninterrupted slope to shed water.

- Attics are warmer than the outside air because heat leaks from the heated portion of the structure up into the attic. Heavy snow cover effectively insulates the attic from cold outside air, allowing the temperature to rise even higher.

When an ice dam forms and as layer after layer of meltwater refreezes, the ice dam can grow with liquid water pooling behind it under the snow. Soon, this water is deep enough to seep between shingles and into the attic or wall cavities. Ice dams are sometimes one to two feet thick. Secondary ice dams often form around vents and skylights.

One of the best methods of protection against ice dams is a properly designed "cold roof." Minimizing heat gain in the attic while maximizing attic ventilation with outside air is one of the best ways to reach this goal. Attics can gain heat in two main ways with conduction due to inadequate insulation; and convection caused by warm air leaking through gaps, usually around plumbing, wiring, ducts and vents. Try to reduce the conductive heat gain by increasing the insulation levels in the structure.

Convective heat gain can be minimized by meticulously caulking and sealing even the smallest penetrations through the ceiling, as well as carefully installing gaskets around attic entrances. Although some heat gain is inevitable, when the attic ventilation is adequate, the temperature will not reach levels that cause extensive melting. A cold roof is easy to achieve with properly designed new construction. Reaching the same goal in older homes may be both difficult and expensive.

Paul Davis recommends the following tips for preventing ice dams:

- Proper insulation is the key — attic spaces need to be kept cool so that the roof stays cold. Ideally, attics should have 12-inches of insulation.

- Seal areas where heat can escape into the attic. Likely spots include areas around chimneys, around electrical components such as junction boxes and ceiling fans, plumbing vents, and any other passages through the attic floor.

- Ventilation — Less important than insulation but still a factor in preventing ice dams, proper ventilation will allow any heat that does enter the attic to exit the space and be replaced by cold outside air.

Unfortunately, obvious damage may be just the tip of the iceberg. The worst effects of ice dams are often hidden, caused by moisture trapped inside walls or floors. This damage is seldom discovered until months after all the snow has melted. The property owner may seldom make the connection between the damage found and their ice dam of the previous winter. Besides the cost of restoration, hidden damage can make future ice damming more severe, waste energy, and even create serious health risks for building occupants.

If an ice dam has already caused damage to the home or commercial building, it is critical to have the entire structure inspected by a restoration professional who is certified from The Institute of Inspection, Cleaning, Restoration Certification (IICRC).
