School Board Attends Workshop

– Board Discusses Accounts Payable

By Anne Trautner

The Kewaskum School Board took part in a workshop on how to become a high-functioning board as part of its regular meeting on Monday, Nov. 11.

“What I’m here to talk about tonight is what are the behaviors of high-performing boards. I’m here to give you an opportunity as a board to reflect on where you want to go, and where you are heading,” said Ted Neitzke, executive director of Cooperative Educational Service Agency 6 (CESA 6), who led the workshop.

During the workshop, board members talked about the importance of listening to one another and respecting differing opinions in order to be a high-functioning board.

Neitzke told the board that high-functioning boards focus on “what” they want for the students and the community, while the school administration focuses on “how” to achieve those things.

The workshop occurred as an agenda item during the regular school board meeting. After Neitzke left the building, the board moved on to the next agenda item and voted 7-0 to approve $1,303,025.93 for payroll.

Long-Time Friends Take Flight Of A Lifetime

By Andrea Hansen Abler

Two area friends took the flight of a lifetime together last month. David Feucht and Dale Miske went on a Stars and Stripes Honor Flight together.

In addition to this being an Honor Flight, what made this flight extra special was that it included a group of former Green Bay Packer football players. This was a special flight that was planned by the Stars and Stripes Honor Flight program in cooperation with the Green Bay Packers, the Milwaukee Brewers and the Milwaukee Bucks.

Three different planes filled with deserving Veterans took off with representatives from each of these three sports organizations on board. It was a great way to spend a day in Washington, D.C.

Long-time friends David and Dale flew out of Green Bay instead of the usual Milwaukee. This change in location was due to their special guests.

“We didn’t know we were going to fly out of Green Bay until two weeks before,” David said.

Whether members of one of these sports teams was on the flight or not, Dale and David wanted to take this trip. They only had one request when trying to get approved for an Honor Flight.

“We wanted to fly together,” David said.

The two have been friends for more than 44 years. They had worked together all that time.

David lives near Lake Bernice and is a West Bend High School graduate. Dale lives near Beechwood and is a Kewaskum High School graduate.

They made sure to fill out and submit their application for the Honor Flight at the same time, around May. Both called and emailed the organization to request going on the flight together.

Before they knew it, they were told they would be going on their Honor Flight on Saturday, Oct. 19. This was the 55th Honor Flight through Stars & Stripes.

“We were not expecting it this fast,” said Laurie Anderson, Dale’s daughter and guardian on the flight.

Three Semi-Tractor Trailers Crash

On November 7 at 11:57 a.m., the Washington County Sheriff's Office received multiple 911 reports of an accident with injuries on Interstate 41 north of County Highway K in the Town of Addison. The initial reports were that three semi-tractor trailers were involved in the crash and that one driver was trapped.

Washington County Sheriff deputies were dispatched, along with the St. Lawrence and Alenton Fire Departments.

Upon arrival, it was found that traffic was moving slowly in the area because of highway construction. There was a southbound tractor-trailer that was stopped in traffic and a straight truck stopped behind that truck. A southbound tractor-trailer was quickly approaching the stopped traffic. The operator of the straight truck saw the southbound truck heading for him and attempted to pull onto the shoulder to avoid a collision. He was unable to get out of the way completely and was struck from behind which caused the straight truck to roll over onto its side in the outside median. The southbound truck then rear-ended the trailer of the second semi. The operator of the southbound truck that failed to stop was trapped inside the cab and needed to be extricated by the fire department. He was transported to Hartford Aurora Hospital. The operator of the front semi was also transported to Hartford. Neither injury is believed to be life-threatening. The operator of the straight truck received minor injuries and was released from the scene.

The Hartford Fire Department Hazardous Material Team, as well as the Wisconsin DNR, responded to assist with the cleanup effort because of fluids leaking from the trucks. The Wisconsin State Patrol supplied a significant amount of resources to Washington County to handle traffic control along the detour route.

The crash remains under investigation by the Washington County Sheriff's Office. It is unknown at this time why the driver failed to stop however alcohol and drugs do not appear to be a factor. The Washington County Sheriff's Office is asking people to please slow down in construction zones and allow a safe distance between them and the vehicle in front of them so they can react safely. The Sheriff's Office takes these types of violations seriously and will take enforcement action.

Personal Injury Crash

The Washington County Sheriff's Office investigated a personal injury accident that resulted in the arrest of a 31-year old Village of Richfield man for a fifth offense drunk driving. The incident occurred on Plat Rd north of County Highway Trunk Q after a passerby called the Sheriff's Office at 4:46 a.m. Sunday morning. The driver, and only occupant, sustained facial injuries after his SUV left the roadway and struck a tree. Upon the deputy's arrival, the driver told the officer he "crashed" and was "drunk."

The driver failed a series of field sobriety tests and was arrested for drunk driving. He was placed in custody at the Washington County Jail on that charge as well as a Probation & Parole hold. A preliminary breath test showed him over two and a half times the legal limit.

Community Notification

Gregory D. Grassold

The Washington County Sheriff's Office is releasing the following information pursuant to WI Statute 301.46(2m) which authorizes law enforcement agencies to inform the public of a sex offender's release when, in the discretion of the agency, the release of information will enhance public safety, awareness and protection. The individual who appears on this notification has been convicted of a sex offense. Further, his criminal history places him in a classification level which reflects a low potential to re-offend.

Gregory D. Grassold was released from prison on November 5. After his release, he is residing at 1725 County Highway NN in the Township of Jackson. In 1999, Grassold was convicted of Child Enticement and First Degree Sexual Assault of a Child. Grassold will be on probation until Nov 12, 2024 and will be monitored closely by WI-DOC Division of Community. Grassold will have numerous rules and restrictions to follow including wearing a live tracking GPS unit. The GPS monitoring unit will have exclusion zones setup alerting WI-DOC if there is a violation of the exclusion zones rules.

This sex offender has served the prison sentence imposed on him by the courts. He is NOT wanted by law enforcement at this time. This notification is not intended to increase fear, but rather it is our belief that an informed public is a safer public.

Sex offenders have always lived in our communities; but it was not until the Sex Offender Registration and Community Notification Law was enacted that law enforcement was able to share this information with the community. More information can be located at <https://apps-doc.wi.gov/public/faq>.

Sheriff Gets Special Deputy For The Day

Back in June 2017, the Washington County Sheriff's Office fulfilled a request to attend a birthday party for Eli. Eli was born with a hypo-plastic heart. One side of his heart was severely underdeveloped and he needed a transplant at only 5 weeks of age. Since then, he has been dealing with various medical issues, but is now stronger than ever.

During his visit with the Sheriff's Office in 2017, Eli was officially deputized as a junior deputy sheriff, which included a custom made uniform, badge and duty belt.

The Sheriff's Office reached back out to Eli's family recently and inquired if Eli could be activated for duty once again. The sheriff needed assistance with the Hartford Christmas Parade. Eli was more than willing to help. On Saturday, Nov. 9, he copiled as a law enforcement representative for the parade.

Sheriff Martin Schulteis commented, "We are thankful to have Eli as part of the Washington County law enforcement family and thrilled he is doing so well."

The sheriff also hinted, "Look for him to be back on active duty at the West Bend Christmas Parade."

School Board Attends Workshop

– Board Discusses Accounts Payable

Then the board voted 4-3 to approve $942,395.23 in Accounts Payable. Board members Doug Gonring, Jim Leister and Timothy Ramthun voted against the measure.

"If you don't vote yes, what is the problem? What is the issue with the accounts payable?" Board President Mark Sette asked after the vote was taken with no explanation. "As we talked about tonight, we are trying to work together, what is the reason?"

Gonring said he voted no due to a conflict of interest because the West Bend Elevator received funds in the report. Sette told Gonring that he should recuse himself from voting.

Leister said that he felt that the board had not sufficiently discussed the finance items.

"But you had an opportunity to ask questions, and you did, and those questions were answered. You said they were answered to your satisfaction, and then you voted no to accounts payable. It doesn't make sense," Sette said to Leister.

"I wasn't happy with the process. There are more things I would like to ask, and it's going on two hours as it is. You don't want to spend a lot of time on finances, so I voted no," Leister explained.

Ramthun agreed with Leister and added, "I said a couple meetings ago, this process doesn't work for me. This process of having to go through emails to ask questions...there is no discussion."

Leister said that board members currently receive the accounts payable report on the Friday before a meeting, and that does not leave enough time to thoroughly look through the report.

"The desire I have is to have this body, when its governance authority is in play, when we are in session, is to talk about our questions and our concerns with respect, and not put anybody down for asking a question. Like, for example, on page 34, the $1,774.84 for transportation. What are we doing in Hamilton? Who went to Hamilton and why? It might seem like a trivial question, but it is one of the 10 questions I had on this report," Ramthun said.

"Those are the types of questions I would like to ask and discuss so we have transparency and everything is above the table, but I feel like it's against the current and it's a waste of time because there has already been impressions of preference not to have this approach," Ramthun added.

"There is a system in place, and you can have those questions answered," Sette explained.

The current procedure is for board members to email questions prior to a board meeting. Ramthun, Leister and Gonring have all said they would prefer having a separate finance committee meeting to discuss the items on the accounts payable report.

"I think the point that was made tonight that continues to be missed is what is above the line and what is below the line. So if you want to spend a whole bunch of time asking questions about things that are the 'how' instead of the 'what,' I don't know that we are ever going to move forward and be a high functioning district. Even if the questions are answered, if the answer is still going to be no, then why even take the time to waste taxpayer money to answer the questions?" Superintendent James Smasal said. "It's not about transparency. We have answered every question that was ever asked the best way that we can."

Smasal said that he had sent out an email that afternoon with answers to all of the questions, but everyone had not read the email.

"All the conflict and controversy comes down to one thing. It really does. It's not fun coming to these meetings. Nobody smiles. Nobody laughs. It's hostile. It's not going to change. If you want to spend your time doing the how, if you want to micromanage and you want to spend your time in the how, then you're going to spend your time in the how. And you're not going to be a high-functioning district. And certainly your leadership team is not going to feel supported. This trust and verified is not necessarily accurate, because if you trusted, you wouldn't ask questions about the 'how.'" Smasal said.

Smasal said that the board is supposed to be focused on the "what," such as attracting and retaining quality staff, while the administration is supposed to be focused on the "how," which would be how the district is going to go about doing that.

"It's not that we're disinterested in answering questions," Smasal said. "But don't sit here and try to fool your leadership team that you trust us. Because you don't."

Board Vice President Troy Hanson said that the questions all centered around finances.

"For those of you sitting out in the audience, your tax bill. Where does the money go? What are we getting for our money? You are getting a lot. You are paying less than you were before," Hanson said. "So I don't get the squawking. I don't get the lack of appreciation for what's been done."

Hanson said that his property taxes are down, so he is perplexed about why people are concerned about the finances.

"At this point, this is political, this is fear mongering. Telling people they're taking your money. No we're not,"

Hanson said.

The board was in agreement that some great things have happened in the district, with the new building facilities and athletic fields.

"I resound some of the comments about the results that have passed in the district, and I think they are phenomenal, but those results come with some trust. I think there needs to be an understanding that we pay administrators in this district, many of them sitting in the room here, probably approximately $1 million a year, to make these decisions. There has to be some amount of trust that they are doing the right things," Sette said.

Smasal suggested that moving forward, the board could form a committee when the district puts a preliminary budget together.

"I think would be a great place for folks that want to have more interest and input into the budgeting process, that would be the place to go," Smasal said.

Board Workshop

During the Board Workshop on Monday night, the board members participated in an exercise and said words that explained why they were there as a board.

Some of the words they voiced were: discussion, vision, goals, students, policy, teachers, staff, taxpayers, debate, budget, betterment, district as a whole, results and education.

From there, Neitzke developed this as a possible mission statement: "We will as a board discuss and review policy to support our students and staff, so that we represent the vision of the community and the taxpayers."

Neitzke told the board that they play an important role in the community.

"When you sit on a board, you are elected.

You are giving your time, you are demonstrating the highest level of citizenship in a democracy by representing your community in its local government," he said.

The entire board agreed that their role is to represent the 120 kindergartners in the school district. The board members also agreed that each decision should be based on whether it would improve the school district for each of those kindergartners.

"You represent those kindergartners. The 120 5-year-olds depending on you should feel like 500 pounds of bricks in a backpack to you," Neitzke told the board.

Other School Matters

In other school board action, the board approved an out-of-state trip for a senior class trip to Six Flags as a graduation incentive.

In the Superintendent's Report, Smasal told the board that teachers had gone on Educator Externship Tours to find what things are available for their students.

Smasal also said that the Farmington Elementary School PTO would like to contribute funds toward a new sound system for the school. The sound system will cost $20,000-$25,000, and the PTO would like to donate $10,000. Depending on how much more the PTO raises, it could cost the district $10,000-$15,000 for the sound system, according to Smasal.

Smasal also reported that the district is contracting temporary custodial help to cover four employees who are currently off.

In addition, Smasal reported that Douglas Franzen, facilities director, and Tiffany Wilson, technology director, will represent the district as they present at a conference in Florida in January.

Early deadline for the November 28th paper is Friday, Nov. 22 at 12 p.m.
Office will be closed on Nov. 28 & 29.

We wish you a very Happy Thanksgiving!

The Kewaskum Community Pool moved closer to becoming a reality when the school board decided on final building plans and revised costs at the meeting held November 10. At an informational meeting held last month, 65 voters favored the original $390,000 plan, 39 persons favored the $325,000 alternate, and 25 supported no pool at all. However, the consensus of opinion of the board members was to strive for the lowest cost plan.

Youth Collect 1,260 Pounds Of Food For Pantry

By Anne Trautner

Hunter Sabish and his friends created a haunted house to entertain visitors, and they collected 1,260 pounds of food for the Kewaskum Community Pantry in the process.

Hunter, who is a seventh-grader at Campbellsport Middle School, started working on the haunted house in August. Then he worked with a group of friends to create a spooktacular haunted house.

Known as the SkareKrew, Hunter and his friends created a maze of rooms inside the Sabish Sales shed, located on Highway 28. The haunted house was open on select days in October. The community-minded youth charged five non-perishable food items as admission.

This was the second year that the SkareKrew created a haunted house. Hunter and his friends were trying to beat last year's collection of 612 pounds for the food pantry.

They more than doubled that goal. Plus they created an even scarier, more elaborate haunted house.

"These kids should be proud of themselves. They worked very hard those weekends, sometimes not coming out for three hours straight. It is hard work being scary," said Hunter's grandmother, Luan Sabish.

People came from as far away as Green Bay to go through the haunted house.

Hunter set up a Facebook page for the haunted house. The page reached 100 likes, and the SkareKrew received lots of feedback. Some of the comments were:

- "Well set up. Lots of time and thought put into it and actually got thrown off a few times. Pretty cool stuff."
- "Very well done by kids for a great cause!"
- "Thanks for having us. It was awesome. Every year it gets better and better. It is a must-see."
- "We had a great time! They do an awesome job!"
- "These amazing kids put on a first class haunted house food drive."
- "It was very well done. The kids did an amazing job and who could beat the price! (five cans of non-perishables) Definitely will come again."

The SkareKrew is listening to the feedback and has already started planning for next year. The group of young haunted house designers is in the process of expanding to bigger and better ideas for next year.

SkareKrew members include: Hunter Sabish, Kaleb Eggers, Izak Pintor, Kaden Petersen, Addy Paswaters and Clara Klimczak.

Area youth volunteered their time to create a Haunted House for the community. In the process, they collected 1,260 pounds of food for the Kewaskum Community Pantry. A total of 301 people came through the haunted house. Members of the "SkareKrew" include: (from left) Izak Pintor, Hunter Sabish, Kaleb Eggers, Addy Paswaters and Clara Klimczak; and (not pictured) Kaden Petersen.

Hunter Sabish and Kaleb Eggers weigh their collection of non-perishable food items at a local farm. A total of 1,260 pounds were collected.

The scale at a local farm measured the weight of a van before and after it dropped off food at the Kewaskum Community Pantry. In total, the SkareKrew collected 1,260 pounds of food to donate.

New Fane Sportsman's Club Donates To Food Pantry

The New Fane Sportsman Club donated $500 to the Kewaskum Community Food Pantry after raising the funds at its 29th annual New Fane Sportsman's Club Wild Game Feed dinner.

Every year, the club donates profits from the dinner back to the community and to groups aligned with the club's interest in hunting, fishing, trapping and trap shooting.

Over the years, the club has donated to the Kewaskum D.A.R.E. program, Kewaskum Wings Over Wisconsin, the Turkey Federation, Kewaskum Police Department and the Kewaskum Fire Department. The club also sponsors the Kewaskum High School trap shooting team, hunters safety classes, the Learn to Hunt program and a 4-H trap team. The club also supports the Wisconsin Trapper Association as it teaches youth proper trapping techniques. The New Fane Sportsman's Club pays for three hunting magazine subscriptions at both the Kewaskum Public Library and the Campbellsport Library.

Anyone who has a deer, bear or elk that they would like to donate for the upcoming Wild Game Feed Dinner can drop the carcass off at Kewaskum Frozen Foods or Loehr's Meat Services and tell them it is for the New Fane Sportsman's Club. The Wild Game Feed Dinner, is held the second Thursday in March each year.

Long-Time Friends Take Flight Of A Lifetime

Veterans who were part of the Stars & Stripes Honor Flight that flew out of the Green Bay airport on Saturday, Oct. 19, pose together in front of the US Marine Corps War Memorial, which depicts the iconic scene from Iwo Jima from 1945.

Dale Miske and David Feucht were part of the Saturday, Oct. 19, Stars & Stripes Honor Flight that flew out of Green Bay. Normally all of the Stars & Stripes Honor Flights are based in Milwaukee but this flight included former members of the Green Bay Packers as guardians for the day.

All three stated that the trip was a wonderful experience and the Stars & Stripes Honor Flight organization is a "well-oiled machine." "It was smooth sailing," Laurie said. "There is nothing that we could complain about!" The three, along with David's son, Doug Feucht, had to be in Green Bay by 4:15 that morning to begin their day.

"We ran into a husband and wife from Campbellsport (Troy Schill and his wife) at the airport," David said. "They were there volunteering. I can't believe all the volunteers they have."

They were very excited once they boarded the plane. Not only were they flying with some Packer greats to D.C., but also spending the day together.

"We even sat next to each other on the plane," David said.

Along on their Honor Flight were Packer legends LeRoy Butler, Jared Bush, Jared Abbrederis, Bill Schroeder and Johnnie Gray. Feucht joked that he and Butler had some fun on the plane.

According to David, no one was really acknowledging the players so David said "Hi" to Butler as he started to walk past. That prompted Butler to joke with David and say, "I haven't seen you since high school."

"All of them were so personable," Laurie said. "They were honored to be on the flight with us."

As they landed in Baltimore, 85 Veterans and 85 guardians, the Veterans were greeted by hundreds at the airport. They were then escorted to three buses for their plane load of people.

Both were surprised by the special treatment they received all along the way. Their buses were escorted to D.C. by police cars that would clear the highway for them.

The first stop was Arlington National Cemetery and then they were off to some of the monuments, like the US Marine Corps War Memorial (Iwo Jima statue), Washington Monument, World War II Memorial and the Vietnam Wall.

"They kept you moving the entire day," Laurie said.

"The memorials and Arlington were all very moving," David said.

At the Vietnam Wall, both came with the names of friends, classmates and colleagues who were lost during the war. They looked for and found most of the names, getting photos while they were pointing at the names.

"I found three names, I was looking for six," David said.

Both Dale and David served during the Vietnam War. Dale was in Vietnam and David was stateside with the Air Force fixing planes for the soldiers in Vietnam.

"I ran jet engines to see what was wrong with them," David said.

Dale spent 14 months in Vietnam with the Army. His daughter Laurie, who was on the Honor Flight with him, was born while Dale was over there. He said it took him a while before he even knew if she was a boy or a girl, just that his wife had the baby.

Long-Time Friends Take Flight Of A Lifetime

Dale Miske and David Feucht sit by one of the many monuments in Washington, D.C. during the Stars & Stripes Honor Flight that flew out of Green Bay on Saturday, Oct. 19. The two have been friends for more than 40 years and requested that they be allowed to go on their Honor Flight together.

"I met a guy from high school when I got there," Dale said.

Dale was drafted and spent a total of about two years in the Army, with 14 of those months in Vietnam. "You had no choice, you had to serve," he said.

David explained that he had enlisted so that he could pick which branch of the service he would serve. He spent four years, two months and seven days in the Air Force. He only went to Vietnam once for a day to get a plane that needed to be fixed.

Both stated that even though there were a lot of mixed feelings about the war itself at that time, they did not receive any backlash for being in the service. Dale also didn't get a huge welcome when he got home. As he said, you just came home when you were done.

"Nobody complained to me too bad about the war," he said.

This Honor Flight included 80 Vietnam Veterans and only five from the Korean War. With that many seeing their memorial and getting such a warm send-off and welcome on their flight, this helped make up for some of the animosity of the war time.

"It was a day of healing for them," Laurie said. "The best part as a guardian was listening to the Veterans talk."

They all had some great stories and were not afraid to share them with each other or the guardians on the flight.

On the flight home, the Veterans are always surprised with a "Mail Call." They receive letters from their family and friends and many people who they don't even know. It is always emotional. David showed off a bracelet he has been wearing since he got off the flight. It was made by a student somewhere in Wisconsin who just wanted to say thank you to the Veterans for their service.

"I've been wearing both of them (bracelet and another Honor Flight trinket) ever since," David said. "I said this ain't going to happen (crying) as I wiped a tear from my eye."

They also received some items from all three of the sports organizations that participated in this special flight. The cost of the three Honor Flights that day were paid by the Packers, Brewers and Bucks organizations.

When they finally returned to Green Bay, there were more surprises for the Veterans. Like usual, thousands of people packed the airport to welcome the group back. They had an Honor Guard, bag pipes and lots of Scout troops there to welcome them.

Of course, this included family members too. Dale's family, which is very large, had t-shirts made especially for his Honor Flight. The shirts had Dale's military photo, his name, the Army logo and the phrase "Our Hero, Our Veteran" on them.

"Our family scattered from the front to the back of the airport so he had someone all the way through," Laurie said.

Dale was surprised by his family. He had told them that if they were busy, they did not have to come to the airport. He was only expecting his son who had flown with him to be there. But, to Dale's surprise, when he turned a corner there was a whole crew of his family members standing and cheering for him. It made him very emotional again.

"I was totally blown away," David said. "I thought going the line I was okay until..."

All said they would recommend this to anyone who has the chance to go on an Honor Flight. It was well organized and very meaningful for all of them.

"It was a perfect day," Laurie said.

David agreed, "It was a privilege to travel with these three. Every day is a bonus."

Dale Miske points to the name of a classmate on the Vietnam Memorial in Washington, D.C., during the Saturday, Oct. 19, Stars & Stripes Honor Flight that flew out of Green Bay. Miske and his friend David Feucht both found the names of former classmates who were killed during the Vietnam War on the Wall. It was a somber part of their trip.

Fond du Lac Soccer Association Names 2019-2020 Board Of Directors

The Fond du Lac Soccer Association (FDLSA) recently elected its 2019-2020 Board of Directors.

Newly appointed members include Don Armour, Kali Boardman, and Jess Ruch, each of whom have played soccer since they were young and have coached players at varied levels for many years. Armour served as assistant coach to the U17 girls Select League team this season, and has previously coached competitive teams in Kenosha, and Rehoboth, MA.

Boardman is a soccer coach at Fond du Lac High School, and has coached FDLSA Select and Recreational League teams many years. Ruch is the varsity girls' soccer head coach at Fond du Lac High School, and has also spent five years as a Select League coach for the club.

Re-elected members include Chad Collett (president), Dan Gerred, Andy Gill (secretary), Dr. Bryan Henslin, Luke Newman (vice president), and Justin Szatkowski. This team will join the current board members with one year of service remaining: Josh Rieder, Diane Riley, Jillian Saiberlich, and Bob Van Kirk (treasurer). In total, FDLSA is led by 13 board members.

All board members will fulfill a two-year term, participate in at least one committee, and support the Club's overall objective of advancing youth development through sports. The FDLSA Board of Directors meets monthly and holds elections annually.

The Fond du Lac Soccer Association (FDLSA) is a 501(c)(3) non-profit organization that offers soccer programs to more than 1,700 players. Founded in 1974, FDLSA now includes approximately 120 recreational, 14 competitive league, and 12 adult league teams, as well as an academy program to develop players transitioning from recreational to select teams.

The Club maintains a 30+ field, 53-acre complex without additional support from government or school resources.

Hall Of Fame Plans Put On Hold

By Judy Harlow

Tom Theusch, a leading member of the group that hoped to have a Hall of Fame at Kewaskum High School, announced recently he and Glenn Eichstedt are abandoning the endeavor.

"I thought from the beginning we would at least get reasonable community support without having to try to push people to get involved," Theusch said in an e-mail. When that did not happen, and because Eichstedt, former KHS athlete and coach also behind the initiative, is moving soon, Theusch decided the time was not right for the project.

Theusch, who graduated from KHS in 1972 and currently lives in Slinger, thanked other members of the committee, including Jason Pi-ittmann, the athletic director at KHS, Casey Scheel, the golf coach at the school, this reporter, and the administrators who participated in meetings on the proposal.

Nearby schools, including Campbellsport, Slinger, Hartford and West Bend East and West, all have established Hall of Fame programs.

Riekkoff Leads All-EC Football Picks For The Indians

By Judy Harlow

Trenton Riekkoff led a parade of seven Kewaskum High players who were selected to the 2019 first or second units of the all-East Central Conference football team.

Riekkoff, a 6-foot, 1-inch, 260-pound junior lineman, was picked by the EC coaches as a first-team offensive guard and also as a first-team defensive lineman. Kewaskum, which finished at 4-3, had two others, senior tight end Reagan Dricken and outside linebacker Sam Lemler, voted to the first team.

KHS coach Steve Tennes said the EC conference champion, Plymouth, dominated the first team, with senior quarterback Cole Booth named as the Offensive MVP of the league and senior safety Aiden Reilly as the Defensive MVP.

Tennes was pleased to have Riekkoff honored. "He followed up a stellar sophomore campaign," Tennes said, adding Riekkoff "has cemented himself as one of the best linemen in the conference."

Tennes went on that Riekkoff's defensive statistics (26 tackles, including six for losses and two quarterback sacks) are "not going to jump out at you, but as a nose guard, many times he was double-teamed ... He allowed the guys behind him to make the plays."

Dricken, who was unable to play as a junior after being injured the first week of practice, not only returned but switched positions to tight end and became an offensive weapon for the Indians.

"He had a knack for making big plays," Tennes said about Dricken, a 5-8, 180-pound performer, who caught 12 passes for 273 yards and five touchdowns for the Indians and helped the running game with his good blocking.

The other first-team pick was Lemler, a 5-11, 215-pound senior, who finished 11th in the EC in tackles with 77, including 14 tackles for losses, 4.5 sacks and one interception.

"Truth be told, he was probably playing out of position. He should have been a safety," Tennes said. "His willingness to be a hitter was evident. He had a nice year."

Named to the second unit were junior offensive tackle Ben Leister, senior wide receiver Dylan Maechtle, senior defensive back Trevor Degnitz and junior defensive end Sam Amerling.

"One of the things I am excited about is the whole left side of the (offensive) line is back," Tennes said, referring to Riekkoff at left guard and Leister, who is 6-4 and is 245 pounds, at left tackle.

Maechtle finished third in EC receiving with 26 passes for 448 yards and four touchdowns. "We had two very talented receivers in Dylan and Josh (Bocher) ...

Dylan had a few more receptions," Tennes said about the two, with Maechtle hauling in 26 to passes to 24 for Bocher, while the two had the same number of TDs.

Degnitz only had 15 tackles but was a magnet in the defensive backfield, picking off five passes for the Indians. "He had a knack as a cover corner," the coach said.

"It took a little while to get Sam (Amerling) going. He had to sit out the first three games, but once he got going, he became our most consistent defensive lineman," Tennes said. "I believe Sam's best football is still ahead of him."

Amerling came up with 34 tackles, including six for losses and two sacks.

Two other Indians, junior linebacker Kannon Muckerheide and senior linebacker Jay Hornung, received honorable mention in the balloting. Muckerheide, a second-team pick a year ago, finished fourth in the conference in tackles with 93, including six for losses and .5 of a sack. A year ago, he came up with 58 tackles.

About Muckerheide not being picked higher, Tennes said, "We were hoping for more, but there were a lot of good linebackers in the conference this year."

The KHS football team is holding its annual banquet on Sunday, January 26.

KHS, KMS Use New Entrances For Winter Athletic Events

Starting with the first home events of the winter season at Kewaskum High School (wrestling, girls basketball, boys basketball), the school will use the "EVENTS" entrance on the north/middle school side of the building for teams and spectators. This is marked as door number 18.

JV2 basketball games will be played in the middle school gym and admission will not be charged.

The JV and varsity games, and meets for basketball and wrestling, will continue to be held in the Kewaskum High School field house, just up the stairs/ramp from the Kewaskum Middle School gym.

This new entry procedure allows for a better flow for traffic around the school campus. Events/meetings using the high school theater, cafeteria, library and fitness center will continue to use the south/high school doors (Door 1 or Door 5) for their access to the building.

Visiting team buses may park in the drop-off/pick-up zone in front of the Kewaskum Middle School cafeteria.

This same procedure will be used for all home Kewaskum Middle School events: basketball, wrestling and volleyball.

Cheerleading Is Making A Comeback At Kewaskum High School

By Judy Harlow

The last time Kewaskum High had cheerleaders was back five years ago, in 2013. At least that's what is shown in back issues of the school's yearbook, the Chieftain.

The rise in the number of girls sports and probably had a lot to do with the decline in cheerleading since 2000. But one of the newer English teachers at the school, Janice Peterson, believes there is still an important function cheerleaders have — promoting school spirit.

After securing the backing of the school's administration and doing a big of recruiting, Peterson is currently working with a group of 13 young women who are working toward cheering for the three winter sports, including wrestling and boys and girls basketball. They will make their debut in late November.

If the uniforms arrive on schedule, "Our first official game will be the girls basketball game on November 21 (vs. Two Rivers)," Peterson said recently, indicating the idea got going when some of the students asked why the school doesn't have cheerleading. Junior Kaylee McCarty remarked to Peterson that she should restart it.

Peterson is being assisted by Allison Donovan, a special education teacher at the school. "She has a dance background," Peterson said, indicating this is a great help to her because cheerleading now includes dance moves and routines.

This year's team will be comprised of the following students: Alejandro Asuncion-Garcia, a foreign exchange student from Spain, Alicia Balboa, Anna Peterson, Faith Kaczmarek, McCarty, Laila Cordes, Lisette Balboa, Lorelei Davis, Mackenzie Niekamp, Maelle Leopardo and Shelby Kraus.

In addition to practicing after school, Peterson said recently she took half of the girls on the team to a clinic held at Kettle Moraine Lutheran. KML is one of the only schools in the East Central Conference to have cheerleaders. The girls got to see how to do the jumps and learned some sideline basketball cheers, Peterson said.

Already the team at the United Way kickoff and the KHS Walk of Fame where the girl cross country runners were given a royal send-off for their appearance in the WIAA State Division 2 Cross Country Meet. "It was pretty cool," Peterson said, giving her reason the return of cheerleading will be good for the school.

While the future may include going to cheerleading competitions, Peterson said, "This year it's all about building a culture ... building a team" and learning basic jumps and cheers.

College Notes

By Judy Harlow

Two former Kewaskum High athletes, Brenden Rice and Morgan Kappler, were honored recently for their play at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee at Washington County this fall.

Rice, a goalie, helped the Wildcats win the Wisconsin Collegiate Conference tournament. Washington County finished with a 4-2 regular-season record and second behind UW-Oshkosh at Fox Cities.

During his senior season at KHS, Rice posted four shutouts and gave up an average of 2.42 goals per game.

Kappler was at the top of her game, lifting the Lady Wildcats to second place in the volleyball race for the WCC-East title. She was one of three players from UW-Milwaukee at Washington County to earn first-team honors.

Because of financial constraints, this is the final year UW-M at Washington County will offer athletics. Currently the school offered co-ed soccer, men's and women's basketball, tennis and golf and women's volleyball.

 Struggles continued for the Northern Michigan University football team on November 9 when the Wildcats were smothered by Saginaw Valley, 56-10. This was the Wildcats' eighth straight loss after opening the year with a 30-9 win over McKendree.

Brady Hanson continued his good season, however, coming up with 14 tackles in the contest, including seven solos and seven team tackles. For the season, Hanson, a junior safety, has 74 tackles (8.2 per game) with three interceptions.

NMU winds up its season Saturday, Nov. 16, with a game at Ashland College in Ashland, Ohio.

 Mikayla Dogs, a 2017 graduate of Kewaskum High School, started for the Milwaukee School of Engineering women's basketball team in its home opener vs. Lake Forrest College of Illinois. The visitors defeated the Raiders 77-44.

Dogs scored 14 points, hitting two of five shots from three-point land, two regular baskets and 4x6 free throws. Dogs, a 5-foot, 8-inch guard, also grabbed five rebounds and had a pair of steals.

 Tony Steger continues to use his speed to help the UW-Oshkosh football team win games. In the Titans' 41-20 win over UW-River Falls on November 9, Steger returned three kickoffs for 60 yards, the longest covering 22 yards. He also caught one pass for 16 yards.

UW-Oshkosh is currently 7-2 overall and 5-1 in the Wisconsin Intercollegiate Athletic Conference, with a big game coming up Saturday, Nov. 16 vs. unbeaten UW-Whitewater at Oshkosh at 6 p.m.

 The North Dakota Fighting Hawks (5-4), currently ranked 22nd among NCAA II football teams, gave No. 3 Weber State a real battle on November 9 before falling 30-26 in a game played in Ogden, Utah.

ND led 27-20 with under three minutes to play when Weber State rallied for 10 points and the win.

Flying Hawk punter Cade Peterson had three punts for a 38-yard average, but his biggest play came in the second quarter when he pulled off a fake punt, running 22 yards for a first down. That led to a field goal and put the Fighting Hawks within three points of WSU, 20-17 at intermission.

High School Football Playoffs

— A Community Happening

By Karissa Niehoff and David Anderson

Many people would agree that their years in high school were some of the best years of their lives — particularly those individuals who were members of a sports team or participated in other activities such as the marching band or debate team.

In many cases, team members become life-long friends. Reunion parties are held from time to time as teammates return to remember the fun — more so than the outcome of games or events — they had participating in high school activities. Quite often, reunions for sports teams are staged during the highlight of each sports season — the state tournaments.

And as the calendar turns to November, there is nothing like the excitement of high school sports and tournaments in cities across Wisconsin and throughout the nation every weekend.

While each team will be trying to advance to the state championship, the outcome of the games is only a part of the experience for those individuals in attendance.

Why? Because the people in the stands at high school tournaments are moms and dads, grandparents, aunts and uncles, sisters and brothers, neighbors down the street, fellow students, and longtime residents of the community. People in the stands know the players on the field, court, course or pool. Win or lose, their support and love is always there.

There is no tradition in sports with the history of high school sports. Although there are more options for entertainment on weekends than ever before, there is still nothing to match high school tournaments in the fall. With all the people attending events of the 511 member high schools in Wisconsin, it's easily one of the top fan bases in the state.

As you attend high school tournament games this year in Wisconsin, remember that the student-athletes, coaches and game officials deserve your utmost support, encouragement and respect. While advancing in the playoffs is the desire of each team, the ultimate objective of high school sports and activities is to have fun and enjoy these special years.

We urge you to continue to support the high school teams in your community!

Public Hearing On Lake Michigan Lake Whitefish Rule To Be Held

The Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources will hold a public hearing on a permanent rule regulating bottom trawling for lake whitefish on Lake Michigan. The hearing will take place on Wednesday, Nov. 20, at 6 p.m. at the Lakeshore Technical College (Lake Michigan room) in Cleveland.

Written comments on the rule and its potential impacts will be accepted through November 23 to the address on the hearing notice. For hearing information and additional details on the proposed permanent rules visit the DNR website.

Bottom trawling for lake whitefish has occurred since 2015 in an area of Lake Michigan near Two Rivers as part of a cooperative study between the department, Sea Grant and a commercial fishing company. Under this proposed rule, commercial fishers could elect to bottom trawl in this area as an alternative to using nets to fill their preexisting lake whitefish quotas.

"The trawl study was created, designed and implemented to determine the feasibility of using a bottom trawl to harvest lake whitefish in this specific area of Lake Michigan," said DNR Great Lakes fisheries supervisor Brad Eggold. "Statistically sound data and science from the study provided the basis for the development of the rule, which provides for the sustainability of lake whitefish harvests using bottom trawls and protects important game species. This rule will create consistent regulations for all commercial fishers that choose to bottom trawl while minimizing incidental catch of important game fish such as lake trout."

This rule would standardize gear, monitoring and reporting requirements for trawling for lake whitefish. Limits on the area open to trawling, number of licenses, trawl dimensions, trawling season, amount of time per trawl drag and the overall whitefish quota will prevent overharvest of lake whitefish and minimize incidental catch.

To learn more about Lake Michigan commercial fishing, visit the DNR website and search "Lake Michigan fisheries."

DNR Natural Heritage Conservation biologists found a record number of black-necked stilts in Wisconsin in 2019.

Serendipitous Stilts: Historic Number Of Nesting Southern Birds Documented At Horicon Marsh

Once labeled an “accidental” visitor to Wisconsin, a southern breeding bird known for its long, thin, pinkish legs, needle-like black bill and aggressive calls in defense of its chicks, has now moved to Wisconsin in a much bigger way.

Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources conservation biologists surveying Horicon National Wildlife Refuge in 2019 for rare birds serendipitously observed the southern bird, a black-neck stilt, driving away a killdeer. Following the bird, the biologists found another adult stilt and four chicks on a muddy island of decaying cattail stalks.

They looked for similar habitat and subsequently documented 31 nests, the most ever recorded in the state by far.

“We had no intention of documenting breeding black-necked stilts, so it was a nice surprise,” said Sumner Matteson, the DNR Natural Heritage Conservation biologist who, along with contractor Daryl Christensen, found the colonies. “Refuge staff members were delighted by the large number of nesting stilts on their flowages.”

Serendipitous Stilts

Black-necked stilts (Himantopus mexicanus) inhabit shallow wetlands and spend much of the day wading in shallow waters to catch and eat aquatic insects, small crustaceans, amphibians, snails, tiny fish and various flying insects, according to the Cornell University Lab of Ornithology guide, All About Birds.

Black-necked stilts are known primarily as breeding birds in the Gulf Coast states. The legendary ornithologist Sam Robbins described black-necked stilts in his 1991 book, Wisconsin Birdlife, as “accidental” in the state, with the birds recorded in Racine County in 1847, and three others from Horicon Marsh in 1951, Horicon National Wildlife Refuge in 1986 and Columbia County in 1987. None of these birds were breeding here.

In more recent years, black-necked stilts have been expanding their breeding range northward from traditional breeding areas along the Gulf Coast and southwestern U.S. coastal areas, Matteson said.

Nesting stilts began to appear in Wisconsin in 1999, with individual nesting pairs documented by Wisconsin Breeding Bird Atlas volunteers at the Horicon Marsh National Wildlife Refuge, and then in Jefferson County and Dodge County in 2004.

The state’s second Wisconsin Breeding Bird Atlas, initiated in 2015, brought confirmation again of nesting at the Horicon National Wildlife Refuge that year, with as many as 12 birds found that summer.

That number swelled to a remarkable 63 adult birds in 2019.

“We will be interested in coming years to see if the bird continues to breed at Horicon and other sites with similar wetland habitats, and if these occurrences continue to increase as a result of wetland restoration efforts and perhaps the effects of climate change,” Matteson said.

TABK: Follow The Four Rules Of Firearm Safety For A Safe And Successful Hunting Season

Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources recreational safety specialists and the state’s 4,100 volunteer hunter education instructors urge all hunters to keep your safety and the safety of those around you in mind at all times this fall.

Hunters following the four firearm safety rules has resulted in a 94 percent reduction in hunting incidents since 1967.

DNR Hunter Education Administrator Jon King said conservation wardens investigate every hunting incident and provide information to the Hunter Education Program to gain a better understanding of how and why incidents occur. “When we look at all of the incidents, we see at least one of the four firearm safety rules being violated every time,” King said.

Hunters commonly refer to the four firearm safety rules as TABK.

T: Treat every firearm as if it is loaded.

Never assume a firearm is unloaded even if you are watching as it is unloaded. Make it a habit to treat guns like they are always loaded.

When carrying a gun, setting it down, working with it, putting it away, or getting it out, it is always smart to check the action to make sure that it is unloaded and the safety is on. Be sure to plan on unloading your firearm whenever you are not hunting, which will help you reduce the chance of an accidental discharge.

A: Always point your muzzle in a safe direction.

When you are hunting with your family and friends, there are many ways to carry your firearm. No matter which way you carry your gun, make sure it never is pointed at another person, building or vehicle. A safe direction is one where the bullet will do no harm in the event of an unwanted discharge.

B: Be certain of your target, what is in front of it and what is beyond it.

Positive target identification is a must. Do not shoot at movement. Know what is between you and your target and what is beyond your target. You must be sure of your target before deciding to shoot. Remember your bullet can travel a long way after shooting it; make sure you have a safe backstop.

K: Keep your finger outside the trigger guard until you are ready to shoot.

Almost every year, there are incidents of people shooting themselves, friends, houses and vehicles while handling a gun. The main thing to remember when holding a gun is never to put or rest your finger inside the trigger guard until you are ready to shoot.

“It is not enough to remember the rules, you have to practice them while using a firearm all the time,” King said. “Wisconsin hunters have done a great job of practicing the safety rules, and reminders from time to time help keep everyone safer.”

2019 Harvest Data Suggests Another Great Season For Wisconsin Bear Hunters

Preliminary data from the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources shows hunters harvested 3,648 bears during the 2019 Wisconsin black bear season, nearly equal to the 3,680 reported in 2018.

“Wisconsin often leads the nation in black bear harvest, and these preliminary results suggest that our bear population remains healthy and abundant across the prime bear range in the state,” said Scott Walter, DNR Large Carnivore Specialist. “Although we reduced quotas and permit levels to meet population management objectives, generally higher hunter success allowed us to achieve 95 percent of our desired harvest quota and an overall harvest similar to last year. The data provided by hunters through the registration process is critical to both tracking bear population size and establishing harvest quotas that address population management objectives.”

Statewide harvest totals were buoyed by high hunter success in Zone C, which consists of the southern two-thirds of the state, where harvest increased by 36% (from 660 to 898 bears) over 2018, and Zone A (northcentral), where harvest increased by 20 percent.

“While the statewide harvest was strong in these northern zones and allowed us to broadly achieve our harvest objectives, hunter success and total harvest were lower than hoped for in Zones B (northeast) and D (northwest),” Walter

Zone	Preliminary Harvest	% of Quota Harvested	Hunter Success Rate
A	939	104%	56%
B	650	83%	51%
C	898	106%	14%
D	1161	89%	47%

said. “Weather and the availability of natural foods can lead to variation in hunter success, so the beauty of our zone-based approach to management is that we can identify and track local bear population trends. The 2019 data provided by hunters will be instrumental in allowing us to adjust quotas moving forward to ensure that bear populations in all zones are at desired levels.”

Reflecting sustained high interest in Wisconsin’s bear hunting opportunities, more than 120,000 hunters applied for either a harvest permit or preference point for the 2019 season.

“The passion Wisconsin bear hunters have for our bear resource, the hunting experience and for introducing new hunters to the outdoors is wonderful,” Walter said. “Our staff scientists are bringing new population monitoring tools to the table. We have a new bear management plan in place and our bear population remains healthy and is expanding into new areas. Now is certainly an exciting time for the black bear program in Wisconsin.”

Visit the DNR website to learn more about black bear ecology, history and management in Wisconsin and review the recently-approved Wisconsin Black Bear Management Plan, 2019-2029.

Early deadline for the November 28th paper is Friday, Nov. 22 at 12 p.m. Office will be closed on Nov. 28 & 29.

MSA Honors Top Performers At 2019 Banquet

It was a night of reflection, celebration, recognition and a bit of good-natured frivolity as the Midwest Sprint Car Association capped off one of the most successful seasons in its 20-year history at its 2019 awards banquet on Saturday, Nov. 9, at The Columbian in West Bend.

The event drew 166 attendees, who gathered to honor 2019 MSA champion Kurt Davis of South Milwaukee, along with 18 other point fund-eligible drivers, who competed in at least 85 percent of the 25-race 2019 schedule.

MSA president Tim Haddy opened the evening's festivities by providing an overview of the record-setting 2019 MSA campaign.

"It was a really special season for the MSA," Haddy said. "Goals were achieved, first-time winners visited victory lane, exciting racing was a common occurrence and we saw rookies and veterans battling for positions in every race throughout the season. Every night at the track provided excitement. As we look ahead, we are hoping the 2020 season will be just as exciting."

MSA vice president Paul Pokorski served as the master of ceremonies during the program. Pokorski announced that Justin Miller, Paul Pokorski and Sheila Leamer had been re-elected to positions on the MSA Board of Directors and that American Racer Tires had been selected as the MSA's official tire over the next three years.

Pokorski also pointed to the remarkable car counts the MSA enjoyed throughout the 2019 season.

"We had 43 member drivers compete with us in 2019," Pokorski said. "Twelve of those 43 drivers competed in 100 percent of the races and 19 of the 43 took part in 85 percent of the 25 events. The MSA had an average car count of 33 for the 2019 season with a high of 40, which we hit twice during the year. Our rookie contingent was outstanding as well with 10 rookies running regularly with MSA throughout the season."

The 12 drivers competing in all 25 MSA races in 2019 were recognized, including Kurt Davis (first), Travis Arenz (second), Justin Miller (third), Will Gerrits (fourth), Paul Pokorski (fifth), Adam Miller (sixth), Tim Haddy (seventh), Tony Wondra (eighth), Tyler Brabant (ninth), Brandon Berth (10th), Jack Vanderboom (11th) and Blake Wondra (12th).

Also honored were the MSA drivers earning 85 percent participation during the 2019 campaign, including Lance Fassbender (ninth, 23 races), Shane Weninger (10th, 22 races), Danny Schlafer (12th, 23 races), Bill Taylor (18th, 23 races), Tyler Davis (19th, 23 races), Josh Teunissen (21st, 22 races) and Justin Erickson (23rd, 21 races).

Other MSA member drivers in attendance, but not achieving 85 percent participation were Tyler Nelson, Ben Schmidt, Tyler Tischendorf, Doug Wondra and Dick Kaiser.

Pokorski also acknowledged those behind the scenes and all other supporters, who have contributed to the success of the MSA.

"We need to thank all of our sponsors, fans and the tracks that have supported the MSA so well," Pokorski said. "We built up a nice base of seven tracks in 2019 and we are looking to put together a similar schedule in 2020. Tracks are interested in having us back, which is a great thing for us as a racing organization."

"Our supporters have helped to lift our 2019 point fund in excess of $27,000," he said. "That is far more than I can ever remember. In 2016, our point fund-eligible drivers received 17 cents per point and this year they received 40 cents per point, which is a remarkable jump."

Pokorski then acknowledged 2019 MSA series and event sponsors Bank First National, Badger Contracting, First Choice Dental of Sun Prairie, R&H Enterprises, Randy Sippel of Sippel Racing and Spyder Akright of Akright Auto, as well as the Neitzel family for donating the new MSA official and worker shirts.

Pokorski also gave special recognition to the Neitzel Family for donating the new MSA official and worker shirts.

MSA Competition Driver Scott Bader introduced the 2019 series staff, including officials Fred DeBlaey, John Metzger, Sheila Leamer, flagmen Dave Deicher and Steve Crass, announcers George Baumann and Loren Kelly, photographer, videographer and graphic designer Rob Eisentraut of RC Custom Design and race report writer Jeff Pederson of Pedal Down Promotions.

"It is importance not to forget the people that work behind the scene to make the MSA go," Bader said. "Every one of them needs to be thanked for helping to make the MSA what it is today."

Bader closed his comments by stating that the MSA is looking into introducing a safety team that will travel to MSA races.

The first of eight special awards went to Brandon Berth of Cascade, who claimed the 2019 MSA Rookie of the Year Award on the strength of a 13th-place finish in the final point standings with three top-five and six top-10 A-main finishes, as well as two heat race victories in 25 events.

"I always had a dream to race a Sprint Car, which came to fruition this year," Berth said. "Heading into the season, I had a plan to run for the MSA Rookie of the Year Award and we accomplished that goal thanks to my sponsors, crew and supporters, as well as the McMullen team, Scotty Neitzel and Kurt Davis, who helped a lot with assistance and advice along the way. With all of the good guys we had running for the rookie of the year award, it was really tough. It was a great ride and I can't wait to see you all again in 2020."

The Most Improved Driver Award went to Will Gerrits of Waupun, who finished fourth in the MSA point standings, with one A-main victory, six top-five and 19 top-10 A-main finishes to go along with two heat race victories in 25 MSA events.

Travis Arenz of Sheboygan claimed the Best Appearing Car and Crew Award. The Hard Luck Award went to Tyler Brabant of Waupun and the Hard Charger Award went to Justin Miller of Plymouth, who passed a total of 112 cars during the 2019 MSA season.

Lloyd Dykstra of the NAPA Auto Parts of Waupun racing team of Will Gerrits and Tyler Brabant earned the Harry Neitzel MSA Mechanic of the Year Award.

The Jim Wipperfurth MSA Person of the Year Award went to series photographer, videographer and graphic designer Rob Eisentraut of RC Custom Design.

"I started doing this in 1999 as a hobby," Eisentraut said. "I started working at Plymouth in 2004 and MSA followed in 2005. It has been very humbling working with all of you. It is really a family affair. I feel honored that you all have allowed us to become part of your family. I'm already looking forward to 2020."

The final award recipient to take to the podium was 2019 MSA champion Kurt Davis, who initially indicated that he would only be competing on a part-time basis in 2019, while transitioning into semi-retirement from driving.

However, Davis ended up entering all 25 MSA events in 2019, while posting three A-main victories, 15 top-five and 24 top-10 A-main showings and five heat race wins en route to his fifth MSA title by a 40-point margin over runner-up Travis Arenz, who led the MSA series with six A-main victories in 2019.

"The year turned out to be great," Davis said. "In 25 races, we had 24 top-10 finishes, which is outstanding. I know I am kind of showboat, but I couldn't do this without my crew. They are my backbone and support system. It takes people like them to make championship seasons happen."

"I'm not retiring yet," he said. "I just can't do it. I don't think I'll do the whole thing next year though. My kids, Sydney and Tyler, are really involved in this with me, which is really fun. Tyler won his first heat race in a Sprint Car, which was so exciting for me to watch. With all of the tough competition in the MSA, this was definitely the hardest and most stressful season of all of my championship years. It was really tough. Travis [Arenz] is a good shoe. He may have won more battles, but I won the war. He will do it one day either in a 360 or whatever else he might decide to do."

MSA 2019 Banquet trophy and award sponsors included Fred DeBlaey, Traylor Automotive, JH Investments, Goeden Auto Body, Pedal Down Promotions, WES Innovations, Butch and Janet Hafemann, Roth Auto, Racer's Hall, N&S Towing, Kristine Hartmann-

Pleasant View Realty, Miller Family Motorsports (In memory of Kevin Miller), Doug's Auto, Hopf Farms, RC Custom Design, Oak Creek Auto and Cupcake Wonders.

MSA 2019 contingency product sponsors were R&H Racing Equipment, Buege High Performance, HRP, American Racer Tires, Boubin Tire, Waldo Oil, Behling, Super Shox, Vortex Finishing Products, PDTR, Richards of Dunbar, Torsion Bar Rating, Twisted 4 Graphics, Afco Shocks, J&J Powder Coating, Super Clean, Lucky Tiger Men Grooming, M&W Radius Rods, KSE, Karavan Trailers, Maxim Chassis, Winter Products, FK Rod Ends, Bell Wilwood, XXX Chassis, Schroeder/PAC, Competition Specialists, J&J Auto Racing, Saldana, AFco, Pyrotech, DMI, Schoenfield, Hillborn, Lane Automotive, Velocity Wings, MRI-Racing Optics, Allstar Performance, Corey Oil, Ultra-shield, MPD and Race Bumpers.

Tracks on the 2019

MSA schedule included Plymouth Dirt Track in Plymouth, Angell Park Speedway in Sun Prairie, Dodge County Fairgrounds in Beaver Dam, TNT Speedway in Twin Lakes, Outagamie Speedway Powered by EWSC Racing in Seymour, SK Speedway in Unity and Beaver Dam Raceway in Beaver Dam.

The 2019 MSA Board of Directors was comprised of Tim Haddy (president), Paul Pokorski (vice president), Justin Miller, Sheila Leamer (secretary-treasurer), Kurt Davis and Al Schlafer.

During the offseason, the MSA is set to hold a pair of fundraising events. On Saturday, Feb. 1, 2020, the MSA Cornhole fundraiser will take place at Racer's Hall in Plymouth. The annual MSA Bowling Tournament and fundraiser is set for Sunday, March 29, at Dan's Village Bowl in Brownsville.

Public Meeting For Highway 28 And Soo Road Structures Over I-41 Near Lomira

The Wisconsin Department of Transportation (WisDOT) will host a public involvement meeting to discuss an upcoming rehabilitation project for the Highway 28 and Soo Road structures over Interstate 41 south of Lomira in Dodge County. The meeting is scheduled for 5:30 p.m.-7 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 14, at the Lomira Town Hall, N10479 County Road AY, Lomira.

The proposed project involves bridge polymer overlays and minor repairs to the Highway 28 and Soo Road structures over I-41. A polymer overlay is a type of treatment that enhances safety and durability of a bridge deck by waterproofing and increasing traction on the driving surface. The treatment also helps to resist damages incidental to winter maintenance, which optimizes pavement life.

Construction is currently scheduled for 2025, but could occur as early as 2021. Maps showing the proposed improvements will be on display. WisDOT representatives will be available to discuss the project on an individual basis.

Adjacent property owners and the public are encouraged to attend the meeting. If you are unable to attend the meeting or would like more information, please contact WisDOT project manager Jim Buschkopf (608) 884-7133. Written comments can be mailed to Jim Buschkopf at the WisDOT Southwest Region, 111 Interstate Blvd., Edgerton, WI 53534, or sent by email to james.buschkopf@dot.wi.gov.

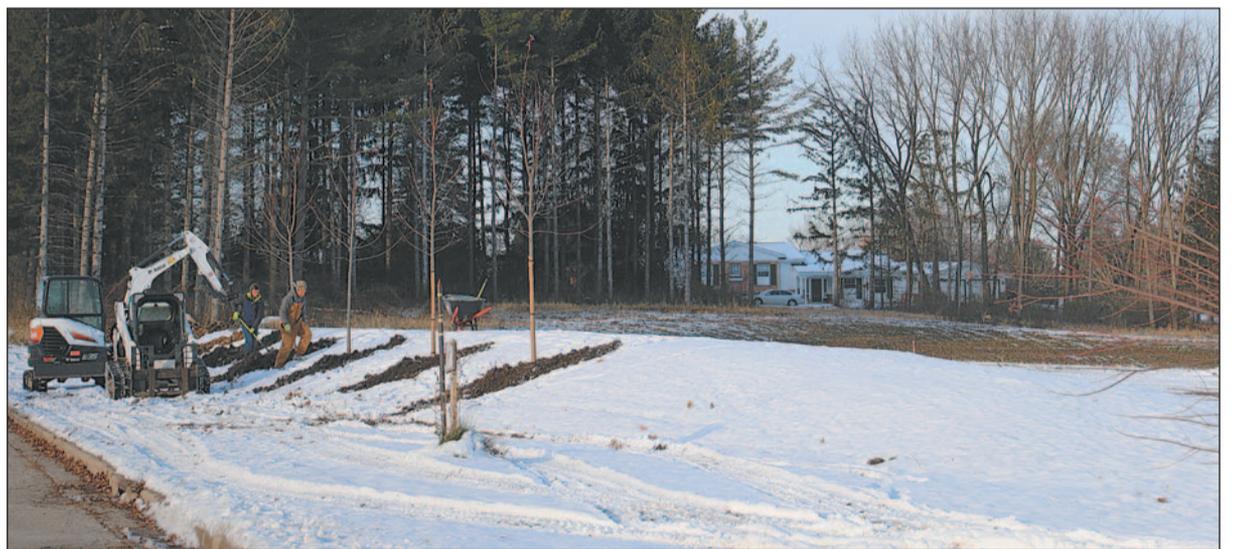

Citizens who are hearing-impaired and require an interpreter at the meeting, you may request one by contacting Jim Buschkopf at least three working days prior to the meeting via the Wisconsin Telecommunications Relay System (dialing 711).

A Column By Kewaskum Librarian Lori Kreis

Book Review – Lock Every Door by Riley Sager

I like to discover new authors and appreciate it when a patron recommends one to me. I purchased the book Lock Every Door for the library based on reviews and recommendations from Library Journal, a scholarly journal I read to help select new material. I was not familiar with the author, Riley Sager but when I read that it was one of the most anticipated books on 2019, I decided to buy it for our collection. Several patrons, upon returning it, mentioned it was a good suspenseful read. It was a popular item as it took me four months to wait for it to become available for checkout without placing a hold.

I like suspenseful novels as do more than half of the population that reads fiction. There are studies that prove that reading a suspenseful literary text activates brain areas related to social cognition and predictive inference. Reading this genre is not only entertaining, it is good for your brain. So, when a rave review comes out about a new thriller, I try to read it while it is still on the new shelf.

Lock Every Door was an exciting read from the first page to the last. It is the story of Jules, a young New Yorker who is down on her luck. Upon returning home early from being laid off she happens upon her boyfriend in a compromising situation with one of his classmates. She moves out immediately and stays with her best friend, Chloe. It is not an ideal living arrangement and Jules knows she needs a job before she can move out on her own.

She finds an ad for an apartment sitter job in the historic Bartholomew building located across from Central Park. It's a dream job for Jules. She gets to stay in a massive, luxury apartment for three months and get paid the exorbitant salary of $4000 a month. There are rules, such as no smoking and keeping the apartment in pristine condition. There are more stringent rules like no mention of where she is living on social media, no visitors ever and she must spend every night in the apartment. Those sounded a little harsh to Jules, but the prospect of living rent free in such a gorgeous building and making twelve thousand dollars was not to be passed up.

Of course, things are not as perfect as they seem. There are other young apartment sitters at the Bartholomew, and some have disappeared. A few of the residents are a bit creepy and Chloe shares the morbid history of the place with Jules. That's just the start of this book with twists and turns keeping you reading until the very end.

Lock Every Door by Riley Sager is a thriller I highly recommend. Thanks go to the patrons that recommended it to me. I hope you come in and Check it Out.

Dale Zingsheim: Directness, The Possum & Martinis

By Karl McCarty

Dale Zingsheim made a significant contribution to our country with his service in the Korean War, which was covered last week. This week is dedicated to the significant contribution Dale made to the Campbellsport area, particularly with his quarter century at The Amber Hotel.

Picking out the best pictures to remember Dale's time at the Amber is difficult, but the images and captions attempt to bring some of the old days back from that Campbellsport staple.

For some, he was a hard read. Those who didn't know him thought he was grumpy; but those who loved him thought he was grumpy. The former missed something significant that the latter appreciated.

Dale Zingsheim

George Jones' "When the Grass Grows over Me" hit #2 in 1968 on the billboard country music charts. And it's hard not to think about the man who sang it when you think of Dale Zingsheim, who is buried in the north east corner of St. Kilian Cemetery and memorialized by a bench. That reflective spot is one in which his wife Lois always reminds is okay to sit on. It's fitting for an individual whose life revolved around offering locals a comfortable, dependable place to relax for a quarter century.

Donna Laudolff worked for Dale and Lois at The Amber from 1988 until it closed in 2005. She recollected that Dale could be growly. "He was very gruff and ruff. But once you got to know him, he was just as nice as could be. And he loved George Jones." Nothing could take away Dale from his admiration for the country music star nicknamed The Possum. Of Dale's particular liking was Jones' song "He Stopped Loving her Today," which hit number 1 on the country charts in 1980. Donna continued: "I mean, awhhh, anytime you'd ride with him he'd have that George Jones tape going. And not little [in volume]—it would be LOUD! Oh, he loved George. He was his hero." Given that this memory is likely from the 1990s, it's important to note that Dale listened to Jones via cassette. "He'd shove it in" the car, said Donna, and that was Dale: "Driving up and down Main Street. Driving out to Long Lake, and he'd have George Jones blaring."

It was Donna who concluded one could not have an article about Dale without mentioning the concert of a lifetime, an experience Dale shared with another loyal employee, Jill (Schrauth) Benson. Jill was really close to Dale, and explained that if you knew Dale and bartended you eventually learned something about George Jones. "I had honestly never heard of him until I started working there, and he (Dale) talked about him all the time. So, I thought for his birthday it'd be really cool to get him tickets and go take him there, and Lois couldn't take off of work, so I took him."

Context is important. Jill was maybe 19. The drive was northbound in the Fox Valley, and the weather wasn't bad on the way up, but things turned awful by the time the concert was over. "I just remember being terrified. My parents never took me out of Campbellsport much with driving." Now she was on the highway, and she was driving Dale and Lois's nice car, the one that had the license plates "AMBER 1."

"We ended up driving home in a blizzard. I remember him constantly commenting on the way home, 'You're doing really good Jill. You can do this,' because the roads were so scary." This was all worth it, as she got to sit next to Dale singing along to George Jones' songs. "It was awesome. It was so neat to see how happy he was and he knew all the words to all the songs. And, it was adorable." This was particularly noteworthy because Dale could have a gruff persona. In truth, Jill said, "he had a huge heart."

Dale had a storied past: two years in Korea, three decades at Gehl Company; he was also a bartender at The Fireside Restaurant in Allenton. He served on the Campbellsport Village Board, and played a leading role for the Campbellsport Lions. But it's a fair assessment that some of his best memories came out of The Amber.

Besides Dale's affinity for Pall Mall non-filter cigarettes, Ken Ketter recalled Dale's taste for Absolute Vodka Martinis with some mushrooms. Dale's quirks stood out to Jill Benson, who bartended at the Amber: "The only time he ever really came in the kitchen was at the end of the night, to get his cottage cheese." Then Dale would put all this weird stuff on it, and he really liked blue cheese. She made him Beefeater Martini's with pickled pearl cocktail onions. "I'm almost 40 now, I feel like I can't remember anything now." Yet with 20 years looking back, "I just remember it was Beefeater Martini. I think I tried it once and went, 'UGHH!' Disgusting."

Mentioning Dale Zingsheim implies his appreciation for loyal customers, and the Pelischeks (Helen K. with her Jerry "Alphonse") are at the top. Here they are at The Amber's bar caught having a good time. It cannot be said for certain if the drinks are Old Fashioneds. But Dale knew how to make them, and taught well.

His bartenders didn't forget a quality lesson. "I still make Old Fashioneds the same way. Darkening the ice with the bitters, then going around the outside with your simple syrup," in what Candi O'Brien termed as "putting the simple syrup in the round." Simple Syrup, just another Amber vocabulary, was an easy mixture of water and sugar to hone the Old Fashioned. Dale or Lois made that too. All the while, it was finished off with a good garnish sometimes homemade, like pickled mushrooms. When pressed why you must darken the ice with the bitters, Candi laughed: "Cause he told me to do it."

Candi worked at The Amber during high school and college, and came back on and off to help. She said what stands out in describing Dale was his professionalism he brought to the job. "Behind the bar he knew his stuff." Dale was a man who knew his regulars, and took good care of his customers. "He taught me how to bartend, and he was a good teacher... And I still think of him when I make a drink."

Dan Doyle's recollections seem to signify the comfort of working with Dale behind the bar: "While Dale often appeared to be ornery or crabby, that wasn't his true nature. When I first met him, I was intimidated. I soon learned his bark was worse than his bite and we became close. Most of my memories are from when I was a bartender. I loved tending bar on Sunday nights during the football season. After closing, Dale and I would enjoy a beverage or two while watching the Sunday night game."

Sue Doyle also observed the best of Dale. "I used to tend bar on Lions Club meeting nights. Dale was proud to be a member of the Lions and give back to the community. The men in the community — Jack Pesch, Tony Schaefer, Jerry Pelischek — would start off each meeting singing the Lions song. They were the leaders in the community having fun while volunteering many hours of their time. I have many fond memories of Dale through the eyes of his work in the Lions Club. From serving his country to serving his community Dale was a generous person."

Dale Zingsheim: Directness, The Possum & Martinis

Sometimes when covering a person, it's easy to get a nice quote from the individual. Jill (Schrauth) Benson knew him well and considered the man a father figure. She was asked to give one quote of Dale's, as many employees could remember one-liners from the old restaurant (especially from Lois), but Jill settled on, "He was mumbled."

Donna Laudolff, who worked nearly two decades with the man, also concluded some people may have only seen the gruffness of him. "He was a character. He was gruff on the exterior, but underneath it he was a sweetie pie. It fits Dale. He was 'rrr-rrruh.' But once you got to know him, he was just the nicest man you could ever ask for."

Ken Ketter added, "He was a misunderstood guy. He was a good guy. He'd do anything for anybody but people just didn't know how to take him sometimes." If you didn't know Dale Zingsheim, you might not realize that all of the above comments were said with appreciation and affection. He was admired "as is." Even his wife Lois said it was a good day if he was growly, but if he was overly warm and friendly something was wrong.

One of Dan Doyle's favorite memories with Dale was when the elder wasn't happy. "My fondest memories are from fishing trips we took together. Dale loved to fish but hated the water. On one trip to Canada, we were fishing the English River system. My boat discovered a 'walleye honey hole.' The only problem was that we needed to go up river through minor rapids.

"Long story short, later that day we talked Dale into going with the group in his boat. I was leading the way and we got into the rapids, they were much rougher but because we were quite a ways into them, we had no choice but to continue.

"Once my boat was through, I turned back and saw Dale's." Dale was in front with his hands clamped to the boat. "I could see and feel his glare. When he pulled next to me I immediately apologized. He looked back at the guy driving his boat and said, '_____ monkey see, _____ monkey do!' I'll let you assume the adjective."

This was Dale Zingsheim to a tee: direct and blunt. Another former Amber employee, Candi (Beisbier) O'Brien said, "Dale was Dale. And he was okay being Dale. And that's good." And the more you hear from others one can appreciate his frankness.

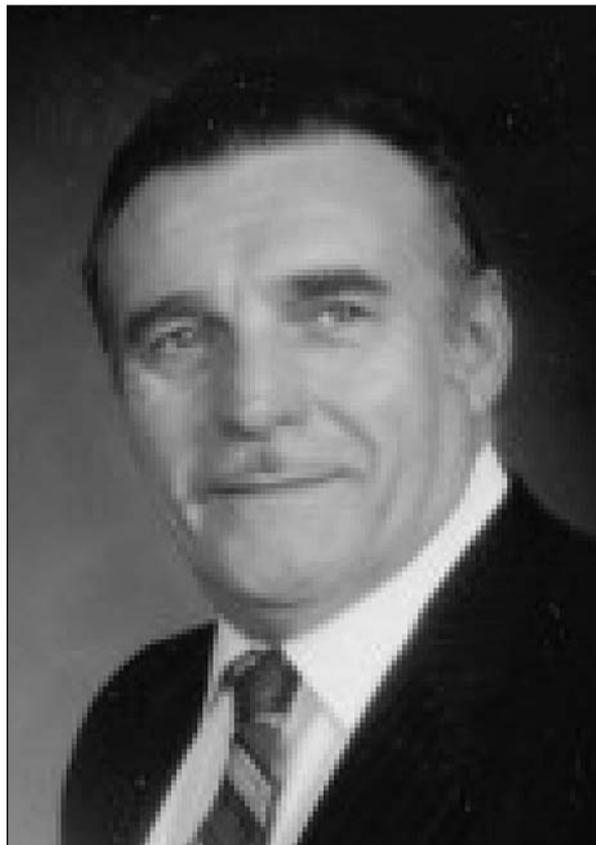

Former Village President Rick Heisler elaborated on this honesty and directness: "One thing I will always remember about Dale when we served together on the village board was you never had to assume or guess what Dale was thinking as he was very upfront and forward in expressing his feelings on issues.

"I liked that as you always knew where he was coming from whether you liked it or not. There was no need for assuming anything. I also liked the fact that he never was afraid to confront an issue. He just stepped forward, addressed the issue or concern and moved forward. He was a very loyal person who you liked to relate to as a friend. He was very genuine no frills. What you saw is what you got."

Pictured here is Dale Zingsheim, the co-owner of The Amber. Candi O'Brien bartended for him on and off for over decade. When asked to describe her old boss, she said what stood out was his presentation. "He always wore cologne and he smelled good... Always clean shaven. Dressed nice. Professional. He was never a slup. He was always well groomed." This appearance extended into how he offered his bar and restaurant.

There was a sense of organization that was important to running a business, it even extended into how he handled the cash flow. "The dollars always had to be the same way," Candi said. It was a rigid routine, but logical from Dale's perspective. And once those habits were taught from one bartender to another, they were hard to break. "I still find that my dollars always have to face the right direction."

Jill Benson agreed; she still handles the dollars the same way 20 years later. Her coworkers now "think I am extremely anal retentive at the vet clinic. Cause I'm always facing them that way too. It drives me crazy." Jill said Dale would also be very meticulous with the tickets used for food orders: "He would take them at the end of the night and make them all neat."

Another memory of Candi's was a flashback to the end of the night. "When business slowed down, Dale would go around and straighten the bar stools. I find myself doing that to this day, making sure my chairs and stools are neat and facing the right direction." In the end, from his grooming to his barroom, "he kept things looking nice and professional. Once you got to know him, you got to know the softer side behind the professional. And if you were lucky, you got a nickname." He called her Candyman; Jill was Jilly-Bean.

Dale and Lois Zingsheim had a great knack for relating to their employees, particularly many of which started their time in high school. Then, they would stay on for their years in college, or came back to help out when they moved on to their next career. Pictured here are some of those young workers: Lisa Bassill on the left, Dale, and Meaghan Pelischek on the right; Kelsey Weiland is in the foreground.

Even at the end of his life, Dale saw the need for younger pals. Ken Ketter was sitting at Dale and Lois's home as Dale was fading, because Lois would ask for someone to sit with Dale when she was gone in case something happened. And Ken and Dale got to talking about friends: "I said, 'you know what Dale, so-and-so is in the hospital, and so-and-so has been sick, and so-and-so has had surgery. And your' sitting here like this. And I said, 'Dang, it's hitting everybody.'" Dale looked at Ken with a grin on his face: "Ketter, did you ever think about finding some younger friends?"

St. Joseph's Hospital Changing Its Name To Froedtert West Bend Hospital

Froedtert & the Medical College of Wisconsin St. Joseph's Hospital, 3200 Pleasant Valley Road, West Bend, will change its name to Froedtert West Bend Hospital effective Monday, Nov. 18.

The names of two other sites within the Froedtert & the Medical College of Wisconsin health network will change, as well:

•St. Joseph's Hospital will be renamed Froedtert West Bend Hospital.

•St. Joseph's Health Center, on the hospital's campus, will be renamed Pleasant Valley Health Center.

•Community Memorial Hospital will be renamed

Froedtert Menomonee Falls Hospital.

•The name of Froedtert Hospital, in Wauwatosa, will not change.

The name changes are being made to more clearly convey that these hospitals are part of the Froedtert & the Medical College of Wisconsin health network, reflecting the network's evolution as an integrated academic health system where care is provided system-wide with an academic approach. All network hospitals continue to expand their clinical capabilities and expertise.

"More strongly aligning the identity of all of our hospitals with the Froedtert name underscores our collaboration and reflects our growth as the only academic health system in the region," said Allen Ericson, president Froedtert & the Medical College of Wisconsin St. Joseph's Hospital. "By emphasizing the community location and the Froedtert name, we want to assure local residents that they have access no matter where they receive their care to the high-quality services associated with the Froedtert & the Medical College of Wisconsin health network."

The hospitals will continue to bear the Froedtert & Medical College of Wisconsin brand, which represents the longstanding relationship between Froedtert Health and the Medical College of Wisconsin. Affiliated hospitals in Kenosha and Pleasant Prairie already reflect new names.

Froedtert & the Medical College of Wisconsin St. Joseph's Hospital, founded in 1930 by local doctors, community leaders and the Sisters of the Divine Savior, is a full-service hospital serving residents of West Bend and Washington County. St. Joseph's Hospital specializes in women's health and birthing services, cancer care, surgical procedures and rehabilitation services.

It's part of the Froedtert & the Medical College of Wisconsin health care network, which includes four community hospital campuses, more than 1,700 physicians and more than 40 health centers and clinics, drawing patients from throughout the Midwest and the nation.

St. Joseph's Hospital in West Bend has been renamed Froedtert West Bend Hospital. The new sign for the facility can be seen above.
