The Visibility Project: Meeting The Needs Of The Homeless

By Mitchell Bradley Keller

—The Visibility Project is a research and reporting initiative by the Kewaskum Statesman, aiming to bring attention to an invisible issue: homeless shelters and programs in this tri-county area that are in need of additional funding, space and attention.

On the heels of a landmark victory for the homeless and advocates of homeless peoples' rights - the United States Supreme Court let stand a ruling that homeless persons have the right to sleep in the streets if a city does not provide enough shelters to house them - it is vital that residents of Dodge, Fond du Lac and Washington counties recognize that homelessness affects hundreds, if not as many as 1,000, in the tri-county area.

While homeless populations are not markedly visible in this readership area - many readers might associate the idea of being homeless with encampments that pop up in larger cities - it does not mean fewer people per percentage of the population struggle with finding shelter and safe housing.

The operative word there is "safe" and, in finding solutions to help the homeless, it is imperative that it is appropriately defined.

For some, homelessness is chronic; these individuals exclusively live outside, in cars, in shelters or by any other means on a given night. Quite simply, they do not own or rent their own shelter, nor do they have access to a safe living space.

9/11 Memorial Makes Strides Into New Year

By Anne Trautner

This week's paper has a continuation of the "Year In Review," looking back at stories that ran in the Kewaskum Statesman over the past year.

One major story that developed over the course of 2019 was the building of the Wisconsin 9/11 Memorial and Education Center in Kewaskum. The story continues to progress, as funds are raised to complete construction of the memorial.

On December 31, a 5K run/walk was held to raise funds for the memorial. Over 100 people turned out for the event, which started and ended at the site of the 9/11 Memorial on Fond du Lac Avenue in Kewaskum.

The run was organized by Pete Rettler, a West Bend resident who has not missed a day of running in 26 years. The run helped to continue that running streak.

But Rettler wanted the run to benefit the Wisconsin 9/11 Memorial as well. Rettler, who is dean of the Moraine Park Technical College's West Bend campus, has been working closely with the Wisconsin 9/11 Memorial Board of Directors. Moraine Park students are helping build the benches and a replica of the Twin Towers. Other students are creating interactive media for the memorial.

"This truly is a milestone event for the memorial" said Gordon Haberman, president of Kewaskum Remembers 9/11, Inc. and father of Andrea Haberman, who was killed in the World Trade Center on September 11, 2001.

New Year's Resolution: Add Smart Power Strips Or Unplug To Save Money

Forgotten Home Devices Cost Consumers Up To $90/Year On The Energy Bill

New studies conducted by Alliant Energy show that residential electric customers could reduce their overall use by up to nine percent by taking a thorough inventory of everything that's plugged in and selectively shutting down unused, always-on devices.

This could save customers up to $90 per household per year, or nearly one month's typical electricity bill.

"Customers today lose track of what's plugged in at home. A fan in the attic, a baby monitor that fell behind the dresser, multiple plugged-in cell phone chargers...these are examples of items our customers found plugged in that didn't need to be," said Jeff Adams, lead customer product manager, Alliant Energy.

"The problem is, if they're plugged in, they are using electricity, even if they are turned off or in stand-by mode. As a group, these items waste a lot of energy," said Adams.

The study estimates that up to one-quarter of daily residential energy use powers devices that are always on. Many of them are not in use.

Personalized information helped customers

Alliant Energy is one of the first utilities in the country to test the Sense® home energy monitoring technology in residents' homes.

The company conducted its research with 100 residential customers who chose to participate in the study and use the Sense monitor in their homes. The Sense monitor attaches to a home's electrical panel.

The Sense monitor's advanced technology identifies individual devices so customers can track what's on and off in the home and how much energy each one uses.

This personalized feedback is delivered directly to a mobile app, which can translate usage into cost. Customers can see in real time where electricity was in use and which changes will save the most money.

By looking at their individual use-patterns, preliminary results show that the 100 households combined may have saved enough energy on an annualized basis to power more than eight average homes for a year.

Solutions that reduce energy use

Reducing energy usage from always-on devices can translate into significant energy savings in the average home. There are several ways to cut back that usage.

1. Use smart power strips for a set-and-forget solution. They detect when a device goes into stand-by mode and cut electricity automatically.

Some smart power bars have two settings within the same strip:

- One for plugs that stay on, so devices like cable or satellite TV boxes retain settings; and

- One for plugs that automatically shut off when devices are not being used, for things like phone chargers or game consoles.

Most Wisconsin electric customers can get a free smart strip as part of an energy efficient product pack through Focus on Energy, which runs energy efficiency programs on the utilities' behalf.

2. Conduct a walk-through to check every outlet in the house. Don't forget the basement, attic and garage.

3. Consider other good opportunities to save money, which, according to the research, include replacing incandescent lights and inefficient or poorly running refrigerators. These efforts could save another five percent on a typical customer's electric bill. Focus on Energy will pick up and recycle old, working refrigerators for eligible customers.

About the research

The Sense Home Energy Monitor pilot research was approved by the Public Service Commission of Wisconsin in 2017.

The results are based on a sample of 100 residential customers who chose to receive the monitor in 2018.

A second group of 100 customers enrolled late in 2019.

The pilot program will open to a third sample of 100 customers in 2020.

Participation is voluntary. The pilot research is conducted and evaluated each year by Cadmus.

The pilot is not currently accepting new enrollments. Depending on the pilot's results, Alliant Energy may open the program to more customers in the future.

A familiar face greeted the Kewaskum Village Board last Monday during the meeting. Kewaskum Police Chief Tom Bishop introduced the department's new lieutenant, Mark Steiner. Steiner has been with the department since 1994. Lieutenant is a new position for Kewaskum; it was approved early in 2014 at the urging of trustee David Spenner, who saw the need for succession in planning in all village departments. Bishop said adding the position was one of his goals after becoming chief, partly due to the situation that followed former Chief Richard Knoebel's retirement without a second in command during April 2011. Steiner was named officer-in-charge but Knoebel was brought back as interim chief for a few months.

Robin Hood is to be performed at 3 and 7 p.m. on Saturday, Jan. 17, at the Kewaskum High School Theatre.

It's not an accident the sports programs at Kewaskum Kiwanis Park are successful and facilities continually updated. Behind that success is a network of enthusiastic volunteers, who are willing to contribute time and efforts to make certain the five youth programs and adult softball and volleyball programs run smoothly. These are the members of the Kewaskum Athletic Association (K.A.A.)

The Kewaskum Junior Women are ready to tackle another year with incoming president Kristy Bishop and her sidekick Renee Wenzlaff as vice president. Louise Martin will remain as the club's steadfast treasurer and Marin Siegert as secretary.

Christmas came twice this past year for six-year-old Mason Braatz, the grandson of Ken and Sandy Bonlender of Kewaskum. The first was Santa's normal visit. Then last Thursday, there was another present for Mason, which was left on the family's front porch and was adorned in green and gold. Mason had wished for his coloring of Packer helmet to be sent to the Packers. Sandy sent a letter with the coloring to the Packers explaining Mason didn't breathe for 19 minutes after birth and ended up with Cerebral Palsy. Sandy hadn't asked for anything, but a box arrived with an Aaron Rodgers doll, a book titled Go pack Go, Packer sunglasses, a Packer hat and a sweatband inside. Aaron Rodgers also signed a card.

The Kewaskum K-12 Spanish department was chosen to join a leading group of 22 Wisconsin schools to provide students a new opportunity to become Global Scholars as part of the Global Education Achievement Certificate program.

A former Kewaskum teacher appeared before Circuit Judge Lawrence Waddick in Washington County Court last Thursday under felony charges alleging that while exercising temporary control of a child, the teacher caused mental harm to that child by conduct which demonstrated substantial disregard for the mental well-being of the child. The teacher, George Allmann, 49 of rural Kewaskum, has been working in the Kewaskum school system for the past 25 years, with the alleged incidents occurring in his classes between 1992 and 1994, according to an eight-page criminal complaint. Also present in court was David Jones, 68 of Arkansas, former Kewaskum Middle School principal, charged with being a person responsible for a child's welfare and while having knowledge that another person has caused mental harm to a child, failed to take action and the failure to act facilitates the mental harm to the child. Each was released on $5,000 personal recognizance bonds. A January 20 hearing was set for 3 p.m. to hear further motions, documents, or arguments. Booking will be required for both defendants.

On October 31, Gov. Tony Evers came to Kewaskum and signed 2019 Wisconsin Act 20 into law, designating the portion of State Highway Gordon Haberman (right) says a few words of appreciation to participants of a 5K that was held on December 31 to raise funds for the Wisconsin 9/11 Memorial.

The goal of the memorial is to recognize all of the victims of 9/11 and to properly recognize all of the American soldiers who have been killed or wounded since that tragic day.

"Going forward it is important that we don't forget. A big mission of the memorial is to be a place of education where people can gather together and learn about the events of 9/11," Haberman told the group of runners before the 5K began on December 31.

Progress On Memorial

A lot of progress has been made on the Wisconsin 9/11 Memorial over the past year. In 2019, the Kewaskum memorial was designated as the official 9/11 memorial for Washington County.

A groundbreaking ceremony was held at the memorial site in June 2019. A 2,000-pound steel beam that was recovered from the World Trade Center was raised in October, becoming

9/11 Memorial Makes Strides Into New Year

Raising Funds For The 9/11 Memorial

"It is really important to remember the events of 9/11," said Kathy Fisher, who is heading up fundraising activities for the memorial. "It is a state-of-the-art memorial."

So far, about $400,000 has been raised to complete the $800,000 memorial, according to Fisher.

"Our goal this year is to raise the remaining $400,000 so we can have a grand opening on September 11, 2020," Fisher said.

Every little bit will help memorial organizers reach that goal. While final tallies are not yet in for the recent 5K run/walk, the event so far has raised nearly $1,500, as well as the sale of several bricks for the memorial. American Construction Services, Jeff's Spirits on Main and Jumbo's in West Bend helped sponsor the 5K event that Retter organized.

"Pete [Retter] and Moraine Park Technical College are an integral part of the construction of the memorial as we go forward. As well as being involved in elements of construction, Moraine Park is hosting, in February, an educational lecture series on the various facets of 9/11, as well as the meaning and importance of this Wisconsin memorial," Haberman said.

This Is The Reason We Celebrate!

John 1:1 "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God."

John 1:14 "And the Word became flesh and dwelt among us and we beheld His glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth." (NKJV)

Brian Simmons, translator of the Passion Bible, translates 'the Word' as the Living Expression, but comments that it could also be translated as "Message" or "Blueprint." He goes on... "Jesus Christ is the eternal Word, the creative Word, and the Word made visible. He is the divine self-expression of all that God is, contains, and reveals in incarnated flesh."

In other words, Jesus is the living expression of God the Father. Jesus confirmed that in John 14:9-10 when Philip asked Jesus to show them the Father. His response comes like this: "Don't you believe that the Father is living in me and that I am living in the Father? Even my words are not my own, but come from my Father, for he lives in me..." (TPT)

In John 1:14 we see once again the fulfillment of prophecy, specifically Isaiah's in 7:14, that Jesus would be God with us - Immanuel. Another way to look at it is from the Aramaic perspective in that he pitched his tent among us; he's living with us. We're supposed to be able to see him - behold his glory. Colossians 1:27 confirms this; "...Christ lives in you. This gives you assurance of sharing his glory." (NLT)

So, while Jesus is God in the flesh, he also comes with a message for mankind directly from the Father. That "Message", spoken through the words of the New Testament, gives us the "Blueprint" for how we should live here on earth. It runs the spectrum from "Love one another as I have loved you" (John 13:34 TPT); to the Golden Rule: "Do to others whatever you would like them to do to you." (Matthew 7:12 NLT); to "If you forgive the sins of any, they are forgiven them; if you retain the sins of any, they are retained."

(John 20:23 NKJV); to the Great Commission: "God authorized and commanded me to commission you: Go out and train everyone you meet, far and near, in this way of life, marking them by baptism in the threefold name: Father, Son, and Holy Spirit. Then instruct them in the practice of all I have commanded you. I'll be with you as you do this, day after day after day, right up to the end of the age." (Matthew 28:18-20 Message)

Jesus' coming to earth in the flesh had a purpose. He wasn't just a cute bundle of joy; he was God come with our marching orders. His instructions to his disciples were also his instructions to us - the church - believers - to be followed until his return. As he promised Joshua (Deuteronomy 31:6) and reiterated by the author of Hebrews in chapter 13, verse 5, he won't ever leave us alone. He's with us for the long haul.

We can always celebrate the King of kings and Lord of lords who came as a baby. He won't ever die or leave; he's always present for us to worship and pray to. We have his ear in everything that matters to us and he is looking for us to partner with him to achieve his "Blueprint" which is the destiny of the human race and the earth.

CAMPUS NEWS

– University of Wisconsin-Whitewater

The following students from West Bend have been serving as UW-Whitewater's 2019 peer mentors: Nicole Chernoorsky, who is studying Psychology; and Brittany Greuel, who is studying Accounting and Information Technology.

Serving as guides for incoming students throughout their entire first semester, peer mentors are selected in a competitive process. Successful peer mentors lead students through "Warhawk Welcome," a weeklong orientation for new students at the start of the academic year. They continue to provide peer support and advice as co-instructors in New Student Seminar, a course taught alongside a UW-Whitewater faculty or staff member. There are currently 91 peer mentors for new students, four peer mentors for transfer students, and five orientation leaders for transfer students.

"Peer mentors help normalize what being a college student is actually like - versus what students see in the media. They help students go through the transition from high school to college both academically and socially," said Amanda Murphy, coordinator for mentor programs. "Peer Mentors are there as a friendly face, someone who will listen and help with issues or problems, and also someone who can role model what being a Warhawk is all about."

CAMPUS NEWS

Starting in the spring, peer mentors attend training sessions and community-building activities. Before the fall semester starts, they participate in three days of training that covers topics such as communication, group facilitation, diversity and inclusion, crisis response, campus resources, and the fall orientation schedule.

Students can apply to be peer mentors through the First Year Experience office, as long as they have completed at least one semester at UW-Whitewater.

"We look for accountability and the desire to establish relationships with others. We look for helpers, those who are currently involved on campus, and are accountable in seeing things through," said Murphy.

The Visibility Project: Meeting The Needs Of The Homeless

A bed in a two-person room at Karl's Place in West Bend.

For some, homelessness is the result of misfortune, domestic abuse, addiction or a lack of medical attention. Abuse, loss of a job or income, health problems, evictions and/or trouble with law enforcement can force families and individuals into homelessness temporarily or permanently.

In all, the statistics for the State of Wisconsin are alarming. While the image of a single, middle-aged man might be the most immediate demographic thought of when considering the homeless population, families of two or more represent the highest percentage of those afflicted by homelessness.

Of the estimated 20,000 men, women and children experiencing homelessness on any given day in Wisconsin, 660 were family households (per the 2018 United States Interagency Council on Homelessness). 246 of those nearly-5,000 people were unaccompanied young adults, aged 18-24; 527 were individuals living in chronic homelessness.

Additionally, statistics from 2016-17 estimate that 18,592 public school students experienced homelessness at some point during the course of that school year in Wisconsin. These students sleep in cars with guardians and siblings, share inadequate space with other families or are crammed into single-room motels.

To synthesize these statistics: a percentage of every human demographic in the state is affected.

In the last decade, Dodge, Fond du Lac and Washington County shelters have done their best to respond to the segments of the population that were, quite literally, being left out in the cold.

At the Solution Center in Fond du Lac, Director of Homeless Services Amy Loof said the community was lacking emergency shelter options for families. Recently, the center went through a restructuring to serve two population segments: domestic abuse victims and homeless individuals/families.

"This change is so that we are serving all populations of homelessness equitably," said Loof. "Everybody needs a warm safe place to go."

The center, in just the last month, reorganized one of its properties to specifically house homeless families. There are also spaces for victims of domestic violence and individual homeless men and women.

On the flip side, Lori Prescott, executive director of Family Promise of Washington County in West Bend, said her organization recently noticed a disparity in housing provided for individuals, specifically men. Family Promise responded by opening Karl's Place, a single person shelter that opened in February 2018 in West Bend.

Prescott acknowledged that the imbalance came from a "women and children first" mentality, which unintentionally left behind homeless men in the region.

"Maybe men were always considered tougher," said Prescott, who wondered aloud why an entire demographic had been left behind. "I don't want to conclude any stereotypes... But with what we see, [there was a need] to help men, as well."

Matthew Johnson, a former case manager at Karl's Place who is attending graduate school at Lakeland University to receive a master of arts in counseling, says that after one person works his or her way through the program and out of homelessness, there is always another ready to fill the vacancy.

"We are full, a lot," said Johnson, pointing to sleeping mats that Karl's Place provides to people whose only option is to sleep outside for the night. "Sometimes the hardest part of the job is, if we can't find anywhere for them to go, is having to give someone a mat."

The mats are "techni-colored" and made of recycled bags and materials, and while it may not seem like much, the slightest of cushion can make sleeping on the ground or a park bench even slightly more tolerable.

Johnson said, in most cases, Karl's Place caseworkers are able to find temporary shelters, whether that's at area churches or at a shelter in another county. The onus is on Johnson or other employees to drive the people to the warming shelters if the distance is too far to walk or if public transportation is unavailable.

Prescott notes that transportation is a vital part of homeless-care services, and the lack of useable transport can be problematic for someone without appropriate means.

"We have no transportation locally," she noted, adding that for many homeless people in Washington County, it costs money just to get to work. "Breaking it down to [Washington] County, there is not a bus system. We have local taxi services, but who in that circumstance could afford Uber or Lyft?"

A lack of reasonable mobility on top of a high cost of living compared to the income from jobs available makes for an acute predicament.

Amy's Story

Amy, 36, had been the victim of domestic abuse. In an effort to remove herself from a dangerous situation, she ended up homeless.

In one word, she described how being a resident of Karl's Place made her feel:

"Safe," she said.

Amy added that the security of the space, and the progressiveness of the program had allowed her time to find housing, employment and figure out logistics for needed transportation.

"Basically, [I have] everything that I need right now that I don't have for myself," she added.

Amy said before arriving at Karl's Place, she spent time at another shelter, which she said was a counterproductive environment for her growth.

"It was hard working through some of the challenges there," said Amy, who was overjoyed to be admitted into the Family Promise program at Karl's Place. "If it wasn't for [Karl's Place], I'd probably be in the worst place, right now, mentally and physically."

At the time of the interview, Amy was working toward a career in caregiving.

"That's something I love to do," she said, adding that, because of the program, she is well on her way to finding a stable job she loves and able to rent her own living space. "One year from now I see myself stable, staying stable, in my own place, possibly working two jobs, maybe have a car; I see myself in a place where I will be dependent on myself."

"Amy" spoke with the Pionier on a basis of anonymity, and the name published here was so printed to honor her request.

The Visibility Project: Meeting The Needs Of The Homeless

Family Promise and the Solutions Center boast comprehensive programs that help willing, enrolled people meet some of the challenges caused by homelessness and poverty. Whether it is scheduling doctor visits, paying for needed medications, opening avenues for GEDs or further education and even setting up job interviews, a more complete approach to solving life's problems has been far more effective than one-night rooms.

"We're trying to improve where we've already had success," said Loof, mentioning several outsourced services the Solutions Center uses to connect clients with certification programs and job opportunities. "Part of our programming is getting them connected."

Both Loof and Prescott referenced a more holistic approach to combating homelessness. While funding for each program may have come from initiatives to support one population segment (single men, families, domestic abuse survivors), combining the resources to benefit the homeless population as a whole has helped ensure programs are reaching the maximum amount of people.

In Dodge County, at New Beginnings Homeless Shelter (a subset of the Wisconsin Community Action Council or CWCAC) in Beaver Dam, the 2014 freezing death of a homeless man led to the creation of a homeless shelter just for men.

However, the individual men's shelter at 845 Madison Street is about to close, which has sent New Beginnings into a hurried process to find a new permanent shelter space. The owners of the property, whom New Beginnings has been renting from, wish to convert the building into a bed and breakfast, sending as many as 30 residents into a temporary location.

CWCAC Housing Director Wendy Schneider, the council's unit supervisor for New Beginnings, says there are temporary options, but the loss of a permanent property is less than ideal.

"We are still searching for a property," said Schneider. "We have $1,800 in motel vouchers, which cost $50 a night to use. We will be using St. Katharine Drexel's convent until spring, so we do have some options, which is amazing."

Schneider noted, at least with New Beginnings, the shelter typically operates under capacity, so they have not had to turn away anyone recently.

The Solutions Center and Family Promise almost always have another person or family on the waiting list ready to fill a vacancy.

For those accepted into the programs, it's an entirely new lease on life.

Matthew Johnson acknowledged that not all clients and residents succeed in the program, but in his experience, the quicker folks buy into the Family Promise mission, the faster that gains can be made to end an individual cycle of homelessness.

In particular, persons struggling with drug addiction can take longer to progress than others.

"There are people who are recovering," said Johnson. "A lot of times that's a lot of the cause of homelessness. A lot of them, they're trying. They want to stay sober. They want to be right. Of course, it's tough to break that habit."

He added that Family Promise and Karl's Place are fully prepared for this and any other challenge that might prevent a client from stabilizing his or her life.

"Every situation is unique," added Johnson, who said the amount of support the program offers helps to offset the struggles of any individual resident. "It's free to stay here, and we're providing these resources for free."

While there are many factors that lead families and individuals into homelessness, one problem arose frequently in discussion with shelter directors: a lack of support for those suffering from mental illness.

When an individual lives below the poverty line and cannot afford medications, an untreated illness can force these persons out of their homes. Conversely, an individual who ends up displaced is more likely to suffer depression and anxiety, two afflictions that, in extremes, can make it impossible to search for employment or adequate shelter.

In some instance, Prescott said a client's mental illness improves almost immediately upon receiving care.

"A lot of their needs, in that regard, lessen as soon as they receive shelter and start working through the program," which she added includes one-on-one work with case managers who assist with doctor appointments, wellness practices and job resources.

At the Solution Center, Amy Loof mirrored those statements, and said one of the biggest things homeless care advocacy can provide is simple health care.

"We're seeing a lot of mental health [issues], and there is a shortage of mental health resources in our county," she noted. "We try to get those referrals, at least get a medication re-filled."

Loof acknowledged the Solutions Center has had decent success with regard to servicing resident's mental health needs, but she said these particular services are always in need of growth.

"Alcohol and other drug abuse (AODA) resources are much better than they have been in the past," she added. "It's a lot easier to get those resources than mental health resources."

So It Goes

By Andrew Johnson

Local Homeless

In 2019, there was a statewide effort by the Wisconsin Newspaper Association to bring awareness to the problem of homelessness throughout the state. At first, I did not think the issue was applicable to our area.

However, my son Matthew worked at one of the homeless shelters in West Bend in Washington County last year and he brought to my attention the plight and reality of the homeless people in the three counties (also Dodge and Fond du Lac) our small weekly newspapers cover.

Just because we cannot see it in our community does not mean it does not exist. The reality is that many of the local homeless people end up in Beaver Dam, Fond du Lac, or West Bend since there is no shelters in our immediate area.

I felt it was my ethical responsibility to have a reporter write a story about this subject. I assigned the story to reporter Mitchell Keller last fall. I thought he would be the perfect person to do this since he covers news in Horicon, lives in Campbellsport, and grew-up in Kewaskum. He did interviews with representatives of three homeless shelters and with my son Matthew over the past couple of months. Mitchell's story is in this edition.

Homelessness is a complicated problem caused by many reasons as Mitchell points out in his article. The shortage of affordable housing in our market also does not help. Jobs seem to be plentiful for willing and able workers but many not all are able to work for various reasons. Others like children, can be victims of circumstances beyond their control.

Many of those who are unable to work can be enabled with professional intervention and help. My son worked with providing shelter for the desperate and helping enable them to be independent again when possible.

I lived here over 31 years and had no idea of the severity of these issues until recently. I cannot turn a blind eye to the issue and that is why we reported it. I have lived a sheltered life here in our cozy little rural area and my eyes needed to be opened.

At the end of Mitchell's article there is a call to action for the three shelters covered in the story along with specific contact information. People can volunteer and give of their time or give financially. I know that the people who read this paper are generous and good people.

It is our hope that some good will come from this article.

The Visibility Project: Meeting The Needs Of The Homeless

Ultimately, addressing mental health needs is a case-by-case basis, and Loof and her case managers only know how best they can help through conversation and counseling.

"Once they get [here]... it brings them back to clear thinking," said Loof. "Motivation to get employed; motivation to get to the doctor... We try to talk about how to get [them] healthy."

While there are still gaps to be filled in complete holistic care for homeless people, the shelters spoke highly of relationships with law enforcement, which have, in some instances, brought those in need directly to the doorstep.

"We have had officers drop people off at our front door," said Loof about the Solutions Center, adding that there are a handful of supportive organizations, donors and businesses that do their best to help.

Ultimately, all three county shelter managers and the subsequent program leaders expressed interest in greater communication with the public, particularly in an effort to educate neighbors on the prevalence of homelessness in their communities and as a way to reduce stigma and inspire change in the public perception of the homeless' plight.

"I invite people to tour our facilities," said Prescott, adding that fundraising events have also helped draw atten-

Justin's Story

Justin, 39, who spoke to this journalist while enrolled in the Family Promise program through Karl's Place, said his quality of life improved instantly once he was accepted into the process.

"I was told about this place by my aunt," said Justin. "I got in, I talked to Matt [Johnson]... I went through the process and managed to get in here relatively quickly."

He added that the program helped him spend time focusing on his life goals, like finishing his GED, finding a stable job and repairing his relationship with his familiar, particularly his young son.

"I have a three-year-old son. I'm a single dad. His mother and I aren't together anymore," he said. "Coming here has given me the opportunity to start working towards getting a place of my own, so I can spend more time with my son. He is the main driving force of what I'm doing here. If it weren't for him, I don't even think I would be trying anymore."

Justin was originally from the Cedarburg area, but a string of hard luck and bad living situations forced him to sleep in his car on a nightly basis, which he typically parked at Pioneer Plaza in Richfield.

After separating from his girlfriend, who is also the mother of his child, Justin roomed with an individual in Saukville, which ended up being a negative environment.

"He was kind of nice at first, but he turned out to be a raging alcoholic," he recalled. "It wasn't going to work. I didn't want to be around it. I didn't want my son around it. So, that's how I ended up in the car."

Justin added that the worst part of his situation was constantly being alone.

"I was in my car for about a year," he estimated. "It was rough. It got cold... You're in your car by yourself 99 percent of the time. Not a fun experience."

At the time of the interview, Justin had only been at Karl's Place for a week, but he had already secured work and was on his way to acquiring his GED.

"Being able to use the computers to look for work, look for housing," Justin said of the advantages of entering into a program like Family Promise. "I wanted to take full advantage of the opportunity."

tion to the program's mission. Prescott noted that people typically walk away with a different opinion of homeless people and shelters after engaging with the facility, its residents and its caseworkers.

"We are full all the time," said Prescott, acknowledging that people do not expect to hear there is a waitlist for a program in a smaller city like West Bend (with a population just more than 30,000).

Solutions Center Director of Homeless Services Amy Loof at the North Sophia Street homeless shelter in Fond du Lac.

In addition to bringing visibility to the number of people afflicted by homelessness, Prescott found that increased communication with the public also helped reduce the stigma surrounding the causes of homelessness.

"It could be a medical bill that has had them stumble," said Prescott, listing the numerous reasons someone might be forced out of a safe environment. "They might have exhausted relationships with parents and friends living paycheck to paycheck."

She added that there are multiple cases wherein an individual has a skill set and a job and is either let go due to cutbacks or awaits a transfer to a new position. For those people, the most affordable solutions, sometimes, is living in a car or a park.

"We give them a place to stay so they are safe. They have shelter," said Prescott. "They can grab a shower or a meal and regroup."

Loof emphasized the human aspect of her role and what the mission of the center is. She summed it up in one word: hope.

"We are giving people hope. We're people helping people," she said.

Loof pointed to a framed quotation on display in her office, one of her favorites, attributed to actress Audrey Hepburn:

"Nothing is impossible, the word itself says, 'I'm possible!'"

In closing, Loof persuaded anyone who wants to help, but does not know how, to simply call a local shelter or stop by, which she promised will open any compassionate person's perspective.

"I encourage people to volunteer," said Loof. "Give them one day of your time, and I promise you that the idea, if it was skewed, will change. The homeless populations are real people, and I cannot stress that enough."

"We are all one paycheck away from being in the very same spot, in the very same situations that these individuals are facing. Please, stop referring to them as 'those people' and start referring to them as people."

"Life is hard enough... We need to restore hope in our neighbors. If that's all we do everyday, and I only help one person out of 200 a year, I've done my job, because one person has been helped."

After interviewing three candidates Monday night to fill an open seat on the board, the Kewaskum School Board narrowed the field down to two: Dennis Aupperle and Mary Miller. Now it is up to School Board President Mark Sette to decide whether to appoint Aupperle or Miller to the board.

In May, John Fleischman went on the Stars and Stripes Honor Flight.

Oostburg Uses Height, Mix Of Defenses To Keep Indians At Bay

By Judy Harlow

The Kewaskum boys basketball team defeated Mayville (for a second time this season) but was no match for Oostburg in the Oostburg Holiday Tournament held December 27-28. The Indians took second place in the event.

"Oostburg was really good. They stood 6-7 (6-feet, 7 inches), 6-6, 6-6.5 and 6-3, and they had a couple 6-6 guys coming off the bench,"

KHS coach Don Gruber said about the 61-46 loss to the unbeaten 6-0, third-rated Division 3 Flying Dutchman. Oostburg used a 35-point effort in the first half to pull away from the Indians, who are now 4-3 on the year.

Perhaps a bit awed by Oostburg's height, the Indians started off the game with some costly miscues. "We had three or four turnovers in the first couple of minutes. Truthfully they were unforced errors," Gruber said, reporting his team fell behind 16-3, then "After that, we played them pretty even."

KHS got to within a point a couple times, but "We didn't shoot the ball well," Gruber said, indicating that hampered further comeback tries by the Indians.

Josh Bocher led KHS with 21 points, including five three-point goals, while John Mark Bocher and Joe Bocher chipped in with nine and six, respectively.

Freshman Antoine Coleman-Thull scored a personal-high six points. He was the only reserve to score.

Leading the Dutchmen was Cam Jaeger, who had a game-high 23 points. "He's a real smart ball player," Gruber said of Jaeger, adding, "He lets the game come to him."

Gruber was also impressed with the way Oostburg changed its defense. "They mix it up real good," he said, also noting, "The (Kewaskum) guys played real well."

In the first game, KHS fell behind 35-33 in the first half, then turned up the defense for a 66-56 victory over Mayville.

Ragged Offensive Play Is Costly For KHS Boys In Game With KML

By Judy Harlow

By outscoring Kewaskum 39 to 26 in the second half, the Kettle Moraine Lutheran boys basketball team remained unbeaten in East Central Conference play (4-0). While the host Indians, who were celebrating Alumni Night for basketball players and band members on January 3, fell to 1-2 in conference and 4-4 overall after the 61-46 defeat.

“Our defense was fine. Our defense was very good in the first half,” KHS coach Don Gruber said afterward, but the offense was a different story. “I was very frustrated we started with so many unforced errors.”

Going on about the offense, Gruber said, “Kettle pressured us. We resorted to some of our old ways. One of the things I talked about (with the players) was being efficient. We weren’t efficient enough. They were in foul trouble plenty. We tried to take advantage of it, but... (we didn’t).”

Neither team was very sharp early, but the Chargers used a 10-1 run for a 14-4 lead with 12:33 to play in the first half.

It was here that KHS forward John Mark Bocher went to work with six straight points, four free throws and a 14-foot jumper from the baseline. This cut the deficit to six points at 10-16.

Top reserve Isaiah Cochran came off the bench and hit a three-pointer from the wing, and KHS was back in the game at 16-13 with 8:45 left in the opening half. KML maintained leads from three to six points until the final 2:30. This is when John Mark Bocher took a beautiful pass from his brother Josh for an easy layup, making the score 21-17. Joe Bocher used his height for another inside bucket (21-19), and Michael Daniel swished one of two free throws and the deficit was just one point at 21-20.

The Chargers gave the Indians a chance to tie or take the lead when they threw the ball away but Daniel was whistled for a travel. The half ended with the Indians down 20-22 after Mitch Marshman hit a free throw with :02 to go.

Kewaskum senior guard Ty Cook had kept KML’s crackerjack guard Jacob Stoltz in check for much of the first half, but after the break the 6-0 guard broke loose for 13 of his game-high 18 points. This lifted the Chargers, who steadily pulled out front by eight points, to 11, 35-24 on a three-point play by Austin Wagner, who connected on a twisting drive, was fouled by Toree Ralph and sunk the free throw.

KHS answered with five straight points from Cook, who was good on a pair of free throws and made an old-fashioned three-point play, cutting the deficit to six at 35-29 with 11:15 to play.

The teams traded baskets — Cochran hit his second toward an eight-point scoring night — but the Chargers started to pull away for the next several minutes. On back-to-back baskets by Ethan Duba and Stoltz for a 10-point lead (42-32) and Cole Biesterfeld’s three made the score 45-33 with eight minutes to go.

Josh Bocher, playing much of the second half with four fouls, scored five of his 11 points in the final five minutes. The Chargers got another bucket from Biesterfeld, a huge three from Austin Schaff and five of six free throws from Stoltz to go up by 20 points at 58-38 to clinch the victory.

“He didn’t catch his rhythm,” Gruber said of Josh Bocher, who had been averaging 16.5 points in his previous two conference games. John Mark Bocher scored all his 11 points in the first half, then went scoreless in the second.

The road won’t get any easier for the Indians this week as they travel to Plymouth to play the other unbeaten team in the East Central. More balance scoring will be needed to beat the Panthers. “We need everyone to score,” Gruber said.

Good Defense, Balanced Scoring Help KHS Girls Win Kiel Tourney

By Judy Harlow

By virtue of their convincing 61-42 win over Kiel, a day after a 64-25 trouncing of Portage, the Kewaskum Lady Indians are champions of the 2,018 Kiel Holiday Tournament.

in both those games, the Indians improved to 6-2 overall and appear ready for a big test vs. 3-0 Kettle Moraine Lutheran in an East Central game that was played in Kewaskum January 4.

"We won the tournament, which was our goal," KHS coach Russell Thull said about the two victories. KHS hit five, three-point baskets in the championship game. Leading the scoring parade were Kennedy Adams and Maxine Paulowske with 14 and 13 points, respectively.

Morgan Adams was next high with 11. Thull said, "She can do some scoring inside" because she posts up well, and, "She finishes."

The win over Kiel was "big because they are in our regional" later this year along with Valders, which just beat Kiel by two points.

"One of the big keys was our defense," Thull went on, pointing out the Indians have only given up 45 points once this year. "We're going to win a lot of games if we continue like that."

Portage

About the game vs. winless Portage, Thull said, "They (Warriors) were definitely down," but may have helped the Indians prepare for future games because they pressed most of the contest.

"I was excited with five players in double figures," Thull said, citing Megan Winkler for her excellent 13-point effort and noting, "Our freshmen (Grace Leitheiser, Madilyn Dogs and Adams) combined for 33 points."

Lady Indians Post Convincing Win Over KML To Create A Logjam Atop EC Standings

By Judy Harlow

While senior Maxine Paulowske continues to get closer to becoming the fourth member of the 1,000-point club at Kewaskum High, there is an even more important goal the Indians are focusing on — namely winning an East Central Conference title.

While there are still 10 conference games to play, the Indians proved January 5th they belong in the title conversation after defeating previously unbeaten Kettle Moraine Lutheran 59-49. With the win, Kewaskum is tied for first with three other teams, including Plymouth, Waupun and KML. All have 3-1 records.

"It was an exciting win for us. That's for sure," KHS coach Russell Thull said about the Indians' effort, which included a fast start and gritty recoveries after the Chargers made a couple runs at them.

"We jumped out to an early lead. It got from seven to probably 12," according to the veteran coach, who stressed it was again the defensive play that helped secure the win. "We pressed them... They turned it over 29 times. The defense was great."

The Indians' shooting was pretty darn good too. Led by Paulowske's five, long-range bombs, Kewaskum had nine, 3-pointers while connecting on nine of 16 attempts from beyond the arc for a sizzling 56 percent. In addition to Paulowske's 5x9 effort, Annie Christenson scored a pair of threes, while Grace Leitheiser and Madilyn Dogs each chipped in with one.

Kewaskum led by a dozen at the break, 28-16 and as expected the Chargers, now 5-4 overall, didn't fold. "Early in the second half, they had a nice run," Thull said. "We held tough and were able to overcome it."

The Indians got the point difference back up to 10, then it went down to five and back up to 10 at the end of play. "We never gave up the lead," Thull, whose teams only had one previous win over the Chargers, said.

Paulowske led all scorers with 22 points. "Max was fantastic! That's probably the best game she's played this year," Thull said.

Paulowske took 11 shots, making six of them, and freshman Morgan Adams helped out with 11 points.

"Morgan Adams played a heck of a game," Thull went on, also praising Christenson for her play on both ends of the court. Along with her eight points, the 5-10 sophomore had five steals. Junior Kennedy Adams also sparkled on defense, coming up with six steals to go with her seven points.

About the logjam at the top of the standings. Thull said, "We beat KML. KML beat Waupun and Waupun beat us," while Plymouth has not played any of the other three leaders yet.

The win definitely will boost the Indians' confidence. "I think this a a game when the girls learned we can compete with anyone," Thull said.

KHS, currently 7-2 overall, is at Plymouth tonight (January 9) and entertains Cedar Grove Belgium in a 1:30 p.m. game on Saturday, Jan. 11.

About Paulowske's quest to reach 1,000, Thull said, "She had 30 points to go. She has a good chance to get it at home," referring to the game with Cedar Grove and the following game vs. Campbellsport on January 14.

Scoles And Maertz Finish Third In Tough On The Waters Meet

By Judy Harlow

Going back to the Oshkosh Lourdes On the Waters Tournament proved to be a good decision by Kewaskum wrestling coach Scott Rhoads, who was able to showcase a couple of his outstanding athletes - freshman Braeden Scoles and senior Braden Maertz - in the event.

Both young men took third places in the two-day marathon event that was held December 27-28 in the UW-Oshkosh Field House.

"We had good matches," Rhoads said about the efforts of the two and the other five wrestlers who competed and who all won at least one match in the marathon event.

Scoles might be a freshman but he has more wrestling experience than most juniors and seniors in tournaments. He looks to have an excellent career ahead of him in the sport. Scoles breezed through the first three rounds, getting a bye, then pinning Connor Gishkowsky of Hartford in 3:45 and winning by 19-4 tech fall over Tyler Strupp of Slinger.

In the quarterfinals, Scoles edged out Noah Leisgang of Ashland 1-0, getting an escape to break the 0-0 deadlock. That set the stage for a semifinal battle vs. three-time state finalist and two-time state champion Aiden Medora (16-0) of St. John's Military Academy/Brookfield Academy. Scoles gave Medora a run for his money before losing 7-5.

"That was the highlight match of the tournament. The gym got really loud!" Rhoads said, reporting, "Scoles stayed right with him. It went back and forth" with some near take-downs on the edge of the mat where "The refs were being picky" with out of bounds calls.

Scoles (15-2)

bounced back with a pin over Sam Kuchta of Coleman, then finished his day win an 11-2 major decision over Cole Nelson of Kenosha Indian Trails to get third place.

Maertz was equally impressive, putting together a string of four wins, including a bye, two pins and a 16-5 major decision over Andrew Forsythe of North Fond du Lac/St. Mary's Springs before meeting up with Random Lake's Aiden Vandebush, who finished third in Division 3 at 152 pounds a year ago. Maertz lost to him 5-0 in a match that was 3-0 until the final minute.

"Vandebush got the first takedown and just held on," Rhoads said, reporting Maertz "had opportunities in some close calls. They just didn't go our way."

In the wrestleback for third place, Maertz, who is now 21-3, beat Zach Anderson of Monona Grove 7-4, then defeated Germantown's Isaac Riddle by pin in a mere 2:14.

None of the other five Indians placed. Junior Jadon Rhoads went 4-2 at 160 pounds with two pins. He is now 11-11 on the year. "It was nice to see him make it to the second day," Rhoads said of his nephew.

Mason Pomeroy (12-10) went 3-2 at 138 pounds and is starting to regain the form he showed his sophomore season before missing the majority of his junior year with a non-wrestling injury.

Junior Kannon Muck-erheide went 2-2 at 182 pounds with his two wins coming via decision while Jordan Mixon went 2-2 with two pins at 220.

After posting a pin in his opening match, Isaiah George was injured and had to default the next two matches.

Two of the Indian regulars - Josh Vogt at 126 and Nathan Heberer at 138 - are nursing injuries and did not compete. A couple of the younger Indians competed in a JV tournament rather than going to Oshkosh.

KHS opens 2020 with a home match vs. Plymouth on Thursday, Jan. 9. It will be Youth Night at KHS.

Top five teams: 1. Coleman, 342 points; 2. Ashwaubenon, 245.5; 3. Germantown, 236.5; 4. Mineral Point, 215; 5. Slinger, 205; Kewaskum finished 25th out of 67 teams with 108.5 points
