Kewaskum Police Officer Shawn Larson Recognized For Service

BY ANNE TRAUTNER
JOURNALIST

Kewaskum Police Officer Shawn Larson, who responded to a critical incident in February that resulted in the death of two Town of Kewaskum residents, was recognized for his dedicated service to the citizens of Washington County during a Kewaskum Village Board meeting on Monday, Aug. 16.

"I sincerely wanted to thank you. It is a small token," said Washington County Sheriff Martin Schulteis as he presented a commendation to Larson.

The award was the first that Schulteis presented publicly since the February 3 event. Schulteis intends to give similar recognition to county staff members who were involved in the incident.

During the presentation Monday night, Schulteis also expressed his appreciation for assistance the sheriff's office receives from the Kewaskum Police Department.

"I couldn't ask for a better working relation-

USA Patriots Camp Helps Kids From Across The US

BY ANDREA HANSEN ABLER
EDITOR

It was an inspiring week of softball last week as the USA Patriots softball team visited the area. They held their annual Kids' Camp in Fond du Lac last week with two games at Dock Spiders Stadium as a culmination of the week.

One of the coaches of the Kids' Camp and players on the USA Patriots team is Campbellsport native Josh Wege. He has been a member since the team's inception as the Wounded Warriors Amputee Softball team in 2011.

In addition to Wege, his brother-in-law Saul Bosquez is a member of the team and was one of the coaches at the Kids' Camp. Saul is married to Josh's sister Jessica, who was in charge of set up for this year's camp.

You only had to spend a short time at the practices or the final game on Saturday to know how much this camp meant to

The Dark Shadow of Identity Theft

Dear Reader,

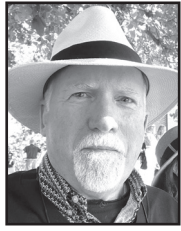

Identity theft is a real threat in this world. It has become rampant and vicious since there has been a proliferation of how we seamlessly contact and communicate with each other through channels like Facebook, Snapchat, Instagram, Twitter, and so forth.

This appropriation of individuality occurs when bad actors try to assume your identity while hiding in the sanctuary of a faraway place such as Russia or China. The criminals then use your credibility and legitimacy to do unpleasant things in your name. Ultimately, it is to illegally take away your money or other people's money and to conduct nefarious activities with whatever information they are able to glean from your personage. This can suck your finances dry, ruin your credit rating, and become your worst nightmare.

So how can you protect yourself? The following provides a starter list to initiate a dialogue with your friends and loved ones, so that together you can put your collective guard up.

1. Don't email, text, call, or develop an online association ("friend" on Facebook, allow to follow you on Twitter or Instagram, etc.) with anyone you don't know. Reboot your phone daily to thwart smartphone hackers.

2. Don't respond to anyone emailing, texting, calling, or otherwise contacting you through social media that you don't know – even if (or especially if) he or she pretends to be a celebuntante or megastar.

3. Avoid responding to requests for help unless you first verify with a direct contact via phone or video call that the person needing help is who they say they are.

4. Don't respond to notices that say you can get monies you didn't earn just by doing one final thing like giving up your Social Security number or bank account number, texting photos of gift cards, or placing funds in a Bitcoin account with a forwarding receipt. (Yes, people do these things, especially those who are vulnerable and innocent, the scammers' preferred targets.) In other words, be aware of and manage the perimeters of your life. Don't be tempted by alien offers of money or celebrity or flattery to think you are special and better, or can easily become special and better without honest hard work or effort. Remember TANSTAAFL – There Ain't No Such Thing As A Free Lunch. If it sounds too good to be true, in all probability it is.

This may have happened to you or to someone you know. But even if you haven't been affected, remember this – the bad people are out there, setting traps for the unwary. Refrain from taking the first bite from this poisonous fruit.

Rural Writes

BY G.A. SCHEINOHA
CONTRIBUTOR

That time of year's rolled around again. The fields of corn have tasseled out. Some tall enough to hide a baseball team or two, as in the movie Field of Dreams. All that's needed now is hot August sunlight to dry the stalks out.

Soon enough, they'll rustle in the slightest breeze, a thin, paperly whisper of autumn's approach.

These are the dog days of summer and some are probably bound to say doggone, it was a hot one. Or maybe just dog, be gone. Wishing for cooler temps.

The other sure sign of change is the back to school sales. Seems we hadn't gotten much past the Fourth of July and the stores were moving heaps of supplies; pens, notebooks and the like into the aisles. Always a step ahead of the season.

For kids facing another school year, it's not too thrilling. What they won't realize till years from now, leastwise a few years after they graduate, is how good they've got it right now. Mom and Dad are paying the bills. Their children don't have the responsibilities that come with being one of the grown ups.

Looking across the decades, I get it. 1975 was the best year of my life. Long about this day on the calendar, I was 17, winding down the summer before my senior year at CHS. Ran out on Highway 67 to meet my buddy, Randy Luckow, near Lomira on one of those last free days. A Wings song, Listen to What the Man Said played on the radio in my '65 Dodge Coronet.

We both knew we were coming to the end of something, childhood maybe and things would be different from here on. That worry free phase gone. In its place, a new and sometimes tough row to hoe. Happy and sad times. But there was no turning back. Only a few memories spread like bread crumbs, a faint path ahead to the future.

Jeff Jaeger Presents Hometown Heroes Awards

Jeff Jaeger of Modern Woodmen of America presented Hometown Heroes Awards to Kewaskum Historical Society volunteers Aaron Laatsch and Anne Trautner for their work on the book “Kewaskum, Wisconsin: The Making of a Village.”

Along with the awards, Laatsch and Trautner received $100 each from Modern Woodmen to be donated to the charity of their choice. Both donations are being given to the Kewaskum Historical Society, which is dedicated to educating the public about the history of Kewaskum.

The awards were presented on Saturday, July 10, at a Modern Woodmen golf outing held at Hon-E-Kor in Kewaskum.

“You believe in volunteer service, and so do we! As a fraternal financial services organization dedicated to improving the quality of life for families and communities, we recognize your accomplishments and appreciate your contribution to your community,” the Modern Woodmen of America Hometown Heroes awards state.

Laatsch and Trautner spent nearly four years working on the book, which was released in March 2020. With more than 300 pages and over 600 photos, this hardcover coffee-table style book includes detailed chapters about Chief Kewaskum, early pioneers, area businesses, schools, churches, local government, civic groups and more.

Included throughout the book are memories from village residents, adding a personal touch to the village’s already interesting history. The book also contains many historic photos, documents, maps and information related to Kewaskum.

James Flitter

James "Fuzzy" Norbert Flitter, 75, of Campbellsport passed away peacefully on Friday August 13, 2021 after a two-year battle with cancer and ALS at his home with his loving family gathered around him.

He was born on March 27, 1946 in Campbellsport, the son of the late Norbert "Turtle" and Mildred (Wagner) Flitter. On November 14, 1964, Fuzzy married Janice Marie Morgan at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Eden.

Fuzzy was able to be a wonderful husband and best friend to his high school sweetheart for 56 years. He was a generous, loving man and had an answer for everything. He enjoyed being outdoors, riding his John Deere lawnmower and, most of all, hunting and fishing with his boys; watching them all through grade and high school with their baseball, basketball and wrestling gave him such pride and then to watch the grandchildren do the same.

Fuzzy worked at Precision Metals and then he and Janice ran Fuzzy Tap in Waucousta for nine years. He worked at Shefond Oil and LPD driving delivery truck. He managed the office for Skelgas until he was hired by Cole Oil and Propane, where he delivered propane until retirement. He loved driving his propane truck and setting up his routes for many customers over the years. He and his wife spent a lot of time camping and fishing in Shawano and going to the casinos. He was an avid sports fan, watching college basketball, the Bucks, Brewers, Badgers and Packers all the time.

Those left behind to cherish his memory include his wife, Janice; three sons, Dean (special friend, Ann), Scott (Jenny) and Todd (Rachelle); grandchildren, Brianna, Brooke, Leah and Luke; brothers-in-law and sisters-in-law, Roger and Katsie Morgan, Mary Jo Morgan, Ronnie and Pat Morgan, Bob Morgan, Mary and Norm Ebert and Pat Morgan, other nieces and nephews, relatives and friends.

Fuzzy was preceded in death by his parents, Turtle and Mildred; in-laws, Leo and Mildred Morgan; sister, Barbara and her husband Roger of Albuquerque, NM; brothers-in-law, Richard Morgan and Dennis Morgan; and nephew Danny Morgan.

Visitation for Fuzzy was held Tuesday, August 17, starting at 11 a.m. at St Matthew Catholic Church, 406 E. Main St., Campbellsport, followed by a Memorial Mass of Christian Burial at 2 p.m. at the Church. Rev. Mark Jones officiated.

We want to extend our gratitude to all the family and friends who have kept Fuzzy and our family in their prayers. A special thank you to Leo and Bev Emmer for all their help and to Joan Buerger for being there for us. To Agnesian Health and Hospice, your kindness and special care will never be forgotten.

In lieu of flowers, memorials are appreciated to the family.

Campbellsport 4-H Ice Cream Social And Bucket Fundraiser For Alexis Feucht

It's back. After missing last year, the Campbellsport 4-H Club's Ice Cream Social is back. It will be held on Saturday, Aug. 28, from 5 p.m.-9 p.m. at Campbellsport Elementary School.

Popular ice cream treats that will be served include brownie delights, strawberry schaum torte, strawberry shortcake and sundaes (strawberry, butterscotch, chocolate and mint). Ham sandwich plates will be available as well as root beer floats and chocolate and white milk. Homemade pies will be sold to enjoy at home.

In conjunction with the ice cream social, the club is hosting a bucket fundraiser. It is a charity event where the proceeds support a community member in need. This year the club chose Alexis Feucht, a 2021 graduate of Campbellsport High School, as the recipient. All proceeds from the bucket fundraiser will go to Alexis.

In October of 2020, Alexis began experiencing severe headaches. An MRI revealed a malignant tumor the size of a golf ball on the right frontal lobe of her brain.

Diagnosed with stage four glioblastoma, Alexis underwent brain surgery in October, 32 radiation treatments from November through December and beginning in January chemotherapy treatment sessions.

A cancer diagnosis has not stopped Alexis from excelling her senior year. She was a varsity volleyball and softball player. Alexis also was the Class of 2021 Salutatorian. For the past 11 months, Woppert has been responsible for overseeing all network related security, IT infrastructure, and desktop support.

"Whether it is systems that allow our public safety to stay in touch or simple things, such as providing county Wi-Fi within our buildings, it all makes a difference and can ultimately impact our community," said Woppert.

"Since joining Washington County, Joel has made a tremendous contribution by managing our IT department and implementing effective cyber security measures," said County Executive Josh Schoemann. "We applaud this appointment and know he will play an important role on this team and for the people of Wisconsin."

The Wisconsin Cyber Response Team is a program under the State of Wisconsin's Division of Enterprise Technology that strives for a safer, stronger environment for users by responding to major cyber security incidents, analyzing threats and exchanging critical cybersecurity information with trusted partners. This team consists of selected security professionals that work in the public sector throughout the state of Wisconsin. Through this membership, the Department of Homeland Security provides 100 percent reimbursement to train teams specifically to support local units of government in Wisconsin.

Woppert was appointed to the Wisconsin Cyber Response Team following an application process, background check, and interview with the state's Chief Information Security Officer.

"I look forward to the advanced training that comes along with membership, as well as serving on teams to help local governments, including Washington County, in the global cybersecurity fight," said Woppert.

Prior to his position with Washington County, Woppert served as lead network engineer for Milwaukee County. Woppert earned two associate degrees (one in network administration and the other in information systems security) from Milwaukee Area Technical College and finished his undergraduate degree in information technology at Herzing University. He then achieved his master's degree in business administration with a focus in technology management at Herzing University.

Join Statewide Search For Aquatic Invasive Species Aug. 21

The Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources (DNR) invites water enthusiasts to help protect Wisconsin's rivers, lakes, and wetlands by joining the statewide search for aquatic invasive species for Snapshot Day on Saturday, Aug. 21.

Snapshot Day is a one-day, hands-on effort where participants monitor streams, lakes and wetlands at designated sites across the state for signs of non-native plants and animals posing risks to Wisconsin waterways and wildlife. Volunteers can register at one of more than 20 event locations hosted by local conservation groups.

This event is free to attend and recommended for ages eight and up; adults must accompany minors. Campbellsport will be one of the 20 locations where you can participate from 8:30 a.m.-12 p.m.

Register online by visiting the Aquatic Invasive Species Snapshot Day 2021 website. Advance registration is requested to help site leaders build monitoring plans. The registration deadline is Aug. 19.

Coordinated in partnership with the DNR,

UW-Madison Division of Extension, UW-Stevens Point Extension Lakes, River Alliance of Wisconsin, Snapshot Day is entering its eighth successful year. Information collected will be provided to the DNR to inform and guide monitoring and response efforts. Volunteers are vital to the success of the event.

"Projects like Snapshot Day are a fun and simple way for volunteers to get engaged and for the local site leaders and DNR to collaborate," says Maureen Ferry, DNR aquatic invasive species monitoring coordinator. "The DNR has a long list of sites with suspected but unverified aquatic invasive species that Snapshot Day monitoring targets. This increases the chances of volunteers helping us find a new species."

Last year, more than 150 volunteers pulled on their masks and rolled up their sleeves to monitor at more than 234 sites across the state, making for a successful, safe and socially-distanced event. This year's event will also have precautions to ensure the event is safe for everyone who would like to participate.

The DNR asks that all non-vaccinated volunteers wear a face covering.

ship," Schulteis said. "Although we wear different colors and different badges, we are all basically one band, one mission."

The commendation that Larson received states:

"Whereas, on February 3, 2021 at 2:50 p.m., the Washington County Sheriff's Office responded to the 8100 block of Forest View Road in the Town of Kewaskum for a 'shots fired' altercation; and

Whereas, the Washington County Sheriff's Office relies on our law enforcement partners in emergency situations for mutual assistance pursuant to Wisconsin State Statute 66.0313; and

Whereas, the Washington County Sheriff's Office requested the emergency assistance of the Kewaskum Police Department for the initial response to this call; and

Whereas, one of our first responding deputies, almost 0.6 mile north of the initial dispatch location, was confronted by the armed suspect as the deputy approached in his squad car. The suspect lowered the shotgun and fired one round toward the deputy. In an effort to both disengage and deescalate the situation, the deputy intentionally created distance by backing away and out of sight from the threat; and

Whereas, several deputy sheriffs and Kewaskum Police Officer Shawn Larson almost simultaneously arrived as the suspect rounded the corner and became involved in an exchange of gunfire with one of the initial arriving Washington County deputies; and

Whereas, Kewaskum Police Officer Shawn Larson responded to the scene as immediately as possible and inserted himself into the middle of this largely unknown chaotic situation. He remained calm and vigilant the entire time; even when the location and status of the suspect was unknown. All law enforcement fully believed they would be ambushed by the suspect when they lost sight of him after the exchange of gunfire; and

Whereas, the suspect was later determined to have killed two innocent local men before the confrontation with law enforcement that ultimately resulted in his death; and

Whereas, the Washington County Sheriff's Office would like to express our sincere gratitude to both the Kewaskum Police Department and Officer Shawn Larson for maintaining the common goal to keep our communities safe.

Now therefore be it resolved that Kewaskum Shawn Larson is hereby commended for his dedicated service to the citizens of Washington County."

do such a thing for me,” RE said about the harness.

Another participant, Chase Merriweather from Pennsylvania, is a quad amputee. He has prosthetics for running and had two different ones for his hands — one for batting and one for fielding.

To see what these 15 youngsters from across the United States learned and could accomplish was inspiring to all. They are all missing a limb and some are missing multiple limbs, but they couldn't wait to get out on the softball diamond at Lakeside Park in Fond du Lac.

For their final game on Saturday, people from around the area came to Herr-Baker Field on the Marian University campus in Fond du Lac. This is the home of the Dock Spiders.

All of the participants said that the best part of the week was being around others who were the same as themselves. Being able to talk with others who were missing an arm or a leg and find out how they have adapted was the most valuable part of the experience.

“Being around other people who look like me and having fun are the best part,” said Sarah Garbe of Iowa.

Sarah is missing her left arm below the elbow. To see how quickly she could field the ball, toss the ball up, throw her glove down and catch the ball again in order to throw it to the base for an out was amazing.

“The hardest part was learning to adapt,” Sarah said.

Sarah, and most of the other participants, had never played softball or baseball before. They learned quickly and learned how to adapt themselves to the game.

Odin Hadley from West Virginia was a fun one to watch on the field. He is eight years old and has played baseball before. He has such a great attitude and was so fun to watch.

Odin said his favorite part of the entire week was, “making new friends.”

Dwayne Red Bear is 11 and is from South Dakota. He is missing his left leg below the knee. Dwayne said he had played a little bit of baseball before last week, but he enjoyed being together the entire week.

“Just being around these guys was great,” Dwayne said. “It inspires me a lot.”

Many of the volunteers at the camp are alumni of previous Kids' Camps. They got so much out of it, that they couldn't wait for their opportunity to help out.

Chloe Hofman is 18 and from Superior, Wisconsin. She participated in the 2015 Kids' Camp. With the camp being in her home state, she decided to make the trip down to help out.

“I've been to every single alumni camp,” Chloe said. “It's my favorite thing to do. When I went to Kids' Camp, I wasn't a full amputee yet.”

Chloe said that the Kids' Camp is what inspired her to go ahead and have her leg amputated. She was born with amniotic band syndrome and had a club foot. The pain was bad, but she didn't decide to go ahead with the amputation until she saw how well other kids were doing without their legs. She now says making that decision was the best one she has ever made.

“I wanted to come out this week and show them that it doesn't stop here,” Chloe said. “Camp is a first step.”

The kids are not the only ones who are inspired. Many of the members of the USA Patriots get as much out of this camp as the kids do.

“I went to one of the camps and I was immediately hooked,” said Brian Gentilotti from Massachusetts, who is a right leg amputee below the knee. “It took off from there. It's one of my passions and so rewarding for me.”

“It's good for the kids to be with ones like them. It's really about building relationships. You build life-long friendships. It's nice to see that we have that much of an impact.”

One of the USA Patriots who has a huge impact on the kids is Greg Reynolds from Massachusetts. Greg is a left arm amputee and been a member of the USA Patriots since its inception.

“I'm an original member,” he said.

Though he hasn't had as much time to devote to the softball team in the past couple of years, the Kids' Camp is something he does not miss. Greg has become busy with the business he owns, but he always makes time for the camp.

“A lot of these kids don't have mentors like this,” he said. “We're able to help these kids. It's truly phenomenal. It's more than a softball camp.”

Greg has been credited with teaching about 60 kids how to tie their shoes with just one arm. He also holds the Guinness World Record on one-arm pushups, which is another thing he likes to teach all of the kids how to do.

“I can share my experiences with these kids,” he said. “Teach them that little bit of independence and they just beam. It's an eye opener and truly phenomenal!”

This entire week was truly was inspirational for all involved. The joy it brought to these youngsters is something they will remember for the rest of their lives.

Washington County Sheriff's Office Reports

Fatal Crash

On August 12 at 4:39 a.m., the Washington County Dispatch Center was notified of a crash with injuries on Dublin Drive north of O'Connell Street in the Town of Erin. The caller did not witness the accident and reported the top of the vehicle was ripped off and the driver was bleeding from the head. Deputies were dispatched to the scene along with Hartford Fire and Rescue.

The caller was able to remove the driver from the vehicle prior to the arrival of the deputies. Upon the arrival of the first deputy, life-saving efforts were started and continued upon the arrival of Hartford Fire and Rescue, but ultimately the efforts were unsuccessful.

The initial investigation indicated the vehicle was traveling northbound on Dublin Drive after negotiating the curve on O'Connell Street. The vehicle traveled left of center, went off-road left and struck a tree in the west ditch line. The top of the vehicle was almost completely sheared off, exposing the entire passenger compartment. The driver was partially ejected, although it appeared that he had been wearing a seatbelt.

The crash remains under investigation by the Washington County Sheriff's Office Accident Reconstruction Team. The driver's family has been notified, but the driver's name had not been released at press time.

Semi-Tractor Trailer Crash

On August 10 at 7:02 p.m., the Washington County Sheriff's Office was notified of a semi-tractor trailer crash on Highway 41 southbound, about a mile north of County Highway K, in the Town of Addison.

Deputies responded along with Wisconsin State Patrol, and Allenton and St. Lawrence fire departments. The semi had flipped onto its side, lying across the lanes of traffic. There were no other vehicles involved. The truck driver, an Illinois man, had a minor hand injury.

In order to facilitate towing, Highway 41 southbound was shut down at Highway 33, and remained closed for about two hours.

The incident remains under investigation; however, it is believed that the winds from the initial storm which passed through the area contributed to the accident.

The Washington County Sheriff's office was notified of multiple hazards because of the storm.

KEWASKUM'S DAYS GONE BY

5 Years Ago

August 25, 2016

The Kewaskum Fire Department has two new thermal imaging cameras, thanks to a donation from the Kewaskum Firefighters Association. The cameras cost about $6,060 apiece. The cameras were purchased in July and have already been used to detect hotspots at fires in Campbellsport and West Bend. In addition to helping fight fires, the cameras can be used in search and rescue operations. The new cameras are programmable and can be hooked up directly into a computer.

Johnson Bus personnel stayed busy this summer. In addition to preparing routes for the upcoming school year and transporting students and others to events, Kewaskum's 30 buses had to be updated in order to comply with the new eight-light warning law. Wisconsin is the final state in the country to put the law into effect. Now all school buses built after 2005 have to have two red lights and two yellow lights in the front of each bus as well as on the rear.

New staff for the Kewaskum School District include: Brittany Ward, Diane Radmer, Michael Mandujano, Ariel Krueger, Karlee Flasch, Samantha Daun, Karla Daane, Lindsey Jolly, Lauren Trautner, Jamie Fait, Katie Pendowski, Josh Towner, Brian Vetter, Cheryl Norstrom, Traci Biedenbender, Brad Doro, Krista Lesiecki, Jen Zoesch, and Joel Hartline.

The body of Paul W. Anderson, a 25-year-old Kewaskum man, was recovered from Lake Camelot in the Town of Rome on August 21. According to news reports, Anderson and another man jumped off a dock and into Lake Camelot early in the morning on August 20. They were attempting to swim to a pontoon boat, but Anderson never made it. The Adams County Medical Examiner's Office and Rome Police Department are investigating the cause of death.

With 5:26 remaining in the fourth quarter, KHS junior Tony Steger put the Indians ahead of West Bend East with a 23-yard touchdown run. He added the two-point conversion and Kewaskum won the game 34-27. The touchdown came after a seven-play, 70-yard march down the field. However, that wasn't the longest drive of the game for Kewaskum as the Indians had an eight-play, 80-yard march in the third quarter. The game had been delayed soon after the third quarter began due to lightning.

The Kewaskum Lions Club and The Silbernagel Group, along with members of the Kewaskum community, helped the "Fill the School Bus" campaign be successful. New school supplies, including folders, crayons, backpacks, paper and pencils were stacked in the school bus parked in front of the Piggly Wiggly in Kewaskum on August 12 and 13. Supplies collected will be distributed to families with children in the area that cannot afford to buy all that is needed to have a successful year in school. The average child needs $70 worth of school supplies.

One of four Milwaukee-area recipients of the 2016 merit scholarships awarded by A.O. Smith Corporation is Emma Menzel. The 2015 graduate of Kewaskum High School is entering her sophomore year in the Honors Program at Gallaudet University in Washington, D.C. Her field of study is as a certified deaf interpreter and English linguistics.

The Empire Threshing Association is hosting its annual Threshere on August 27.

The Village of Kewaskum Planning Commission, for the third time, reviewed a concept plan from Tom Timblin and Greene Brothers Construction for what is described as an upscale residential community with 132 single family lots on 130 acres located on Kewaskum's north side. The approval of a laptop computer for use in the Kewaskum School District was the cause for debate between the school board and the new superintendent, Dr. Charles Johnson, at the school board meeting. A request for a (total package) $4,629 laptop by the finance, transportation, building and grounds committee for Elementary Principal Kieth Kriewaldt, who will be traveling to three schools, was put on hold as the board wanted more research done on the purchase. Johnson later gave his recommendation for the same unit. Board member Mary Andera had researched units and suggested one that was about $1,200 less and included a larger hard drive. On a 6-1 vote, board members approved the unit suggested by Andera.

Future cabling and phone plans for Kewaskum Middle and High Schools was presented by George Allmann, curriculum resource specialist and business manager, during the school board meeting. Ten companies recently toured the buildings and bids were due this past Monday. Bids will be reviewed by the finance, transportation, building and grounds committee, which will make its recommendation at the September board meeting.

By a vote of 6-1, a resolution to authorize the borrowing of $2.6 million to build and equip a new elementary school in Kewaskum and to build and equip additions to the Kewaskum High School, the Farmington and Wayne Elementary Schools, and the Kewaskum Junior High was approved by the board of education at Monday night's meeting, Richard Theusch cast the dissenting vote.

The village beach will officially close on August 22. After that date, lifeguards will not be at the beach. Approximately 130 youngsters signed up for and participated in swimming instructions during one or more of the four scheduled two-week sessions.

State Trooper Daniel J. Lutzke of District No. 2 in Kewaskum received the National Safety Council award for five years of safe driving. He was one of 33 state troopers to receive an award.

A large barn and all its contents were destroyed by fire shortly after the noon hour Thursday on the Marvin Tackes farm, one mile east of Kewaskum. Contents of the barn that were lost included hay, straw, grain, some farm machinery and a pile of lumber that was stored in the building. An adjoining milkhouse, nearby shed, and another grain storage shed were also lost, as was an old automobile. Three other nearby sheds were scorched but were soaked and saved by firemen. Members of the family succeeded in removing and saving some livestock in the barn.

LORI KREIS
KEWASKUM LIBRARIAN

Last week we were without power for almost 24 hours at home. The week previous we had lost power, although it only lasted a couple hours overnight. The library was also without electricity for several hours as I know many in our communities were experiencing the same misfortune.

Not trying to be facetious but being without power feels very powerless. Maybe a better description is no control of the situation. I need to feel in control of things in my life, hence my position of director of a library. I think it is akin to how my husband feels on a plane. He hates flying so much and as a car guy and usually in the driver's seat, having someone pilot his path is uncomfortable for him. Not being able to shower, open my fridge, prepare a meal, see while walking through the house was very uncomfortable for me.

The news stations warned us it might happen. It was so calm out and then the lights flickered and poof we were literally in the dark. I had prepared in advance, I had candles ready, my phone fully charged and my car outside the garage. I lit a candle and continued my reading.

My husband did not do as well. We did have flashlights, Coleman lanterns and batteries. He regretted that we didn't have the battery-operated fan which was in the RV at the campground or a battery-operated TV. He claimed it was to keep abreast of the weather news. I accepted that although I knew differently. I think he lasted a half hour before he had to drive to town and see which stores were open.

While he was gone, I relished in the quiet. Doing things throughout the house carrying a candle felt very Victorian. I turned on some fans thinking the power would be restored overnight. I was not very concerned; when we were without the prior week, it was back in a few hours. When my husband returned, he had purchased another lantern, bags of batteries and a weather radio, no battery-operated TV to be found.

Power was not restored overnight, and my feelings wavered between irritation, helplessness and some fear. Getting ready for work in the morning not knowing when we would have electricity again was a challenge. Understanding that I would probably need to throw out food that I had recently purchased was frustrating.

When I got online and realized how widespread the outage was, the exasperated feeling left me. Instead, I felt fortunate. I had family offering to put us up if we needed. If I needed to replace food, I could afford to do that; not everyone can. And we did not have to go days in the dark unlike my nephew who was out for three days. It was an inconvenience for me but living in a society where power is a basic met need is a blessing.

Hope to see you soon.

The Legend Of Hank O'Toole

BY KARL MCCARTY
CONTRIBUTOR

“Wasn’t he a bum?” That was the first comment that came to mind when a former resident of South Eden was asked about the old man who worked the area farms 75 years ago. That wanderer was Hank O’Toole.

Maybe those who lived in Eden or Empire know who he was. If — and that’s a big IF — they are over 85 years old. Even those commentators of local history don’t know where exactly Mr. O’Toole came from.

There might be slight disagreements on Hank’s range. Even where his grave lies seems to be a mystery, but what he dug in the 1940s lays north of Highway F and east of Timberlane Drive. Rest assured what ended up there is not buried treasure, but the legend surrounding what some considered a vagrant is valuable.

Karl Ryan

If you talk to Karl Ryan on the old days of Eden over breakfast at the Eden Café, you hear some angles of the 1930s that few are alive to tell anymore. There was a time when people called the aforementioned intersection South Eden, and Catholics still went to Saint James Church east of Baumhardt’s Hill. These are some of Karl Ryan’s geography in his biography, largely pinned between Timberlane Drive and Eagle Road within Eden Township, linked by Highway F and tailed by Skunk Hollow.

Such tales and the questions that arise from those days are told over his “usual” at the cafe: three links, two eggs over easy, and whole wheat toast. “Over easy means they don’t stay hard,” Karl (to me it’s ‘grandpa’) said. In contrast, his mother “made ‘em like a bullet,” where the yokes were hard and tasted “kinda gummy.” But in those days, one couldn’t complain. You ate gummy egg yokes.

He has seen the Depression, but is not the type to ask for sympathy. He didn’t have much at that time, but neither did his neighbors, who were, and always have been, good to him.

Karl was born in 1932 to Maurice and Violet Ryan. Maurice lived his whole life in that house in the northeast quadrant of Timberlane & F — not that either of those roads were called that a century back. Violet was a Huck raised off Eagle Road and Preserve Lane. That barn, too, still stands down the lane. Together they had four children in South Eden: Ray, Jeannette, Karl and Dave.

A Trench Needed

Karl’s childhood revolves around learning how to farm, particularly from his brother and best friend Ray.

Karl Ryan is a regular at the Eden Café. Besides his food, he appreciates the kind neighbors of Eden and the surrounding area who often say hello during his visits. PHOTOS BY KARL MCCARTY

Over the course of that upbringing, he recalled mom and dad trying to get by. Accordingly, the “water works” didn’t exist in the Ryan house, but in the mid-1940s it could be completed by attaching it to the well by the barn. All you needed was someone who could dig six feet deep from the barn to the house.

How far is this dig? Well, if you are in the Eden Café, Karl said this is certainly longer than the two corners that are farthest apart in the café. Out of respect to not measure as patrons ate their breakfast, we are left to conclude Hank dug somewhere around 30 yards.

This dig was going to take awhile, and Maurice Ryan wasn’t going to do it. Son Ray was farming on Maurice Flood’s farm (Krewald’s today), and Karl himself was too young and a bit short. Hank O’Toole was the answer.

There is no doubt on the work ethic of Hank O’Toole, who had to beat the frost line for sure. “Oh. He went at least six feet. He was down a long ways.”

Then there’s a wry smirk as Mr. O’Toole in the trench came to Grandpa Ryan’s mind. “You couldn’t see ‘em in there. He was pretty tall, and all I could see is him throwing the dirt over.”

And really, it makes one scratch the head. “I don’t know how he ever... [did that]. He musta dug four or five feet a day at the most.” Really, how many people today have dug six feet deep, and five feet long, and wide enough for an adult to comfortably walk through? Karl concluded Hank worked a sizable portion of the summer, which he dated to the mid-1940s.

Glass Jugs and a Five Gallon Pail

It was Hank O’Toole’s quirks, character and actions that left an impression on a young Karl Ryan, who turns 89 this August. For one, Karl didn’t ever break bread with him. “I can never remember him coming in to eat,” and there isn’t a recollection of mom even inviting him in for supper, and she probably never allowed him in the house.

A line was drawn in the soil, and what some might call a ‘bum’ was not allowed in the house. On the other side of that line was Hank’s bed. Although there were two horses in the barn, there was still one stall empty. For Hank O’Toole? “He laid in that straw pile,” Karl said, then laughed with his short, reflective: “Ha Ha.”

Hank was rather skinny. And some might bluntly conclude Hank O’Toole was an alcoholic. Visions include Hank walking Timberlane Drive or the Ryan farm, as he came back with a gallon glass jug, the types “with the little handle,” Karl said, as he motioned the small glass circle at the top of the gallon glass jug that fits a finger.

In defense, it appears Hank could manage the timing of his binges. Sure, Hank drank. But if it was during the work week it was “later on in the night. Mostly on the weekends is when he got drunk, and he’d be dead to the world.” Karl paused, and added: “Yea, just sleeping in the box stall, straw around him.”

Where he got the gallon wine was a mystery. Karl initially guessed Herb Grahl’s store, but other elders at the Eden Café and surrounding Eden Township conclude Herb Grahl (1903-1969) would not have sold alcohol out of his store in the 1940s. What is certain to Karl is that Herb Grahl Capuchin Priest Timon Costello (1932-2019) took the time to compile “Blue Birds & Red Clay” into book form in August 1997. The book pays homage to the farm of his parents, Addis and Ruth Costello. It was located in the Town of Fond du Lac, in what today is Highway 151 near Highway V. The book is less than 80 pages, but the first 10 largely focus on Hank O’Toole, who is referred to as “Hank O.” Because Timon was too young to pick thistles, he had more time observing the legend sleeping in the barn. “Hank O’ was that great man living in obscurity who made a mark and impressed a child,” (p.8).

Timon’s piece is uniquely written in that he never calls Hank O’Toole a bum. His words are carefully chosen, and largely focus the Irishmen in a positive light all the while implying he liked the bottle. He has a remarkable way of telling the truth, but not being demeaning.

Furthermore, it’s intriguing such pages are written by a Capuchin Priest, whose vocation focused on spreading the message of Christ born in a manger. It is clear one of the deepest imprints by any adult left on Timon was that of Hank O’Toole, a man whose bed was usually straw where the horse laid or hay where the mice crept.

Hank O’Toole influenced many farms from Byron, Eden, Empire and the south end of what today is Fond du Lac. We are left to reflect how casual observations during childhood leave extraordinary impressions.

Pete Costello is one of the few people remaining with a direct connection to Hank O'Toole, a traveling worker who slept in area barns in the 1930s and 1940s. He was gracious enough to sit in a booth by Karl Ryan at the Eden Café this July to discuss the importance of the hired hand who died from frozen feet in 1947.

Timon and Pete Costello are impressed with the height of this corn in this picture courtesy of Pete's granddaughter Emily Guell. Besides their childhood, the brothers shared a respect for their Irish heritage and an appreciation for the rural history of the area. This conclusion can be made by reading Timon's book, "Blue Birds and Red Clay," or enjoying a good conversation with Pete anytime.

A person is always susceptible to stereotypes, and the same can be said for the early 1900s bum or hobo that traversed the area, especially later during the Great Depression. This postcard was sent in 1909, and hints that the homeless man didn't work that hard. Many who witnessed Hank O'Toole would disagree.

POSTCARD COURTESY OF KARL MCCARTY

did sell Hank O'Toole his shoes. Grahl is buried in Empire Cemetery, and Hank worked for Empire farmers, as suggested by others for this story. Because Hank had a following with farmers in Empire, Grahl's store in Eden may have been a safe place where he could make a purchase and not be teased a 'bum.' Or money is good from the customer no matter his past and as long as he can pay. Either way, the Irish wanderer got his work shoes.

"He always had a new pair of shoes,

I remember that." Karl described them as "regular work shoes" with rubber soles. "They didn't have leather in them like they do now. They burnt his feet. At night he had to take them off and put his feet in the cold water." In what was probably something similar to athlete's foot, Hank "stuck both feet in a five gallon pail" to cool them in that tiny barn of Maurice and Violet Ryan.

Blue Birds & Red Clay

Well that was the end of the story. Nothing else to add about this man dead for 70 years, and who probably had no family who knew or cared about him at the time of his passing.

When needing some advice on research, Bob Meier is a historian to ask. Did he hear of Hank O'Toole? For sure. The folks in Empire liked the guy, and Hank may have even died up there. Bob recommended Fr. Timon Costello's Blue Birds and Red Clay, and the regional book was a godsend. The cover says it was "compiled" by Fr. Timon, but a good deal of the book's 77 pages is written by him, eight of which are dedicated to Hank O'Toole.

Timon's reflections are on the farm he grew up on around 1940, which by the late 1990s was going to be replaced by the expansion of 151. Today this land is by 151 and Highway V, and was north of Luxerin Farms, or what many call "Sheridan's." Addis Costello had married Ruth McGalloway of Dotyville, and they raised 10 Irish Catholic children on this farm in the Town of Fond du Lac.

Timon filled in so much detail about Hank O'Toole, one is left to conclude the traveling worker was his boyhood hero. Hank was an Irish Catholic storyteller and old friend of the Costello family. Described as a gentle giant with a beard like wild moss, Hank typically wore bib overalls and washed his long underwear in B.K. disinfectant. (Karl Ryan said that B.K. was "powerful stuff.") It was Hank and his practical ways to clean through which Timon tied the meaning of his book title: "He washed red clay from his tall boots and asked if the blue birds were nesting again in the post down the lane" (p.2).

As a boy too young to do the hard work, Timon concluded he saw Hank more than his siblings and looking back, concluded it taught him culture. Hank talked about the old Indians, to which Hank mimicked nomadic tendencies, moving from farm to farm to help throughout the years. Those years and farms created a litany of stories for the young Timon to hear.

Timon also explained how Hank got his alcohol, which included getting to the saloons in Fond du Lac on a Saturday. But somehow he figured how to dry out when he worked, and also must have had a second pair of bib overalls that were relatively clean when he headed into town.

Most directly pertinent to Hank, Fr. Costello could recall Hank's death being in the paper, and went to the Dugan Funeral Home in Fond du Lac during his school lunch break. After a 20 minute wait, the mortician allowed him to view the corpse, a clean shaved Irishman holding a rosary.

Pete Costello's Perspective

And there it was. The search for the story of Hank O'Toole was finished. Timon provided the details. Then a few weeks passed on the topic, all the while Grandpa Ryan and I continued our weekly Saturday morning nourishment and interviews at the Eden Café.

On July 1st this summer, we ate on a Thursday. The shake up in the schedule was the difference. "That's Pete Costello," grandpa told me with a surprised smile. And by golly, we looked at who came walking in. "Can I sit down?" We were honored that Pete would ask. It was just the man we wanted to see. What better source for Hank O'Toole than a brother of Timon.

Through Pete, the full meaning of Hank's story came about. Hank was known by many people in the Eden-Empire-Fond du Lac area in 1940. "Hank was a famous person. Remember Hank?" Pete said to Karl, who then proceeded to tell the water works story explained above.

Pete said Hank "walked [from] one farm to another with a stick and few hankies," concurring that yes, "he had a bundle" like the stereotyped hobos at the time who walked with a stick and all their belongings. Then Pete was at a loss for words, perhaps because the topic was a great man many have long forgotten.

He went back to the Costello farm 80 years ago. "I'd get up one morning to milk cows (by hand)," he laughed. "And 'course, all of sudden [you'd notice the hired help] — he slept in front of the horse," and then Pete changed his tone as if he were Hank: "Oohhhhhh-the-evening." It sounded like one word rather than a phrase, as Pete mimicked some guy who was waking up in front of the horses and stretching, missing the moonlight that was gone as another work day began. "And he'd be yawning, yawning, yawning." There was no judgment here, and if it was, it was a compliment. "But he was one hell of a good guy," Pete added.

There were quirks about the story Pete brought up too. He was interested in that Hank lived by himself. "You'd think that when he went from one farm to another that people would drive him there? NO! He'd walk to the next farm." This was seconded by Karl in other conversations, in which there is no recollection that Karl's dad Maurice ever drove Hank — there are only memories of him walking on Timberlane Drive to get to dad's farm, usually with the gallon jug of wine.

Pete didn't know where Hank was born, "But I know when he died, he slept in a horse barn or somewhere one night, and froze the feet, and he died from that." He wasn't certain on the farm, because Hank worked on so many of them.

Now, a background that is important is that although the Costello's is a common name in the Eden area, they went to school in Fond du Lac as there was no Catholic school in Eden yet (St. Mary's opened in the mid-1950s). Pete was most disturbed by what happened after Hank's death. When Hank died, Pete's dad respected Hank very much and all the work he did on the farm. So dad asked the priest in Fond du Lac to say a prayer for Hank. The priest responded "No!" Besides not going to church, Hank was once going to be a priest but left that vocational track. The priest concluded not only was he not going say a prayer for Hank, but also added, "I am not going to bury him either!"

Karl Ryan was born on a farm (Maurice and Violet Ryan's), but admitted he learned the most from his brother Ray, who was nine years older than him. Pictured here is Karl on that farm, standing with the calf next to Ray and Harriet Ryan's children: Joan, John and Carol. Maurice and Violet's stones by the barn were painted white, and the well of the farm was north of the barn and would be directly behind Uncle Karl in the picture. This well and the water works from the house would have been connected a few years earlier by Hank O'Toole, the focus of this article.

The result? Hank was buried in what Timon called a "Potter's Field." Others questioned for this story, including Karl and Pete, could not conclude where Hank O'Toole was ever buried. I even tried Find a Grave, a leading website for burial markers, that helps one to conclude he may not even have a headstone. Some had even guessed Iowa might be Hank's burial place.

Luckily I ran into Chris Holz of Uecker-Witt Funeral Home in Fond du Lac. The Uecker and Witt of that company broke away from the Dugan Funeral Home (which according to Timon's book had Hank's corpse). Chris verified the death records. Henry O'Toole died at St. Agnes on March 25, 1947, due to myocarditis, in what was essentially frozen feet.

He was born in 1869 in Shullsburg, Wisconsin, to a John and Ann O'Toole. The information on the documents at the time of death noted the County Welfare Department was involved. Other sources, themselves open to alternations to their story, noted that the frozen feet occurred in a barn near Empire. Also, it is unclear if he was dead in the barn and they just brought Hank to St. Agnes. What is certain is some were confused on whether Hank was buried back home near Shullsburg or near Iowa. In fact, the records show Hank was buried in Fond du Lac County in what today is in the vicinity of Rolling Meadows Golf Course.

Lessons Of A Life

Hank O'Toole is important because he is symbolic of the hard work that was the base of area farms mid-century. Pete said he and Hank didn't talk too much because, "He'd be working all the time." And the work Hank did was the tough stuff. "Any kinda bullwork. The hard work."

On the Costello farm, Hank wouldn't drive the tractor and Pete

Aiello's Walkoff Gives A's Northern Divisional Playoff Title

The A's clinched a spot in the upcoming Rock River Grand Championships this past weekend with wins over Thiensville-Mequon 11-1 on Friday, Aug. 13, and Oakfield 6-1 on Saturday, Aug. 14, as part of the Rock River Northern Division playoffs.

Those two wins put the A's in the Northern Division championship game on Sunday, Aug. 15, against Brownsville who also had already clinched a spot in next weekend's Grand Championships.

In Sunday's finale, Brownsville led 3-1 with the A's down to their last out, but singles by Dylan Detert, Ethan Sawyer and a walk to Brad Young loaded the bases for Mike Aiello. Aiello jumped on the first pitch he saw ripping a double off the wall in right, allowing all three runners to score for the dramatic 4-3 walkoff win.

It's been a fantastic season for the A's thus far as they sit at 53-21-1. They are set to host Clyman this coming Saturday, Aug. 21, at Kewaskum High School in a first-round Grand Championship play-off game at 1:30 p.m.

The Kewaskum A's clinched a spot in the upcoming Rock River Grand Championships this past weekend with wins against Thiensville-Mequon, Oakfield and Brownsville.

CHS Cross Country Gets Underway

Monday, Aug. 16th, was the start of the 2021 cross country season at Campbellsport High School. After the unusual season last year, the Cougars are looking forward to a normal schedule.

This will include the 50th annual Cougar Invitational that was postponed in 2020.

The biggest change for Campbellsport is the return to the Wisconsin Flyway Conference. In 2020, the Cougar boys were the ECC Conference Champs and are hoping to be as successful in the new conference. The last race the girls' varsity ran in 2020 was their best of the season, and the team is hoping to carry that over to the new season.

This year the Cougars will have 12 returning seniors — six boys and six girls. Along with many returning juniors and sophomores, the team will have a lot of experience going into the season. With a strong incoming group of freshmen, the Cougars hope to be competitive as they transition to the Wisconsin Flyway.

Coach P's

CORNER

If You Build It, He Will Come

Last week Major League Baseball played a professional game at the "Field of Dreams" in Dyersville, Iowa. If you didn't get a chance to see it, you might want to Google it and see the wonderful field The New York Yankees and Chicago White Sox played on. MLB built a $5 million-dollar stadium right next to the original field where they filmed the classic 1989 movie "Field of Dreams."

The game had all the beautiful pageantry with Kevin Costner coming out of the corn from center field to start the game. Costner was the star of the movie back in 1989, he gave a beautiful speech before the game. Players from both the Yankees and White Sox then emerged from the corn stalks as they did in the movie. The game lived up to the hype as the Yankees scored four runs in the top of the ninth to take the lead, only to have the White Sox hit a two-run walk off homer into the corn to win it in the bottom of the ninth.

Field of Dreams was a movie about an Iowa farmer named Ray Kinsella. He built this incredible baseball field right next to his three-bedroom farm house. The storyline in the movie is about passion, not just for baseball, but also a passion to do something with our one precious life even if people think it's crazy. Field of Dreams also reminds us how faith can appear as madness to those not in the loop.

For me, watching this game brought back some very good memories of my childhood baseball days. I played youth baseball all the way until ninth grade in Fond du Lac. Baseball was always a passion of mine, we'd always round up the neighbor gang and go play strikeout over at a school or start a whiffle ball game in someone's backyard.

My favorite times of my life were going to my dad's softball games as a kid. I was the bat boy and then scorekeeper. After the game, the dads would sit around and have a couple beers and the kids would play pickle until our knees were covered in mud and grass stains.

Since we're on the topic of softball, this Saturday night at the Eden Firemen's Park will be the 13th Annual Scuddimo's Softball Game. Action starts at 6:15 p.m. with defending champion Scud's Buds taking on Dimo's. This one should be a dandy and a good pitching match-up between two veterans. Leo Goebel gets the start for Dimo's while Jay "Freddie" Baumhardt will be on the hill for Scud's.

The second game will feature 2fer's Gametime Retreat taking on the Eden Fire and Rescue team. Stop down to the diamond for some fun action, 50/50 raffles, food, soda, beer, and the hilarious John Wettstein in the booth calling the game, all proceeds go to the Eden Firemen's Association.

Masks Not Required Inside Kewaskum Schools

The Kewaskum Board of Education gave a nod of approval for a mitigation plan for the Kewaskum School District's upcoming school year during a regular school board meeting on Thursday, Aug. 12.

The following is the school district's plan, which is flexible and may change at any time as the district responds to changing circumstances and conditions.

Instructional Practices

We are planning on remaining open for daily teaching and learning while giving families and students a virtual option.

Schools will not be cohorting students. This includes lunch and recess.

At all levels there will be a strong focus on social and emotional well-being for students and staff focusing on belonging, connecting, and reducing anxiety.

If students are out for an extended time (more than two days), staff will provide asynchronous (not real time) activities/homework for the student within 24 hours if requested by parents. Staff will not be providing synchronous learning opportunities (no Google Meets).

Field trips will be allowed. Like any other field trip, parents who do not want their child to participate will have that option. All staff, volunteers, and students will follow the requirements of the location that they are visiting (i.e., if a location requires masks, staff/volunteers/students will have to wear a mask to participate in the field trip).

School assemblies will be allowed.

Teachers can have communal materials (i.e., manipulatives, crayons, science equipment). Students will be encouraged to wash/sanitize their hands before and after use.

Social distancing will be done as much as feasible, with 3 feet of distance recommended, but learning groups will be allowed in classrooms, including physical education and music classes.

Masks/Face Coverings

Face coverings are optional for students and staff.

Staff and administrators will follow the school disciplinary procedures for any incidents involving teasing or bullying due to the use or non-use of a mask/face coverings.

Visitors/Volunteers

Non-instructional community/family visitors will be allowed by appointment only. Visitors during lunch periods will not be allowed.

Students from other schools will not be allowed to attend school dances.

Instructional-related visitors (i.e., guest speakers) will be approved by building principals.

Schools may utilize contactless dropoff and pick-up of materials.

Volunteers will be approved on an as needed basis and will utilize the district's volunteer process and application form.

Transportation

Students who ride buses will follow the mitigation factors set forth by Johnson Bus.

Student Wellness

Vaccines are not required for students.

Age-appropriate hygiene signs and education will be provided.

Students will be advised to avoid touching eyes, nose, and mouth with unwashed hands, and covering coughs and sneezes with tissue or elbows.

Students will be encouraged to wash hands and/or use school-supplied hand sanitizer in classrooms, lunchrooms, and building entrances.

Parents and students are expected to monitor for symptoms of illness and stay home if they are not feeling well. Parents are advised to have a back-up plan for their child should they be sick.

The sharing of food and/or drink will be discouraged during lunch. Birthday treats will be allowed, but must be store-bought, individually packaged (with ingredients listed). Parents can opt students out of participating in classroom treats.

Safety drills will continue based on policy and state law.

Cleaning Protocols

The district will disinfect and clean buildings nightly.

Teachers will disinfect their classrooms midday and before they leave for the day with supplied disinfectants.

Teachers are not allowed to bring in their own cleaning supplies.

Extracurriculars

All intramurals, athletics and co-curriculars will follow the district mitigation plan. If there are any requirements from the WIAA, all applicable athletics will follow those requirements.

School concerts and performances will be held.

Performance practices and schedules may be changed to improve student, staff, and audience safety.

Contact Tracing/Quarantining

When a school is notified that a student has tested positive for COVID, contact tracing will be done with students in the same household, by classroom in elementary grades, and by classes (excluding lunch) in middle school and high school to identify students who were possibly exposed. Parents should contact their healthcare provider if they have questions about whether they should quarantine their children.

Schools will send the positive case letter to the impacted students, requesting parents to monitor for symptoms. All parents in the school will also be notified about any positive cases.

If a child or staff member states a student is too ill to stay at school, it is the responsibility of the parent to pick up and provide care.

Students should stay at home or be picked up from school when showing critical symptoms. Students exposed but without critical symptoms will not be asked to quarantine. Anyone who had critical symptoms may return to school once critical symptom free without medication for 24 hours. Critical symptoms include:

- Fever over 100.4 degrees
- Excessive cough
- Shortness of breath or difficulty breathing
- Extreme fatigue
- New loss of taste or smell
- Nausea or vomiting
- Diarrhea

Parents are to conduct symptom screening at home and not send ill students to school.

The district will have information for parents about COVID testing options.

Employee Considerations

Staff will be advised to avoid touching eyes, nose, and mouth with unwashed hands, and covering coughs and sneezes with tissue or elbows.

Vaccines will not be required for staff.

There may be changes to staff work locations and hours based on situational needs.

If a staff member has critical symptoms (see student wellness above), they should take sick leave until they are symptom free for 24 hours.

never saw him milk the cows. Instead, he’d get jobs like pitching manure. The hired hand wasn’t brought in to do the easiest farm work. And given Hank was in his sixties by the time the Costello children knew him on their farm, one can only imagine the strain put on the worker’s body.

It’s the same with Karl Ryan’s memory. You brought in Hank to dig a six foot deep trench from the house to the barn; you didn’t bring him to the farm to drive the tractor to cultivate corn. Karl noted all Hank had at the trench digging was “a pic and shovel.” This is impressive when considering this Irishman was probably over 70 years old when he was digging.

Another important lesson of Hank is he helps explain how a traveling worker got the respect of area farmers. Besides that hard work, Pete said farmers liked Hank because he didn’t charge much.

The farmers trusted Hank, and so did the animals who slept by him. As Karl Ryan commented: “A wonder he never got stepped on by a horse.” Did the horses trust Hank? “Sure they did,” answered Pete. He must have been good to the animals, and in addition, he played by the rules of the farmer. He clearly had some very redeeming characteristics despite his penchant for the bottle. What a wonderful reminder to focus on other’s strengths, rather than weaknesses.

Karl and Pete did not recall Hank smoking. Timon wrote Hank did smoke. But all three could agree that the farmers did trust Hank in that he wouldn’t burn the barn down — the common fear against “bums and tramps” in the Great Depression.

And although this is an assumption, it is possible that one of the perks for Hank going to the taverns on the weekends, besides the alcohol, was the connection with area farmers who went to saloons. As Dr. Fuller McBride explained to me one time, the reason why the Irish call pubs ‘pubs’ is because it’s public: it’s where you go to find out information. Taverns worked as a form of news in the 1930s, and talking to the sources was way better than reading it. This probably was the case given that many area farmers were not avid readers given an education that was often under eight years at a one room school house.

Anyways, Hank earned the trust to work on others’ farms, even if it’s only a few weeks to dig the water works from the barn to the house. It was Karl Ryan’s best guess that Maurice probably saw Hank at a bar. And if it wasn’t that, the recommendation from his labor came from another area farmer who had hired Hank before.

I went back and forth on whether the priest rejecting Hank was worthy of documentation. And then I saw Pete again, who gave peace of mind that the whole point of Hank’s story is the rejection after his death. The priest should have prayed for him at the very least. “God is suppose to forgive you, aint it?” said Pete.

And then they didn’t even allow Hank to be buried in a Catholic cemetery. Instead they plopped him unnamed in a county cemetery. To which Pete commented: “Sure it’s sad. You bet it is.” Then there is the concern whether anybody knows where exactly his body lays. “I mean. That is wrong. Isn’t it?” Pete asked, then threw in a “Come on?”

Hank O’Toole deserves recognition: “The farmers really liked him. He was so good. He’d do all that gull darn dirty work and everything.” And in contrast to Karl Ryan’s experience, Pete heard “their wives would give him a big feed.”

The story doesn’t end there, because the legacy of Hank shaped Timon as he became a priest (by the way, the same priest who rejected Hank thought Timon was too dumb to become one). In contrast, there is no doubt Timon would have helped in the honoring of Hank, for he already did it as an eighth grader. Indeed, Timon might have been the only person who visited Hank at the funeral home.

“Hank O’ Toole still lives,” Grandpa Ryan said smiling this summer walking into the Eden Cafe while reflecting on all the stories coming back from the area conversations this summer. Likewise, in the last discussion on Hank, Pete restated his interest in the hired hand: “He’d walk to a farm. Wouldn’t you think a farmer give him a ride over to that place? But that’s the way he wanted: ‘I’ll walk.’”

There is no doubt the traveling worker did it his way. That’s the winning ticket for Henry ‘Hank’ O’Toole. An individual who could go where he wanted to go, just like the bluebirds on the Costello farm. A man who lived his whole life without nothing, but was rich in originality and a reputation for hard work and loyalty to area farmers. Thank goodness at least three children at the time who witnessed Hank preserved his memory.

Filing Formal Complaints of Title IX Sexual Harassment

As required by the federal Title IX regulations, the District has established a formal grievance process for investigating and resolving "formal complaints" of "sexual harassment," as those terms are defined in the regulations.

An individual who is alleged to be the victim of conduct that could constitute sexual harassment under the federal Title IX regulations (i.e., a Title IX "complainant"), or a parent or guardian who has a legal right to act on behalf of such an individual, may file a formal complaint of sexual harassment. No Title IX complainant is obligated to file a formal complaint, but a qualifying formal complaint is necessary for the District to start an investigation using the District's formal Title IX grievance process.

Complainants are expected to file formal complaints of sexual harassment with a District Title IX Coordinator by submitting a document or electronic submission in person, by U.S. mail, or by electronic mail, using the contact information specified above.

Additional requirements for formal complaints of Title IX sexual harassment, including a description of the required content for a formal complaint, are set forth in Board Policy 2266 and its accompanying Guidelines.

District Response to Reports and Complaints of Sex Discrimination and to Formal Complaints of Sexual Harassment Under Title IX

The District has established grievance procedures through which the District structures its response to reports that allege unlawful discrimination on the basis of sex in any education program or activity of the District. Those procedures are set forth in Board Policy 2266. The purpose of such procedures is to provide for the prompt and equitable resolution of any report or complaint of alleged sex discrimination, excluding formal complaints of sexual harassment under Title IX (which are subject to a different process).

Any time that the District has actual knowledge of sexual harassment or allegations of sexual harassment that could constitute a violation of Title IX, the District has obligations to respond to such knowledge in a manner that is not deliberately indifferent and in a manner that treats the alleged victim(s) of sexual harassment and the alleged perpetrator(s) of sexual harassment equitably. Such response includes, but is not limited to, offering supportive measures to a complainant and investigating and resolving any formal complaint that presents allegations of Title IX sexual harassment using the formal grievance process that the District has adopted for such formal complaints. District procedures for responding to alleged sexual harassment under Title IX, including the formal grievance process, are set forth in Board Policy 2266.
